VOL. CI. No. 11 — PETERBOROUGH, —CENTENNIAL SECTION — FRIDAY, JULY 14, 1950

THE EXAMINER presents its readers with a survey of the past, accompanied by a wish that our city may enjoy another century of growth, progress and happiness

PETERBOROUGH INCORPORATED A TOWN BY ACT OF LEGISLATURE

Town Divided in Four Wards Thomas Benson First Mayor Bylaws Passed by Council

A series of acts of parliament, starting in 1789 and ending in 1850, gave Ontario municipalities the right and the power to pass their own bylaws.

Although Peterborough could have achieved incorporation as a town earlier, it did not become a distinct municipality until 1850. At that time, an act based on Lord Durham's report, and listing the powers of the various types of municipalities, and incidentally incorporating several Ontario towns, was passed.

In 1789, the Courts of Quarter Sessions were set up, beginning municipal government in Ontario. These courts had authority only insofar as rural conditions applied. They had no power to enact bylaws or instal civic services.

Power To Instal Services

Parliament later, in 1816, gave these courts the power to instal certain civic services, and to enact local bylaws. This was the first step in the segregation of districts in Upper Canada.

By 1832, certain districts had taken the reins into their own hands. Brockville in that year applied for and was given permission to elect a board, which replaced the magistrate provided by the Courts of Quarter Sessions.

In 1834, Toronto was incorporated as a city, and four years later, Kingston became a town. The District Council Act of 1841 divided the townships of Upper Canada into groups, each forming a "district." Peterborough was in the district of Colborne.

Between the passing of this act and 1848, about 10 other towns in Upper Canada were incorporated, and in 1846 a notice was placed in The Gazette, saying Peterborough would apply for incorporation at the next session of parliament. This was not done.

Became Town In 1850

Three years later, a new law was drafted listing the powers of the different types of municipality. The act went into force January 1, 1850. Under this act, new charters of incorporation were granted to towns whose charters had been cancelled, as well as to new towns, including Peterborough.

The act provided that Peterborough be divided into four wards—east, south, north, and centre. Three councillors were to be elected by the male residents, freeholders, and householders in each ward.

Councillors elected were: north—W. S. Conger, James Harvey, D. McDonald; east—John Hall, Thomas Harper, Thomas Benson; centre—R. Ridley, W. Eastland, James Hall; south—C. Hudson, E. Chamberlain, P. Ryan.

Thomas Benson was chosen mayor by the councillors. Other civic officials were: clerk, W. H. Vizard; treasurer, Robert Nicholls; chief constable, Wm. Cummings; inspector weights and measures, John English; fire inspector, John Davis; chief engineer, W. S. Conger; assistant engineer, John R. Benson; acting assessor, James Edwards; collector, Daniel Hopkins; superintendent of schools, Daniel Griffith; inspector of licenses, John Haggart; street surveyors, James Lince, Robert Harper; town surveyor, John Reid; pound keepers, William McBurney and Robert Sharp.

Original Bylaws.

First bylaw passed by the new council went through on January 29, 1850, and aimed to provide, in its own wording "Standing Rules, for regulating the proceedings of the Municipal Council of the Town of Peterborough."

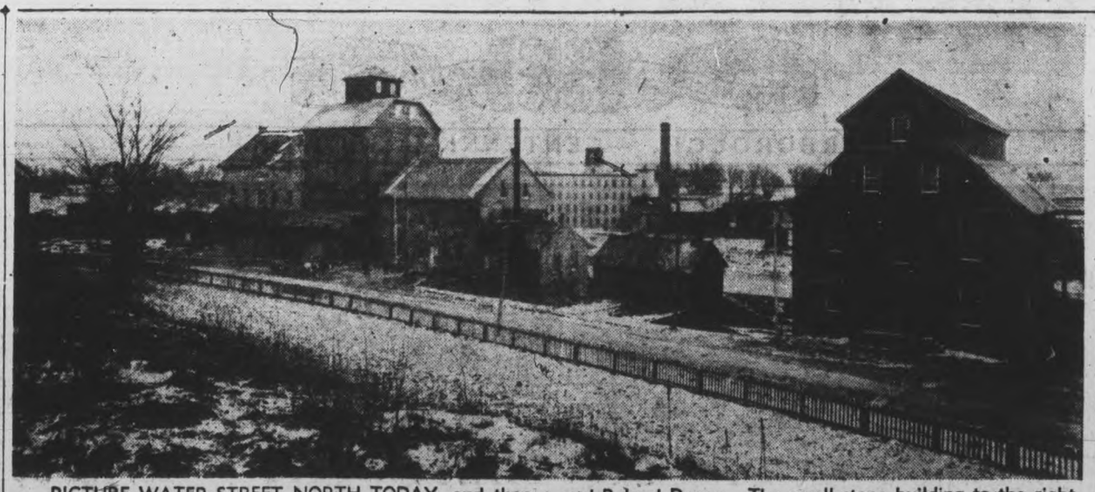
Number two was for the better government of the town, and forbade bathing or washing in public waters between sunup and sunset, use of foul language in public, and speeding.

If you had a chimney fire in those days, and that fire endangered any building, you would have been liable to a penalty of not less than five shillings "for each and every such offence."

Sleighbells were necessary—at least two of them—or you paid 10 shillings into the towns' coffers.

Bylaw Number Three dealt with the granting of licences "for certain purposes" in the town. Billiard halls, bowling alleys, taverns, victualling houses, livery stables, circuses, exhibitions of "Natural or Artificial Curiosities," all needed licenses before they could operate in Peterborough. Owners of such things paid from two to five pounds for their licences.

Other bylaws provided for town officers, fire prevention, weighing hay, straw and fodder, dog taxes, census takers, imprisonment for offences against bylaws, prevention of damage by "ferocious or unruly" dogs, and so on.



PICTURE WATER STREET NORTH TODAY, and then look at this photograph, taken some time before 1890. You can locate it by the Auburn Mill in the centre background. The stone building to the left is a grist-mill owned by Henry Denne, father of two Peterborough mayors—T. H. G. Denne, and Roland Denne. The small stone building to the right of the mill was once a flannel factory, and the building to the right, thought to be a storage shed, has not been identified. North of the Denne mill was the sawmill owned by George Hilliard. It is not shown.

Sawdust Instead of Carpets On Floor of Court Room

The dignified but unpretentious annals of the County Council of one hundred years ago ingenuously and graphically reflect both the material and spiritual aspects and actors of a scene which shifts and resets from year to year but with only superficial changes after all, except of course in its personnel.

Reeves and deputy-reeves come and go, but the County Council goes on—seemingly forever.

Here and there the minutes offer a clue that is full of meaning and color, suddenly revealing the age with a sharpness of detail which surprises and even shock us a little in the discovery.

For instance the finance committee on January 25, 1853 included this clause in its report:

With regard to the application of Mr. Sheriff Conger for permission to procure carpeting to substitute for sawdust in the court room, your committee cannot advise in the present situation of your finances the complying with the request. (The Council bought a carpet in June 1854 for £3 19s. 6d.)

Thos. Fortye, reeve of North Monaghan, signed that report.

Granted Education

Obviously those were crude and primitive days. Sawdust must perforce substitute for carpets in the court room, and there was no government compensation fund for workmen. But—from a bylaw passed June 17, 1852, authorizing the treasurer to pay—

"to the order of Michael Walsh, on its being accompanied by the certificate of the head master of the Union School, Peterborough, of his regular attendance, the sum of 7s. 6d. per week, during six months, to pay his board, and the further sum of 10s. to purchase books for the said Michael Walsh, he having lost an arm by accident and being desirous to fit himself for earning a livelihood by teaching school."

Not An Insurance Fund

The council had its tender sentiment for human distress, but it was no insurance directorate. For example the finance committee report January 28, 1852, says:

"As to the petition of Patrick Leahy of Douro for remuneration for the loss of his barn, etc., by fire, your committee though sympathizing with Mr. Leahy cannot recommend the granting of his petition, the Council having no funds at their disposal for such purposes."

Another entry in the minutes throws a sidelight on the menage of the jail. It instructed the sheriff to buy for the use of the prisoners 10 pairs of blankets, one night pail, three chamber pots, six towels, one water pot and one dust brush.

"Straw Ticks" for Prisoners

And the prisoners hadn't osteermoors to sleep on but they had the comfortable straw tick of that day, for the jailer was authorized to spend not more than £4 for bed ticking. The Finance Committee justified its recommendation by expressing their opinion that "such ticking is greatly needed."

Although the county treasury was usually low and money was scarce, the Council was not parsimonious and did not hesitate to reward special service in its own ranks.

Honorarium to Warden

On February 1, 1851, Reeve W. McDonnell of Ops, moved, seconded by Thos. Fortye of Monaghan "that in consideration of the services of Thomas Benson (Reeve of Peterborough) as late chairman of this Council, some token of approbation should be given to him, and that the sum of £12, 10s, be paid to Mr. Benson out of the funds of this county, merely as a mark of the approval of this Council for his diligence and usefulness while in that capacity."

It was a practice in those days to appoint an extra clerk for the sessions to assist in drawing up bylaws and other papers. He was paid the same wage as the members, Jas. Foley was appointed for the June session in 1850.

Jury Expense Major Budget

Expenses of juries seem to have been a major item in the budgets of the county council 95 years ago. Perhaps that was due to the fact that juries were larger than in later years. At any rate in 1855 the county tax amounted to £1600 of which £535 was appropriated for juries. County salaries totalled £373.

Appeals by the council to the Governor-General were not uncommon. For instance a memorial was passed on Feb. 1, 1851, asking the Earl of Elgin, then viceroy to order such a reduction in the prices of public land in the northern and sparsely settled townships as would enable settlers to purchase at rates not exceeding two shillings and six pence per acre in the rearmost townships and five shillings per acre in all the thinly settled townships; and that the proceeds be applied to road building.

Second Settler in Otonabee Captain Charles Rubidge, County's First Registrar

Charles Rubidge, the noted friend and coadjutor of the Hon. Peter Robinson, and first Registrar of the County of Peterborough, was for many years one of the chief promoters of the rising interests of the town. He was the son of Margaret and Robert Rubidge, and was born on April 20th, 1787, in the parish of St. George's-in-the-East, London. In October, 1796, he entered the navy as a midshipman on board the Arrow, Sloop of War. He saw much service under Lord Nelson and Lord Cochrane, the latter publicly congratulating Mr. Rubidge, then a lieutenant, on his gallantry in action. At the destruction of the enemy's fleet at the Basque Roads in 1809 he was severely wounded in the right leg. At the beginning of the American War of 1812, not knowing that war had been declared, Commander Rubidge had landed near Annapolis, but was honorably released, as his arrest was, under the circumstances not considered justifiable by the American authorities. Great as were his services, the gate of promotion was in those days closed against all who did not hold the key of political interest, and after the peace which followed Napoleon's downfall at Waterloo every effort was made to reduce as far as possible the number of officers in both army and navy. This led to the emigration to Canada of many retired officers of both services, who in most cases formed a most valuable element, socially and intellectually, in the growth of English-speaking Canada.

In June, 1819, Capt. Rubidge emigrated to Upper Canada with his wife and three children. This life was for many years one of hard work, manual as well as mental; how energetically he assisted the Hon. Peter Robinson in the early settlement of Peterborough is well known. The story of his first settlement in Peterborough County can, it is confidently felt, be best put before our readers in the simple yet graphic words of this brave old officer himself:

Tells Own Story

"In those days there was no conveyance from La Chine to Prescott except by Bateau or Durham-boats, and only two steamboats plied between Quebec and Montreal and they took two days and a half to accomplish the distance; their names were the "Quebec" and the "Swiftsure." On landing from the schooner at Quebec we met with a warm reception from our worthy old friend, Captain Boswell, R.N., and his family, and received house-room under their hospitable roof until the spring of 1820. During the winter I employed two men to put up the logs of a house, and in the spring, on the 8th of May, I took my wife and three children out into the bush. Mr. George Kent being the first settler in Otonabee, I was the next. Nothing more than the bare walls of my house were up and the shingle roof on. At once I began to clear off about an acre of land and got in some potatoes, Indian corn, turnips, etc., and through the summer and autumn employed two Americans to chop and clear off about four acres more, whilst my time was occupied in preparing my log house for the winter, doing all the carpentering work myself. The late Mr. Covert, and the Hon. Chief Justice Draper, C.B., came out to see us in June, the latter at the time thinking to put up a shanty on one of my wild lots in which to pursue his studies, but all the charms of settling in the woods faded away the next morning. We had all to sleep above, only a few loose boards being placed for bedsteads; the house was quite open, without door or windows, and the mosquitoes and blackflies were as bad as they well could be. At once I was placed on the Commission of the Peace, and am now, in 1870, the oldest magistrate in the whole of the old Newcastle District, which now forms the counties of Northumberland, Durham, Peterborough and Victoria."

Built Keene Road

It is pleasing to be able to record that Captain Rubidge's services to Canada did not, like those he rendered in England, pass without due recognition. Governor Maitland, a man who, whatever may have been his political errors, was certainly most sincerely desirous of promoting the welfare of the Province, was so pleased with the skill displayed in the construction of a road which Captain Rubidge had cut

Power From Otonabee River Has Down Through Years Supplied Many Industries

By JIM ENGLISH

Water power and hydro from the rushing lake-fed rivers of Peterborough county and the surrounding areas has built Peterborough into one of the foremost industrial cities of this nation.

In a special industrial edition of The Examiner, published in 1908, citzens read:

"In the foremost ranks of the cities of Eastern Canada stands Peterborough, famed as 'The Electric City'; a city with magnificent water power at her very door, with large and strong power companies developing electric energy and every known facility for the manufacturer and the business-man".

The Otonabee River, closest of the rivers which feed power to the city, has seen more than an industrial, hydro-driven city on its banks.

The river saw Peterborough's first citizen, and first industrialist, Adam Scott, build his mill on a creek adjoining its banks in late 1820.

The river was there when the tiny cooperages, breweries, saw mills and tanneries sprang up beside the fanning mills and smithies. It saw the people multiply, and the drives of lumber increase down its own wild channel.

And when the water drive wheels rotted and fell, and the dams were built, the river saw that too. It was one of the first to hear the gentle hum of the turbines, spinning swiftly and giving power for the city's new birth.

Helped Peterborough Grow

Past the turn of the century, the river watched, and saw Peterborough's industries grow. The city grew with the industries. More hydro was needed and more concrete chains slowed the Otonabee.

As the city grew and progressed, the transition from small to larger industries became evident, although the number of industries increased.

Canadian and U.S. industrialists saw the advantage of these larger firms, and the mass production that went with them. Huge mergers in the United States had their effects on Canada.

Peterborough's location seemed to industrialists to be suited for industries. Branches of U.S. industries sprang up—Canadian General Electric, Quaker Oats, Johnson Motors, Western Clock Company—and brought to the city an influx of new citizens and wealth.

Today, the annual payroll from Peterborough industries is more than $25,000,000, paid out to more than 11,000 workers in the city. Weekly payroll is more than $500,000. Average wage in Peterborough has increased in the past year from $47.82 to $51.45.

Yearly value of Peterborough's industrial products is almost $90,000,000, a hike of about $10,000,000 in the past two years.

In October of 1949, the Financial Post had this to say of the city:

"Peterborough owes its prosperity to a diversity of industry: Electrical machinery and appliances, flour, cereal and feeds, dairy and creamery equipment, clocks, time recorders, woollen goods, packing products, rubber asbestos linings.

"This year sees two major expansions: Western Clock Co. Ltd. a $75,000 addition for manufacturing and a new cafeteria; Outboard Marine and Mfg. Co. Ltd., a $500,000 addition to factory and office which will double production and administrative facilities.

"New power for industry will come from a new 2 million substation being built just outside the city limits to take care of the output from new plants on the Ottawa River."

Turning back to Adam Scott, we find he was at first a miller to the district, until the settlers clamored for whisky. Mr. Scott erected a distillery.

Of his whisky, Thomas Poole has this to say in Poole's History of Peterborough: "Though lacking in some of the higher qualities which even the 'tangleleg' whisky of the present day possesses, it was quite adequate for the chief purpose intended, and would intoxicate as surely as the most elaborate product of improved machinery and modern skill."

Unfortunately, Mr. Scott's mill was no better than his whisky. Says Mr. Poole: "It must still be confessed that neither in gristing nor sawing was it adequate to supply even the limited requirements of the few early settlers." The distillery was described as "equally impotent."

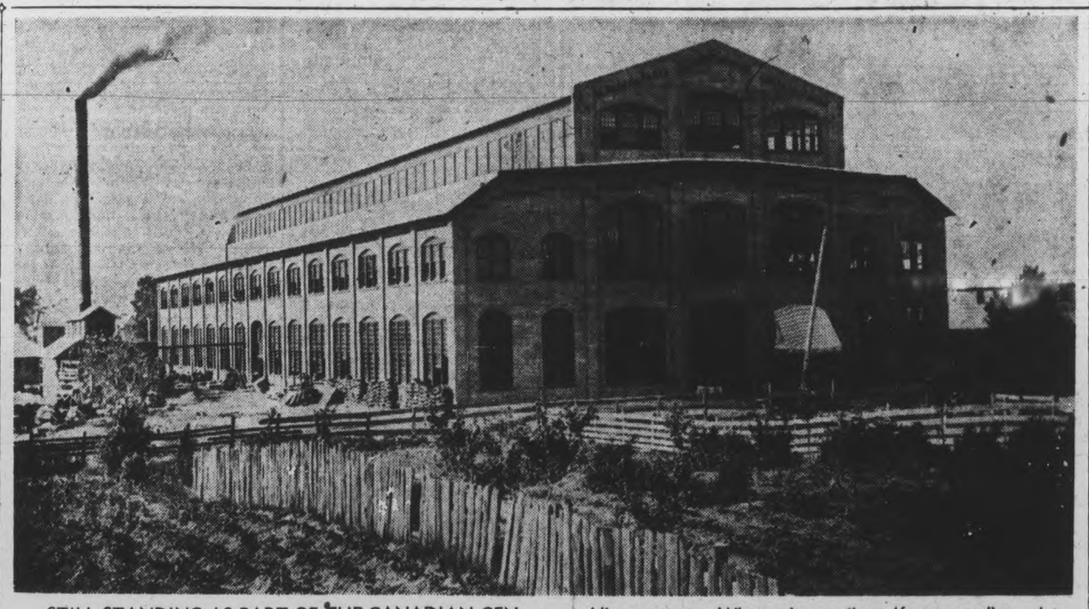
Then from Ireland came more than 2,00 new citizens for Canada. Many of them chose Peterborough, and well they might, for the Honorable Peter Robinson conducted the emigration.

But it was not until 1850 or slightly before that Peterborough's industry began to grow in earnest.

The impetus of the railroad, and technical advances in industry made the growth of industry in the city possible.

At 1840, industry was in its infancy in the city, and only a few small firms existed along the banks of the Otonabee. As the industries and the city grew, firms became larger and adapted to greater variety in their products.

By the half-century mark of the last century, there were about 40 industries, all small, in Peterborough. By 1908, the number had grown to more than 50, some of them large, and by 1930, there were more than 70. Today, there are about 90 industries in the city.



STILL STANDING AS PART OF THE CANADIAN GENERAL ELECTRIC PLANT is this building of the Edison Electric Company, established in Peterborough in 1890. End of the building, now part of the machine shop, faces on Albert street. Where the gardens (foreground) used to be, there are now houses, stretching almost solidly along the south side of the street. The Edison Electric Company was taken over by the CGE shortly after the turn of the century.

Oldest Firm

Probably the oldest firm in Peterborough is the Peterborough Lumber Company, formed in 1850 as the Dickson Lumber Co. At that time, Samuel Dickson was president.

In 1906, the company was reorganized under its present name. It had as president Dickson Davidson, vice-president John Thompson, and secretary-treasurer George Linton. Output at that time was nine million board feet annually.

Present mill of the company is located at the north-east corner of Monaghan Road and Lansdowne Street. Manager is Fred Overend, and ownership rests in the hands of the Davidson family.

Next oldest company still operating is Curtis Bros. Brick Yard, established in 1859 by Charles, George and A. E. Curtis. It is still carried on by the Curtis family—M. Stanley and Floyd G.

Another brick company, which supplied much of the white brick for Peterborough's older houses was the Sandstone Brick Co., situated west of St. Peter's Cemetery and no longer in business.

Canoe companies for which the city is still world famous were started to operate in the latter half of the 19th century. The Peterborough Canoe Company was organized about 1870 by John Stephenson. He was bought out in 1880 by the Ontario Canoe Company.

In 1892, the Ontario Canoe Company became once more the Peterborough Canoe Company, it being purchased by W. H. Hall, W. Eastwood, and Arthur Stevenson. Managing director of the firm was Lt.-Col. J. Z. Rogers The manager today is W. A. Richardson, and there are 170 employees.

In 1892, the Canadian Canoe Company was established by Felix Brownscombe.

Many years before either of these companies were formed, the Wm. English Canoe Company began operations in 1859, and in 1910 was bought out by the Peterborough Canoe Company.

Two other boat works in the city from 1924 on were J. B. O'Dette and Son, and the Otonabee Boat Works, managed by H. B. Lyle.

Variety, then as now, was the watchword of Peterborough industry. Somewhere about 1860, Peterborough factories were making everything from neckties (The Novel-Ti Company) to tombstones (Moore Monumental Co., and Coughlin Monumental Works.)

Coming of the CGE

In 1890, the Edison Electric Co. came to Peterborough It occupied one small building on the site of the present Canadian General Electric plant, and shortly after the turn of the century was taken over by that firm.

By 1908, 1,200 men were employed making motors, transformers, generators, and controllers E. G. Patterson was works manager and he was succeeded on his retirement by Carl A. Salmonsen.

CGE, the largest single industry in the city, has had a profound influence on the city's growth. Its products have been added to year by year, and now the plant on Park St. occupies about thirty acres.

During the First World War employment by the company swelled to more than 2,300 workers. At production peak during the Second World War, more than 5,000 worked in CGE and Genelco, the latter a government-owned, CGE-controlled plant.

In 1941, Ian F. McRae succeeded Mr. Salmonsen as works manager, and lately was made assistant to the vice-president in charge of production for Canada. The plant now employs about 3,500 workers.

Other Electrical Makers

The CGE was not the sole electrical firm in Peterborough. Before the turn of the century, a firm run by W. H. Collier, and H. B. Collier—the Collier-Cunningham Company Ltd.—made electric toasters, stoves and laundry irons in Peterborough.

In the early industrial history of the city, there were a number of firms engaged in making heavy industrial and agricultural machinery.

First of these was the Peter Hamilton Company Ltd., at George and King Sts. where farm implements were made. It was established in 1848 and operated up until after the First Great War.

Second in the heavy machinery list came the William Hamilton Company, occupants of the large brick building on the west side of Reid St. near the CNR tracks The company specialized in the manufacture of sawmill and mining machinery.

Other machine and tool companies established themselves in the city during the 19th century and the early part of the 20th One of these, headed by J. R. Stratton, was the Peterborough Shovel and Tool Company, set up in 1905, where the Raybestos Company is now.

Another was the Peterborough Lubricator Company which made grease cups for machinery, and whose president was William Harstone. Still another with W G Ferguson as president, was the Rapid Tool Company Ltd., operating about 1908 in Ashburnham.

Still operating today is the G. Walter Green Foundry on McDonnel St It was started in 1896 by George Walter Green, and is carried on today by his descendants.

By 1930, other industries manufacturing tools settled in and around the city. Among these was E. Archer and Son, makers of sawmill equipment.

The Goodwin Machine Tool Company and the Peterborough Tool Works, the latter managed by a Mr. William Juniper, set themselves up in Peterborough some time before 1930.

Clocks and locks are by no means the least of the city's products. The Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company, one of the city's oldest large industries, was established here in 1885.

The lock company made, and continue to make all sorts of hardware for doors, window shades, etc. Its parent company is the Bowser Corporation of Chicago.

As for clocks, the Western Clock Company first came to the city in 1919, with offices in the Barrie Building. A year later, the firm moved into temporary quarters on George St. south.

In 1922, the first building was erected on the hill in Ashburnham, where the factory now stands. Employees in the first few years of operation numbered 24, and the total now stands at 750. Manager of the plant since its establishing here has been J. H. Vernor.

During the war, employment by Westclox was 680, and the company was totally engaged in production of war materials.

Down in the south end of the city, on Braidwood Ave., stands the Canadian Nashua Paper Co. This company began operations here in 1920 in the building at the corner of Perry and Aylmer Sts. under the mangership of Robert A. Brown. At its inception the plant employed about 40 workers.

In 1927, Mr. Brown was succeeded by John R. Marshall, who also managed the Canadian Sealright Company at that time. Mr. Marshall, now chairman of the board of governors of the Peterborough Civic Hospital, was succeeded in 1945 by E. G. R. Clarke, the present manager.

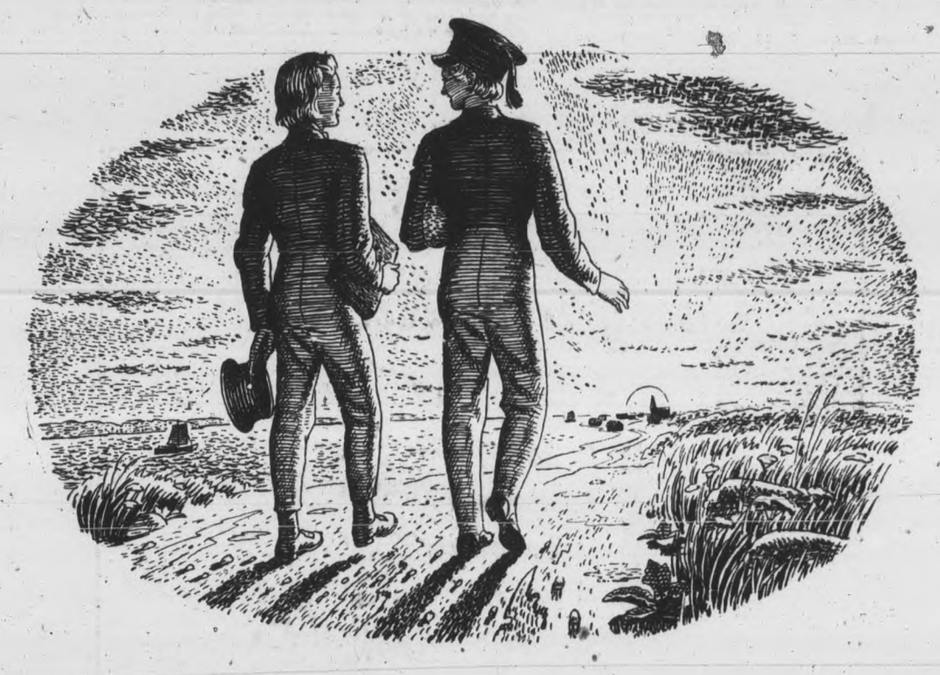
PETERBOROUGH - 1850-1950



We have come a long way...
together

For a century—and more—Peterborough and the Bank of Montreal have grown and prospered together.

Pioneer settlers had come to Peterborough a short 20 years before Robert Nicholls, a leading merchant of Peterborough, and one of its first treasurers, opened the town's first bank—the B. of M.—in 1843. His far-seeing methods were responsible for the reorganization of the town's finances . . . his initiative gave Peterborough its City Trust. Nicholls Hospital is but one example of his generosity.

Peterborough has come a long way during the last century. From a small town of about 1,000, it has become a city of over 25,000 . . . one of Canada's leading industrial centres. Its little grist and saw mills have given way to modern plants manufacturing farm implements, clocks, textiles, cereal foods and paper. The Otonabee has been harnessed . . . the Trent Canal and the railroads spread Peterborough products from coast to coast.

The Bank of Montreal is proud of the progress that Peterborough has made . . . proud, too, of the part it has played in this development, and of the position it holds in the community.

WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1817

KAWARTHA DISTRICT HAS RICH HERITAGE OF POETS AND WRITERS

Lampman, Crawford, Morris Historians, Poets of Nature Lustre Beyond Local Scene

By SISTER PATRICIA, MA
(Principal Emeritus of St. Peter's High School)

Peterborough like her sister-town of Lindsay, is a gateway and a distributing centre for Kawartha, the natural playground of scenic grandeur in their neighborhood. These centres are havens of hospitality for incoming tourists that furnish them liberally with camper's needs on the doorstep of their summer home. Their canoes and skiffs and paddles are ready waiting as well as tents and garden chairs with umbrella-awnings; warm tartan rugs and Horn Blankets for chilly nights can be had for the asking—and a few American dollars.

For years these towns have catered to the lovers of nature who flock each summer to Stony Lake and Clear and Chemong and to every lake along the Kawarthan chain. But in the passing century, they have also been otherwise engaged. Canadian writers have grown up and flourished here whose numbers are out of all proportion to the area that has produced them; they are proportioned rather to the matchless beauty of their surroundings.

My purpose has been to show that the literary productions of Kawartha have been as colorful and as musical as their natural background—that the gem is worthy of the setting. This has been a pleasurable occupation. To search for lines that are calm and reflect the starry heavens as they so often are mirrored in Clear Lake and listen to the lapping and lisping of the wavelets in the metrical music—this is a delight. To find the sinew and brawn of the rapids and boulders in strong musical numbers is a wholesome task. When beauty and strength are interlocked, the production is truly representative. The natural drama has a brilliant exponent.

In the following articles the reader will find all with little effort. The Laughing Loon has no imitator but this cynic cannot be dissociated from Kawartha. You may be sleeping restfully on your pine-leaf pillow when a watchman loon will send forth an inimitable alarm that All is Well, then laugh again at your discomfiture⅜. I have found no imitation of his eerie idiocy. Notwithstanding his gleeless glee, we all love old Laughing Loon.

Appreciate Peterborough

But it is not true that the inhabitants of this hallowed region do not half appreciate the beauty of our yearly visitors who lighten their winter labors with visions of their Lovesick and Stony-Island Summer homes. Nor do the people of Peterborough appraise their other priceless possessions at their worth.

Here the handclasp is warm and welcoming and all men are brothers, because there are no national or unseemly barriers. The "Examiner" is a welcome visitant each day in every home, coming to instruct and amuse, and to entertain with witty table-talk, but chiefly to bring up-to-the-minute world news. East and west, hospitals whose attendants are skilful to help and heal, extend gleaming wings to protect the afflicted. Home-like schools arise overnight on fast-extending boundaries to meet the overflow of precious little ones.

Seen from any of the neighboring hill-tops, the city in summer has the appearance of a beautiful grove pierced here and there by towers and spires that show where the heart of the city lies. The hill-tops in turn melt in summer into an amethyst haze and in winter call to hordes of jolly skiers. Beyond the highest of these seven hills is the cynosure of travellers, visitors and tourists, our Lift-lock, famed for novelty and height. All day long our busy broadcasting CHEX keeps us in touch with the world.

I could go on and on. Our city is alert, but unaware that it has all the advantages of larger cities with none of their gangs, nor any strap hanging torture in reaching business or out-going trains.

Time For Stock-taking

Peterborough has gone far in its century of existence and should take stock of its possessions in Jubilee Year; we should include in this stock-taking the Public Library where courtesy and helpfulness constitute its atmosphere, and should include also the educational advantages of the Summer Theatre where excellent plays are expertly acted and competently directed in an auditorium that is neat and modern. Here we have a rare opportunity of developing local talent in acting and even in composing Drama. The Material and Economic have received due attention for 100 years.

Care an encouragement must also be given the Literary, which during the century has of itself burgeoned to Beauty. But some of our promising writers have fallen by the wayside who with encouragement and a little monetary assistance would almost certainly have attained a permanent place in Literature.

Watson Kirkconnell

Doctor Watson Kirkconnell, President of Acadia University, in collaboration with Seraphin Marion has recently issued a book, "Quebec Tradition du Quebec". The purpose is to present French-Canadian thought and life as recorded by some of the most gifted men of this province, and to make this knowledge available in English. The book is therefore opportunity to English students to study the French language, and at the same time to become familiar with the History and traditions of a people who constitute one-third of the population of Canada. This work is already being adopted as a text-book by many Universities. Both authors are members of the Royal Society of Canada.

In accomplishing this work, Doctor Kirkconnell is true to his principles as expressed when he was Professor of Modern Languages at Winnipeg University. Here he became interested in the new Canadians who form such a goodly percentage of the Western population. The language of each nationality became for him an earnest study. Often he entertained gatherings of these people by reading from their native authors, or by reciting from their poets. He fought the tendency to try to Canadianize newcomers by discouraging them in the use of their own language; they should speak and read only English it was thought.

Mr. Kirkconnell loved their music, their songs and folk-dances; he saw the wealth of history, romance and poetry to be found in their languages. Here was a chance to add to Canada's literary and cultural store. By showing appreciation of their native tongues, and encouraging them to retain their customs and languages Canada would be doubly enriched; the new citizens would be happy and contented; Canada would have discovered a valuable deposit of literature and culture. To this noble educationist, "there is neither Jew nor Gentile, bond nor free." He is able to appreciate what is desirable in the characters and customs of all peoples and can discern too, what is to be done and what to be avoided in the treatment of these peoples by the land of their adoption.

Childhood In Lindsay

Watson Kirkconnell spent his childhood and early manhood in Lindsay where his father Dr. T. A. Kirkconnell was for many years Principal of the Lindsay Collegiate Institute. He graduated from Queen's University, Kingston, and took a graduate course at Oxford. He taught Modern Languages at Victoria College, University of Toronto and later at McMaster, Hamilton. Always he can be counted on to detect the inroads of the undesirable, and there are few Canadian newspapers that have not carried articles or columns filled with informative material from his powerful peace-loving pen. All these show his keen appreciation of, and deep interest in what constitutes real Canadianism.

An appreciation of his father, the late Thomas Allison Kirkconnell, was his first literary work, "A Canadian Headmaster," written in familiar easy style, deals intimately with their home life. It is pleasant to see the happiness of an ideal home. One does not wonder that a boy so reared should develop into a man who is interested in making homes homelike for incoming citizens, and in thus weaving a fitting pattern for Canadianism. How much of the wholesome love of home life, and therefore of loyalty to their adopted country, has been brought to that stream of incoming strangers, by the insistence of Doctor Kirkconnell that they retain the customs and language of childhood.

At home they may never have known the loveliness of a Kawartha, but Watson knew it, and to him it gave the word "home" a significance that has entered into his very life and has activated his energies for the less fortunate. The gay family picnic parties on the old Esturion up the Scugog to Sturgeon Point for a Saturday of games and rowing and fishing welded inextricably happy family life, healthful exercise and unmatched beauty, with the buoyancy of youth and its delight in outdoor frolicsome fun. Only Kawartha and fathers like T. A. Kirkconnell could leave such treasured memories of childhood.

Canada needs men of understanding to shape its future and to show the healing power of service to those who are to be its future citizens. Only thus can a society of loyal Canadians be made from the huge influx of foreigners. Doctor Kirkconnell will not have them called "foreigners" or "displaced persons". The name by which they are to be known, he has chosen: "New Canadians". There are none among them whose language he cannot speak; what keen interest this betokens, and what dauntless courage to set about the task of mastering so many languages! As a result of his dauntless efforts every new Canadian knows the rapture of hearing from the lips of an eminent scholar the words he lisped in childhood in his far-away home.

In the recent visitation to Canada of several international statesmen of note, Professor Kirkconnell was again at home; each of our eminent visitors could be addressed in his own tongue, a clear indication to him of how his country is regarded in Canada. Goodwill and neighbourly interest can be thus engendered. In everything pertaining to desirable Canadianism, Watson Kirkconnell can point the way. Canadians have here a lesson to learn: the lasting power for good of a virtuous home, and the intrinsic value from the standpoint of peace and diplomacy of a mastery of the modern languages. Doctor Kirkconnell is a Canadian whom Kawartha is proud to claim.

Catherine Parr Traill

Catherine Parr Traill was the fifth of the Strickland sisters and the first to begin writing for publication. She was born on January 9, 1802. She began to write stories for children at the age of 16. These were well received, and fairly well paid for, and this seems to have set the whole family to write.

Through her sister Catherine became acquainted with a fellow-officers of the Fusiliers of Lieutenant Moodie. Both were on half-pay and both came to Canada about the same time. The Traills came to Peterborough by way of Rice Lake and the Otonabee River in 1833. Mrs. Traill's brother, Colonel Strickland, had come to Canada seven years before and by this time had a litle clearing up on the shore of Lake Katchewanooka, where he had taken up land "because of the many advantages the locality offered."

Even in those distant days, there was a rumor that in the not too distant future the lakes would be connected by canals, the river (Otonabee) be made navigable by locks and a waterway provided, connecting Lake Huron with the Bay of Quinte. Colonel Strickland hoped to profit by this, but he lived about a hundred years too soon to become rich because of the proximity of his land to the Trent Canal.

Mr. Traill drew his grant of land near Mr. Strickland's home, part of his land being on Douro Township. On December 11, 1833, the Trails moved into their new home, a log shanty which they named "Westove" after Mr. Traill's home in the Orkenys.

Settled In Douro

The next year, 1834, the Moodies came and bought land also in Douro, about a mile from the Strickland home. The three families suffered much and endured many hardships, incident to early life in the bush, but the other two families never suffered such grim privations as the Moodies. From childhood I have always heard the Stricklands and Moodies spoken of in the most kindly way. Friendly relations existed between them and their neighbors, who were of less gentle blood, but who conquered the unspeakable hardships fo settlement life, to which the Moodies and the Traills were obliged to succumb. My grandfather, Michael Walsh, who was superintendent of schools in this district from 1858 to 1865, had occasion to know them and has left traditions of the mos' cordial relations.

That they loved the place, and looked upon it as home, is shown by the fact that any of them who could do so, returned there in the leisure of advanced age. Mr. Strickland always remained there and descendants of the family still live at "Westove"; the present home however, is not built on the site of the first log hut. The Moodies lived for a while near Cobourg, the Traills for some years. Their immediate neighbours near Lakefield were people of their own class, half-pay English officers and their families,

Progress with Peterborough

It is good at a time like this, when we who live and work in the proud city of Peterborough are holding centennial celebrations, to take a few moments to look back across the years and assess the progress made.

It is nearly sixty years now, since Canadian General Electric opened its first modest plant in Peterborough. During all those years this Company has played an intimate part in the life of the city. We have grown up together . . . sharing the prosperity of good times and facing out the lean years together.

The products that have been made in our Peterborough Works have carried the name and fame of this city into every province in Canada and into many countries throughout the world. We believe that the electrical equipment we make here has helped in the industrial expansion of our country—and that our policy of making more goods, for more people at less cost is helping to make life fuller for every Canadian today.

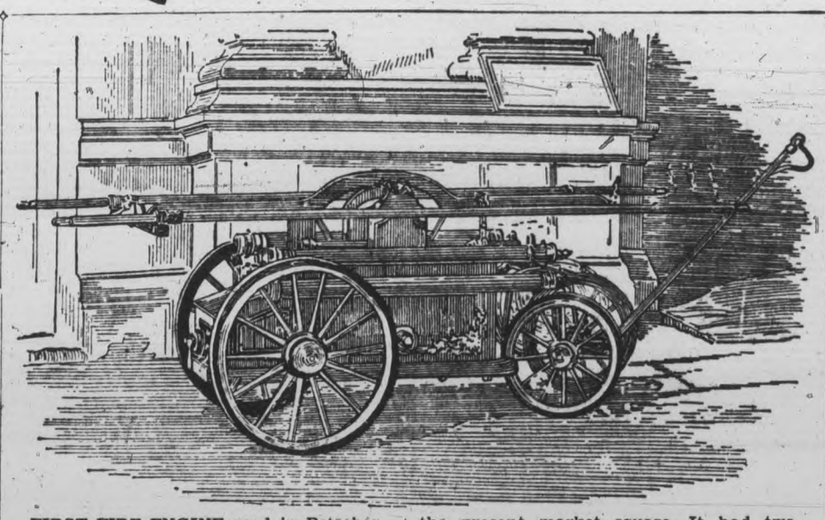
40 FIRE FIGHTERS REQUIRED TO OPERATE THE FIRST HAND-PUMPER

Old Volunteer Fire Brigade Pride of The Citizens Envy of Many Other Towns



FIRST FIRE ENGINE used in Peterborough was hand pumped and required some 40 men to keep it going. Built in Montreal in about 1846, it was purchased about two years later and was housed in what was then known as Henthorn's livery stable on the present market square. It had two cylinders with suction hose attached, power being applied by an arrangement of levers with poles extended across the front and rear of the engine. Forty men could produce the equivalent to about five horse power.

A fire in the early settlement of Peterborough a hundred and more years ago was a dramatic event in which the resources of every household—manpower and equipment—would converge at the scene of action and the entire district would be transformed into an uproar. Those were the days before pumpers and high powered engines—the only power was that derived from the physical exertions of men and if they were lucky, a few horses. Peterborough's fire fighting organisation goes back beyond the date of incorporation 100 years ago and its history is, to a large extent, history of Peterborough.

Volunteer Brigade in 1840

Some ten years before incorporation Peterborough had a fire fighting organization according to the memories of the late F. H. Dobbin and the records reveal that as early as 1848, the first piece of firefighting equipment was purchased.

With the dread of fire ever present, for the buildings were of wooden construction and much hardship from loss through fire, the citizens organized themselves some ten years before 1850, only 15 years after Richard Birdsall had defined the boundaries of Peterborough in 1825.

It was about the year 1848 that the first "fire engine" was brought to Peterborough. It was a hand worked engine or portable pumping apparatus which was housed in what was then known as Henthorn's livery stable at the centre of the town plot.

This method of fire fighting was a laborious business. Forty men found places to work on the "brakes" as the duty was termed. With a team of 40 men they could create the equivalent of about five horse power.

The pump was an arrangement of levers with poles extended across the front and rear of the engine. The engine was made attractive by a coat of scarlet paint and gold stripings and was christened Protection No 1, as if to suggest that additions might follow to strengthen the equipment. A two-wheeled cart, carrying a drum on which the fire hose was wound and a four wheeled truck to transport ladders, ropes and hooks, completed the appliances.

All were brought to the scene of the fire by as many men as could find places to catch hold and run.

A fire, especially if at night, was a stirring scene. Nearly all buildings were of wood and once the fire gained a fair hold, the neighborhood was brilliantly illuminated.

The junction of George and Simcoe Sts. has been the scene of a great many fires, several of which were before the turn of the century.

Bad Fire In 1861

Perhaps the worst of the early fires was on August 11, 1861, when all the buildings on George St. and on Water St. half way to Simcoe St. were destroyed. Thirty-one places of business were burnt out. The area burnt comprised the north half of the business section block bounded by George, Hunter, Water and Simcoe Sts.

Three years later a fire starting in the second storey of the building at the corner of George and Simcoe Sts. occupied by Charles Bradfield, wiped out one of the oldest business buildings in the town. It was built in 1831.

On December 8, 1869, one man died and five were injured in a fire in the business building at the corner of George and Hunter Sts., now the site of the Bank of Toronto. An explosion of gunpowder in the cellar of McKellar and Cameron hardware store started the trouble. Edward Newton died from injuries received during the fire and those who survived their injuries were John Garvey, Samuel English, Thomas Wilson, Edward Sullivan and David Mason.

But all these fires occured after the fire brigade came under the jurisdiction of the municipality. Records do not go back beyond 1853.

When the new town council took over the old volunteer fire brigade it also took over a number of debts and those to whom money was owing, clamored for their dues.

Developments followed as soon as the brigade obtained municipal status. The chief engineer of the brigade told the council that the tank, or box, of the hand pumped fire engine was much decayed and he was given authority to procure enough sheet copper or zinc to re-line the receptacle. By the month of April the newly projected organization, under municipal auspices, was being whipped into shape with Robert Swayne as captain.

Two companies were formed, No. 1 company being the fire engine and hose company and No. 2, the hook and ladder company. A deputation appeared at the meeting of the council on April 4, 1850 and pleaded so feelingly that the committee was instructed to procure new clothing, entire outfits of hat or cap, tunic and trousers, for both companies. It was stipulated that all, so far as possible, were to be of local manufacture.

For the principal officers, large black, shiny hats were provided, a short helmet, thus making distinction in rank and authority. All told, the two companies numbered 30 men.

Like most young organizations, the municipal fire brigade soon found it was not without its troubles. A Mr. Kirkpatrick wrote from Kingston demanding the return of the fire alarm bell, which had been loaned, and not sold to the town, he claimed. It had been assumed that when the hand propelled fire engine had been acquired from Kingston, that the bell came along too. It had been regarded as the property of Peterborough. Records merely reveal that the problem was tossed over to the finance committee and there is no indication as to what finally transpired.

Apart from the duties of fire fighting, the brigade had a certain social standing in the town, as many of the prominent citizens were on the force or its patrons. The brigade took first place in all festivities. The annual firemen's ball was an event of great importance, the annual excursion or picnic, when a general invitation was extended to all citizens, was one of the highlights of the summer.

So widespread was the brigade's prestige, that other local societies would consider it an honor to carry on under its auspices and with the patronage of the brigade any venture was assured of success and support from the citizens.

Col. Poole an Early Leader

One of the earliest leaders of the brigade was Edwin Poole, long known as Col. Poole from his leadership and connection with the militia units at Peterborough, the famous 57th Rangers. As the principal officer in the regiment, he was in touch with young men who readily came to him and joined up with the regiment and also the fire brigade. Col. Poole retired from active connection with the brigade in 1873, his successor being Charles Stapleton with W. H. Wright as assistant chief.

For a time the brigade was under the leadership of John O'Donnell and during this time, the organization was strengthened and there was a firm spirit of comradeship within the brigade.

William Helm was also head of the brigade for a short time during this period of the brigade's history.

One of First Bylaws

When the municipality took over the brigade it assumed responsibility not only for extinguishing fires, but also for their prevention. In anticipation of the incorporation, Elias Burnham, Peterborough's first town solicitor, had been instructed to prepare a bylaw defining regulations which were to be enforced by inflicting penalities, when necessary. There were many clauses in the bylaw, which was adopted after incorporation. The first was that "all and every proprietor and proprietors of any house or houses or other buildings in which fire is used, of more than one storey in height, shall place a ladder on the roof of said buildings at or near the chimneys thereof, and another ladder reaching to the ground from the roof, under a penalty of five shillings for neglect so to do, and a penalty of ten shillings for every week during which they shall neglect to provide such ladders."

Clause No. 2 stipulated that "every householder in the said town shall be held to furnish and supply himself with two buckets, fit and proper for carrying water, in case of accidents by fire, and attend with the same, under a penalty of five shillings for each bucket which may be deficient.

The late Frank Dobbin's description of action during a fire in the old days is reminiscent of the more rugged life of the pioneer days.

The chief of the brigade mounted the engine and through a long tin horn urged citizens to the sacrifice. As those manning the brakes tired, or became reluctant to continue exertion, others took a place and performed mightily. There was little conversation while assisting to pump. All the breath to be had, was required to keep going.

When the chief used warm language and incited to renewed efforts, the pace would quicken and breathless men retired to a short rest and breathing spell. No one brought coats to a fire, except in very cold winter weather. Action on the brakes created much of bodily warmth and if it were cold, ample refreshment was at hand. Often the refreshment proved to be warmer than the fire and exasperation resulted, mounting at times, to personal combat. It the dwelling or structure on fire stood adjacent to another of wood and with danger of the fire spreading, the hook and ladder company came into action in great earnestness.

It was better, at once decided, to make sacrifice, for if left standing, the fire would consume the building and possibly communicate to others. And once the hooks took hold of anything like a balloon frame wall, say up about the eaves and fifty men threw their weight on the ropes, the tug of war generally resulted in the coming away of the side of the structure, to be dragged out into the open, away from the flames.

Successive bites speedily left but little for the flames to act upon. Of course, this proceeding exposed the housekeeping arrangements of the tenant, but that followed as a regrettable incident. Nothing more. It was a married partnership, that of the protection fire company No 1 and the hook and ladder company.

Bucket Brigade

Always there was in action the pail and bucket brigade. Its membership was unlimited. The initiation was brief but conclusive. If the buckets were at hand, the nearest well was pressed into service. The overflow of help, not busy at the engine, formed a line and passed buckets an pails of water from hand to hand to men clinging precariously to a ladder, handed to others on the roof and poured where it would do the most good. Everyone except the women worked.

Other names on the list of former fire chiefs, many of which are now prominent in Peterborough history, are W. S. Conger, Thomas Rutherford, W. A. Howard, George Grange, George Gimblett, who retired from the Department two years ago. His son, George Gimblett Jr. is a captain with the department at the present time.

November 27, 1871, was a red

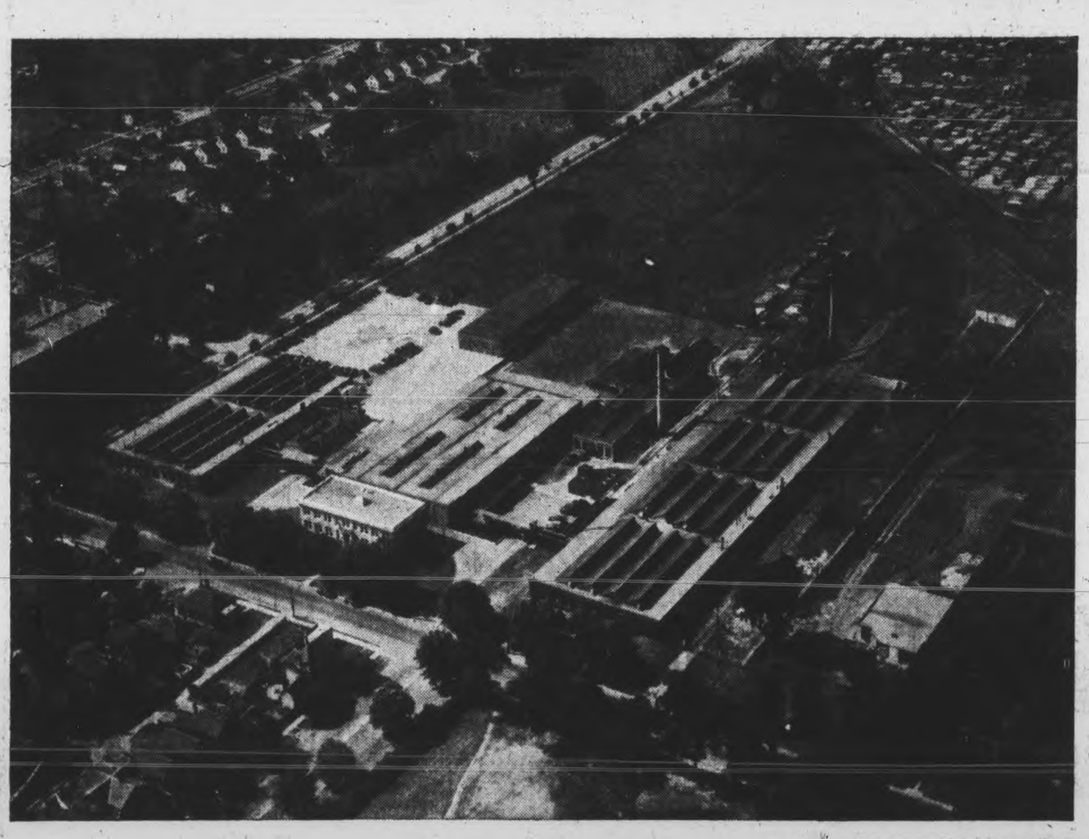
Thomas Rutherford (right) who became head of the brigade in 1880, was still serving as chief in 1905, when it was first suggested seriously that the brigade be put on an official basis as a department of the municipality.

ENTERPRISE IN PETERBOROUGH

Serving Canada's Farms, Factories, and Ships at Sea



PETERBOROUGH residents know the De Laval Company and think of it as an important part of Peterborough's industrial enterprise. If they travelled across Canada local residents would find, too, that this Peterborough industry plays an important part in the operation of many other industries.

Farmers and dairymen depend on De Laval milking machines, cream separators and many other products to speed milk production, maintain healthier herds, and brighten farm homes. Food processors rely on De Laval centrifugals to extract juices from fruit, produce better vegetable oils, make yeast and a host of other products. Ships as well as industrial plants guard against breakdowns with De Laval Oil purifiers.

Here we in Peterborough fashion the machines that allow farms, factories, and ships at sea to harness centrifugal force for productive ends.

CHINA HALL FIRE, 1900 was a disastrous fire in the centre of the town. The building was situated on the corner of George and Simcoe Sts. and burnt on a cold winter day. Damage was in the neighborhood of $30,000. It was a brick building belonging to the Bradburn estate and both the China Hall and the George Matthews Company suffered heavy losses, along with several business offices in the building.

Councillors Set Session Pay At 6s, 3d Per Day; Two Extra Days' Pay Voted

Of all the minutes of Peterborough County Council surely none stands out more conspicuously as a definite symbol and milestone of its age than this one from the records for Saturday, February 2, 1850; moved by William Cottingham, reeve of Emily, second by Thomas Shortt, reeve of Otonabee, that the Sheriff be authorized to charge in his account annually 100 pounds of candles, to supply the courts and other ordinary purposes of the county.

One hundred years ago was not only a pre-Mazda age, but apparently pre-kerosene. Those councillors who were then only beginning to lay the foundation of the county properties, administration and traditions, which have come down so splendidly and venerably to our time, groped in comparative darkness in their December sessions when the long nights dimmed the daylight almost at mid-afternoon and some one with a flaming taper must have touched the light to the candles that illumined their chamber.

Now we press a button and incandescence flashes at our summons, but who notices it? Not even farmer members who live far from power lines and electric switches. But they know the medium and degree of light is not important. It is highly useful but it is not essential.

Many Times Warden

The reeve, William Cottingham, was accorded the exceptional honor of being chosen warden of the United Counties of Peterborough and Victoria for seven or eight consecutive terms It is likely that he was either the father or grandfather of Walter Cottingham who came from Omemee to Peterborough to work in a hardware store, and later rose to be president of the Sherwin-Williams Paint Company

Fix Their Own Salaries

The first mention of remuneration for these early trail-blazers in Peterborough county municipal affairs was a bylaw passed on October 9, 1847, to abolish the payment of a salary to the warden of the District of Colborne.

Whatever happened subsequent to the deprivation of the warden of his emolument, the council developed a change of heart, and on February 1, 1850, adopted a resolution to the effect that members be allowed 6s, 3d, for each day they attended sittings, and that members living more than 20 miles from the place of meeting be allowed one day's pay for coming to, and one day's pay for returning from the sittings of the council.

County's Seal Accepted

The corporate seal of the county of Peterborough was formally accepted on Thursday, January 31, 1850, in the wardenship of John Langton. It has been in use 100 years.

From this dignified gesture the pages turn to a mere matter of internal economy as indicated in a motion by Thomas Benson, reeve of Peterborough, seconded by Thos. Shortt, reeve of Otonabee, that the county clerk be authorized to have constructed in the most safe and convenient situation on the jail premises, a place for the deposit of ashes, the expense not to exceed £5; and that the sheriff procure a suitable lamp or lantern for the use of the jail.

Gravel Road Petition

Of course they received importunate petitions in those gracious days. On Wednesday, August 21, 1850, during a special summer session the Rev. John Gilmour and other "inhabitants of the town of Peterborough" requested the council to take stock in the "intended plank or gravel road leading from Peterborough to the boundary line of Cavan".

The next day a bylaw authorized the warden to subscribe for the sum of £300 of this stock.

Treasurer's Bondsmen

A minute of the meeting on February 2, 1850, accepted William Lundy and Edmund Chamberlen as securities for the treasurer, F. Ferguson. This motion was by Reeve T. Fortye of Monaghan seconded by Wm. Cottingham of Emily.

letter day in the history of the fire brigade. The first steam power pumping engine arrived in the town and was due for public trial and approval.

It had been apparent during the preceding five years that the day of the hand power engine had passed. Successive conflagrations of increasing destruction brought the civic authorities to a realization of the precarious position in which the town was placed and at the mercy of the wind, heat and the hopelessly inadequate appliances for fighting the flames. So in 1871 an aroused public demand insisted that it was almost criminal to delay longer in a thorough re-organization of the department, one of the most important in the civic administration. The insurance companies, now alarmed, insisted in advancing the rates and it was found that even if the municipality borrowed the money for an engine, hose and other equipment, the ultimate cost to the ratepayers would be less than the imposts charged to secure insurance.

Industries, mills, factories and enterprises were being started and so supplied further employment. As all required power for operation, these buildings were located along the river convenient to the several mill dams from which power was taken. The buildings were invariably built of wood Time and again had the Dickson Raceway been lined along its length with factories and shops and all passed up in smoke. The agitation culminated about the middle of the year 1871 and on August 21, after much deliberation and conference, the council made a contract with the Silsby Manufacturing Company of Syracuse, N. Y., for a steam driven fire engine with a pumping capacity of 500 gallons a minute.

There was a great assembly of citizens to see the trial on the bank of the creek at the corner of Aylmer and Brock Sts. The preliminary trial proved successful and the assembly moved uptown to the market square where with three streams flowing, the Town Hall was deluged with water over and on the roof to the admiration of the citizens assembled.

The engine was accepted and James English, who had been taking lessons in management of the engine, was appointed engineer at a salary of $150 a year. Later this stipend was increased to $300.

A home was found for the new engine in the part of the civic building now occupied by the city engineer and collector of taxes.

In the year 1905 the civic authorities planned to make great strides in the fire fighting set up by the town. Moves had already been made to obtain the status of a city for Peterborough and it was felt that this was a fitting time to establish a fire department with its own headquarters—a new fire hall—and also to renew some of the equipment.

The council considered plans for buying a new engine, erect a new fire hall, put in a modern fire alarm system to cover the city, all with the view that at some time in the future, the city would install a whole-time-on-duty and permanent brigade.

The council was astounded when a general vote of the ratepayers rejected the proposition by 128 votes. This put the council in a quandary. The civic heads, Board of Trade, Retail Merchants' Association and the Utilities Commission discussed the matter over again, coming to the same conclusion, that the fire hall and new equipment was necessary. When a second vote of the ratepayers was taken, the previous decision was reversed and the go ahead signal was given.

The ratepayers signified their approval in 1906 and the council lost no time in bringing the plans into concrete action. The present fire hall on Aylmer St. was built. There was much work to be done and it was not until the end of December, 1907, that the brigade moved into its new quarters. The council had set out to spend $25,000 and by the time all the date, had spent an additional $10,000.

No sooner had the new fire hall been opened than the council made a decision on a matter which had long been the subject of discussion. The establishment of a full time brigade on a pay and salary basis was approved by the council.

The volunteer brigade had passed out of existence. The semi-volunteer organization, while giving good service, had developed certain hindrances so far as the service of the men on call was concerned. As these men followed their occupations during the day, it took some time for them to assemble once the alarm was given.

There were pros and cons to the scheme, but a bold step was taken by the council, supported by various sections of the community. When the brigade was on a purely volunteer basis and a fire occurred, it turned out to a man and many citizens who held membership in the force, but not actively interested in its activities, also turned out to fight the fire. Once men were to be paid and engaged to do this service, then the duty should be left to those so engaged and employed. The brigade would cut the ties that held it together as a citizens' organization.

However, it was decided that the time had come to place the brigade on a permanent footing. The changeover was made on June 30, 1908.

Slowly, during the first 50 years of the present century the fire department has developed from a 13 man brigade to a force of 44 equipped with four modern pumpers, a city service ladder truck and an 85 ft. aerial ladder, an inhalator and resuscitator.

Its services are many, ranging from fighting fires, to rescuing those in danger of drowning, climbing into houses when the family has inadvertently locked itself out and helping to rescue little Johnny, who found it easy to turn the catch on the bathroom door, but not so easy to turn it open again.

The fire department has expanded considerably in the past two years with an increase of 12 men on the force, and although it has kept up with modern requirements, adding new methods as times changed, there is a solidarity accountable to a large extent by the long service of some of its members.

The present chief, George Smith, joined the department in 1923; Virgil Carr, the second assistant chief, has been with the department 30 years; Capt. Albert Mason and Inspector Orville Wilson joined in 1922.

In addition to the chief, there are two assistant chiefs, Stewart Foster and Virgil Carr; four captains: Albert Mason, George Gimblett, Garnet Brown and Frank Shearer and 37 other members of the force.

If there is a serious alarm all 44 men spring into action and, as in the old days when every one turned out to help, the force is never without additional helpers willing to turn their hand to the fight when a really bad fire breaks out.

There have been some serious fires in the past ten years. The DVA hospital on Monaghan Rd. was an upsetting incident for the sick servicemen there and resulted in a loss of approximately half a million dollars. That was a major operation for the fire department but every patient was evacuated safely in spite of the fact that the hospital was a wooden structure standing on a slope. The flames rushed through the entire building relentlessly and in a very short space of time

Dewart's mill, Whitaker's warehouse, and the Lock Company are all names which those living in Peterborough during the past quarter of a century associate with some of the worst fires in the city.

The temptation to cry wolf, wolf, is something which has been inherent in the human race since time immemorial and Fire Chief Smith can see no falling off. There are plenty of false alarms in the city and last year the department answered 69.

The chief recalls one incident when the brigade was called to the east of the city. No sooner had it been established that some one was ringing a false alarm, than a call came from the west. The brigade tore off but returned shortly afterwards, there being no fire in the vicinity. Hardly was the brigade back at headquarters when a call came from the south and once again, this turned out to be a false alarm.

Last year the department helped 10 women get into their homes after they had returned from a shopping trip down town, to find they had locked the door, leaving the key inside the house.

FIRE CHIEF GEORGE SMITH became head of Peterborough's fire department, after the retirement of George Gimblett in 1947. He was previously assistant chief and has been engaged in fire fighting service since 1923.

Power From Otonabee Through The Years

and paper containers, now employs about 140 workers.

Eight years before the Nashua Paper plant started up, the De Laval Company Ltd. was established in Peterborough. Building for the plant began in 1912, but production was not started until 1913.

Manager of the plant at that time was W. R. Breyfogle, who was succeeded in 1945 by C. L. Upper, present manager. Working in the plant in the first few years were about 80 men, and the total number of employees in Canada now is set at about 600.

The firm, which manufactures separators, churners, bottle-washers, and other creamery equipment, has branches in Montreal, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Moncton, and Quebec City.

In March of 1928, the Canadian Johnson Motor Company started production in Peterborough in the old Henry Hope Building on Monaghan Road with 18 men working under the managership of Hugh M. Campbell.

During the second world war, the Outboard Marine Manufacturing Company, as it is known today, employed almost 900 workers at production peak, and made more than $18,000,000 worth of war materials.

Present manager of the firm is C. B. Neal, who replaced Mr. Campbell on the latter's retirement in the fall of 1949. Annual payroll for the 573 workers in the plant now amounts to $1,750,000.

The Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Company commenced operations in Peterborough in 1906 with G. P. Preen as managing director. The plant then employed 40 men.

Now employing about 300 workers, the "Brinton" as it is known to Peterborough, has had a series of managers since the plant was established. A list follows: Harold Wadeley, J. Lowrie, Ivor Brock, Charles Thompson, M. Sweetening, R. V. Dawson. Present mill manager is David Leether.

Another representative Peterborough industry is the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Limited on McDonnel St. Manager of the plant at the present time is Robert Merrett, a former Canadian wrestling champion.

In 1911, the mill began under the ownership of Edgar Worth and Isaac Bonner (hence Bonnerworth), and employed at that time about 35 employees.

Managers since Mr. Worth have been John Chadwick, William Tinker, D. G. H. Melton, and Mr. Merrett. The firm at the present time employs 360.

The Quaker Oats Company of Canada began in 1900 as the American Cereal Company, and in those days employees had to wrap the company's products by hand. Original property was that of the old McAllister Mill, now the site of the Quaker tennis court.

Shortly after 1900 the company came under the control of the Quaker Oats Company Ltd., of New Jersey, and manager by 1908 was W. H. Denham, who succeeded T. G. H. Denne, onetime mayor of Peterborough.

George A. MacDonald was manager in 1930, and in 1943, when the Canadian company was incorporated, Reg. R. Faryon became president and general manager of the company's two Canadian plants, here, and in Saskatoon.

Fire from a dust explosion almost completely destroyed the plant in 1916. At the time, and rumor still lends history a hand in this, it was believed by some that a German saboteur set the blaze.

Back in the days following the First World War, two firms in Peterborough became a pair of the best-known financial flops in the city's history.

One was the Birmingham Motor Company, which occupied the plant now used by the Outboard Marine Manufacturing Company. Birmingham Motors was to make a Canadian car, but they never did get it into production, although it is believed they assembled one model.

The other was the Red Arrow Tire Company, which got as far as the first storey on their plant, and stopped. The building, on Water St. north, is used now by Lillico Motors.

At one time, B. F. Ackerman, Son and Company was one of the city's most prominent industries. The firm manufactured leather goods—saddles, harness, etc.—and originated in Norwood about 1871.

Heading the firm in 1908 were B. F. Ackerman and W. C. Ackerman. Recently the company was bought out by Adams Brothers of Toronto, a leather concern, and the plant is still on its original site, on the west side of George St. near the CPR station.

A large export firm in Peterborough at the turn of the century was Houedry and Son, a French company. Their building on King Edward St. covered about two-and-a-half acres, with space for storage of their special exports—beans and peas.

Another of the older plants in Peterborough, which is no longer operating was the Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Company—with a plant located at Aylmer and Perry Sts.

The building was later taken over by the Canadian Nashua Paper Company, and when that organization moved its plant to Braidwood Ave., Canadian Sealright Ltd. took over the building and is using it now.

Manufactures of the cordage work included cordage, rope, and binder twine. The firm was established in 1901, with R. R. Hall as president. About 250 workers were employed.

"With the connoisseur, there is no beer, ale or porter that gives the same satisfaction as that brewed by the Calcutt Brewing and Malting Company." So said the special industrial edition of The Examiner, published in 1908.

The brewery was established by Harry Calcutt in the second half of the 19th century, and was incorporated in 1898. Located on Burnham St., the brewery covered almost three acres.

A picture of the brewery shown in the 1908 Examiner depicts the "Goldeneye" and "Whistlewing" steaming serenely past the plant.

Originating in 1870 in Port Hope, J. J. Turner and Sons moved their plant to Peterborough in 1887, in the building at King and George Sts. Founder of the business, J. J. Turner, was aided by four sons—John J. Jr., Reginald, Webber, and A. W. Turner.

Products of the firm were sails, tents, awnings, flags and camp furniture, etc. In 1908, the firm also managed the Grand Opera House, torn down some years ago.

In 1949, the business was bought out by a group of Peterborough businessmen, who continued to use the name of the old firm.

Old Auburn Woollen Mill

About 100 years ago, the Auburn Mill began operation. Today, a bleak, empty space is where busy looms once wove prize-winning tweeds. In 1937, the mill closed, and the equipment was moved to Hespeler. Old mill was wrecked.

Owner and founder of the mill was James Kendry. By 1870, there were 300 workers in the plant, and in the 1880's 250.

Edward Vinette, of 1 Vinette St., former mechanic and bobbin boy at the Auburn, recalled recently that when he started in 1881 as bobbin boy, he was paid 30 cents a day. He was 11 years old.

He said he remembered the morning in 1937 the weavers first struck. "It was about 9 o'clock. They just shut off their motors and walked out," he said. "About a year later, the plant shut down."

Some of the workers were transferred to the Bonnerworth mill on McDonnel St. and others followed the mill to Hespeler.

In 1868, the George Matthews Company, pork-packers, established in Lindsay. By 1882 the main plant was moved to Peterborough, and in 1894, the company was incorporated.

The plant employed about 130 men at the time, and officers were George Matthews, president, W. E. Matthews, vice-president, T. F. Matthews, secretary-treasurer.

In 1911 the firm merged with other businesses, to form the Matthews-Blackwell Company, and in 1918, Allied Packers bought this firm out, and formed the Canadian Packing Co. Ltd.

Nine years later, this company was acquired by the Harris Abattoir Company, and with further packing plant additions, Canada Packers Limited, the present company was formed.

From its beginning in Peterborough in the early 1880's to the present day, the plant has maintained the same business site just north of George St. wharf.

That is not all the history of the industries of the city of Peterborough. There are hundreds of others who have contributed to the city's growth—stone and marble companies, harness makers, the Peterborough Mattress Company, ice companies, and many others.

Prospects for the future are bright. The Trans-Canada highway will pass through the city, perhaps bringing more industries. City council has approved a master plan providing for the growth of the city to 50,000.

ORANGEMEN PARADED BENEATH THIS VERDANT ARCH some time later in the day, which was, to be exact, the 12th of July, 1891. The scene, of course, is taken looking south on George St. from near Simcoe St. In the upper left corner is the clock which stood on the old city hall, and which has instead of a north face, a sign advertising W. J. Morrow, Grocer, Tea, Wines and Liquors. The horse, hidden behind the buggy near the telephone pole at right, and which seems to be gnawing at the arch, may be part of a 19th century plot to bring the street-wide decoration crashing about the ears of the triumphant Orangemen.

who were given grants of land in or near what is now Lakefield.

Disastrous Fire

In 1839, Mr. Traill sold his farm and went to live in Ashburnham, a village just across the river from Peterborough, and which is now the East Ward of the city. They lived here until 1846 when they moved to Rice Lake, and some time later bought "Oaklands" also on the lake. This home was burned in 1857 with all Mrs. Traill's manuscript and her husband's books. Mr. Traill felt the lost very keenly and died shortly afterwards. Mrs. Traill with the younger members of her family returned to Lakefield. About this time, Mrs. Traill received a grant of £100 for her literary work from Lord Palmerston. With this money she purchased a home with in loving memory of the old log house, she called "Westove". Here she died in 1899; she was given a public funeral, and tributes of respect came from all parts of the Dominion.

Mrs. Trail published her first book in 1835, which she called "The Backwoods of Canada"; it was published by Charles Knight of London as one of the volumes o fthe "Library of Useful and Entertaining Knowledge". Mrs. Moodie was not so fortunate with her first book although she needed the money more, and I think her book much the better of the two This and all Mrs. Traill's subsequent books were written to encourage immigration in which they were said to be very effective. On the other hand, Mrs. Moodie's "Roughing It" was written to warn gentle folk not to get too far away from civilization.

Mrs. Traill's later books were "The Canadian Crusoes", "Rambles in a Canadian Forest", "Pearls and Pebbles" and "Cot and Cradles Stories". These books have run through numerous editions, and various titles have been given by publishers. Two of them are on sale now under the names of "Lost in the Backwoods" and "Afar in the Forest", but Mrs. Traill never received anything more than the small sum paid originally for the copyright.

Mrs. Traill retained surprising mental activity until her death at the age of 98. She contributed to some publications until she died, when she was said to be the oldest author in the British Dominions.

Many of the descendants of the Strickland families still live in this vicinity. Miss Grieve of Peterborough is a great granddaughter of Colonel Strickland's and delights in relating traditions and reminiscences of her clever ancestors who contributed so much to the pleasure not alone of the people of this locality but to readers of English the world over.

Mrs. Susanna Moodie

Mrs. Moodie, Susanna Strickland, was English by birth and family and was the daughter of Thomas Strickland of Suffolk, England. She was born in December 1803. Her father was at one time wealthy, but lost heavily, like many other good men by endorsing some friend's notes, or otherwise making himself personally responsible for other peoples' debts. He died of the shock, or of nervous condition which it superinduced. The family was not left homeless, but they had to live in a more retired manner, than Mr. Strickland had intended; this good father was living to educate them but he did not live to see his purpose accomplished.

The whole family, at least, five out of the six daughters turned to literary work. The eldest, Elizabeth, contributed all her life-time to English magazines, and is credited with having assisted her younger sister, Agnes, with her wonderful historical biographies —The Queens of England, The Queens of Scotland, Bachelor Kings of England, Tudor Princesses, etc., etc., in all about twenty-five volumes or more. Another member of the family called Jane Margaret wrote religious books which made her very well known. Then came the two whom we know so well, Catherine and Susanna, (Mrs. Trail and Mrs. Moodie.) These were respectively the fifth and sixth daughters of the family, the two youngest.

Mrs. Moodie was but thirteen years of age when her father died; he had educated her himself up to that time when she had said to have begun to write. Her earliest efforts were poems and stories for children which it is certain she began before she was sixteen years of age. How she met Lieutenant Moodie, one has only to guess. About the year 1830, she brought out a collection of poems known as "Enthusiasm and Other Poems." Mr. Moodie was a Scotsman from the Orkneys; he had been in South Africa with a Scottish Regiment during the previous ten years, and had just returned, discharged on half-pay He also had written a book, and one can easily imagine the two ambitious authors hawking their wares among the publishers of Peternoster Row, and the gods did the rest He disposed of his book during the winter, and with the receipts and his half-pay, they joined hands for better or worse and departed for Canada. The rest of her life is thoroughly told by herself in her well-known book, "Roughing It In The Bush."

Lakefield, 1834

After a hard honeymoon trip they landed at Cobourg; in a few months they went out into the country and took up land in Hamilton Township on the shore of Rice Lake. After a year there, they moved in 1834 to the neighborhood we now call Lakefield This is the scene of the greater part of the story The book has a peculiar fascination, and sticks in the memory better than anything else of the kind, probably because of my own ancestors were working out a future along the same lines about ten miles away Their experiences had, however fitted them for roughing it, than that of the half-pay officer and the good lady who for him abandoned her home among the gentle folk of England.

They were told that the way to become independent was to buy land, and they bought it. They were surrounded by people of their own class, who did not know how to clear forest, cultivate the soil, or harvest, and all were reduced to the most abject poverty However, MacKenzie's Rebellion broke out in 1837 and the half-pay officers were called to the colors with full pay.

Poor Susanna was left alone with four children Settlers around Peterborough were at that time carrying supplies from Cobourg on their backs, a distance of twenty-five miles as the crow flies; what must it have been for the people in Lakefield who lived nine miles farther on! Mrs Moodie could write and did write but she could not send the result of her efforts to be published as she could not pay the price of mailing it Indeed she seldom wrote to her husband because the price of sending the letter was an item for one who had nothing. She wrote the Lovells, a publishing company in Montreal, and made known her difficulty They advanced her the money she required for mailing her manuscript, and "Roughing It" appeared in the Literary Garland, in serial form. She did not receive a great deal for it, but in such straits a small amount of money would seem a fortune.

Mr. Moodie forwarded her something from time to time, but she used this to pay debts she had of necessity contracted, and managed to eke out an existence for herself and her little family by her own efforts, and earnings. During this time of need, the Indians who lived near Lakefield were very kind to her, and often brought fish and venison. She and Mr. Moodie had been kind to them in the better days; the gratitude of the Indians is insisted upon by Mrs. Moodie, and the sense of delicacy that made these savage people pretend they were merely bringing presents of the kind of food that was hard to obtain.

Removal To Belleville

By 1839 the Rebellion was over and Mr. Moodie was sent to Belleville as paymaster of the forces. The County of Hastings was about that time carved from what had been known as the Midland District, and Mr. Moodie was made its first sheriff This position had been obtained for him by Mrs. Moodie, who wrote the Governor herself, laying bare the grim necessity that impelled her action. The Moodie family moved to Belleville and lived there until the sheriff's death in 1869.

In 1850, Mrs. Moodie got her story "Roughing It" published in England in book form, and at once, she became famous. Her subsequent works came fast, the next one being "Life in the Clearing." Then she drifted into romance; the list runs "Flora Lindsay," "Mark Huddlestone," "The World Before Them,' "Matrimonial Speculation," and "Dorothy Chance." Meanwhile she kept on contributing to magazines.

She moved to Toronto where she died in 1885. Her remains were taken back to Belleville and buried beside the grave of her husband.

Isabella Valancy Crawford

In the memory of a few of our oldest citizens, there lived in Peterborough a gifted but modest little girl who is remembered because of the shyness that kept her aloof from the crowd. She was a member of St. John's Episcopal Church, and there are some who remember her, as she came and went alone, seldom speaking to anyone; she was poorly dressed and sometimes as she went along the street was followed by curious children. Children are keen observers, and are often merciless with the bashful especially if these are too timid to mingle with the crowd; this sensitive reserved girl was Isabella Valancy Crawford.

She was refined and educated, having been taught at home by her father Doctor S. D. Crawford, and by her mother who was a cultured lady. But this was in the Victorian days when a very rigid line divided working-girls and "ladies," and so Miss Crawford remained at home, and endured poverty, and thought and suffered. Dr. Crawford had never been successful in his practice, and when he died in 1875 he left his wife and two daughters penniless. Local tradition tells us how they suffered and did not make known their wants. Indeed, only the small assistance given them by Dr. Crawford's brother kept them from actual want. The sensitive soul of this girl endured untold humiliation from poverty, but yet more from coldness and neglect She toiled, and wrote, and hoped, but the pitance that came as a result of her labour brought only disappointment to herself and her dependent mother.

Peterborough cannot lay claim to much credit for its treatment of this clever girl. But how often does it happen that our eyes are holden to the merits and virtues of those whom we meet daily in the regular round of duty. To be great, persons must needs be afar off, in time or clime; seldom is a prophet accepted in his own country.

Influence of Nature

But our beautiful lakes and streams and woods and hills were more kind to her than were our citizens. She loved the things of nature; the landscape, the sunset sky; the happy songsters were to her a constant delight, and so one of them, that she was never melancholy as a result of adverse fortune. Miss K. E. Wallis of Peterborough, who knew her intimately tells that she was always cheerful and kind under the most trying circumstances. Her mind was filled with thoughts too sweet and noble to allow herself to be the victim of neglect, and her heart throbbed too truly in harmony with those things of nature that were created to give joy, not tobe able to brave adverse fortune and even to give cheer in desolate surroundings. She possessed a gift transcending wealth and a multitude of friends, the rare gift of poetic genius, and she valued this priceless treasure as its true worth.

During the most impressionable years of her girlhood, from about the age of thirteen to twenty or twenty-one, she lived on the shore of Katchiwanooka Lake in the village of Lakefield in the Kawartha Lake district, and here adoring nature made of the fair blue-eyed child "a lady of her own." She was often known to wander alone by the lake shore or along flowery lanes or angled fences and with the birds and the flowers and waves of the friendly lake as her companions, would sit and muse and in the "visionary gleam" of childhood would converse with these loved friends. As if to be like them, she began "to better the world with beauty," for here for the first time her sweet soul burst into song.

But the joy and song of her heart could not be expressed by a child; only when she grew to womanhood and retained the heart of the child and its love of the meadows and pebbled shores that were her childish delight, did she make known the rapture of those early days with nature. In her picturesque lyric, "The Canoe Song," she expresses the enchantment of drifting on a starry evening on the quiet lake that she knew and loved in childhood.

O light canoe! where dost thou glide
Below thee gleams no silver'd tide;
But concave heavens's chiefest pride.

Above thee burns eve's rosy bar;
Below thee throbs her darling star;
Deep 'neath thy keel her round worlds are!

To gladden happy lovers' eyes;
No earth, no wave,—all jewelled skies.

Dr. Crawford moved to Peterborough with his family in 1864 Isabella was then about twenty tall, fair, beautiful, with blue eyes remarkable for an expression that has been described as "wondering, thoughtful and affectionate". She never was quite at home in town, and it is said her manner was slightly eccentric as a result, no doubt, of humiliating poverty, and of the fact that she had little in common with the people whom she met; she was thoughtful and retiring and studious and there is little doubt that the "eccentricity" ascribed to her was due to the contrast between the quiet thoughtfulness of this girl and the frivolity and worldliness of others of her age.

Another lady, recently deceased Mrs. J. C Smith, remembered that she and her little companions used to call after the poet child on the street "Isabel Valancy Crawford," not in derision, nor yet in admiration, but "because she could write poetry, and had a queer name" This lady recalled also, that her mother, the late

Mrs. J. D. Hall, admired Miss Crawford's poetry, and used to read it for her children from time to time, as it appeared in the local newspaper. Mrs. Smith who was a child at the time, had a distinct recollection of Miss Crawford's appearance, she was tall, very frail and had a wealth of fair beautiful hair.

Bravery and Nobility

Although she was not at one with her surroundings, these years must have been filled with interest and hope. She was too brave to be victimized by indifference, and too noble to be made despondent by poverty. One might expect to find in her work, as a result of loneliness and neglect, an overwrought sentimentality but it is of the tonic sort such as found in her best-known lyric, "The Master Builder," and in "The Rose." Both these poems show a fine tender appreciation of human emotion and a sympathy with the keen joys and sorrows incident to every life, that sends a thrill of recognition to the heart, and begets an invigorating kinship with the human family:

The Rose was given to man for this:
He, sudden seeing it in later years,
Should swift remember love's first lingering kiss
And Grief's last lingering tears.

Or being hard, perchance his finger-tips
Careless might touch the satin of its cup,
And he should feel a dead babe's budding lips
To his lips lifted up.

This was written only a few years after Mrs. Browning's "Rose." I wonder, if it had been written by Mrs. Browning, and the other by Miss Crawford, would not you and I be as familiar with it now, as we are with

"O Rose, who dares to name thee?"

To me it is more imaginative, more picturesque, enters more astutely into that awakening transfixing effect of past associations. But Mrs. Browning's poem was brought before the world before a poetry-reading people, and the world knew Mrs. Browning. It was not so with Miss Crawford. The reading public of eighty year ago in this locality, and in the whole Dominion, was composed of the first generation of descendants from a people who came to this country from sheer necessity, because they hoped to be able to make a living, or to make a better living than it had been possible for them to make in Great Britain. A few had halted in the New England States, but their case was not thus materially affected.

Few Friends

The UE Loyalists like all the other settlers, were busy hewing homes from the forest and cultivating land with sickle and spade, and although their hearts were right, they had little time for reading. Only professional men and their families had leisure or taste for poetry; they were in the very small minority, and although one would expect Miss Crawford to be known in that circle, it was not so. Dr. Crawford was not a man to bring himself or his family into the public eye; his gifted daughter made few friends; had she had the opportunity of meeting others of her own age and social status, it might have been otherwise; but she received all her education at home; she never attended a boarding-school or college; "child penury repressed that noble rage" and so when her modest little book with the unfortunate name appeared in 1884, it was literally ignored. There were no friends to pick it up and make it known, no school or college to interest itself in one of its graduates, no eager reading public to seek for the newest expression of genius.

Could she have made a tour of the province or dominion giving commentative readings, as Pauline Johnson was doing about that time, she would undoubtedly have brought to her poems the popularity they deserve, but this would have needed judgment, friends and money, and she had none of these. She had invested all the money she could command, and had lost in the venture; the publication of her book had been a financial loss. All these circumstances could not but bring disaster, even to a physique better fitted to withstand them. She succumbed to the strain, or rather, merciful death came and relieved her.

It must not be thought that it was the financial embarrassment resulting from her undertaking that weighed so heavily upon her. She had grown accustomed to poverty. But the hope of years was blighted; her genius was unrecognized. To be the author of a book of popular poems, to be a light to the literary world, this was the dream of her girlhood, the aspiration of maturer years, her support in long hours of toil, her solace in time of discouragement. All vanished like a dream, and she went forth, overcome at last by that Sorrow of which she had written so nobly:

Who eurseth Sorrow, knows her not at all.
Dark Matrix she, from which the human soul
Has its last birth; whence it, with misty thews
Close knitted in her blackness, issues out
Strong for immortal toil up such great heights
As crown o'er crown rise through Eternity.
Without the loud deep clamour of her wail,
The iron of her hands, the biting brine
Of her black tears, the soul, but lightly built
Of indeterminate spirit, like a mist
Would lapse to chaos in soft, gilded dreams,
As mists fade in the gazing of the sun.
Sorrow, dark mother of the soul, arise!
Be crowned with spheres where thy blest children dwell,
Who, but for thee, were not.
No lesser seat
Be thine, thou Helper of the Universe,
Than planet on planet piled—thou instrument
Close clasped within the great Creative Hand!

There is a breadth and scope to Miss Crawford's poems that show her to have been a wide reader, and a diligent student; she has ventured into every field; she has an epic which is filled with passages of rare beauty; she is successful with the ballad, and has written several exquisite lyrics and sonnets.

For subject-matter, too, she has drawn from almost every available source; classical and mythological references abound; fairy-lore and folk-lore and the creed of the Indian are treated with skill and ease; history sacred and profane are placed under contribution at every turn; the lives and interests of the pioneers elecit her sympathy and understanding, and furnish her with material for her dialect poems, which, though at times somewhat artificial, are far more faithful, and abound with humour. But her theme a priority is nature.

Enduring Reputation

The matchless pine forests, the groves of maple and oak, the rocks and hills and island-dotted lakes and the clear bracing air of Kawartha, wove themselves into the being of the girl so thoroughly, in these romantic years when they were her everyday neighbours, and the tender love of her art was awakening within her, that all her work is colorful with the gorgeousness of sunsets and the splendour of autumn woods, musical with the ripple of the river the lapping of the waves and limpid as the crystal water of Clear Lake, and powerful as the freshets of our Northern Spring.

I shall presume to prophesy too that her poetry will be as enduring as the mighty rocks and boulders among which it was inspired and that when the unerring hand of Time shall have selected from among the poets of Canada those who are to survive because of their fitness, the name of "Isabel Valancy Crawford" will again be heard through the streets of Peterborough "because she could write poetry," and tourists to Kawartha will steadily set their faces towards the little brown house pictured below.

She is buried in the Little Lake Cemetery in Peterborough, and a monument was erected to her memory by the public in 1900. It is of Quebec granite in the form of a Celtic Cross seven feet high. The base consists of two blocks of marble, and on the upper is carved the inscription: Isabel Valancy Crawford, poet by the Gift of God.

Cortez Fessenden

There passed from amongst us in July 1923, a writer whose memory will long be hallowed in Peterborough. He wrote not to entertain nor amuse, nor for the sake of writing; his sole object in taking a pen, whether to write a letter, a magazine article or a book, was to give a message to others. He always had a message worth while, and his absorbing purpose was to broadcast this in the fewest words consistent with clearness and elegance. There is no mistaking his meaning, but you look in vain for the superfluous word or the awkward phrases. He was the unrelenting foe of carelessness whether in speaking or in writing. I refer to Mr Cortez Fessenden, some time principal of Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Mathematical Master in that institution for 23 years. He was a man of sterling character, dependable, competent, a great-souled man and a great educator. He was zealous in his life-purpose of passing on the "Lamp of Learning." His books aided in this; he was the author of "The High School Physics," a book remarkable for clearness and precision and fulness of exposition. Notwithstanding the rapid advance in recent years of research in physical science, especially in electricity, Mr. Fessenden, up to the time of his early and lamented death, was always a reliable and available authority.

He also wrote "Elements of Physics" and a treatise on Trigonometry.

He received his education at Knowlton Academy, McGill Normal School, and Trinity College, at which latter institution he took his Master's Degree in 1885.

He was proud of the success of his brilliant family, two sons and two daughters, and talked with keen delight although with evident heartache of the fact that their life-work was being accomplished under four different flags.

One remembers Mr. Fessenden as a guiding star in the early days of high school teaching. He never disappointed when applied to for help or advice; the promptness and surety of his reply betokened the courteous gentleman and the capable scholar. He was eager to help the needy scholastic and the struggling teacher; "Gladly would he learn and gladly teach." Here is a healthy unselfishness, a broad-mindedness and nobility of soul that makes for unity and the advance of education, and therefore, for literary and national progress.

The future lies at the point of the drill

A country's consumption of oil and its standard of living are closely linked. The higher the standard of living, the greater the consumption is likely to be.

Consumption of oil in Canada is the second highest in the world on a per capita basis. United States, alone, is higher.

In order to meet this greater consumption and higher standard of living, Imperial Oil constantly strives to discover and develop Canada's natural oil resources. The future lies at the point of the drill.

As the search goes on, Imperial Oil chemists and engineers continue their never-ending vigil to improve and maintain the exacting quality of Imperial Esso products.

Imperial Oil's refineries across Canada are in steady production to keep up with the requirements of Transportation, Marine, Aviation Farm and Domestic industries so that they, in turn, may contribute their share to a better way of living.

RAILWAYS PLAYED LARGE PART IN GROWTH OF PETERBOROUGH

First Line Entered Town Soon After Incorporation; Boom Followed for 30 Years

The history of transportation is the history of civilization. Since the days when the first man shambled afoot through noisesome jungles, through the long centuries when kings and peasants alike crawled along the ridge of the earth in creaking ox-wagons, down to the days when Stephenson invented the locomotive, and the automobile klaxon supplanted the clatter of horses hooves, Progress and Speed have matched strides.

It is not so many years since wheat was carried on men's backs from Peterborough to Port Hope to be ground into flour; it was but yesterday, as time of progress is measured, that the first train on the old Midland Railway pulled into the town. . .

And now Peterborough stands at the junction of splendid highways, on the lines of two great railroads. To these have been added the airplane but Peterborough is not yet blessed with a good landing field.

First Railway Boom

With the opening up of this district, there came to the minds of many men the thought that railway connections between Peterborough and points east and west must necessarily prove feasible. As a result a veritable railway "boom" broke out between the years 1853 and 1885 and there were plans for the building of a railroad to Bobcaygeon, to the Sault, and to Young's Point (a radial line) as well as from Cobourg and Port Hope to Peterborough.

In 1852-53, a charter was obtained to build a line from Cobourg to Peterborough and the project of the Port Hope-Peterborough branch line was revived. Peterborough declined to take stock in this latter project but Lindsay and Ops township gave assistance and a road to Lindsay by Millbrook was built and put in operation.

Then came forth the town of Cobourg's proposal to construct a line from Cobourg to Peterborough and Marmora, and indeed it was placed in operation in 1854. But after lending a great impetus to the lumber export business in the district which it served, it experienced chronic trouble with the bridge over a section of Rice Lake and in 1857 it ceased operations. Efforts to revive this service in 1863 stopped short with the failure of attempts to build a permanent bridge in place of the troublesome one.

Line Opened

In 1857, the Port Hope-Peterborough project cropped up, John Fowler, who later became its president, seeking to have the two towns subscribe to the building of a branch line from Millbrook to Peterborough. He proposed that it be a joint stock affair and together with George Tait of Toronto, subscribed £10,000, as did the town of Port Hope. Peterborough, after much deliberation subscribed £30,000, passing a by-law to that effect.

On May 21, of the following year, a train passed over the new branch line and on the following day, a great excursion was run from Port Hope to Peterborough. But it was as nothing compared with the free excursions which brought up 3,000 persons and returned carrying five thousand people. Men, women and children declared for themselves a holiday and the entire rolling stock of the railroad—three locomotives and forty cars—was required to transport them.

Railroading activities continued over this line, and in 1865 the same company saw fit to attempt a connection between Peterborough and Chemong. It proposed to have this latest branch line follow along the river, crossing Dickson's dam. The road was actually built along by the gas plant, and up as far as the dam where it stopped owing to opposition from the Cobourg road which, under its charter, claimed a prior right. The charter expired in 1866 and when the Cobourg company was sold to the highest bidder, provision was made for any lines into Peterborough to go over the Chemong branch when and if completed. Eventually, the Port Hope line extended to Chemong, following along Bethune street and cutting through the hill on Barnardo St., and at the same time, the line was extended across the river at Auburn and thence to Lakefield.

Troublesome Days

The next development of note came in 1878 after the revival of the Cobourg-Peterborough line. This line was put in operation by means of a boat service which extended to Harwood and thence by rail to Cobourg, and George A. Cox became president of the Midland Railway. The troublous days which followed brought with them an action of the council of Peterborough to gain payment of debentures but in October of this same year there was proposed by its promoters, a new station for the Midland railway at Peterborough and the town was asked to lend its assistance to the extent of $5,000. The new station would be 40 feet wide and 50 feet long with wings 60 feet by 90 feet and an engine house 30 feet by 20 feet. A by-law was passed by the town council granting $4,000, councillors McWilliams and Elder resigning as voicing their objections to the by-law being passed before being submitted to the people.

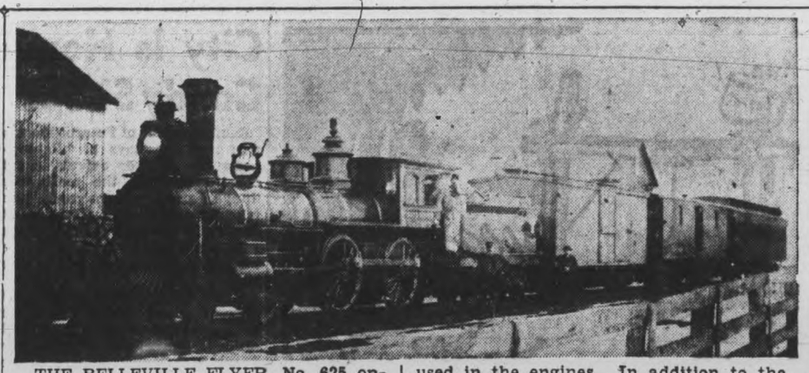
The new station was built notwithstanding, and its formal opening took place with much ceremony on November 22, 1878. Meanwhile, President Cox and Mayor Tool went to Bobcaygeon with a view to promoting a branch line between Peterborough and that village. The Toronto-Ottawa line was then taking shape as a likely project.

Road Was Profitable

Indicating that the Midland railway was making progress, the report of that company, submitted at the annual meeting on February 23, 1880, showed profit of $10,397.87 and substantial additions to the rolling stock as well. The citizens of Port Hope entertained President Cox as the guest of honor at a large civic banquet in that town and about four days later, Mr. Cox addressed a mass meeting in the Peterborough Opera House relative to the building of the "Missing Link" directly between Peterborough and Omemee. He estimated that it would cost $226,000 to build and equip the line and his company asked, in view of its already owing Peterborough approximately $65,000, a rebate of $40,000 in lieu of assistance to build the line.

In November, 1881, Mr. Cox arranged for the Midland railway to take over into one system and consolidate them into the Midland Railway of Canada, the Toronto and Nipissing Railway, the Grand Junction Railway, the Whitby and Port Perry Railway and the Victoria Railway. Meanwhile, the Ontario-Quebec Railway bought the land and let the contracts for a station between Dalhousie and Wolfe streets, west of George street.

On March 3, 1882, work began on the missing link and all the bridge trestles were finished by June 1 of the following year. Two years later the first train passed over the now-complete "Missing Link" railway from Peterborough to Lindsay, inaugurating a through line from Peterborough to Toronto by way of Lindsay and Blackwater and the old Nipissing line. Later there was talk of a line from Peterborough to Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie; the CPR came through and the proposed radial line to Young's Point died a natural death.



THE BELLEVILLE FLYER, No. 625 operating on the Grand Trunk Railway between Peterborough and Belleville before the turn of the century is shown loading wood. These were the days before coal was used in the engines. In addition to the engine, the train has two box cars and a passenger car. Conductor Wm. Morris and Engineer William Pilling can be seen in the picture.

Second Settler

through the woods from Rice Lake to Peterborough, and now called Keene Road, that he presented him with a town and park lot of considerable value. In 1831, Captain Rubidge was appointed by Lord Seaton, the Governor-General of Canada, as Immigrant Agent at Peterborough, and, during the course of that year, located in Peterborough County, four thousand people from England, Scotland and Ireland, giving general satisfaction by his persistence in a strict impartiality, which was by no means a general characteristic of those at that time entrusted with the allotment of government grant lands. The closing passages of this fine old sailor's modest autobiography, dated 1871, is worthy of quotation:

"I conclude this statement of some of the events of my life, with most devout thanks to Almighty God for His goodness to me and all my family. For twenty years I served afloat as an officer in the navy, and during that time had many narrow escapes from death. Now, in 1870, I am in my eighty-fourth year, and am one of the oldest officers in the British Navy. From 1819 to 1841 I made a farm and worked hard on it, until appointed Registrar of the County of Peterborough, which situation I still hold."

From the date of his autobiography, 1870, Captain Rubidge continued to hold the registration until his death in January, 1873. He left three sons and three daughters. Of the sons, the eldest, Charles, died in 1870; the second son, John, was a farmer in Otonabee Township; the third and youngest, Walter Rubidge, resided at Brantford, where he occupied the position of Clerk of the Court. The three daughters of Captain Rubidge were: Mrs. Clementi, wife of the Rev. V. Clementi, Peterborough; Mrs. Dunsford, wife of Hartley Dunsford, Registrar of the County of Victoria, Lindsay; and Mrs. Ord, wife of the late George Ord, of Otonabee.

THREE DETERMINED GENTLEMEN pedal furiously for the finish line in a bicycle race at the exhibition grounds. The small gentleman astern looks as though he has about as much chance of catching up with the other two as his hind wheel has of catching the front one. As far as dignity goes, the chap with the sideburns and full mustache stands a good chance of placing first, but the penny-farthing bicycle in front looks like a sure winner. The big elm tree in the right background stood until the exhibition grounds temporarily became a military camp during World War 2.

WATER AND LIGHT FIRST SUPPLIED TOWN BY PRIVATE COMPANIES

Waterworks Established Public Utility 1902 Electrical System in 1914

To turn on a water tap or an electric light switch has become such an ordinary occurrence that few citizens are aware of the immense amount of machinery and the great number of employees that are needed to keep such services in operation. The Public Utilities Commission of Peterborough has a long and eventful history, however, from the time of its inauguration up until the present day; service to the community, has been its byword. This service can not be over estimated and is only truly appreciated when some catastrophe causes a temporary interruption in its usually smooth-running machinery.

After the incorporation of the Town of Peterborough, in 1850, the need for a system of waterworks was first brought to the attention of the council in 1870. Action was taken 11 years later, when a company was formed under the leadership of J. Gamble, New York; W. Cluxton, J. Burnham and R. P. Boucher, all of Peterborough. The company was authorized to build and equip works to provide water for domestic use and fire purposes. The estimated cost was $40,000. A clause was included in the by-law giving the town the right to purchase the system at any specified time. The pumping station was to be located at Blythe Mills at the west end of the original Auburn dams. Pumps with a capacity of 400,000 gallons of water a day were installed.

Due to the growth of the town and resultant increased consumption, the company erected a dam and pump on a site a mile further up the Otonabee river. In this way the capacity was increased to 2,500,000 a day.

Taken Over By Town

In 1902, the waterworks was taken over by the town and new pumps were added. At this time the town was fed by a 16-inch force main that extended as far as Auburn dam where it was reduced to 12 inches. There was a total of 17.61 miles of mains, 129 hydrants and 1,070 services. The electric power at the pump house was supplied by a crib timber dam built in 1893.

A contract was given to the Bishop Construction Co. of Montreal in 1909 to build a new dam and pumping station at a total cost of $130,149.76. The pumps installed had a pumping capacity of three million gallons a day against a pressure of 130 pounds to the square inch.

In 1913, the supply capacity of the force main was overhauled and a new 18-inch main was constructed from the pumping station to Auburn at a cost of $22,000.

An interesting sidelight in this development was the method used by the old Water Company in estimating rates. At first the rate was charged per room and per occupant. Later this method was discarded and the rate was based on the number of rooms in the house and the number of fixtures used. A discount of 10 per cent was allowed for prompt payment.

Electrical Service.

As was the case with the water system, the electrical services in this city had their start as a private company and later became owned by the municipality. Peterborough was the first among the towns and cities of its size to introduce the electric light. The first electric light made its appearance in 1884. The generator was installed in the Hazlitt saw mill at the foot of London St., and was of sufficient capacity to operate 25 open arc lights. There were five miles of wire in the distribution system and the lights were placed in the principal places of business as well as on the streets.

In 1914 the electric system was established as a part of the Utilities Commission.

In 1921, the filtration plant was built adjacent to the pump house on the west bank of the Otonabee River. To finance this project $350,000 in debentures were issued, which will be paid next year. The capacity of the filtration plant is six million gallons a day. The approximate increase of 12,000 in the city's population during the past 10 years has made expedient the construction of an addition to the filtration plant and plans are being made to carry this out next year.

In 1929, the gas plant was taken over by the municipality and became the third service rendered to the city by the Public Utilities Commission. At present, the PUC employs a permanent staff of 85. It provides the city with 473 hydrants, 77 miles of main lines and approximately 9,000 services. There are two large office buildings on Simcoe and Aylmer Sts. The pumping station has a capacity of 20 million gallons every 24 hours. Housing projects all over the city are making necessary the laying of new mains.

Park Project

As well as their regular services, the PUC has successfully undertaken a park project. Consisting of 25 acres of land and situated at the filtration plant on the Lakefield Road. The park is named after W. H. Moore, who was chairman of the commission at the time the property was purchased. The purpose behind the park project was to provide a beauty spot in the vicinity of the filtration plant and pumping station to attract visitors.

Overlooking the river, the park, with its beautiful lawns and a miniature forest of approximately 20,000 trees, which represent nearly every tree found in Canada, is dotted with attractive red tables and benches for picnickers. At night the brilliantly illuminated fountain meets the eye of passing motorists. One of the main attractions of the park is what might be termed a zoo. Deer, a monkey, a bear, racoons, guinea pigs, rabbits, wild ducks, turkeys, geese, peacocks, swans and numerous varieties of pheasants are on display for visitors and tourists. An air of domesticity is added by the presence of Plymouth Rock hens that are borrowed from a neighboring farm to sit on the pheasants' eggs until they are hatched.

As well as the filtration plant and the pumping station, there are three houses in the park, which are the homes of the operators and their families.

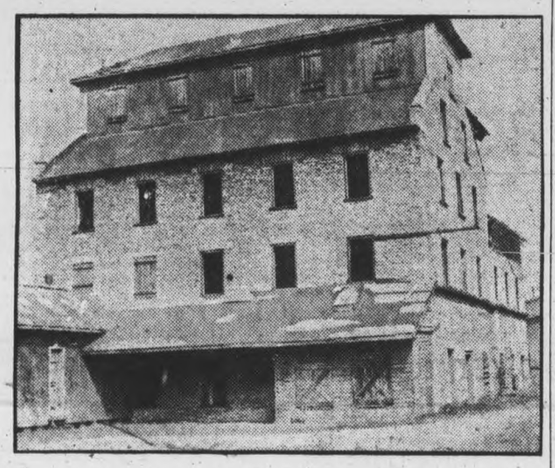
One operator is always on duty in both the filtration plant and the pumping station to keep constant check on the machinery and instruments to make sure that there will always be a sufficient supply of water to meet the city's needs. After filtration, the water is checked many times daily at the plant and at various points in the city to insure that it is safe for drinking. James Harrison is the chief operator of the filtration plant and pumping station.

Personalities have played an important part in the development of the PUC in this city. When the first Water Commission was established in 1902, it consisted of Mayor T. H. G. Denne, chairman, and W. H. Hill. In the same year, the council decided that the Commissioners should be entirely separate from the council. In the election that followed in 1903, T. F. Matthews, chairman; W. H. Hill and T. H. G. Denne were elected commissioners. Mr. Matthews remained chairman of the commission for 17 years and his son, Gordon S. Matthews, has been chairman for approximately 23 years. Thus in the 48 years of the commission's existence father and son have held the chairmanship for a total of 40 years.

The members of the present commission are G. S. Matthews, chairman; G. A. Macdonald and Fred Hills.

The PUC received that official title in 1914. At that time R. L. Dobbin was appointed general manager and has held that prominent position ever since. Mr Dobbin, who is a graduate of the University of Toronto, is a past chairman of the Canadian section of the American Waterworks Association, a Past President of the Association of Municipal Electrical Utilities of Ontario and a member of the council of the Engineering Institute of Canada. This gentleman is, what might be termed a connoisseur of his profession. His advice in matters of municipal services is sought by many towns anw cities. He takes a the services that come under his personal interest in every part of supervision. To Mr. Dobbin, more than to any other individual person should go the credit for the excellent services provided by the PUC in this city.

LITTLE KNOWN INCIDENTS IN LOCAL HISTORY: No. 1—The Peterborough County Court House on the hill was built in 1838-1840. Proud plans were made for it, and when it became known that Sir George Arthur, Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada (Ontario) would be in the vicinity in August of 1838, the officials of the village of Peterborough decided to ask Sir George to lay the corner-stone. The foundation had not been excavated, and the grounds were still covered with brush and fallen trees. Sir George deigned to perform the ceremony, but he was in a hurry to get away. So at 6.30 on the morning of August 21st, 1838, the building committee assembled, waited on the Governor at seven, and the stone was laid at 7.30. There is no truth in the rumour that His Excellency's night-cap was deposited with the corner-stone as a memento of the occasion. (Drawing by George Cobb, Examiner Staff.)



ONCE THE OTONABEE FLOUR MILL, the building above stood on the east bank of the Otonabee River for many years, until it was torn down in 1930 by the Quaker Oats Co. Better known as the McAllister Mill, its site is now used for tennis courts and a rink.

City Is Home Candy Shops

Reminiscences of Peterborough's past of the days of hitching-posts and cracker barrels, canal construction and the really big 'lunge, grain wagons and the friendly taverns—recall to mind the multitude of personalities who contributed so much to the history and achievements of the city.

And among the distinguished citizens whose names stand out in the memory of young and old alike is that of the late Senator Frank P. O'Connor, founder of the Laura Secord Candy Shops.

Mr. O'Connor was born in Deseronto but moved to Peterborough with his parents at such an early age that he always referred to the latter city as "home." He was educated here and obtained his first job at the Peterborough plant of the General Electric Company. And he married a Peterborough girl, the late Ellen Hayes.

It was in Peterborough the Mr. O'Connor conceived the idea for his first candy shop which was opened 37 years ago. Under Mr. O'Connor's guidance, the enterprise developed until Laura Secord now has nearly 100 little candy shops.

"From the moment he started his first little shop, Mr. O'Connor had very definite ideas on aims and policies for his business," recalls John D. Hayes, president of Laura Secord Candy Shops.

According to Mr. Hayes, the success of Laura Secord Candy Shops and their founder was due, in no small degree, to the ideals and resourcesfulness with which Mr. O'Connor was endowed during his early life in Peterborough.

THE DAN SPENCE AMBULANCE was "consigned to permanent disuse" by recommendation of the property committee of the council in 1919. Its relegation as a vehicle no longer of use to the city marked the passing of the era of the horse-drawn hearse for the modern motor ambulance. The Dan Spence Ambulance was donated to the city after the South African War, in which Dan Spence, a Peterborough boy, gave his life. The carriage was sold by auction to raise funds for the British War Victims' Fund during the Second World War.

Stage Stars & Dolly Sisters Nickel Movies and Serials Elephants Waded Otonabee

By CHARLES J. COON

Peterborough's first known theatre was housed in, of all places, a former Methodist church which stood across from the present George Street United Church. A travelling stock company used the abandoned church for a time, but there is no record of the plays they presented there.

The first real theatre to be equipped with scenery was Hills' Music Hall, located in the centre of what was later to be the market square. Hills' Music Hall, erected by E. C. Hill over 80 years ago, saw many well-known performers and theatrical companies. They included Joe Murphy, the Holman Opera Company, and the McDowells. The latter, with a repertoire of comedy, presented here for the first time two plays which are now well known, "The Private Secretary" and "Charley's Aunt".

Mr. Hill, builder of the 700-seat music hall, was also an organ-builder. He constructed an organ in his house which stood at the corner of Brock and Donegal streets.

Bradburn Opera House

A play called "The Adventurers" by the Ada Gray Company, opened Thomas Bradburn's Opera House on November 13, 1876. Located on the market square, the Opera House was considered one of the best in the province with its fine curtains and handsome circle of upper boxes.

Famous stage personalities who played in the old Opera House included the Broadway actor Will T. Hodge, the legendary Dolly Sisters, the ever-popular Marx Brothers, Dan MaHardy, Lillian Kennedy, and Will and Sadie Scanlon.

The "Australian Nightingale" Laura Mapleson also appeared at the Opera House as did Charles L. Davis with his play "Alvin Joslin", McKee Rankin, Ed De-Osier, the Shakesperian actor Walker Whitesides, and Louis Morrison who played "Mephistopheles" in the opera "Faust".

A local player, Dan Simons, made the first of many successful appearances on the Opera House stage. He was then with the Stevenson Repertoire Company. Jimmy Walbrook, also a Peterborough native, who was to become world champion wooden shoe dancer, danced and did acrobatic stunts with him.

First Telephone

The telephone came to Peterborough and the Opera House in January 1878 when W. J. Walker demonstrated the "telephone connection" from the Opera House stage. Those present made the first long-distance telephone calls to Lindsay and Port Hope via wires of the local telegraph agency.

Another "first" was the appearance of a phonograph on January 27, 1878. Edward Hanlon, champion oarsman of the world, spoke to the Peterborough Rowing Club from the Opera House stage on February 26, 1880.

The famous boxer John L. Sullivan visited Peterborough in 1884. He was apparently shy, for his only public appearance was a few minutes on stage at the old Opera House. Jim Mace, former world champion fighter and his contemporary Jim Fitzsimmons faced the Opera House audience three years later.

The first movies shown by a "cinematograph" were shown in the Opera House. They were described as "something marvellous" by the Opera House audience which saw a travelogue of the route from La Havre and Paris and a troop of cavalrymen crossing the Sein River.

The Circus

When Peterborough was younger, the arrival of a circus in town was an event of major importance. The circus was one of the few forms of public entertainment available in the earlier days.

The first circus to come to Peterborough, according to F. H. Dobbin, "Peterborough's historian", was the Sears Bros. and O'Connel's Gigantic Show in September 1858. Nor was the three-ring show's arrival without incident.

It seems that the circus arrived from the east and when the company with its 24 elephants reached the bridge over the Otonabee River, their way was blocked by the warden of the county. It was all right for horses to cross over the bridge, but he was sure the bridge could not stand a herd of elephants, circus or no circus.

The stalemate was finally broken when someone suggested the elephants might wade across as the river was shallow enough to be forded at that point. But once in the river, the elephants stayed there, giddily spraying each other with trunk-fulls of cool water, and playing about like a bunch of kids just out of school. The local townsfolk had assembled to watch the circus arrive, and two of them attempted to urge the huge beasts across the river by prodding them with a long pointed pole from a borrowed punt. They were forced back to shore amid several jets of water from the playful elephants.

At last the resourceful keeper got his charges across the river by piling large armfuls of hay on the shore.

Murder At The Circus

Unfortunately, not all visits of the "big top" to Peterborough were happy ones. Murder resulted from the visit of a circus on two separate occasions.

When Howe's Mammoth Circus was playing on the old market square (June 23, 1888), an employee named Farley fatally wounded an Indian who had been tormenting him. He was Simon Elijah from the Oneida Reservation in New York state.

Farley was found guilty and sentenced to hang in November. But his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment when workmen in the town got up a petition for clemency.

Three years earlier, when Downs' Monster Circus was in town, a man calling himself the sheriff's brother, demanded that the ticket-seller let him and his friends in free. The ticket-seller refused and was set upon by the supposed relative of the sheriff. Another employee of the circus, seeing his friend in danger, drew a gun and shot the intruder through the forehead, instantly killing him.

Another circus worker, who had a perfect alibi, was officially charged with the murder. The circus left town with the men armed with sawed-off shot-guns riding the box-cars to ward off any possible attack by the aroused townspeople.

Frequent Circuses

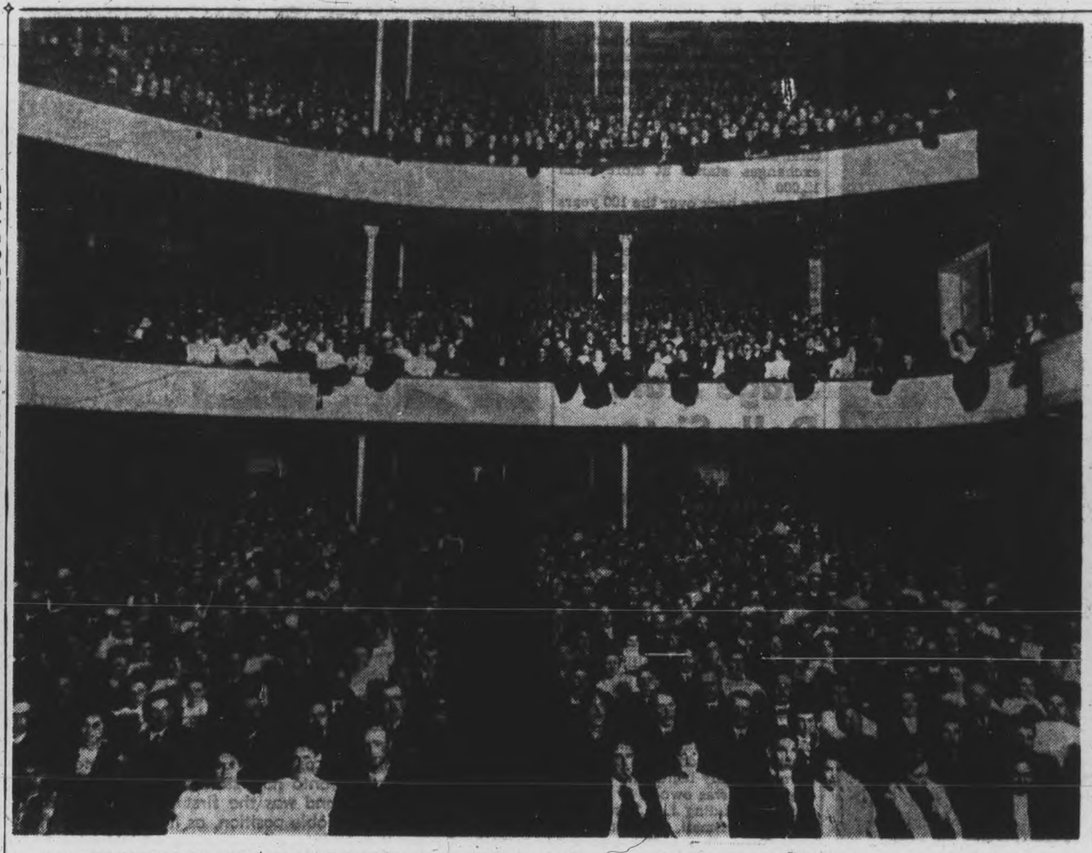
In those days, circuses visited Peterborough more frequently than they do now. Forepaugh's Circus was here on June 11, 1880. This show occupied the block bounded by Stewart, Bethune and Rink streets. The following year, Cole's Circus made its appearance on September 9, and on June 15, 1882, Myer's and Short's Mammoth Circus was in town.

Other shows which played in town included Barnum's Show (1889), Robinson's Big Show (1891), John McMahon's Old Fashioned Circus which performed in the then larger market square about 55 years ago. It possessed an elephant called Rameses whose age was reputed to be over 400 years.

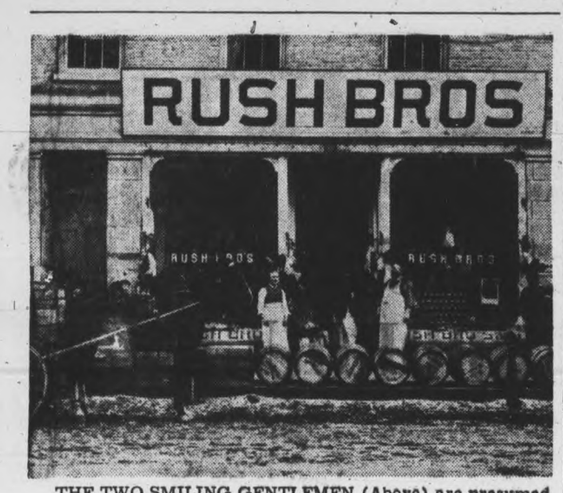
The circus doesn't come to Peterborough very often these days. Big Top shows which have played in recent years include two of the few remaining shows, Cole Brothers and Barnum and Bailey.

Some people, especially the children, may long for "the good old days" when the circus came to town almost every year, but three deaths have resulted from three such visits. Two murders occurred in the 1880's and the third mishap was an accidental drowning.

Joe Ryan, an employee of Barnum and Bailey's Circus drowned while fishing from a rented canoe in the Otonabee River on June 23, 1913.



AN ENTHRALLED CROWD IS SHOWN at one of the productions in the old Opera House on George St., whose site is now occupied by the Paramount Theatre. Just visible at the right is an elderly gentleman complete with beard, who seems about to denounce the show as a work of the devil. The Opera House stood until about ten years ago, and had not been in constant operation for ten years before that. It was formerly owned by Ambrose J. Small, who mysteriously disappeared from his Toronto home many years ago.—Roy Studio Photo.



THE TWO SMILING GENTLEMEN (Above) are presumed to be the Rush brothers, who operated this store. They have just received a shipment of sugar to their store which once stood on the west side of George St., south of the present site of the Richard Hall store.

Home-Towners

One of the famous comedians of the early movies, Larry Semon, was born in Peterborough over 60 years ago. However at the age of four days, his family moved to Lindsay, so that Peterborough can claim nothing in regard to the education of the great comedy star.

Another native of this city, Nettie Martin played opposite her husband Phil Peters, a Dutch comedian, in "Muggs Landing" for a number of successful years.

Some may still remember the rich soprano voice and Scotch dialect songs of Mary McFarlane who was Mrs. W. Bowman of Peterborough in private life.

Peterborough audiences in the earlier days were acquainted also with these fine singers: Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Sproule, Henry and Thomas Rush, Tom Dunn, who later became a success in England, Alex Elliott, D. H. Moore, and Lavina Hallihan.

Earl Grey, who was then Governor-general and an enthusiastic patron of music, heard Miss Hallihan sing the title role of "The Geisha" in Toronto. After hearing her again at the Grand Opera House here, the Governor-General was so impressed with her soprano voice that he started a fund to send her to England. She later studied there for several years.

Other actors which Peterborough can claim as her sons were Danny Simons who portrayed the "Bringing Up Father" type, and Oscar O'Shea, who scored as the priest in "The Rosary". Mr. O'Shea, while playing in "Daniel Boone", had to fight with a number of timber wolves—but not in front of an audience. The wolves had escaped from their cage and had attacked one of the actresses in her dressing room. "Daniel Boone" came to her rescue and became the hero of a bit of backstage drama.

The Movie Industry

Although the first animated pictures were shown in Peterborough in 1897, it was several years before the first movie house opened here. It was called the "Wonderland" and first occupied the building at 445 George St. and later at 432 George St.

A man by the name of Green opened the "Wonderland". He eventually went to New York. Ernie Hannah also managed Peterborough's first movie for a time.

For a nickel, patrons of the "Crystal," opened by Wesley Edwards, were treated to comedies, feature pictures, and singing. In the latter entertainment, words of a current song hit were flashed on the screen, and the audience sang, accompanied by the stage piano.

Soon after the appearance of the Crystal, three more motion picture houses opened on George St. They were The Red Mill, the Princess, later called the Tiz-It, and the Strand. Stanley Coons, a son-in-law of Wesley Edwards was responsible for the opening of the Red Mill.

Near the Crystal, was the Strand Theatre, conducted by the Schneider Brothers. They later opened the Regent theatre in June, 1920. The Regent closed a short time ago. It occupied the old "Times" offices on Hunter St.

From 1909 to 1914, the Empire Theatre held forth on Charlotte St. This handsome theatre was opened by the late Dr. F. L. Robinson.

A mechnical piano provided lots of music for the customers at M. Pappas' Royal theatre from 1909 to about 1925. Since the Royal showed pictures of the dramatic popular sort, it was natural that it should play Peterborough's first serial picture. Records show it portrayed "The Adventures of Kathlyn" and starred Kathlyn Williams.

Fans of a serial picture which dealt with the adventures of an Englishman in the Australian wilds were keenly disappointed when the Royal burnt down after the fifth or sixth instalment. The Royal re-opened the same year (1918) and ran until November 28, 1925.

The dean of Peterborough's present motion picture theatres is the Capitol, which opened April 18, 1918 with "Inside the Cup".

Present manager of the 1,100-seat Famous Player Theatre is Arthur E. Cauley.

Modern Movie Houses

Famous Players Corp. opened another theatre, the Paramount, on December 3, 1948. This ultra-modern theatre stands on the spot where the revered Grand Opera House use to be. Gordon C. Miller is manager of the Paramount.

A relatively new theatre chain, Odeon Theatres of Canada, operate the smart Odeon theatre on George St. It was opened December 16, 1947, with Claude A. Hunter as manager.

The only independent theatre in Peterborough, the Centre, is owned and operated by H. M. Yudin. The Centre opened early in 1939 in what had formerly been the Royal.

What has the Peterborough Bus Lines got to do with the movie industry? Very little, except that its predecessor, the Peterborough Street Railway Company, used to show animated pictures in Jackson Park as part of their service. For a nickel, the lucky patron could take a trolley to the park, and sit on the grass to watch the flickers flashed on a large white board supported by stilts, and listen to band music, too.

Describing the difference in movies of the early days, the Examiner article of July 3, 1929, says "Those were the times of 'close-ups' when the idea of extreme grief, as in the case of Theda Bara, one of the earliest favorites, was to place the lady's visage as near as possible, give it a very large appearance and send glycerine tears coursing madly down it." Then the 1929 article goes on to describe how 'nowadays' vapor from a cold inhalator is used to induce the tears. Hollywood, 1950 version, is not so free with its trade secrets.

Yes, the movie industry certainly has changed. Movie-making may now be called an art, and it is a modern miracle that Peterborough's four theatres's can bring local audiences the best, and the rest, of that art from the studios of Hollywood, London and the world.

First Telephones Installed In Peterborough In 1879

If the residents of the Peterborough of 100 years ago should visit their home today, they would be hard put indeed to comprehend the scientific devices and conveniences which present-day citizens accept as only normal adjuncts of modern living. Airplanes, motor vehicles, electric lighting, movies, radios—to such visitors from the past, these would be mysteries and marvels all.

And well up in the forefront of the astounding would be the telephone. Such an instrument was never dreamed of 100 years ago; confronted with the black plastic telephone set for the first time the founding citizens of this city would stare in disbelief, and then when the fact was proved, some might cry—as did many when the telephone was first invented —"They are instruments of the devil," and others would shy away from these 'new-fangled gadgets'

Yet, when it came down to accepting these new-fangled gadgets, when it was a question of far-sighted and progressive citizens realizing the potential value of the telephone, Peterborough was no laggard. As early as 1879, a mere two years after the telephone was marketed commercially, there were five telephones in operation here.

Played Important Part

In fact, Peterborough's telephone history spans practically the entire period in which it has been possible to transmit the human voice over a wire. As the years which have seen Peterborough develop into the modern busy city it is today have gone by, the telephone has played an integral and ever-growing part in this community's progress.

D. H. C. Burnett was this city's first telephone subscriber. Shortly after he leased his telephone in November, 1879, William Cluxton, R. Fairbairn, W. H. and J. J McBain obtained instruments. Thus it was that Peterborough had telephones in operation six months before the Bell Telephone Company of Canada was incorporated on April 29, 1880.

The telephone of these prominent local men were connected by individual lines to the old Dominion Telegraph Company office. They were not served by a switchboard, however for it was not until late in 1880 or early the following year that the first exchange was established here by George D. Edwards, Peterborough's first Bell Telephone "agent". He also had charge of the company's affairs in Lindsay, Port Hope and Cobourg.

Establishment Of An Exchange

This first exchange was located in the rear room of the law offices of the agent's brother, E. B. Edwards on Simcoe St. The first operator was Harry Brown, son of J. Brown, owner of a furniture and undertaking establishment. Shortly after the exchange was established, F. Prout succeeded Mr. Edwards in the management of Bell affairs here.

Peterborough residents of that day were quick to realize the value of the telephone, and by the time the first lists of telephone subscribers in this city was published in November, 1883, the exchange was serving 60 subscribers. One of the world's earliest telephone pioneers, Alfred T. Smith, had become Bell agent, Mr. Prout having retired because of ill health.

From the outset, the Bell Telephone Company adopted the far-sighted policy of building long-distance lines as rapidly as possible to link up its many newly - established exchanges throughout Ontario and Quebec. As early as 1882, lines were established from Peterborough to Toronto and Port Hope, followed by others to Lindsay, Young's Point, Lakefield and other centres.

Service Improved

Long distance service then was vastly different from what it is now. Then, to be heard at all times, required the voice of a hog-caller. But, as the art of telephony progressed, new materials and methods were put into use new lines were constructed, and long-distance service quickly approached the peak of quality where present-day subscribers can call almost any telephone in nearly 90 countries throughout the world and can hear and be heard plainly.

About 1890, the Ontario Telephone Company was established here in opposition to the Bell Company. The competition lasted about a year until the new enterprise failed.

But the Bell was again to encounter opposition in Peterborough, this time from the Canadian Machine Telephone Company which opened its first Canadian exchange here in 1905. This company used an automatic telephone system invented by Romaine Callender, of Brantford and later improved by the Lorimer brothers, of St. George. In 1908, automatic exchanges were also opened at Brantford, Burtord, St. George and Lindsay. But this younger company, unable to compete successfully against the Bell Company which had established an extensive and intricate long distance network, went into receivership in 1923.

Besides adding to Peterborough's telephone background, this episode of telephone history served to emphasive the fact that the telephone is what is known as a natural monopoly. Both economic law and public convenience demand only one system in any one community. The inconvenience and added expense of having telephones of two different system will be remembered by many of the city's older residents.

EARLY DAYS of Peterboroughs telephone history is depicted in the above picture. This group of linesmen, posing for the photographer, adopted some strange positions on the poles certainly not commendable on a safety basis. Note particularly the man astride the telephone pole in the background; can you figure out how he did it?

Meanwhile, the Bell Company's business was rapidly expanding Encouraged by the growth in the number of subscribers, the company completed its first company-owned building in Peterborough in 1905. At the same time it improved its plant installations here, and on November 30 of that year converted Peterborough's telephone system to common battery operation. This was one of the earliest such conversions in Canada, Peterborough being the first such system established in other than the major cities. More than this, the conversion was the largest ever undertaken in Canada up to that time.

Only three years later Peterborough's 1,000th Bell telephone was installed. By 1914 they numbered 2,000. Immediately following World War I the 3,000th telephone was installed, and by 1927 the total had risen to 5,000.

Dial Operation

Another important date in Peterborough's telephone history was September 30, 1939, when the 6,000-odd telephones in the Peterborough exchange were converted to dial operation, bringing the local service to a level equal with the best to be found anywhere. The Bell's modern dial exchange building on Hunter Street was opened at this time.

In common with most other Ontario and Quebec centres served by the Bell Telephone Company, the number of telephones in operation in Peterborough has shown a remarkable increase since the end of World War II, until today the total served by the Peterborough exchanges stands at more than 12,000.

Looking back over the 100 years of Peterborough's history, today's citizens may well be proud of their city's record of growth and progress. There is little doubt that the invention and development of the telephone contributed in no small measure to this record of achievement.

Stage Stars Dolly Sisters

LEGITIMATE STAGE

After the turn of the century, Peterborough enjoyed an era of excellent stage presentations at the Grand Opera House, which stood on the spot where a modern counter-part, the Paramount movie theatre stands. The Grand was finally forced to close its doors in the 30's because of the decline of the travelling "road shows" and the death of vaudeville.

The Grand Opera was built in 1905 by Rupert Bradburn, brother of W. H. Bradburn, former MPP. During its 30-odd years as Peterborough's only legitimate theatre, the Grand was owned by several parties including J. J. Turner and Sons, A. J. Small, a theatre magnate. Trans-Canada Theatres, and the Paramount Corporation of Toronto.

"The Yankee Consul" opened the Grand on November 15, 1905. It was followed by an adapatation of Winston Churchill's novel "The Crossing", and a musical comedy on Christmas week, "The Serio-Comic Governess".

"His Highness the Bey" played in January of the next year. Such popular songs as "In Kankakee" and "Sweethearts of Boyhood Days" were introduced in the show. "Peggy of Paris" came next with "Lil, My Easter Lily" and "I'm the Only Star That Twinkles on Broadway."

Eva Fay, who claimed to possess some mysterious occult powers, had a successful run at the Grand as a clairvoyant. When asked what the future population of Peterborough would be, Mrs. Fay answered, "The number comes to me of 50,000 in 1915!" If she had said 1950, she would have been more nearly correct.

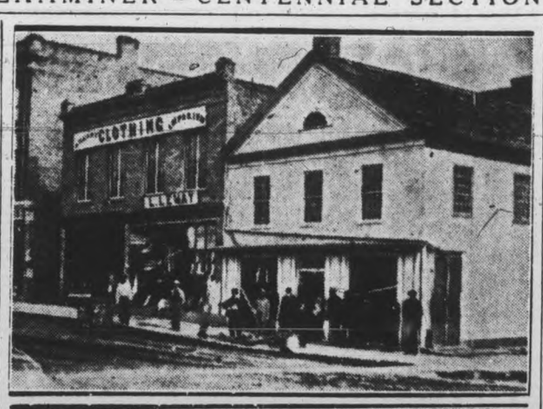
In the following months, Grand Opera House patrons saw Charles Grapewin and Anna Chance in "It's Up To You, John Henry", as well as "The Sign of the Cross", "The Gingerbread Man" with Eddie Redway (John Dough), Homer Lind (Fudge), Ross Snow (Fairy King), and Gertrude Zimmer (Maizie), and DeKoven's comic opera "Red Feather".

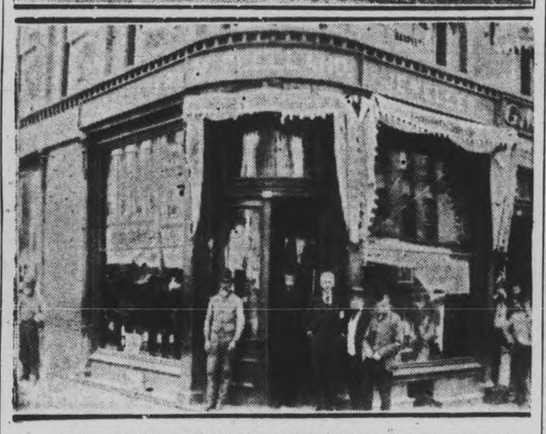
Wonderful Variety

In its heyday, the Grand Opera House presented a wonderful variety of melodrama, comedy, Shakespeare, opera, and musical shows. There was "Richard Third" with John Griffith, "Dolly Varden", "Hooligan in New York", Henry Stanford and Elsa Ryan in "Peg O' My Heart", "The Chocolate Soldier", "The Lion and the Mouse", "The White Sister", Lincoln J. Carter's "Her Only Sin", "The Time, the Place and the Girl", a Joseph Howard musical comedy, and Lou Dockstader and his Minstrels.

Many famous stage personalities have trod the Grand stage including Ethel Barrymore, whose dislike of an empty house caused her manager some anxious moments on one occasion here, Sir Harry Lauder with his crooked cane and favorite song "The End of the Road", the Ben Green Players and their Shakesperian repertoire, "The Dumbells" of World War I fame; Ruth St. Denis, the dancer; singers Edward Johnson and Bertha Crawford.

What caused the decline of the theatre in small cities such as Peterborough? Quite possibly two new inventions, radio, and the motion picture have taken the place of live performances. At any rate, legitimate theatre is making a comeback and Peterborough is helping to lead the way with its Summer Theatre.





FINE JEWELLERY AND GOODNESS KNOWS WHAT were once sold in these two corner buildings, which once occupied the southeast corner of George and Hunter Sts., where the Bank of Toronto now stands. The TOP one is the older of the two, and was the first building on that corner. It held no enviable position, as it was flooded frequently during the 1870's when George and Hunter Sts. were pretty low ground. From the store BELOW came jewellery. This shop was owned by John McClelland.

Summer Theatre

Two young Canadians, Michael Sadlier and Graham Ferguson were the co-directors of Peterborough's shiny new summer theatre, which had a successful run here last summer.

Using the modern 400-seat auditorium of the Queen Mary School with its off-centre aisle, deep-blue ceiling and glass-walled foyer, this enthusiastic group of Canadian Thespians opened last season with "Fortune My Foe" by Peterborough's Robertson Davies. Mr. Davies' play won the Dominion Drama Festival award as the best Canadian play of 1949.

Other plays presented last year included the favorites "Angel Street", "Blithe Spirit", Oscar Wild's "The Importance of Being Ernest", "John Loves Mary", "Rebecca", and "The Voice of the Turtle".

Actors who starred in last year's productions included Bramwell Fletcher from New York, Gerald Saraccini and Jeri Sauvinel also of New York, Toronto's John Needles, John Primm from Montreal, and Robert Christie who had considerable experience in London's Old Vic Theatre.

Mr. Sadlier, actors, property masters, makeup people, and stage technicians are now in the midst of another season at the Queen Mary.

A new play by Robertson Davies, "Harvey", "Edward, My Son," and "The Ghost Train" are among the productions for this 1950 season.

Thus the much-discussed Canadian national theatre is being brought closer to reality with the continued support of Peterborough citizens and their summer guests.

Amateur Stage

"Theatricals" have always been a source of revenue and occupation to church groups and other people of good intention, and the amateur stage never quite died out in Peterborough, though subjected for many dreary years to a series of cheap American three-act plays with little subtlety, no artistry and—their most redeeming feature—no royalties. But some good plays did find their way into the church halls, and the school auditoriums and were given worthy productions.

The Peterborough amateur stage began a new lease of life in 1948 when the Peterborough Little Theatre was organized. It consisted, and still consists, chiefly of teachers who secured the voluntary, experienced services of Mr. and Mrs. Robertson Davies in directing and producing. The first public performances were given in the winter of 1948 when three one-act plays were done: Shaw's Dark Lady of the Sonnets; Anatole France's The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife, and Robertson Davies' Overlaid.

In their next season, winter of 1949, Shakespeare's The Taming of the Shrew was given a notable performance, and the company went on invitation to the Royal Alexander Theatre in Toronto to play it the last night of the Dominion Drama Festival.

Last winter three one-act plays were again the bill of fare: Robertson Davies' Voice of the People, The Tinker's Wedding by J. M. Synge, and the late medieval "Play of the Weather" by John Heywood, the first time this play has been staged in Canada.

Drama Festival

Another development in the city and district amateur stage was the organization of the Peterborough Drama Festival, under the aegis of the Recreation Commission. A principal organizer and director of this was Peter McCombe. In December, 1948, the three-day festival of plays was held at the Queen Mary Auditorium, with entries from the city and outside points like Lindsay. The Saturday matinee included two children's productions.

PETERBOROUGH

The Laura Secord Candy Shops are happy to join the rest of Canada in celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of Peterborough.

Our association has been a long and interesting one, for it was in the City of Peterborough that our founder, the late Senator Frank P. O'Connor grew to manhood, and it was here that he conceived the idea and ideals that have made Laura Secord Candies famous throughout North America, and a business that ultimately grew to be the largest of its kind in the British Empire.

At this time it is interesting to recall what those ideals were. They were that Laura Secord Candies would be the freshest, and of the most superior quality that fine foods and skill could provide, and that they should be sold in an atmosphere of friendliness from a neighbourhood shop to neighbours.

Today the daintily distinctive Laura Secord Candy Shops have come to be familiar landmarks in many Canadian neighbourhoods.

Yes, we are proud of our association with the City of Peterborough and today, with many others, we say in full appreciation—

Peterborough we salute you!

Sincerely,

President.

Softball Had Beginning In City 1919

The baby of major sports in Peterborough is softball, being slightly more than 30 years old. It started as indoor baseball in the Armouries in 1919, being played in the winter months. At one time, only those in training with the Peterborough Rangers were allowed to compete but gradually other teams were permitted in, these included the old Belmonts and the YMCA.

J. E. Sullivan was one of the organizers of the first men's softball circuits here, affiliating shortly with the OASA, along with Bill Jackson and Joe Batten. A little later, Fred Scates, Norm Lewis, Dave Leether and a few more took over official jobs in the young loop.

Older Stars

Such aces in those days as Benny McLean, Cy Hopkins, Hap Harrison, Herb Wolff, Shag Shaughnessy and others saw action at the start, followed shortly by Lowe, Holyman, Jobbitt, Haskill, Head, Stuart, Darling, Moore, Tudhope, White, Doughty, Bergoine, Long, Flowers, Armstrong, McIntosh and many more. And during the early 20s, young chaps from the City Baseball League, like Calladine, McDougall, Perdue, Walsh, Smith, Vinette and others played indoor softball on the cement floor. Sam Calladine was a great believer in promoting the game among the youngsters.

They moved outdoors first to Central Park in front of the Armouries—and a girls' league was formed there soon, too, which produced such stars as Babe Vincent and Dot Mortimer. The men's league then moved over to Central School grounds and had a lengthy and successful term there, with the odd autumn series in Lakefield and in the Brock St. rink.

Change Sites

The site then changed briefly to the Bowl (though it was too small then) and to Riverside during the war, with some games for a time at the Exhibition Grounds, and finally back to the enlarged Bowl where the league flourished (on alternate nights with the girls) under floodlights, which are being paid for gradually by the two softball leagues. The OASA affiliation has been kept up all through the years, with Dave Leether—now a league life member—at one time first vice-president of the provincial body. Bert Bailey is the present local OASA member. The loop aids minor softball, too.

Through the 30s at Central School, some colorful campaigns were staged by teams managed by George Dormer, Percy Harrison, Bert Deck and a few more. Peterborough teams usually made a good showing in provincial playdowns, though not capturing a title as yet. Fine exhibitions have been served up, too, to some extra large crowds, with the admission fee the lowest of any major sport here.

A List of Greats

Many star players performed in the City Softball League in the past three decades. Some were senior baseball stars and others stuck to softball entirely. Besides those earlier players mentioned, there were such classy ballsters as the Dormer brothers Chuck Butcher, Ted Naish, Frank Shine, Lefty Sturgeon, Bill Simmons, Tom Montgomery Lorne Bateman, Chuck Dorrington, Arnold Smith, Archie Weir Charlie Kearns, Hunk Vinette Jack Playford, Jack Russelle Cliff Cadd, and a host more. And there are many fine players in action today, carrying on the local softball tradition.

LITTLE KNOWN INCIDENTS IN LOCAL HISHTORY: The Canadian poetess, Isabella Valancy Crawford, passed much of her girlhood in Peterborough, and wrote some of her best verse here. Her talent was not recognized by her fellow citizens, and she herself has mentioned that children on the streets were occasionally uncivil to her, deeming her to be a person of deficient intellect. Expansion and Development Of Peterborough Schools Under Board of Education

By G. WILSON CRAW

(The writer is deeply indebted to Mr. K. S. Wightman, Superintendent of Schools for much of the research.)

Soon after the first settlers to Scott's Plains had built their rude shelters they started work on building a school that their children might be educated. Thus the first school was built in the winter of 1826-27 on crown land where the Central School now stands on Murray St. The school was situated at the back of the present building and was located much nearer McDonnel St. than Murray St.

It was necessarily of logs, a long, low, rambling structure into which the best handiwork of the settlement went. Although plain in every detail it was comfortable. There the children diligently learned their three R's first under the Rev. Samuel Armour, the first Episcopalian minister in the hamlet.

In the one-roomed building all branches of learning were taught. A few years later as the accommodation became taxed and the settlement became more prosperous an addition was built. Then the school blossomed forth as a grammar school. One of the famous teachers of this period was the Rev. Samuel Taylor who was referred to as "Parson Taylor."

I said above that the school was built on crown land and one of the peculiarities of the time was that this remained crown land until early in the 1930's when the Board of Education discovered that it did not have a deed of the property.

In 1835 owing to crowded quarters and disrepair of the old building, the grammar school joined with the common school which were then being organized in Upper Canada's education system. The school was moved to the building of the British Methodist Church on the northeast corner of Hunter and Sheridan Sts. It occupied the upper floor after the necessary alterations were made. In 1857 the accommodation was again cramped and the staff had grown to include a headmaster, two male and three lady teachers. The mother of the late Sir Joseph Flavelle was one of the teachers.

Central School Built

Central School of today (east building) was then built on what was at that time called Court House Park. The building was completed at a cost of $16,258 and was opened in the autumn of 1860.

The existing records of the Board of Education go back to 1864 and already the new school was overcrowded. In fact down through the years until the present time Boards of Education seem to have had for the greater part of the 100 years the problem of overcrowding. It was only for a period between 1921 and 1944 that public schools appeared to be adequate for the number of children attending.

125 Pupils in One Room

A visiting committee on investigating overcrowding in Central School in 1864 discovered that there were 125 pupils enrolled in the junior room with two teachers and it was expected that there would be 180 in September. The committee's report states, "We must extricate the children from an atmosphere which must injure their health, frustrate their energies and consequently make them listless and inattentive to the best efforts of their teachers." The immediate solution of the problem appears to have been the dividing of the lecture room into two classrooms.

Dr. George Burnham was at that time chairman of the Board. Ivan O'Beirne was secretary, John King principal of the school. There were 379 pupils in the school of whom 28 were in the grammar or secondary school as it is known today. In September 1865 a house which had been used as a church by the first Baptist congregation in Peterborough and which stood south of Dublin and west of George St. was rented at $4.00 a month. It soon had 60 pupils.

It is interesting to note what was considered as normal class size in those days. A report in November 1865, states that Mrs. Flavelle now has 77 pupils but "there appears to be plenty of room and if she needs help a suitable young person can be found at $4.00 a month."

It was soon evident that a second school should be built and plans were ready in 1869, if only a suitable site could be found. Various suggestions were made,—the north end of Central School grounds, now Confederation Square and a lot on Hunter St. The final decision was to build the school alongside the existing Central School. The town council protested that there was insufficient land. The four-room building was occupied in February 1871 and in March of the same year steps were taken to secure the recognition of the Grammar School as a Collegiate Institute.

Although Ashburnham was incorporated as a village in 1857, the area across the river and north of Parkhill Road known as Auburn was annexed by the town in 1872. The Auburn School although remaining in Douro township was taken into the town system as a Union School.

The town was growing south and in 1873 the land where the present South Central School now stands was purchased from the Bradburn Estate for $600. A four-room building was built the next year at a cost of $5,797.02

Accounts Separated

In 1875 the separation of the collegiate and public school accounts made necessary a rental charge against the Collegiate for the space occupied in the Central School. The rent was $400 a year and was gradually increased to $1,100. It was not until the present Collegiate was built on McDonnel St. in 1908 that it had a building of its own.

West Ward School

A lot was purchased in 1876 at the corner of Murray and Park Sts. for the construction of a West Ward school (now the Albion Knitting Co.) The school was completed at a cost of $3,433.17 in 1878 and was the first school to have a furnace which was put in on trial only and was then regarded as an expensive item as coal cost all of $7.00 a ton.

Central School grounds was evidently becoming crowded by other things than school children. The janitor had quarters in the school and the Board had acceeded to his request, that he be allowed to erect a stable for his horse on the school property. Apparently, the horse soon had company for in April 1878 there is a motion in the minutes "that the stable be at once removed and the ground under and adjacent thereto be properly cleaned of the accumulation of filth with which it was now encumbered, and that all fowl and all animals be at once removed, also that the janitor be removed out of the building and that the rooms occupied by him be remodelled and fitted for classrooms which should accommodate at least 100 pupils."

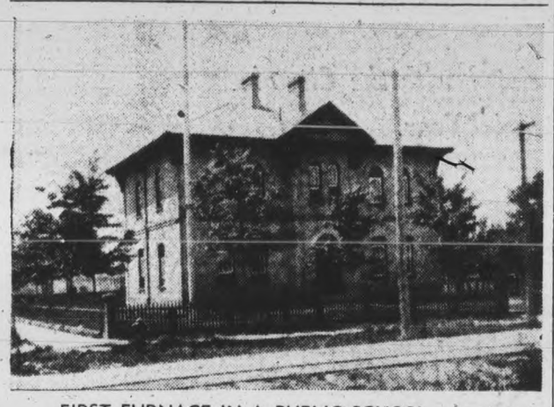
NOW AN APARTMENT BUILDING, the structure in the above picture was once George St Public School. Never owned outright by the Board of Education, it was rented by the board from June, 1896, until 1902. There were four schoolrooms in it, and it was used because of crowded conditions in Central and South Central Schools.

BUILT IN 1874 at a cost of $5,797, South Central School stayed in operation until 1921, when it was vacated. It was idle until the vocational wing was added to the Collegiate, when the motor mechanics department was put in here. Now, no rooms in the building are idle. The administration offices of the Board of Education are located in this building.



FIRST FURNACE IN A PUBLIC SCHOOL was placed in the old West Ward School (ABOVE) on a temporary basis. The furnace, now so popular, was regarded by the Board of Education in those days as an expensive luxury, because coal cost all of $7 a ton. The school, now the Albion Knitting Co., was built in 1878 at a cost of $3,433.17, and was used until 1913, when Queen Mary School was opened.

By April, 1878, the enrolment of the town schools was: Collegiate 150, Central 484, South Central 216, West Ward 167 and Auburn 84.

From 1885 on there were repeated demands for better accommodation at the Collegiate. In 1886 the Collegiate classes were moved to the larger of the Central School buildings and occupied the upper floor and one room of the middle flat. The room in the middle flat was divided into two for a library and a chemistry room. The departmental inspectors repeatedly found fault with the Collegiate accommodation and threatened that Collegiate grants would be cut off unless something was done. In May 1888 the Board was evidently alarmed by these reports and invited the Minister of Education to come and see whether these changes should be insisted on. There is no record that he accepted the invitation, but the Board did go so far as to build a gymnasium, a wooden building, north of the Central School.

By 1889 an addition was needed at South Central. It was decided to build four rooms to the north end of the school and in the meantime to rent the All Saints' Mission School. The Council was asked at the same time for money to build a four-room school in the north ward of the town. In June 1889 the contracts for these two schools were let. At the same time improvements were to be made at the Collegiate, that is the old Central School building and the cost of the three jobs was $18,000.

Fessenden Era

The year 1890 marked the appointment of Cortez Fessenden as principal of the Collegiate and the first establishment of the Nicholls' scholarships. At that time the department reported the Collegiate accommodation as amongst the worst in the province. The solution reached was to add four rooms to the smaller building of Central School at a cost of more than $7,000. The Collegiate was then moved into the west building and there it remained until 1908.

In 1892 Inspector Tilley, who had been giving some time to the inspection of the town schools, in addition to other duties failed to give satisfaction to the Board and it was decided that a full time inspector should be appointed. J. W. Garvin, headmaster of the Woodstock Public School was named and took over in 1893 at an initial salary of $1,200.

The public school attendance was then 1,401 and accommodation again at a premium so in 1895 four rooms were added to the southend of the South Central School and the addition of these rooms brought the school up to its present size. Mr. Garvin was replaced the same year by Alex Wherry of Windsor.

No Out-of-Town Games

In October 1895 the Board notified the Collegiate that while they approved of games and physical training, they disapproved very strongly of games with other schools and ordered that these should not be encouraged.

In June 1896 the Menzies property of George St. immediately north of Dublin St. was rented for a public school with a rental of $400 a year, plus taxes. Three extra teachers were engaged and the attendance reports show at the opening 114 children were in attendance. During 1895 Mr. Wherry was accidentally drowned in Little Lake and Duncan Walker was appointed inspector. His duties commenced January 1, 1897.

Plans For A Collegiate

The Board started in 1903 to work on plans for a Collegiate. However for two years the project failed to make much headway, for each time an attempt was made to get on with building, the costs were found to have increased. In 1905 the estimated cost of the Collegiate which was at first $30,000 exclusive of site had increased to $48,000. A by-law for $50,000 on being submitted to the people carried. The site then caused considerable discussion between Board of Education and Council.

It was decided to purchase the land on McDonnel St. at that time known as the Separate School grounds. An agreement was made with the Council and the Dominion Government by which the whole property was purchased for $30,000, each party paying $10,000. The Dominion Government was to get the section facing on Murray St. for an armouries, while the school board was to have that facing McDonnel St. for the Collegiate.

Tenders were called and the Board was rather shocked to find the lowest tender was $69,700. However it went back to the Council to ask for a second $50,000. The bylaw was put to the people and defeated by 143 votes, which again brought matters to a standstill.

Plans were revised and a smaller building designed. It was estimated to cost $61,000 and the Board went back to the Council to ask for $21,000 in addition to $50,000 already approved. The debentures were authorized and the contract awarded to Langford and Sheehy. On July 31, 1907 James Stevenson who had served as a member of the Board of Education for 55 years laid the corner stone.

The Kenner Era

In 1907 Mr. Fessenden asked to be relieved of the principalship of the Collegiate, but wished to continue as a teacher and H. R. H. Kenner who had for several years been a member of the staff was named principal. The formal opening was on December 27, 1908. Manual training and domestic science rooms were set up at the same time in the old Collegiate building in Central school. One of the shortcomings of the new Collegiate was lack of a gymnasium. The Board made arrangements, which was opposed by the Department of Education to use the gymnasium of the YMCA. Here the boys went for their physical training, while the girls had to go to the assembly hall in the third storey of the building.

But during all this time the Board was having worries over school accommodation. Another school was needed in the south of the town and a lot was purchased from Charles McGill between Park and George Sts. and south of Romaine St. for $4,000. King Edward School was built in 1906. It was two storeys with eight rooms.

Coming of Normal School

About the same time discussions were taking place with the Department of Education concerning Peterborough's claim for one of the new Normal schools that were being built by the province. The department wanted two acres in Central Park, which the Board had secured for the Collegiate. The Board refused and finally it was decided to build in Dixon Park on Benson Ave. The Board agreed to increase the North Ward or Queen Alexander School to 10 rooms. This was done and the rooms opened in 1907. That year Mr. Walker resigned as inspector to become head of the Normal School and Alex Mowat of Brockville was named inspector.

By 1911 King Edward School was too small and a third story was then added. In 1904 Ashburnham came into the city. The school in Ashburnham was situated on Mark St. and is now Immaculate Conception Separate School. There were 182 pupils on the roll.

By 1911 this school was overcrowded and also the West Ward School on Park St. It was therefore determined to build two new schools. In May 1912 the contract was let for Queen Mary School on Monaghan Rd. and King George on Hunter St. The city then had six public schools.

The enrolment in 1913 was 2,586 in Public Schools and 311 in the Collegiate. King Edward School was soon overcrowded and South Central was in a state of disrepair. In 1918 accommodation was secured in St. James Sunday School and in 1919 the Chamberlain property on Monaghan Rd. was purchased for an 18-room public school which was opened in September 1921 and called Prince of Wales. Classes were removed from South Central and for the next 25 years public school accommodation was adequate. Then came the Second World War, annexation of parts of North Monaghan and a great increase in the population from other points. First in 1944 May's and Confederation Schools were taken into the city system and then in 1948 the Grove School. These three added 15 rooms to the city's public schools. But the first two were crowded when they were annexed by the city. In 1946 the Board commenced plans to build an addition to Queen Mary School and this six-room addition with auditorium was opened September 1948. At the same time six rooms were added to the Confederation School and these were also ready for September 1948.

In 1943 to relieve the crowded conditions at Queen Mary School Wartime Housing built the Parkhill Road school of two rooms and these were opened in 1944. Following the war the Board purchased the school and in 1949 added another two rooms.

29 Years Secretary-Treasurer

In 1939 G. Harry Thompson who for 29 years had been part-time secretary-treasurer of the Board of Education resigned and in his place J. E. Huggins was named full time secretary-treasurer. In 1937 Mr. Mowat resigned as inspector and in his place K. S. Wightman who for 20 years had been a principal in the public schools was appointed inspector. In 1947 Mr. Wightman was named Superintendent of Schools and on Mr. Huggins resigning in 1949 he was also named secretary-treasurer.

Building of Vocational Wing

However, while the building of Prince of Wales school in 1921 looked after the public schools for a number of years, the same was not true of the Collegiate. It never did accommodate all the classes as the domestic science and manual training were in the Central School and when the Prince of Wales opened the Commercial Department was taken to the old South Central School. There was also no gymnasium. In 1919, the Board commenced to discuss a Vocation School. These Composite Schools (vocational and academic) were being built in many cities in the province. Peterborough was rapidly becoming a great industrial city. However convincing the City Council and the public as to the need of a vocational department was difficult. In 1923 the Board approved of the idea to build a combined Collegiate Institute and Technical School. Plans were commenced and the Board asked the council in October, 1925, for $386,000. The Council refused to issue the debentures without a vote of the people and the Board would not ask for a vote, claiming not more than 35 per cent. of the interested citizens were entitled to vote. The Board then revised the plans cutting out and reducing the size of the project. Early in 1937 the Board went back to the City Council asking this time for $295,000. It had also the assurance of the Department of Education that a large portion of the interest would be paid annually by the Province. The Council passed the debenture bylaw and Mayor Dr. W. T. Holloway on Dominion Day, 1927, during the celebration of the diamond jubilee of Confederation, turned the first sod. Premier G. Howard Ferguson opened the new wing in November, 1928.

It was soon found that the school was not large enough to accommodate all the shops in the vocational wing, with the result that the motor mechanics department was placed in the old South Central School and there it has remained. With the addition the school was supposed to accommodate 950 pupils but in the intervening years there have been often more than 1,000 pupils. The present enrolment is more than 1,200. During the Second World War two temporary rooms were added which looked after another 80 pupils.

With the building now crowded past capacity and greatly increased enrolments in the public schools the present board has secured a site for a second Collegiate in the south end of the city near the corner of Monaghan Road and Cameron St.

In 1943 Dr. H. R. H. Kenner resigned as principal after 50 years on the staff of the Collegiate, 35 of which he had been headmaster and 15 as head of the classics department. C. S. Browne, a member of the staff since 1914, was named principal.

IT DIDN'T PAY TO ADVERTISE, for the signless Examiner, 50 years ago. Under the signs "WALLPAPER" and "PETERBORO BOOK STORE" was the George St. entrance to newspaper office. Someone explains that the faint figures over the "wallpaper" are printers working at type cases.

Cops' Confusion

CORNWALL (CP).—Provincial Police radio officers here are getting tired of being told to answer calls in Kansas City. Besides getting their messages garbled by interference from United States police transmitters, they occasionally get clear messages from U.S. cities, telling them where to go.

Holidays At An End

HALIFAX (CP).—There's bad news for Haligonian dogs—City Council is planning to hire a dog-catcher. Police Chief Verdun Mitchell said his department is having trouble coping with stray canines, which have been biting children.

ON THIS ONCE-VACANT LOT (right foreground) now stands the Peterborough Public Library. The spire of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church may be seen in the left background.

Old Plastered House Stood On Present Site of Library

Back in February of 1936, the Examiner ran a picture of some corner in Peterborough, asking readers to identify it. Two days later, on Feb. 24, 1936, Mr. William J. Lundy wrote in to say the vacant lot shown was the site of the present Public Library.

Here is the story of the corner as Mr. Lundy offered it to the Examiner:

"There used to be a frame or plastered house at the public library corner. I think it was plastered. One house faced on George St., and two or three houses on McDonnel St. The late David Menzies lived there. This house was destroyed by fire.

"Archie Moore will remember that fire, as he was a member of the old volunteer fire brigade under the late Chief Thomas Rutherford. Doctor Bell lived where W. H. Hancock's auction mart is now situated.

"The late T. J. Stenson owned property next to Hancock's. It was torn down when the library was built. Two other old houses from those days were torn down when Detcher's service station was built; but that was only a few years ago."

The photograph could also be identified by the spire of St. Paul's Church in the background. The Rev. Dr. Torrance was minister there for many years.

Mr. Lundy went on to say:

"Confederation Park was first a cemetery. I can't remember that period; but I remember when there was a high fence around it and the agricultural fairs were held there. The old drill shed as it called, housed the vegetables, fruits, and so on, also the ladies' work. The drill shed was entirely of wood.

"To the west of it was the Murray St. Separate School. A man named McIlmoyle was head of it for some years. Among those who were prominent at the fairs at Central Park (Confederation Park) were Powie Morgan, Harry Winch, and others. I recall the high-wheeled sulkies with steel tires that were used in those days. I also remember often seeing a priest who was an enthusiastic horseman. He drove a hollow-backed gray horse which was kept at the Connors livery on George St., south of the old Green Bush Hotel, now the Grand Hotel. A brother of Martin Connors used to take care of this horse."

Mr. Lundy said that the man who took the picture didn't pick a beauty spot. "I remember the old roughcast building of three or four houses on the corner facing McDonnel St., and just across the road was William Cluxton's residence, and across on the northwest corner was the Methodist Church, and on the southwest corner was the old cemetery, afterwards the Exhibition Grounds.

"When the George St. Church was built where it now stands, the old church was turned into a music hall and opera house," Mr. Lundy concluded.

Local Council of Women Sought To Better Welfare of Community

By HAZEL PAULL

The change in woman's status in the community during the second half of the twentieth century is perhaps, one of the happiest features of the modern era. Today woman's right to share equally with men, the privileges and responsibilities of working for the betterment of the life of the community as a whole is accepted without challenge and even with enthusiasm, but this happy state of affairs is only the direct result of the achievements of far-sighted women during the past fifty years.

An organization in the Peterborough community which has done much to establish what can be achieved by women in the public life of the city is the Local Council of Women.

Since 1913, several years before women were franchised, the Local Council has undertaken and accomplished reforms, some requiring legislation, and has been directly responsible for obtaining many community services in a variety of fields.

Those holding public office in Peterborough probably first became aware of the Council's vigour and drive when in December 1913, the council made persistent representations for the appointment of a women police officer.

The minutes of the December meeting record "Mrs. Stevenson reported that Magistrate David Dumble is heartily in sympathy with the movement of having a woman police officer. Letters were read from Mr. G. A. Gillespie and Mr. William Buller. Both promised if elected mayor, they would favor appointment of a police woman".

Petitions were placed in churches the following Sunday to enlist general support and the minutes record "that men be asked to sign them."

Medical Inspections

Another of the early efforts of this new organization of women was to establish medical inspections in the public schools. During the first year the council was instrumental in securing medical inspections in the public schools, the value of mothers' meeting in the schools was discussed and other activities included assistance in forming an associated charities board and raising funds for a hospital ship.

The Local Council was busy endeavouring to get more playgrounds for the children in the spring of 1916. The Local Council and a men's committee were able to raise $150 for equipment and $125 for salaries "$275 being all this committee had."

It appears from the minutes of the February meeting in 1917 that the women were living up to the reputation of their sex as chatterboxes. The minutes record: "Moved by Mrs. R. H. Parsons and seconded by Mrs. A. Mowat that meetings be of one hour duration—3:30 to 4:30.

In September the Council had the task of distributing 600 government war-savings posters. The health committee was asked to consider plans for control of VD. Mrs. R. Harstone spoke about the franchise for women and hoped that women would use the party rather than the party use the women.

In October bakers were requested to use more whole wheat flour, and to make more brown bread. The Council strongly objected to tickets and dodgers given out at school gates for cheap shows. The Board of Education was asked to appoint a school nurse.

One proposition which probably seemed to be a smart idea in 1917, even though experience over the years since has shown it to be just a little naive, was for women to be present at police court hearings in the hope that this might discourage the attendance of morbid young boys and men. For a time executive members of the Council took turns in attending court.

A practice which did good for several years was the attendance of two appointed members in police court, at the request of the police matron, when certain cases in which women and girls were concerned were heard.

The women showed a deep appreciation of the advantages of obtaining a flourishing home market for Canadian made goods. In 1919 they sent a resolution to the National Council of Women urging increased use of Canada goods.

The Local Council urged the government to permit the manufacture of margarine during the first world war and asked for its continued manufacture after the war.

Well Babies Clinic

Dr. Elizabeth Bernie asked the Council for its support in making plans for a Well Baby Clinic. Dr. Bernie, Mrs. Robert Harstone and Miss Lancaster formed a committee to interview the Health Association.

The Local Council missed an opportunity to hear Mrs. Pankhurst in 1920. Arrangements were made for her to visit Peterborough but when the date of her visit was put forward, the Council felt it did not have sufficient time to make the necessary arrangements and the visit was concelled.

After continued efforts by the Council, arrangements were made for the Public Library reading room to be open on Sundays. For some time members of the Council gave their time and services as attendants, but in spite of their good work, this service was discontinued.

It was only after great persistence that the Council was successful in having a Humane Society established in Peterborough in 1921. Their representations to the Canadian Humane Society received the reply that the Society did not form local branches of its organization. Undaunted, the women set to and later the same year the citizens were called to a meeting to form their own Humane Society.

A resolution recorded in the minutes of the February 1942 meeting, reveals the Local Council supported the National Council's resolution expressing the desirability of inducing suitable women to enter the undertaking business.

In May, 1924, the Council was told "the manager of the Capitol Theatre appreciates the ideas of the Local Council of Women but the patrons demand certain things and he had to grant their wishes. Just as soon as the public demands different pictures, just so soon would they get them.

A regulation for which the Local Counvil has pressed ever since its organization, is a curfew bell for children. On several occasions since 1913 the Council has asked that a curfew bell be rung in the evening, after which time children be not allowed out unescorted by an adult, but this has never come into force. The curfew was introduced but it was always difficult to enforce.

During the second world war, the Council raised $50 for the Kinnette Club for milk for Britain by sale of an autographed quilt on which the names of 500 servicemen and women were embroidered.

Other fund raising projects were carried out for a number of organizations during the war.

Then, in 1944, the first war brides arrived from overseas and were welcomed by the Local Council.

Many are the projects which have been supported both financially and in active participation, during the post war years. In 1945 the Council sponsored an essay contest for students on The Duties of a Good Citizen and How to Become One. The Council made a study of legislation on wills, nationality, Sunday closing, mothers allowance and of two civic by-laws, one dealing with the new Civic Hospital and the other, the memorial community centre.

Mrs. W. H. Morton, 1946 president, represented the Council on the establishment of the juvenile and family court.

In 1947 donations were given to the Junior Horticultural Society for prizes. A scholarship was established for the Collegiate head girl to equal one already given to the head boy.

The Council continues its work today as actively and enthusiastically as in the years when the struggle for serious recognition of women in an organized group was still to be won.

First president was Mrs. J. C. Davidson, Mrs. Duncan Walker was treasurer and other officers elected at the first meeting on February 21, 1913 were Mrs. W. J. Scott, Mrs. R. Denne, Miss Weir and Miss McRae. On April 2 the same year, 16 societies wanted to affiliate to the council.

They were The Daughters of the Empire, Ladies' Aid of St. George's Church, Chancel Guild of St. John's Church, YWCA, Women Teachers' Association, Ladies' Aid of Murray St. Baptist Church, Girls Auxiliary of St. John's Church, Young Ladies Mission Circle of Charlotte St. Methodist Church, Women's Mission Circle of Murray St. Baptist Church, Ladies' Aid of Charlotte St. Methodist Church, South End Reading Circle, North End Reading Circle, Kings' Daughters, Women's Art Association and Nicholls Hospital Alumni.

LITTLE KNOWN INCIDENTS IN LOCAL HISTORY: During its earliest period of settlement the city was known as Scott's Plains, after Adam Scott, the first settler. In 1827 a decision, to which Scott was not a party, was taken to change the name to Peterborough, in compliment to the Hon. Peter Robinson. Scott's despair is depicted above. Pioneers Together and

T. J. CAVANAGH

In 1934 T. J. Cavanagh appointed what was then McBride and Franks local Frigidaire Dealer. After 2 years business grew to such an extent that his new Frigidaire Store was opened across the street to Peterborough Shoppers. In the Electric Home Refrigerator Field, he was a pioneer with a pioneering product.

At the end of World War II, business grew so rapidly, Mr. Cavanagh was forced to build his own store at 270 Charlotte St. This store is one of the most modern Appliance Stores in the City measuring 139' deep and 44' wide, where for the past four years he has been introducing and selling Frigidaire Products to Peterborough shoppers.

Frigidaire and Mr. Cavanagh have been together since 1934, that's why you can be certain of Satisfaction, Service and Quality at Cavanagh's Frigidaire Appliance Store.

It's a far cry from those early days until now. The first Frigidaires this company installed came in three packages. The refrigerating compartment was placed in the kitchen with condenser and motor installed in the basement.

But today, even as then, Frigidaire still leads the world in user acceptance of its refrigerators. Never satisfied to "keep pace" Frigidaire has insisted upon, and maintained complete leadership in its field. Too, in the past few years Ranges, Automatic Washers, Automatic Clothes Dryers, Ironers and single unit Air Conditioners have been added to the famous family name of Frigidaire. If it's a Frigidaire product, you will find it at Cavanagh's. If it bears the name "Frigidaire" it is made by General Motors.

LANDMARKS AND DESCENDANTS of the original Robinson immigrants in the Township of Douro are difficult to locate these days. Original cabin sites have all but disappeared except for slight depressions in the fields and unkempt hedges of lilac bushes and patches of sweetbriar. In the CENTRE, the best preserved dwelling is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O'Connor, just east of the St. Joseph's Church, Douro; it has been added to and electrified and is reputed by the present owners to be about a century old. Douro's Grand Old Man, Lewis Sullivan, LEFT, is 90 years old. He is shown seated on the sunny side of his cabin on Concession 3 under an overhanging black birch oxbow to which his grandfather harnessed the "cattle" that broke the land. Mr. Sullivan drove oxen himself "as a bit of a bhoy" and admired their pulling power when required to snake 60-foot elm "sticks" from swamps to new barn sites. For more than 40 years he was the community's offcial fiddler and took over the playing of music for gatherings from an Irish piper who used to play his pipes along the sideroads on warm summer evenings. A granddaughter of the Irish immigrant McCarthys, Mrs. Johanna Maloney, age 95, is shown at RIGHT. She lived a full lifetime in the Douro district and then moved a few years ago to the River Road in Otonabee to live with a daughter near Cold Springs. Although confined to her bed for two months during the past winter, she is up and about again and her alert memory recalls life in the district after the clearings were made.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

FOR 400 YEARS INDIAN TRIBES FOUGHT OVER THE KAWARTHAS

First White Settlers Started in 1818 To Penetrate North of Rice Lake Government Then Bought Indian Lands

By BOB HATTON.

Peterborough in the Kawarthas in name and fact represents in sharp focus the whole history of Canada — a European culture thrust into the midst of a primitive wilderness.

In the Peterborough district the two worlds still exist side by side. Rich farm lands yield bountiful harvests to farmers named Kennedy, Thompson, Houlihan, McIntyre, and LaVasseur. Men with the same names trap muskrats, guide tourists, cut lumber, and in many cases still live a pioneer life.

As happened in so many other parts of Canada, settlers saw a well-watered area supporting a giant growth of timber and decided the earth under the carpet of leaves would make a good farm. They burned the land clear, but before they went very far north of Peterborough, they ran into the Laurentian Shield and rock.

Except in small pockets of soil between the rocks, farming was out of the question. For many years the district had supported Indian trappers and hunters and the white men saw no reason why it would not give them a livelihood.

On Good Canoe Route

Indians had been there since before 1000 A.D., the days of the Mound-builders. The Kawartha district was on the best canoe route from the upper to the lower lakes.

In the 13th century the Iroquois began their marauding sorties against the more primitive Algonquins. Fighting spattered blood through the wilderness for the next four centuries.

The Iroquois were divided into two main groups: The Hurons who settled south-western Ontario and the Five Nations Irojuois who had their main settlements between the Hudson and St. Lawrence Rivers.

No sooner had they pushed the Algonquins out when two groups began to squabble between themselves over the food, skins, furs, bark and shells of the Kawartha district.

As soon as the ice on lakes and rivers cleared each spring Mohawk hunting parties foraged north across the St. Lawrence and up the Kawarthas trying to drive the Hurons back against Georgian Bay.

Secured Firearms

After 1600, white man's rifles made the fighting bloodier. The French armed the Hurons; the Dutch and English supplied the Mohawks. Each was using the Indians to try to capture a monopoly of the fur trade.

Into the bitter, savage Indian warfare, Samuel de Champlain blundered. By aiding the Hurons he made sure the French and the Iroquois would be at each other's throats through years of uncontrolled fighting.

Champlain, following the advice of the Hurons, travelled the well-used inland lake route to Georgian Bay and thereby earned for himself the honor of being the first white man to see and cross through the Kawarthas.

Champlain was also the first publicity agent for the district. in notes accompanying a map he made in 1632. Champlain wrote about the Kawarthas:

"This river is very beautiful, and passes through a number of beautiful lakes and river - meadows with which it is bordered; many islands of varying dimensions, abounding in dee and other wild animals, many good fishing spots full of excellent fish, and a great deal of very good cleared land abandoned by the Indians on account of the wars. The river empties into Lake St. Louis (the French name of Lake Ontario), and many tribes go to these regions for their winter supply . . ."

The friendship of the French did not do the Hurons much good. Between 1640 and 1650 the Iroquois came up the Kawartha waterway in a series of devastating raids which exterminated most of the Hurons and drove the remainder north of Lake Huron.

The French fur traders themselves were compelled to cross to the Great Northwest (now the States of Michigan and Wisconsin) by way of the Ottawa and Mattawa Rivers, Lake Nipissing, and the French River to Georgian Bay and on.

It is interesting to speculate how different the story of Peterborough might have been if Champlain and later French leaders had either befriended the Iroquois or defeated them. Possibly the city might have been founded two centuries earlier as a French trading post.

As it was, the Iroquois stayed for some time and most of the relics uncovered in the Kawarthas in recent years were left by them.

Mississagas Moved In

But before long it was the Iroquois' turn to be pushed out by the Mississagas helped by the French in the 1740s. However, in 1784 the British authorities made a treaty with the Mississagas by which the tribe gave up to the Crown all the land along Lake Ontario from Toronto to Brockville as far north as the Rideau Lakes, Rice Lake, Scugog Lake, and Lake Simcoe.

The government then brought the remains of the Five Nations of the Iroquois who had fought with them against the French in the American Revolutionary Wars to settle on reservations along the Bay of Quinte and the Grand River.

Indians were not the only newcomers to the district. Even before the end of the American Revolution the Loyalist movement began, and white men from the newly-forming United States came up the St. Lawrence and across Lake Ontario to settle in Durham and Norhumberland Counties. Other whites, traders and sctlers drifted into the Port Hope-Cobourg area and inland from there.

Peter Smith started a trading post at the mouth of a stream, later called Smith's Creek, near the Indian camp of Cochingomink. Before 1800 a small settlement of houses, a store, saw and grist mills grew up. The settlement later acquired the name of Port Hope.

A few miles east in 1798 Eliud Nickerson built a crude log cabin and so started Cobourg. Within the year, four others, including Zacheus Burnham, joined him and soon the Cobourg-Port Hope rivalry began.

A trader by the name of Herkimer bought out Smith's post and in 1793 established another trading post on Rice Lake near the mouth of the Otonabee. He was seeking trade with the many Mississagas who still roamed the area then called the Newcastle district.

In 1818 because white settlers were already penetrating the forests north of Rice Lake, the government signed another treaty with the Mississagas in a meeting at Smith's Creek.

As in every treaty North American Indians signed, they lost a good deal. This time they were compelled to sign away to the crown the present counties of Peterborough and Victoria with some surrounding townships, in return for an annual grant of approximately $3,500 amounting at that time to $9 or $10 for each Indian man, woman and child.

The government also promised to set aside some reservations for the Indians, but many refused to live on the reserves and moved north.

Newcastle District

It was in 1802 the Newcastle district was formed containing Durham and Northumberland counties. In 1818 the uncharted Kawarthas were added.

The government gave Honorable Zachéus Burnham of Cobourg and Charles Hayes the survey contract for this new territory. These men were paid, not in money, but in land, 4½ per cent of the land surveyed. Of this they gave one-half per cent to the deputy-surveyers, the men who actually did the work.

Burnham hired two men to do the first work. Richard Birdsall surveyed the eastern townships between 1818 and 1825. John Huston laid out Cavan, Emily, Monaghan, Ennismore, Harvey, Smith and Verulam before 1831.

Later John Smith surveyed the rear townships such as Fenelon, Burleigh, Methuen and part of Harvey. The average township, after deducting road allowances, had about 60,000 acres, of which about 18,000 were clergy and crown reserves.

The concessions were laid out one and a quarter miles or 100 chains apart fronting on road allowances of 60 ft. Every fifth lot line was also a road allowance of 60 feet near the front and 40 feet near the rear of the township.

Standard sized town plots of one mile square were left in each township, usually on its water frontage. Each townplot was subdivided into central lots of one acre each and outside park lots of nine acres each.

The townships varied in size from 12 to 18 concessions, each with 20 to 40 lots. Much confusion and many law-suits resulted in later years from inefficient surveying. A 100-acre lot could vary as much as 30 acres.

Cavan township, one of the first to be surveyed was named after an Irish county. Emily township was named for the sister of the Duke of Richmond, Governor of Canada 1817-1819.

For some years Ennismore was known as the Gore of Emily because of its triangular shape between Chemong, Pigeon and Buckhorn Lakes. It was considered too small for a township and not surveyed. But in 1825 a hurry-up survey was made to make room for the influx of Irish settlers and named in 1827 after Viscount Ennismore.

Smith township got its name for Sir David Smith, Surveyor-General of Upper Canada. Otonabee was named after the river it bordered. On the other side of the river, North Monaghan like South Monaghan was named for an Irish county.

Most of the other townships took their names from personages connected with the government of the time.

Although some few settlers straggled into the Newcastle district as early as 1790, it was not until 1815 any number were were attracted to it. Before 1818, settlers had to get location tickets for land from the Surveyor-General's office in York. To overcome this awkward method, District Land Boards were set up in 1819.

The Newcastle Board met weekly in Cobourg and consisted of Colonel Rogers, Elias Jones, Zacheus Burnham, Walter Boswell, Reverend John Macaulay and Charles Fothergill of Smith's Creek and others.

By swearing allegiance and convincing the Board of his real intention to settle, a man could get a location ticket which entitled him to a prescribed lot.

Many Large Grants

The district had particularly large number of giant grants of 2,000 to 4,000 acres given to persons with influence in the government.

But most grants were 50 or 100 acres to humble immigrants. In order to get a title to the land they had to pay a patent fee of from £4.9s to £12. To these people, who rarely saw any cash this was an enormous amount. Often settlers didn't get their land patents for many years and some never got them.

In the period after the Napoleonic wars, when industrial changes, agricultural improvements and inflation caused much hardships in the British Isle, thousands of the middle class and peasants decided to move out and try their luck in Canada.

Their coming paved the way for land speculators like Charles Fothergill, who was granted a 3,000 acre slice of land near Smith's Creek and turned acquisitive eyes north to Rice Lake and beyond.

In 1817 he was granted 1,200 acres in the Gore's Landing-Harwood district. He then worked hard at getting settlers to come and buy his land in small lots.

In such schemes as this and in many other ways, settlers began to come into the district. Their coming put pressure on the government to speed the job of surveying before too many became established.

Set Aside as Town

In 1818 a surveyor, Samuel Wilmot, working with Birdsall recommended to the Surveyor-General that the land now the site of Peterborough "a beautiful elevated situation for a village," be set aside as a town plot.

Fothergill got wind of this proposal and petitioned for mill site in the area. He was given a 99-year lease for a mill site on 10 acres. In 1829 he was forced to give up his lease after a better mill had been built by the government.

To build his mill he hired Adam Scott, a 22-year-old Scot from the United States. Because Fothergill was slow in providing money, Scott did not start his work until the spring of 1820. He first built himself a shack on the west bank of the river near what is now the foot of King St.

Before the end of the year, his daughter Jeannette was born, the first white girl born in Peterborough.

Scott, a giant of a man and immensely strong, decided the Otonabee would be too much to handle and instead dammed up Jackson's Park Creek where it now crosses King St. He conducted the water in a flume down the steep bank to the Otonabee near his house.

Here he built a crude mill for cutting logs and grinding grain. Neither job was done well in the mill. It did not have the power to handle big logs and it closed up during the winter freeze up and sometimes in the summer when the creek water became very low.

Despite repeated trouble with Fothergill, Scott continued to operate the mill until 1827. Two years earlier he also began distilling whisky in an attempt to get a little more money for his growing family.

The township of Otonabee was dished out in large blocks of land to surveyors, ex-officers, government officials and speculators. Sprinkled about between these large tracts were smaller farms of 50 and 100/acres.

Because the larger tracts were not settled, small farmers found themselves lost in isolated pockets farther than usual from neighbors and settlements.

From its very beginning Douro was Irish. The first to settle in the township were the families of Thomas Stewart and Robert Reid who came form Antrim, northern Ireland. They sailed from their home in 1822.

Reid was given 2,000 acres and Stewart, who was his brother-in-law, 1,200 acres, on condition they actually settle the land. They built their houses a few miles north of Scott's mill on the east bank of the Otonabee. Although they had an easier time than most of the settlers in the district, the Stewarts and the Reids found it hard to cope with the primitive conditions and the isolation.

The Stewarts were ready to quit and move to a more settled ara near Cobourg, when they heard that Peter Robinson was on the way with a large number of Irish immigrants to settle the land.

Perhaps 1,000 Settlers

All the district north of Rice Lake had, according to two estimates, a population of between 500 and 1,000. But they were spread so thinly through the forests there might just as well have been only one or two families there. There were no markets, roads, no adequate mills and almost a complete lack of trade and capital needed to hasten the growth of a new region.

But after 1825, the district boomed. The reason was Robinson's 2,000 immigrants.

Robinson was a handsome and genial Canadian of 37 who in 1822 was a member of the Upper Canada Legislative Assembly as well as a landowner, and trader at York. On a trip to England in 1822 he was offered the job of selecting and taking to Canada a trial group of 500 to 600 paupers from Munster.

This part of Ireland was the most poverty-ridden area of a country scourged by political chaos following Union with Britain and social and economic disintegration caused by the industrial and agricultural revolution which jumped ahead after the Napoleonic Wars.

Small landowners were being dispossessed by gentry consolidating large estates. Added to the misery of the lower classes was the famine and plague in 1817.

Robinson settled them along the Ottawa River on the Upper Canada side near Bytown (Ottawa) on 100 acre lots.

There was much opposition to state aid of pauper emigrants, but the Colonial Office managed to get an allowance of £30,000 in 1825 to send 1,500 more Irish destitute immigrants to Upper Canada. However, Robinson was a jump ahead of them and six months before the money was granted he was in Ireland to start recruiting his immigrants.

The inducement was free passage to Canada and "every male emigrant above the age of 18 and under 45 will receive a location ticket for 70 acres of land; the utensil necessary for a new settler will be furnished them at the public expense, and they will receive provisions for one year after taking possession of their lands."

More than 50,000 asked to go. Robinson took nearly all his emigrants from the estates of about eight landlords in northern Cork county. When Parliament voted to send over 1,500, Robinson had already pledged himself to take 300 families totalling 2,024 persons.

Nine transports sailed from Cork between May 10 and 25, 1825, jammed with 385 men, 326 women, 727 boys under 21 years, and 587 girls under 21.

The crossing was a hard one for them all. The Navy board who supplied the ships charged an exorbitant 7,10s. a person, twice the normal price for an immigrant. All the time on the boat and for 18 months the Government supplied them with rations. The Irish got salt pork and ship-biscuit instead of the potatoes, stirabout and herrings they were used to.

There was little sickness and death on the ships mostly because of the clothing, blankets and medical care they received. Fifteen died and there were 15 born during the crossing.

Thirteen stayed and settled at Quebec and Montreal and another 10 deserted, but 15 willing replacements were found. From Montreal they sailed up the river to Kingston in 35-foot bateaux rowed by halfbreed oarsmen.

Arrival at Kingston

At Kingston where preparation was supposed to have been made for their arrival, a number of army tents put up on marshy flats greeted them.

At this point Robinson fell down rather badly. After seeing his charges off at Cork he went to London and enjoyed himself for several weeks.

Finally he sailed for New York and then travelled overland to Niagara. In August he arrived at Cobourg and went inland to look at the tract where he was leading his flock. He seemed quite pleased with what he found, but made no preparations for the arrival of the immigrants. At length he got to Kingston.

In the meantime the immigrants had suffered epidemics of the ague, dysentery and malaria from their life in the swamp.

But immediately Robinson loaded the first 500 on a steamer and they landed the next day at Cobourg, then a village of 100. The steamer made weekly trips to bring the other Irish settlers from LITTLE KNOWN INCIDENTS IN LOCAL HISTORY—Samuel de Champlain, on one of his many exploratory journeys, passed near to the present site of Peterborough, and may even have passed through it. Any suggestion that he consciously avoided Peterborough is rejected, as it might have a bad influence on later tourists. In the drawing above he is seen tossing a coin to decide his course. All attempts to recover this coin for exhibition during the present year have been unsuccessful. (Drawn by George Cobb, Examiner Staff).

CANADA'S FIRST TREATISE ON MUSIC WORK OF REV. MARK BURNHAM

Thomas Choate Established Singing School in Forties Carried On For 60 Years

By RICHARD F. CHOATE

Earliest stirrings of the artistic impulses in the Peterborough district derived immediate impetus largely through the social nexus with "The Front," as the Lake Ontario littoral was known at the time.

The development was of a piece with the trends in economic life. It could scarcely have been otherwise, since it was through this gateway of the old schooner days that newcomers from afar poured northward to cultivate farms, establish businesses and build homes on the new frontier.

It is to frontiers that we must look for records of growth. And, as is usual in such situations everywhere, the sub-marginal land of the Trent watershed, north of the Kawartha, was a determining factor economically. Since the farming of rocks covered with a shallow glacial deposit could be, and was, only an essay in futility, margins of cultivation could not shift still further north. Hence the Peterborough area with its richer lands, its waterpower and other natural resources, remained in a sense a frontier on which intensive growth took place and is still taking place.

Help From The Front

Although the earlier political affairs were subject to more or less remote control, not always of the happiest type, leadership and direction of social and economic organization was given in considerable measure by people who had lived at "The Front" and were familiar with Upper Canada ways. Some of these were of the district's second generation, others had lived and worked there for some time after their arival to make homes in Canada.

Thence came Adam Scott, who for some time had occupied the house of his friend, Jacob Choate, the present writer's great-grandfather, near Smith's Creek (now Port Hope) before moving to Peterborough to build there the first mill and house. Jacob Choate had been one of the signers, with Charles Fothergill, of the original petition to make Port Hope a port of entry.

Scott Family Only Residents

In the spring of 1825, the only residents at the future Peterborough townsite were the Scott family and a workman or two who assisted Mr. Scott. Settlers in adjoining townships were few—in fact, it is estimated that not more than 500 lived north of Rice Lake.

The events that historians ordinarily speak of doubtless influenced the lives of all those who established themselves in the later Peterborough County communities. But the staff of human life can be construed only inadequately in such chronological records. One may well sympathize with what is said by the late Alfred North Whitehead in his last work. Recalling his boyhood days in England, he remarks: "The generalized history of an epoch sadly misrepresents the real individual feelings of the quiet people in the back streets and in the country towns. For instance, the Victorian epoch in England as seen from our present standpoint, entirely misrepresents my memories of the tone of thought of quiet, moderately prosperous people at a time round about the year 1870." The real fabric of life, he observes, "consists of feelings arising from reactions between small definite groups of persons." His statement is well worth pondering in this time of far-flung Welfare States. In the earlier days the essentials of living were clearly defined. There was little in the way of superfluities or of what Veblen has called "conspicuous waste." Though travel was slow, as judged by our notions, there was nevertheless close integration of the lives of people at the Front and those of the growing Peterborough. Because of common necessity there was an ever-present feeling of mutual dependence. Two-way trade with most centres was maintained through the then active ports such as Cobourg and Port Hope.

First Hand Contacts

Thus it was that much of the musical activity took shape in the reactions among "relatively small definite groups of persons." One is moved to believe, therefore, that no generalized history of the music of the period in the Midland district could represent truly the nature of the cultural links among such quiet-living groups or individuals. For this reason, I prefer to give attention to recollections or records of first-hand contacts with the superbly human actors in the real-life drama of the time.

Out of such contacts has grown my picture of musical events which date back to Napoleonic days. My grandfather, Thomas Choate (with whom I was associated through youth at the family home in Warsaw), was born in Hamilton township, between Port Hope and Cobourg, in 1809 (six years before Waterloo). Supplementing my recollections of events that were re-lived in his conversation are music books, instruments and related documents passed along by those who used them in the time of musical beginnings.

In such circumstances grew vicariously my acquaintance with the Reverend Mark Burnham—the actual and not merely the legendary Mark Burnham, Church of England clergyman whose heart (and purse) were "open houses" to those of all creeds in need of kindly administrations; and who without fuss, donated church and school buildings in the same broad spirit of neighborly good-will that he might have distributed Christmas greetings. For so manifold were the good works of the creator of St. Luke's Church in Ashburnham, and St. Mark's in Otonabee—after he had given the primary impetus to the organization of St. Thomas, Ont., congregation—that Mark Burnham, the musician, was an all but "forgotten man."

Most Remarkable

Surely it is not an idle undertaking to restore to the Reverend Mark Burnham the Musical Plus that rightfully belonged to him, over and above the other high qualities that made him one of the most remarkable men of his time.

For the native son of Cobourg who had become a Master of Arts graduate of Queens' College, Oxford, and had been ordained to the Church of England priesthood while he was still in England, was the compiler of various books of music of wide usefulness. Among these works was the "Colonial Harmonist," described on the title page as a compilation (and arrangement) of "the most approved tunes, anthems and chants, with a figured bass for the organ and pianoforte, designed for all denominations of Christians."

It was published in 1832, in Port Hope, Upper Canada, by the compiler. In his "advertisements," Mark Burnham "assures the public that he has not undertaken the work from any anxious wish, or vain desire of appearing as an author; but he has been chiefly impelled by the hope of benefitting the rising generation, by furnishing them with some assistance in the art of correctly singing Sacred Music."

In words that are of historic significance, it is added: "No musical treatise has hitherto been published in this Colony."

Of historic interest, too, are the hymn tunes composed by Mark Burnham, which are included with the works of European and American authors. Among these are "Cobourg"; Resurrection"; "Hermitage"; "Nelson"; "Dunbarton"; and "Goffstown" (probably named after the New Hampshire town whence came Dr. John Gilchrist, who later went from Port Hope to establish the first mill of Keene, and who won the parliamentary seat for Newcastle district in a spirited election contest. Dunbarton, N.H. was the birthplace of Mark Burnham's father, the Hon. Zaccheus Burnham, who was one of the foremost figures in Upper Canada's political, social and business life.

In the Introduction to the "Colonial Harmonist" are set forth tersely and clearly rudiments of musical theory and admirable suggestions for "taking breath at proper places" which if followed today might well avert a great deal of agonizing self-torture of the gullet or tonsils by our soap opera divas (and others).

"Expression," the author remarks, "is the art of so understanding and realizing the subject of the words we are singing, as to make the subject our own." The likeness of music to poetry or to prayer is emphasized.

Classical Selections

Another compilation of Mark Burnham which was widely used was "The Seraph," containing selections from the classical composers. It was printed in 1867 in Toronto at "The Guardian Steam Printing Establishment," publishers of The Christian Guardian, Methodist Church organ, of which a later editor was the distinguished Rev. Dr. E. H. Dewart, who was born at Warsaw and in his youth was engaged at the mills of Thomas Choate. His son, the nimble-witted Hartley Dewart, was Ontario Liberal leader, and Alderman John A. Dewart, of Peterborough, is a grand-nephew.

But to bring into proper perspective the events marking the exfoliation at Peterborough of the earlier musical growth, we shall have to look to "The Front" and far beyond. For neighbors at Cobourg were Hon. Zaccheus Burnham, whose wife was Betsey Choate, and Jacob Choate, son of Jacob and Hannah (Burnham) Choate, and husband of Fanny Marshall Burnham. Mark Burnham and Thomas Choate were sons, respectively. Both families were from New Hampshire where their forebears had intermarried for many years. Before removal to America the Choate family had lived in Essex County, England, where their names appear on the parish registers of Elizabethan days, though the genealogy is traceable much further. (vide "The Choates in America," by Dr. E. O. Jameson). Of the same New England family were Rufus Choate and Joseph H. Choate, two of the most distinguished members of the American bar, the latter having been United States Ambassador at the Court of St. James in the early days of the First Great War.

Thomas Choate, who had gained his early experience as a mill operator and millwright with his father at Port Hope, supplemented his skill by some years' work at Warsaw and Batavia, New York, and while in the United States carried forward his musical studies. Returning to Canada he was associated with Hon. Zaccheus Burnham in completing the building of the first mill at Warsaw in 1836. In 1842, he was appointed as first postmaster, giving the village its name in the same year that Chicago was founded. He conducted also a well-stocked general store for which goods were purchased from such old Montreal firms as the Greenshields. Later he operated at Warsaw four mills—flour, lumber, carding and furniture factory. The Elizabethan cast of life in the smaller communities in those days before centralization of industry is hard to comprehend today. Every branch of the smaller trade had its own representative.

In this happy community Thomas Choate was the guide, philosopher and friend of all hands in Dummer and of many in the adjoining Douro. His business books, still intact, tell of the long credits (some of them in perpetuity) accorded to newcomers. His business went on thus for decades and was continued in the same mode of friendly community relationships after it was taken over by my father, the late Arthur F. Choate, in 1889.

Such then were the business and social mores of the community when Thomas Choate, soon after his arrival in 1836, established the singing school which he carried on some sixty years without thought of remuneration, until just before his death at the age of 91. His methods in the instruction of beginners were sound and direct. There were scales and exercises, plenty of them, and no shirking. A printed card of vest pocket size, of Fah, Sol, Law patterns was distributed to be carried about by individual pupils for daily practice. Then followed popular rounds, folk songs and hymn tunes.

Only Tuning Fork Used

No instrument was used then save the simple tuning fork. A false note brought a sharp thud of a sensitive and insistent baton and a fresh start. In an amazingly short time the young singers became rapid and accurate sight readers with a keen sense of pitch and of rhythm. Vocal music of the time was published in four-line form, tenor, alto, treble, bass—some of the earlier books in wooden covers employing the old "buckwheat" notes. Then followed exercises in harmonization, with explanations of theory. And so on to the more important works of Bach, Beethoven, Handel, Haydn, Mozart.

The primary impetus given to music by "the old Choate Choir" travels on in widening circles in second and third generations. The later Mr. Choate's broad interests were both sacred and secular and he gave leadership, though an Anglican himself, to choirs of all denominations.

TWO PROMINENT MEN in Upper Canada in the early days were Hon. Zaccheus Burnham, RIGHT, of Cobourg, and his son, Rev. Mark Burnham, LEFT. Rev. Mark Burnham came to Ashburnham from St. Thomas and for two years was acting rector of St. John's Church. He gave the land on which St. Luke's Church in Ashburnham is situated and he was the great benefactor of St. Mark's, Warsaw, and St. Mark's in Otonabee. His book, the Colonial Harmonist, was the first treatise on music published in Canada. Hon. Zaccheus Burnham was born in Dunbarton, N.H., and came to Canada as a United Empire Loyalist. He was a foremost figure in political, social and business life of Upper Canada. His original home stands today on No. 2 Highway, one mile west of Cobourg.

from the early forties was an ever-changing but continuous organization. Today grandchildren of the original singers are carrying on with distinction in musical life afar. Of the hundreds who passed through the singing schools most could take their parts creditably "in quires and places where they sing" near or far. Many thus trained served long and well in Peterborough choirs and choruses, among them the "Lumsden girls," Annie (Mrs. A. S. Maguire); Libbie (Mrs. Eckworth), and Miss Hettie, who were members of the George Street church choir many years.

A Chicago Incident

Thomas George Choate, former reeve of Dummer, an accomplished violinist, was fond of recounting how in his later years when he was operating on the Chicago Board of Trade, he chanced to hear one of his fellow operators humming the old tune, "Dennis" (Blest be the Tie that Binds). Immediately he supplied a bass. A few moments later the humming had become a four-part affair, in crescendo. Quickly the singers were surrounded by an applauding crowd. Daily thereafter, the quartet met, the repertoire widened and Peterborough music took a strange part in the easing of Grain Pit rigors in the roaring days of "Old Hutch."

Instruments — melodeons, organs, pianos, strings, wood-winds and brass—gradually entered the Warsaw picture. Thomas Choate, an Anglican, had given leadership to choirs of all denominations and not infrequently played with them his 'cello. One winter's evening the singers driving in sleighs to a church festival in North Dummer were delayed by the heavy drifts. The audience was waiting and on the party's arrival, the chairman announced: "Here comes Boss Choate and his ungodly big fiddle. The proceedings will begin."

The "English Line" running to North Dummer was heavily populated with Paynes: the "Scotch Line" running south, with Kidds; while in the adjoining Douro were the Irish. Both the Kidds and the Paynes produced many accomplished vocalists within the ranks of the old choir. Among them were Walter John Kidd and his sisters, Mary and Belle. They were in demand for lighter and more entertaining features. A favorite quartette number of the eighties and nineties was "Pro Phundo Basso" in which the part singers engaged humorously in a hard-fought battle. A "comic song" hit of the time was "Miss Fogarty's Christmas Cake." Thus, if memory serves well:

"There were carraway seeds in abundance,
Citron and cinnamon, too;
There were plums and prunes and cherries,
And the crust it was nailed on with glue.
Sure 'twould kill a man twice
For t'ate but one slice
Of Miss Fogarty's Christmas cake."

On the coming of the Reverend Mark Burnham to act as rector of St. John's Church, he carried on the services at St. Mark's in Warsaw. Old Cobourg friendships were renewed on his visits to Warsaw and Thomas Choate latterly had no more delightful memories than those of the gatherings before the fireplace where singing continued most of the night.

Choate Home An Open House

In the Warsaw home, music was ever present, and there was always open house for musicians from a distance. From Peterborough not infrequently sleigh or carriage loads would arrive unannounced. Choruses, or instrumental quartets or trios were thrown together without delay. Among the always welcome visitors were Templeton Brown, Peterborough jeweler, 'cellist, and Rev. G. I. Everest, Lakefield rector, flautist, both players of taste and skill.

Not without a poignant tinge, is the writer's memory of the final gathering of the old choir under the leadership of Thomas Choate, a few years before his death in 1900. He was then nearing ninety. As usual at the annual gatherings the singers and instrumentalists of earlier years came from far and near, some even from Toronto. Some had worked all night that they might not miss the occasion to sing all night. Never had the baton of the octogenarian leader swung with greater zest and precision. All through the night the well-worn music boxes yielded their treasures, sacred and secular.

Then like a "great Amen," as the morning light was breaking, arose Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus." Many times since I have heard it done more massively in the largest churches and halls but never have I heard it better done. A happy finale and fitting benediction to sixty happy years of song.

What has been said relates mainly to the interactions among relatively small groups which formed the real stuff of musical life in the earliest Peterborough days. Music-making was thinly diffused throughout the Midland district in those days of sparse settlement. As a group took form here or there the unifying process was largely spontaneous and unstudied—being in the nature of an aglomeration around a nucleus.

Centred In Church Choirs

In the town of Peterborough the activities of the organized church choirs provided for many years the main, indeed, almost the only incentive for grouping. In the secular field, glee clubs and similar small-scale organizations waxed and waned. Band leadership at times was sometimes more than merely competent, but not always so. Chamber music of good quality would have been possible with the individual players then available but it is not surprising that it remained unorganized, as even in Toronto the first professional string quartette of the kind was that founded by the late Mrs. Dreschler Adamson and her daughter, Miss Lina Adamson, both of whom were teachers at the Peterborough Conservatory. The others were Miss Lena Hayes (viola) and Henry Saunders ('cello).

Orchestras and choruses could be organized in Peterborough for specific occasions but of continuing effort there was little. Among the vocalists who could give a good account of themselves at concerts was Tom Dunn, baritone.

Indeed, up to the nineties music was largely indiyidualistic, or atomistic. In the fin de siecle decade matters began to turn toward cohesion and organization. In the old Opera House, singers and entertainers of renown were heard. Among the favorites were Harold Jarvis, tenor, of superb voice and fine upstanding appearance; and Paul Hahn, 'cellist. Popular entertainers or elocutionists included Jessie Alexander, Owen Smily, Pauline Johnston and Glenville Kleiser. Dan Godfrey's magnificent band played in the old Drill Shed.

In Boer War days, about the turn of the century, patriotic effort manifested itself in concerts which packed the Opera House. The late Walter Stocker (one-time Alderman, to whom the city owes so much for its horticultural beautification) was at his resonant best in the "Absent Minded Beggar," and "Soldiers of the Queen." Never has music had a more enthusiastic friend in Peterborough than Walter Stocker, who year after year was always at hand to organize special night trains to Toronto when outstanding musical events were toward.

Another whose interest never flagged was G. W. Mulligan, who gave preliminary training to the Peterborough contingent of one hundred singers who joined the Grand Chorus of eight hundred in front of the City Hall, Toronto, on the occasion of the visit of HRH the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, later King George V and Queen Mary. F. H. Torrington, organist and choirmaster of the Metropolitan Church, Toronto, who conducted the ensemble, came to Peterborough, for a final review.

About 1901, the CGE Glee Club was formed. Finch Miller for many years was bandmaster of the 57th. Among the organists in the decades before and after the turn of the century were Dr. Davies and Prof. F. H. Seward at St. John's, George Schneider at George Street, and John Crane at St. Paul's. Later came R. J. Devey at St. John's; John Renwick at George Street; and Miss Mabel Clarry, long at Charlotte Street Methodist (now Trinity United.) In the church choirs were capable women soloists, so many, indeed, as to preclude individual mention. In Lakefield, Miss Myrtle Hendren had revealed unusual gifts. Among the male musicians in demand at the time were Fred Skitch, H. W. Morphet and "Jimmy" Brown, vocalists and the versatile instrumentalist, "Billy" Lech.

Vocal, piano, and violin teachers were numerous, ranging from good to indifferent in ability. But, unfortunately, because of the lack of over-all leadership, many of the most talented of those instructed, left Peterborough to win laurels elsewhere.

The organist at St. Peter's Cathedral was Miss Hurley and Miss Anna McCabe, formerly of Trenton, played at St. Joseph's, Douro. Convent teaching was of such quality as to produce a large number of young women pianists of brilliance or high artistry. Miss Margaret McCabe was a popular pianist of the time.

In the music of the dance, the Misses Hurley were prime favorites, being constantly engaged for private and public affairs. Occasionally, C. E. Musgrave, of Toronto, would play. Later, the Misses Dorris were widely popular.

The Gliddon Era

But it was not until the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Gliddon and the opening of the Peterborough Conservatory that musical art became focused effectively upon higher objectives. Mr. Gliddon soon brought the 57th Battalion band to such new levels of achievement as to give it high rank in the widest Canadian fields. At the Conservatory, the Gliddons surrounded themselves with a staff of teachers—some locally trained, others with brilliant records in larger centres — who earned confidence and esteem. The beneficent influences of the Conservatory radiated through the Central Ontario district. Pupils from smaller communities were attracted. An orchestra of many talents was formed. "Twilight Musicales" provided winter afternoon delights.

With the passing of the Conservatory, music began to go atomistic again. There was lacking a nucleus around which artistic agglomerations could cluster. A short time later, the Madrigal Singers took form but after a period under the skilful leadership of Dorothy Allan Park in which they achieved real distinction, they disbanded, to the regret of all genuine music-lovers.

Under the gifted Martin Chenhall, then organist of St. Paul's Church, the Male Voice Choir won high praise not only in Canada but on a visit to New York.

Among the individuals who contributed in later years to musical enjoyment was Asa Huycke, who wrote words and music for the operetta, "The Message of the Bluebird."

In the field of broadcasting, Agnes Logan Green, has been heard in delightful piano recitals, while Gwen. Craw and Charles Allen have contributed duo numbers (piano and organ) with taste and fine artistry.

But since the Conservatory days there have been long and deplorable periods of doldrums in Peterborough's music. Manifestly there is dormant in the city and district a spirit which would respond to a reassertion of local autonomy in music. With the establishment of a new focus, in keeping with the changing temper and genius of the time, small groups of varied interests might well be expected to interact healthily and to function with a growing sense of living organic unity.

Centralization is necessary and beneficial—up to a point. But beyond the point of diminishing return (as the economists phrase it) there is the ever-present menace of the ills that go with overgrowth—whether of adipose tissue, or of cities or of institutions.

Revolt Against Mechanism

We live in a world which is in revolt against mechanism. Upon institutions grown too large falls the dead hand of mechanism. And where mechanism rules we need not look for the joy and the zest of the free life.

There is no good reason why Peterborough's young musicians to be should be held in bondage or tutelage to a Larger Institutionalism. Bigness is a mere delusion of grandeur. A big and sprawling and utterly sanitary mausoleum is not a Temple of the Arts and it never will be. The Temple of the Arts lives and grows in the minds of free individual human beings who interact socially.

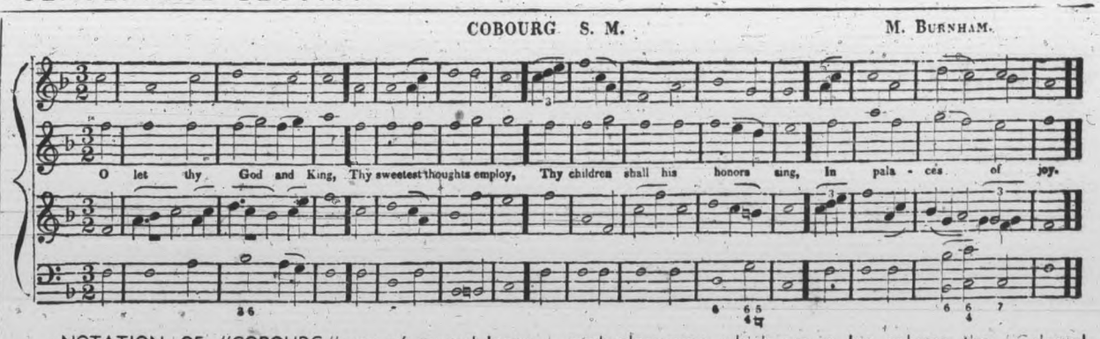
Peterborough's Conservatory did its work well. In and about it were free people who went joyously about the business of creation which is the business of a free art. The converse of a sense of freedom is a sense of responsibility. The establishment of standards (or shall we say, norms?) is doubtless a help to the youthful understanding of freedom and responsibility. But is there any reason to suppose that the standards, or norms, of the old Conservatory were not just as high and just as helpful as those of the larger institutions?

Peterborough, entering its second century, reveals an abundance of musical vitality. May it not be that its prime requirement is a new leadership, with eyes to see the objective values which are in consonance with the city's situation, its size and its general needs? For though function cannot be localized, a fitting sense of the direction to be given to function is essential to the healthy growth of the Free Creative Spirit.

And where there is a Free Creative Spirit there will be good music and joyous music, such as was envisaged by the pioneer leaders of 125 years ago.

APOLOGIA

The writer may echo the words of Mark Burnham. He has not undertaken the preparation of the foregoing article "from any anxious wish or vain desire of appearing as an author." He has been asked, even urged, by friends and acquaintances to write into the historical record some of the facts embodied in the documents and books passed along as family possessions. He is not concerned to enlarge upon family activities; that part of the record has been presented long since with an amplitude far beyond his scope. He has tried to restrict himself to what is essential to completeness and to the correction of the effects of error or of misplaced emphasis in some of the history-writing of the past. History, alas, often takes the form of a compounding of error; or of what may be just as deplorable, a compounding of triviality. To place in proper perspective the story of musical beginnings it has been necessary to trace further back the nexus of personal relationship involved than has been done heretofore.



NOTATION OF "COBOURG," one of several hymn tunes composed by the Reverend Mark Burnham, Peterborough clergyman, which are in his volume the "Colonial Harmonist," Canada's first musical treatise.

A First in Musical History

By R. F. CHOATE

The noblest impulses in the world of Art, notably in the world of music and painting, have ever proceeded from the devotional spirit. It need not surprise us, therefore, that the author (and publisher) of Canada's first treatise on music should have been one of the cloth, the Rev. Mark Burnham, who gave the land on which St. Luke's Anglican Church, Ashburnham, is built, conducted the services at St. Mark's, Warsaw, and shared his ministrations with Otonabee and Norwood. His initial work, the "Colonial Harmonist", published at Port Hope in 1832, to which reference is made in the article herewith, was a stimulating and widely-useful contribution to the quickening of Canadain interest in musical culture. The Oxford Master of Arts, who was born at Cobourg, assuredly will hold an honored place in the spectral file of those who have borne lusty and trusty lances for the Spirit.

LITTLE KNOWN INCIDENTS IN LOCAL HISTORY.—It was on July 9, 1904, that the Great Hydraulic Lift Lock was officially opened and Peterborough has, in a sense, lievd in its shadow ever since. Joseph Scriven

Looking eastward from Highway 28, the traveller may see at a distance of about a mile south of Bewdley, a lonely monument; no other grave is near, Its very loneliness is a fitting tribute to him in whose memory it was erected. He was born in Dublin, Ireland in 1820 and came in 1850 to Canada to live in the neighborhood of Rice Lake, Ontario. Here, he acted as tutor in the family of Lieutenant Pengelly. He did not come to Canada to seek a livelihood; he was a man of independent means. It is probable that his advent to this strange new land might be accounted for by the missionary spirit that drove him often to preach on market-days on the street corners of Peterborough or Port Hope, and inspired him also to erect a chapel and convene the settlers to hear him read from his loved Bible or talk of the friendship of Jesus.

This was Joseph Scriven, BA. His name is not so well known as is the sweetly magnificent hymn from his pen, "What A Friend We Have In Jesus". This is so universally loved that it has been translated into many languages and wherever these tongues are spoken, it has brought solace to many a weary heart. What number, we may glean from the fact that as many as fifty million impressions have been made of this sacred song; so it has been estimated. It is sung in all the modern languages even in the soft Italian tongue within the walls of Rome.

This unusual popularity is due in no small extent to its musical setting. This was furnished by Charles C. Converse, an accomplished musician, composer and lawyer. His home was in Highwood, NJ, where he practised law, composed music and contributed extensively to the musical atmosphere of his native city. He published an American Concert Overture on "Hail Columbia", an American national hymn; also a Cantata on Psalm CXXVI. Notwithstanding this musical power, Mr. Converse is best known to the world by the music that so fittingly clothes the sacred words of the lonely missionary. He caught the spirit of trust and of loneliness and augmented the native godliness of the words.

Mr. Scriven made two copies of this hymn; one he retained; this was found after his death among his belongings. The other he sent to his mother whose home was in Stephen's Green, Dublin, where she lived with her son, an eminent physician. It is thought that his hymn reached the world through the copy sent his mother by Mr. Scriven. The words of her prayerful earnest son made a powerful appeal to the heart of a mother. Mr. Converse (1823-1918) studied in Leipsig University. May it not have been while there that the words of the hymn, now famous, reached him, forwarded maybe, to the Conservatory for musical setting, by the mother of the composer, (1820-1886).

The melody is one that the world has made its own. "It has sung its way into millions of souls inspiring trust in God and hope in the stormy passage of life."

The ruins of the chapel built by Mr. Scriven are still to be seen on the Pengelly homestead about two miles north of the spot where stands the monument. His body lies close to the chapel, and over it stands a tomb erected by his friends of the Pengelly family. The monument or cenotaph, close to the highway was unveiled in 1920, by Mr. Drury, then Premier of Ontario.

Miss Pengelly lives in a snug bungalow not far from the ruined chapel; she receives inquirers with a friendly welcome that tries to make visitors feel they are bestowing not receiving the courtesy. As we withdrew a kindly invitation to return begot a desire to live again some day an hour of the charm of old-world hospitality in surroundings where the love of God and of one's neighbour still linger hand in hand, as the Lord commanded.

Mr. Joseph Scriven, BA, lived a life that from a human standpoint was in many ways saddened. He who had spent his youth and early manhood studying and attending college in an old-world centre of culture, must have found it a trying experience to mingle only with the early settlers in their bushland. He came hither, a man of independent means, but used his inheritance in charitable giving, and in his efforts to spread a knowledge of the Bible. In his later years, he was thus left homeless and penniless. Although the Pengelly family were to the last, his friends, and the home of a neighbour, Mr. Sackville, was ever open to him, still, "Strangers' stairs are steep." The mystical life was wholesome and satisfying but the actual, the material, asserted itself with its usual obstinacy.

He had planned a home, was engaged to a beautiful lady, but before the day appointed for the wedding his dearly-loved fiancee died. This tragedy cast over his remaining years a settled lonely longing that may be heard in the moaning and whispering of the pines that protectingly shelter his wayside shrine.

What A Friend We Have In Jesus

Author—Joseph Scriven, 1820-1886
Melody by Charles Crozat Converse, 1832-1918

What a Friend we have in Jesus,
All our sins and griefs to bear!
What a privilege to carry
Everything to God in prayer!
O what peace we often forfeit,
O what needless pain we bear,
All because we do not carry
Everything to God in prayer!

Have we trials and temptations?
Is there trouble anywhere?
We should never be discouraged;
Take it to the Lord in prayer.
Can we find a Friend so faithful,
Who will all our sorrows share?
Jesus knows our every weakness:
Take it to the Lord in prayer.

Are we weak and heavy-laden,
Cumbered with a load of care?
Precious Saviour still our refuge;
Take it to the Lord in prayer.
Do thy friends despise, forsake thee?
Take it to the Lord in prayer.
In His arms He'll take and shield thee;
Thou wilt find a solace there.

F. J. A. Morris

Such brilliancy as we see in the foregoing scholarly writers, indicates that Canada is now at the beginning of its Siglo de Oro; we have many who are toiling and restless with a desire to make the world stop and think with them, and listen. To many of these we cannot but give an ear.

Among the productions of one such whom it is Peterborough's privilege to have had as a citizen for many years I read:

Leave me my dream, Spirit of discontent;
Must I forever toil, or dreaming feel
Athwart the sunlight of my fancy steal
The shadow of thy form?
Surely He meant
My dreamland for a Paradise
Who sent
Me, the home-lover, forth from boyhood's home;
Leave them me then in innocence to roam
My Eden—leave it sunlit till the day be spent.
'Fool's Paradise?' Ah, no, that taunt may do
To mock another dreamer with not me
Who hear the music of the mountain stream
And soothing sadness of the lone curlew
Upon a Scottish moorland;—let me be.
Spirit of discontent, leave me my dream.

This is after the manner of Wordsworth, emotional, quiet, close to nature, perfect in structure. The writer clings to the Victorian ideals of poetry as his heart clings to his Scottish moors and boyhood pleasures.

These moors and beechwood quarries and his boyhood delight in the things of nature, he describes in a winsome bit of prose, "The Bending of a Twig." One could read this pamphlet again and again, for everyone whose experience as a child it has been to ramble through the lanes and woods close to the heart of nature, sees in F. J. A. Morris's experience a repetition of his own, and lives again his "hour of splendour in the grass and glory in the flower."

It may be urged that we should not claim as a Canadian author one who was born in Scotland and educated at Oxford, and whose literary productions are yearnings for the heather and the lochs and breezy downs of Perthshire. But it is my belief that his poetry and prose belong truly to Canada as the home he has made for himself in Peterborough, and contribute as truly to the betterment of our country as the daily lessons he imparted to the pupils of our Collegiate Institute whose good fortune it was to have him for their English Master.

And it was not alone the Scottish moorland, nor nearby braes of Perth that called forth the latent power of song. It was only after he had lived amid the wild loveliness of our Kawarthan Lake region that he felt compelled to give utterance to beauty and thus identify with his surroundings:

In lonely musing far afield
I wandered yesterday;
And nature everywhere did yield
To genial Spring, by wood and weald
Her tribute pay.

Gay robin in the orchard trees,
Song-sparrow in the lane,
Bluebird soft-flitting through the breeze,
Redwing beside the reed-bed—these
Join in one strain.

And thou alone, hast thou no word,
No note of gratitude?
Who bade the eye and ear record,
Did surely to mankind afford
His lyric mood.

Let plumage, lilt and airy glee
Of pinion play their part,
And Nature's song of love shall be Harmonious hymn of praise for thee
Within the heart.

True he was most at home when wandering alone through the peat-bogs of our neighborhood in search of the earliest orchid, stalking through the wilds of Kawarthan woodlands or paddling along its rivers with sweet-souled Canadian lady whom he chose as his companion. She, like her husband loves to greet the first hepatica and renew acquaintance each returning summer with the denizens of the wild.

"Our Wild Orchids'

Besides his poetry Mr. Morris's productions for years took the form of pamphlets or contributions to magazines. He gave his adopted home something more pretentious when "Our Wild Orchids" appeared in 1928. His love for flowers, which in the beginning was a mere hobby, became his chief interest When he felt the urge to make writing his avocation, he retired from teaching to give his entire time to the study of flowers and to making them better known and better loved. "Our Wild Flowers" became a favourite in homes and schools and led the way for "Our Wild Orchids" This latter is the work of nature rather than of a scientist; in itself it is a thing of beauty and appeals to the student of outdoor life. In his book "Through Nature's Realm" he suggests a healthy tonic reading for young people that brings them close to nature. How much superior to the vapid noisome comic strips on which young minds of today gorge Morris "lead us by delightful ways themselves! Writers like Mr. into the heart of Nature."

This much-admired Christian gentleman was called by death on December 30, 1949. The following is excerpted from an editorial appreciation of the late Mr. Morris in "The Peterborough Examiner."

"Mr. Morris was a man who maintained, and exemplified in himself high ideals of education. It was better, he thought, for a pupil to peruse a line of study in which he was especially interested, than to attempt to gain a smattering of a variety of subjects without excelling in any of them He was himself a fine teacher of English and for those who showed a special aptitude for that branch of learning he was ready to take any pains to direct their reading, and to point out to them paths and byways which they might otherwise have overlooked.

"As a naturalist he possessed a reputation which extended far beyond this district. It was as a botanist and particularly as a specialist in orchids that his fame was won, but all aspects of great numbers of Peterborough young people whose interest accorded with his own.

"The influence of such men is impossible to calculate. So much of the effort of a fine teacher seems to be dissipated in classroom routine; so much that is spoken out of deep love and knowledge of his subject seems to fall on deaf ears. But the seeds which are planted by such a teacher as Frank Morris are often of slow growth. They become a part of the fabric of the minds of his pupils, and thus an influence in the world from which he has departed."

We pray that the light of Heaven may shine eternally on his noble soul—the light for even a glimmer of which he prayed so feelingly in his deeply-religious sonnet "Evening":

"Ah, shall not we, the long day's toil who bore
Catch some faint glimmer of a far-off light."

Hugh Kenner

To illustrate the sturdiness, I shall refer to the work of a Kawarthan scholar, Dr. Hugh Kenner. It is not easy reading. To understand his line of thought, one must have a working knowledge of philosophy and of metaphysics, and must have an intimate acquaintance with modern and mediaeval writers. Having known Hugh Kenner in his boyhood, and being an admirer of G. K. Chesterton's works, I opened the book "Paradox in Chesterton" in joyful anticipation of a delightful literary evening. Before completing the first page I reached for my dictionary; the smile had vanished. More is required than mere pleasant memories of an intelligent child, to cull only from deep study. The evening was far from ended when repeated need for reference warned that an encyclopedia must be within easy reach. The boy is fast developing into a celebrated scholar. Here was paradox indeed, with its characteristic shock.

Hugh Kenner is a native of Peterborough, son of the late Dr. H. R. H. Kenner for many years Principal of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. Beloved like Arnold of Rugby this genial teacher is revered by the many thousands who have had the privilege of knowing his singular ability to teach and govern with a manliness that was mild, and a classic strength that was easy and companionable.

Dr. Kenner's Book

Doctor H. R. H. Kenner visited Europe in the Summer of 1896. On his return he published "A Trip to the Eternal City"; a copy of this book is now difficult to obtain; it was produced for his intimate friends and therefore only a limited number of copies was printed. It gives a fascinating account of his Summer's wanderings and has the wholesome atmosphere of the days when "no war or battle's sound was heard the world around".

Writing in humorous mood from Rome to a fellow-teacher of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute staff, he gave the close of his letter an interesting Papal turn: "Given at Rome this twenty-fourth day of July, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-six".

The son has much of his father's charm of manner. This and a brilliancy of intellect were inherited from his mother, who gave of her abundant knowledge of Modern Languages to the youth of the school that was governed by him who was to be her future husband. Hugh's literary style and carefuly amassed knowledge bespeak the intellectual life of his scholarly home. Like Browning he cannot see that his books present difficulties to the average reader.

A careful study of "Paradox In Chesterton" reveals a wealth of original thinking that more than repays effort. Besides, our good friend G. K. Chesterton is acquitted of the harsh indictment to which he has often been subjected for all these years—that of being a mere "maker of paradox". The defence is concise but convincing; every word has a duty, duly performed. This skilful handling of the English gives confidence and a profound pleasure. While the reading of the book was begun with much trepidation it proved to be a gift of rare value.

At present Hugh Kenner is engaged in preparing a criticism of the work of James Joyce, a top-ranking member of the Irish Literary Revival, recognized by so good an authority as Robert Gibbings, to be one of this century's four greatest writers. Mr. Kenner's opinion is eagerly awaited by the English-speaking world. He just completed a graduate course at Yale in preparation for a doctorate in philosophy. The James Joyce criticism now daily looked for is not likely to require a ready knowledge of philosophy and will therefore in all probability make a more cogent appeal to the unitiated in Patristics and Metaphysics.

Ernest Thompson-Seton

A family that gave to Canada, one of its ten greatest men, according to a recent survey by Hugh McLennan, came in 1866, to Ops in the neighborhood of Lindsa. from South Shields, England. This was the Seton Thompson family, and the famous son was Ernest Seton Thompson. They built a home on the thoroughfare locally known as "The Front Road"; the house was large and substantial and even yet stands, a staunch landmark known in the vicinity as the Thompson Home. The Seton Thompsons were people of means but were attracted to Canada as a place where a fortune might readily be augmented. At the time of their coming to Ops, Ernest was but six years of age. He received his public school education in the nearby town of Lindsay, but went to Toronto for his High School course. Later he attended the Royal Academy of London and also studied Art in Paris.

The elder Thompson must have been something of a wanderer. Although he had chosen as his home one of the most beautiful and ferile pieces of farmland to be found anywhere, he exchanged it for life on the Manitoba prairie. Because of its fertility and outstanding suitability for grain production, Ops the Goddess of Harvests, bestowed her name upon this favoured corner of Kawartha.

Ernest used his knowledge of Art to illustrate his books that began to appear at the close of the century. When Nature Study first found a place on the public school curriculum of Ontario "Wild Animals I Have Known" became a great favorite with pupils; one of the wild animals, the old rabbit Molly Cottontail attained with them the status of an historical character. Other animal stories were "The Lives of the Hunted" and "Animal Heroes." Few subjects on the curriculum did more for the interested boys and girls than did Nature Study, and few authors, if any, did more for this subject than Ernest Seton Thompson by means of his well-illustrated books.

Boy Scout Interest

The information gleaned in school days from Nature Study furnishes the students with a means of salutary enjoyment, that manifests itself daily and many times a day throughout all their remaining years. To have contributed so efficaciously to making this study a pleasure would in itself have made Seton Thompson a great man. Add to this his interest in the Boy Scout movement, and it will be seen to what extent he interested young people in outdoor life, and thereby influenced national character.

He loved poetry, especially the type that is vigorous in tone and texture; often he was present when Pauline Johnson gave a recitative evening. To show his appreciation of her strong talent and charming personality he presented her with a necklace. Always thereafter when she appeared on the stage in her well-loved Minnehaha costume she wore round her throat her treasured jewels, a band of cinnamon bears' claws.

Early in the century this writer changed his name to Thompson Seton, for literary purposes, it was said. He had a perfect right to make the change, but many felt that the alphabetical order made a stronger name. For some strange reason this change seemed to create a sort of rift between the Naturalist and his admiring young friends. The relationship was never afterwards quite so binding; this may have been partly due to the fact that at about the same time a change crept insidiously into the atmosphere of his newer stories that leaned towards unfitting them for young students.

To assist the Scout Movement he wrote "Boy Scouts of America." He was Chief Scout from 1910 to 1915. He also wrote on Indian lore, illustrated the Century Dictionary, and gave as many as three thousand lectures on his favourite interests, Nature, Indian Lore and the Boy Scout movement. His love of nature and of art was probably engendered in the most inpressionable years of his life, by the magnificence of his surroundings—surroundings that drew to comely Ops the recognition of the gods.

Archibald Lampman

Archibald Lampman was our neighbour once, and we are immensely proud of it. He lived at Gore's Landing on Rice Lake in his boyhood. In those years when nature is filled with mystery and delight for the boy and the long days of summer are spent in investigating the ways of the wild things and in acquiring a knowledge at first hand that is to be throughout his life most useful and delectable Every boy brought up on the farm or in the country village has thus a fund of information and experience that interprets for him the better things of life, but the young Lampman was particularly favored; he lived in a spot where, to quote the words of his bio-

He went out quietly by a back-door way
He alone knew. I think if you would search
The woodland through, you'd find him where Breathed upon gently by the vernal air
His own wild orchids delicately sway.
Secrets the sorceress Nature does not tell
To careless ears, he knew and cherished well.
In some green corner now she surely moulds
A place serene, dappled in leafy light
Where hidden from our sight
He watches how a little flower unfolds.

grapher Duncan Campbell Scott, "the scenery seemed enchanted, the society was congenial, and many forces united to strengthen the love of nature and his powers of observation."

The country in the neighbourhood of Gore's Landing is exceedingly beautiful and Mr. Lampman's poetry is rich in the magic of its woods and shores. It is a summer-resort now, many tourists preferring it to the shore of Lake Ontario twelve miles away, because the beach is level and beautifully wooded; there are several picturesque islands a short distance from the shore; the rice-fields at Alnwyck, the Indian Reserve, are interesting, the boating is safer than it is on Lake Ontario, and the fishing is excellent. The drive along the shore through the Reserve, Gore's Landing, Harwood and Bewdley Point is an experience that one could not forget in a lifetime. It was in this locality, between Harwood and Bewdley, that Mrs. Traill, one of the earliest Canadian writers, lived and drew inspiration.

Gore's Landing Seven Years

Archibald Lampman came here in his seventh year with his father, the Reverend Archibald Lampman, and lived in this ideal scenery for seven years. There is no resident clergyman now, but when the Reverend Lampman came, the place promised to be a centre of activity; it was the terminus of the "Old Cobourg Road," a railroad that was built across Rice Lake about 1850, to provide a short route inland to Peterborough and the district to the North; the three-mile bridge over the lake was always considered unsafe; the road was abandoned ninety years ago and the bridge is almost totally submerged; a few broken piers can be seen from Gore's Landing and Harwood.

From all Mr. Lampman's poetry there breathes an intense love of nature. He loves it for its own sake and because of the delight and solace that comes to the soul that studies nature with loving observation It is not alone those aspects of nature that are traditionally beautiful that occupy him especially; the neglected things, as if by very sympathy, receive the greatest share of attention. In his poem "April" we find:

Every hollow rings and gleams
With jetting falls and dashing streams.

and,

The fields are full of little lakes.

again

When the romping wind awakes,
The water ruffles blue, and shakes.

Similarly in "June,":

The meadow's bold-eyed gypsies deep of hue.
The slender hawk-weed, tall and softly fair
And rosy tops of fleabane veiled with dew.

It was not only the ordinary sights of meadow and woodland that delight him; the sounds and silences of nature are dear and familiar to him and make music to which his own soul is attuned. He makes us hear "the pines roar on the hill," "the shore-lark drop his brittle song," "the jay scream his matins to the day," "the wind with a swivelling whistle go," "the small innumerable sound" of the grasshoppers, the rattle of the rain, the piping of the wind, "the clash or silence of the leaves," even the tremulous flute-like voices of the frogs; and he combines the picture with the music and gives every detail of each until he communicates to you the joy of the inner vision and all the good things of the great out-of-doors are your very own.

Poems Reach Heart

Everyone loves Archibald Lampman because everyone rejoices in the thought of the simple natural things, the grass, the sun, the wind, the clouds, the rain; a return to these is the first thought when holidays free us for a while from the grim business of making a livelihood, and when we cannot enjoy them thus in reality, we can turn to Lampman's poems and find in this inner reality relaxation and refuge from unrest. He is truthful and accurate and personal and his poems reach into our minds and hearts; he always tells us something that we have felt ourselves, perhaps even as keenly, the only difference being that he has the power to voice that feeling. He lives each year through; "January," "March," "April," "June," "September," revels in the joy of each returning season, and renews his spirit with his perennially renewed friends out-of-doors:

I break the spirit's cloudy bands,
A wanderer in enchanted lands,
I feel the sun upon my hands;
And far from care and strife
The broad earth bids me forth.
I rise
With lifted brow and upward eyes
I bathe my spirit in blue skies,
And taste the springs of life.

Old friends of the open world and lovers of the earth, and of their kind, find in the sincere, truth-loving, kindly Mr. Lampman a friend who is one in thought and heart with them, one who has borne the same sorrows and enjoyed the same relief in companionship with nature, and the spiritual enjoyment of the Light that illumines at once the lovely landscape and the mind of the beholder.

Up to the age of ten Archibald did not attend school; his father, who was an intellectual man and leisured, looked after the education of the interesting boy and in the long rambles through woods and by the lakeshore taught him to know the birds by their plumage and by their song, knowledge reproduced again and again for the delight of many a reader. He taught him the names and habits of the weeds and flowers; together they listened in the gathering dusk to the croaking of the frogs—"Breathers of wisdom without a quest," "Flutists of lands where beauty hath no change"—in the neighbouring rice-beds, or to the call of the whip-poor-will across the water from lone Idyl Wylde. His mother, who was a gifted musician, also interested herself in his education, and his enjoyment of her talent is immortalized in his poems "Music" and "The Piano." His gratitude to his father is put on record by the dedication to him of his book "Alcyone" which was in the press at the time of his death; "To the memory of my father, himself a poet, who first instructed me in the art of verse."

At the close of a brilliant student career in Port Hope and Toronto, he essayed the work of teaching; he did not find this congenial and entered the Civil Service at Ottawa, at which occupation he remained until his untimely death in 1899.

His son, Archibald Lampman, lived at Lakefield, owned a beautiful farm on the shore of the lake and assisted in "The Grove School." He used to protest he inherited none of his father's genius, although his charming wife declared that he wrote good poetry. His efforts, as far as I can ascertain, never appeared in print; he seemed a very modest and unassuming man, burdened a little, one would think, with the onus of a great man's son to, much as one may add leaves in a loose-leaf notebook. Events of importance were recorded, and added to as time went on. It is not a connected narrative like Dr. Poole's book, and therefore lacks the interest of this, but it is a useful reference book, and Mr. Dobbin has done the city and county a valuable service in making this difficult compilation. It served as a basis for a book now very much in demand: "Our Old Home Town." After the death of this revered townsman, his son, Ross L. Dobbin, assembled the loose-leaves above referred to, and had the book published as a memorial to his father. This act of filial devotion is looked upon with reverence and gratitude by all lovers of Kawartha.

Another book, similarly compiled by F. H. Dobbin is entitled "A History of the Medical Profession in Peterborough." In this the life of each medical man who ever lived in the county up to 30 years ago was written and a photograph of each is inserted with the account of his life; it is interesting biography; the lives of the pioneer doctors remind one often of the experiences of Dr. McClure, over which our heart-strings have many a time been tightened; Ian MacLaren's hero did his work in far away Scotland or so we feel while reading it; Mr. Dobbin's characters actually spent themselves in braving the storms of Canadian winters, travelling blazed trails and primitive roads through miles of wilderness in bringing relief and solace to our suffering progenitors We cannot read this book without feeling an intense gratitude for the members of this noble profession, and a renewed appreciation of the profession that makes heroes. How the distressed settlers of this locality looked upon the services rendered by the faithful physician is set forth by Dr. Poole who gives us a sentence from an address presented to the Governor, Sir Peregrine Maitland as early as 1826: "Please Your Excellency, we are totally at a loss for words adequate to express the thanks and gratitude we owe Dr. Reade, for his active, skilful and unremitting care of us."

Mr. Dobbin was a native of Peterborough. After graduating from the local collegiate institute he went into the newspaper business with Robert Romaine of "The Peterborough Review." Later he was manager of "The Lindsay Post" for seven years, after which he returned to Peterborough and became owner of "The Peterborough Review" and its managing director; he conducted this business until 1914 when he retired. In the passing of Mr. F. H. Dobbin many of the older residents of Peterborough felt they had lost a personal friend; Mr. Dobbin loved to reminisce with interested friends, and could always clear up any half-forgotten incidents; to him the history of Peterborough was an open book, illuminated by "the light of other days."

F. H. Dobbin

Dr. Poole's record of events in Peterborough County has been taken up and continued by Mr. F. H. Dobbin. He wrote a book which he called "An Index To Peterborough"; it was typewritten and so arranged that he could keep it always up to date; it was in sections, indexed "Personal," "Political," "Industrial," etc., etc. The book was strongly bound in leather, but in such a manner that each section could be added

HEADQUARTERS IN 1867 for the Peterborough Militia were these old drill sheds, which stood in what is now Confederation Park. They were destroyed by fire, and replaced in 1908 by the present armouries. Volunteers for the Red River expedition and the Soudan were mobilized here.

Dr. T. W. Poole

Dr. T. W. Poole who died in Lindsay in 1896 was for many years a resident of Peterborough and vicinity. He wrote a history of the County of Peterborough, a very useful interesting book for which he deserves the thanks not only of the people of Peterborough, but the whole province. It is called "A Sketch of the Early Settlement and Subsequent Progress of the Town of Peterborough and of each Township in the County of Peterborough." It begins with the arrival of the first settler in 1818 and details the events minutely, and in a most fascinating manner up to 1867, the year in which the book was published. The names of the early settlers are given, the exact place each located, the difficulties they surmounted, the work they undertook, the gradual building-up of the town and the triumph of industry and endurance. The whole-hearted, convivial spirit which dominated and united our ancestors here, vivifies every page. For the banquet on the evening of the day on which the corner-stone of the new Town Hall of Peterborough and Market building was laid, an ox was roasted whole, "wherewith to entertain 'all and singular' who might choose to accept the hospitality of the town".

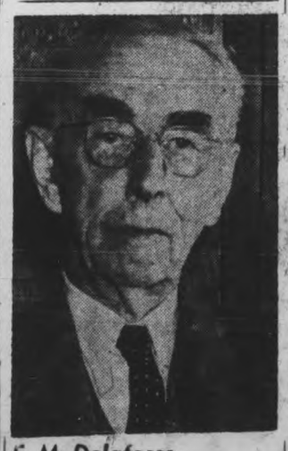
Each township of the County receives separate attention and the history of each is minutely told; with the instinct of the true historian, Dr. Poole enlivens the sketch of each township by relating incidents, humorous or pathetic in the lives of one or more of the settlers and thus sets forth concretely the privations and difficulties and pleasures incident to early bush-life. Dr. Poole probably got much of this information at first hand from some of the older inhabitants as he was local Superintendent of Schools in various townships for the County between the years 1856 and 1865. The itinerant life which this calling necessitated would lend itself to the accumulating of tradition and reminiscences.

Account Of Customs

Sometimes the life of one settler or one family is carried through from the arrival by way of Rice Lake and the Otonabee in a flat boat, or by ox-team over an almost impassable road to Scott's Plains (Peterborough); and then through trackless forest to the spot which his location ticket indicated, on to the time when lands and houses, flocks and herds blessed his store, and he could look back and smile at the early days in the bush and review his first blunders in the light of after-experience. The book is, therefore, not alone a history of the County of Peterborough, but because it is not a mere summary of names and dates, rather an interesting account of the lives and customs of the early settlers; it serves as well as an account of the early experiences of the pioneers in all parts of the province.

Dr. Poole devoted himself entirely to his profession subsequent to 1867. He practised in Peterborough and later in Lindsay. He was a reliable doctor and did noble service for his fellowmen in the field of medicine, yet one cannot but regret that he did not continue the work of writing history as he has all the characteristics of the true historian; absence of prejudice, national or religious, thoroughness, faithfulness to detail and as said above the ability to tell a good story.

The matter of teaching Canadian History would take care of itself in schools if we had a text-book on the subject written by Dr. Poole, or one in the style of the "History of the County of Peterborough." Such a history would of necessity, engender patriotism of the true stamp, because any native citizen reading Dr. Poole's book would die for the old home town.



F. M. Delafosse

Mr. F. M. DelaFosse, for many years the genial librarian of the Peterborough Public Library, is the author of several poems and books.

"English Bloods" is reminiscent of Mr. DelaFosse's experience in Muskoka where he settled when he came from England, a lad of eighteen. His purpose was to buy land and learn how to cultivate it. He paid fifty pounds a year to a settler to teach him the art of farming and a correspondingly high price for the land. Finally he abandoned the enterprise after having lost five thousand dollars. The experiences and disappointments of a settler's life from the point of view of an aristocratic young Englishman make very entertaining reading. A youthful lad of English stock was ill-prepared to stand up against pioneer life in Muskoka woods.

Subsequent to his Muskoka experiment, Mr. DelaFosse was private secretary to the Provost of Trinity College, Toronto, and coached many of the students through the difficulties of Latin and Greek. Later he retired and went to live in Lakefield, where he devoted much of his time to literature. When he was in charge of the Public Library he showed himself to be eminently suited for the position, courteous and painstaking and possessed of a surprising fund of information about books and authors.

His poetry is remarkable for its perfection in form; the metre is perfect and the rhythm musical. The following lines seem to indicate that the rapturous beauty of Muskoka outweighs its unproductiveness:

MUSKOKA

Fairer far than famed Avoca
Are thy verdant vales, Muskoka,
Land of Mountain, land of meadow,
Land of forest, lake and stream;
Well I know thy distant marshes:
Often through thy leafy arches
In the olden days I wandered—days
That linger as a dream.
Who shall tell what golden glory
Crowns thy patriarchal story?
Who shall tell what tales re-echo
From thy forest, from thy wave?
Tales perchance, of days long ended,
Of Arcadian plenty, blended
With the death-dirge of the captive,
And the war-cry of the brave!
Land of silence—land of beauty—
Land, where stern enduring duty
Ill repays thy sturdy children with
The sunshine of its smiles;
Few there be, I know, who love thee,
Save when skies be blue above thee
And the waters gleam and sparkle,
Lapping, laughing, round thine isles.

At the time of the centenary of St. John's Anglican Church, Peterborough, Mr. DelaFosse wrote a history of the church; he dwells with sympathetic understanding on the difficulties encountered, the successes achieved and the beauty of the ancient grey edifice atop the always well-manicured terraced hill—one of "the dear green hills of home."

Rt. Rev. F. J. O'Sullivan

Right Reverend F. J. O'Sullivan, D.P., V.G., at present pastor of the Immaculate Conception Church, Ashburnham, is the first author in our locality who has essayed the task of the translator. He has translated from the Latin original of Canon Arvisenet, "Memoriale Vitae Sacerdotalis". The English title of this book which is in the form of a neatly-bound pocket edition, is "An Epitome of the Priestly Life". In the translator's preface, he says that the inspiration came to him to present this work in English when a well-thumbed copy of the original was given to him by a dying priest, who apparently had made it his vade mecum. His worthy purpose in making the translation, he sets forth in the following sentence: "Such as it is I offer it to my brother priests, hoping that it may prove an assistance to them in more faithfully fulfilling the duties of their ministry and in walking more closely in the footsteps of the Divine Model". It is said to be a good translation, and it is certain that the English is clear and faultless.

He has also written another book, "Ourselves", a popular and elemeptary Treatise on the Nature and Faculties of the Human Soul. This book advocates an elementary knowledge of psychology in the advanced classes of our schools; he claims that this would be of vast benefit to the pupils in after life as it would put them in possession of a knowledge of man's place in the order of created things, and of an understanding of the three-fold endowment of the soul, namely, memory, intelligence and free will.

The author speaks with the conviction of experience, assuring his readers that he taught this matter to senior classes for twenty years and that the majority of pupils arrived at an adequate conception of the subject. He deplores the fact that although much time is spent upon education, few are acquiring wisdom for the reason that the proper study of man, which is man, is, as regards the majority of of people, altogether neglected.

The book "Ourselves" is written in language accommodated to the mental capacity of the average boy or girl, and sets forth in clear concise form, what we know about human nature, about ourselves. The treatment and development of this abstract was a difficult understaking and Monsignor O'Sullivan has carried it through to a very successful completion.

Associate Editor

Monsignor O'Sullivan has also been contributing to newspapers and periodicals for forty years or more. He was associate editor for many years of the Catholic Record and of the Catholic Register. It is interesting to note that the monsignor was the first to discover the poetic genius of Marjorie Pickthall. He saw a little poem of hers, "The Song of the Nixies", in the Globe, was arrested by its beauty and music and made it the subject of his "copy" for the following week. All see the lyrical beauty and the wondrous richness of imagery in this poem now; these have been pointed out by competent critics. But, when Marjorie Pickthall was unknown or little known to Canadians readers, it must have been an unerring sense of worth that was captivated by its poetic charm. And ever since, Monsignor O'Sullivan has been an admirer of her poems. Often he has made them the subject of public addresses. Acquaintances made at these lectures have often developed into an intimate knowledge of Marjorie Pickthall's poetic genius.

"Chronicles of Crofton" appeared from his pen in 1926, when he was Parish Priest at St. Mary's Church, Port Hope. In this we find the character sketches so true to nature, and so familiar that we often fancy we recognize old acquaintances. In an outstanding chapter "The Twelfth Station" we do recognize an eminent ecclesiastic who was everybody's friend; we learn here that his deep spiritual character was the result of concentration on the Divine Master.

We looked for a sequel to "The Chronicles," but to impart sane views on history in-the-making the busy churchman finds a refuge and a potent ally in the weekly column. For this reason "The Gleaner" has been an eagerly-awaited friend for many a year; what a splendid reference book on the history of our own times would be made for a compilation of these columns! Monsignor O'Sullivan has such a shrewd appreciation of poetic merit that many of his admiring readers hoped he might be induced to enter the field of literary criticism, but again, the needed column precluded a more congenial occupation.

First White Settlers Started In 1818

Kingston. While these people were brought along the lake Robinson was busy repairing the road to Rice Lake which heavy rains had washed out.

Picking 500 of the healthiest Robinson started the difficult trek from Cobourg to Scott's Plains, stopping at Sully (later Harwood) on Rice Lake. From Sully a small group of 20 hired axemen and 30 Irish went on to Scott's Plains, landing at what is now the foot of Wolfe St. Just to the north of this landing point was a flat grassy area known as Steamboat Green, scene of much early commercial and social activity.

The first group landed about September 1, 1825. The last of the immigrants arrived about October 30.

Beautiful Natural Park

The scene which greeted them was one of a beautiful natural park, bright with wild flowers and groups of pines, balsams, oaks, poplars, and silver birches.

As scow after scow arrived and deposited the settlers, a great temporary camp grew. The men and boys helped to build huts for the winter of slabs from Scott's mill, bark, branches and sods.

In September, five buildings were erected to serve as Robinson's headquarters. The largest, known as "Government House," was a log structure 40 by 20 feet. It was a combined living quarters and office for Robinson and some of his assistants, and faced south on the southeast corner of Simcoe and Water Sts.

All these buildings had to be constructed of logs because Scott's mill had failed because of low water.

Mrs. Stewart, wife of the man who first settled in Douro describes the rest of the village huts as "very odd, being made of poles standing up, bows or branches of trees interwoven, and mud plastered over this. . . ."

In October the Surveyor-General ordered Birdsall to lay out a town plan for Peterborough. A few years later he also surveyed the "Scotch Village" across the river owned by Burnham.

The original town boundaries were Smith Street (Parkhill Rd.) on the north, Park St. on the west, Townsend St. on the south and the river on the east.

For many years Water St. was the village's main street.

Whisky Was Cheap

Because Jackson's Park Creek had dried up, Scott decided to start a distillery to refresh the settlers. He had no way to purify the liquor, but the raw whisky sold for 10 or 15 cents a gallon, or exchanged for a pound of meat or flour.

There apparently was some unrest while the people waited to be settled on their lands. One man, John Finn, was jailed and that seemed to have a sobering affect on the others. Robinson released him shortly and he got his lot with the others.

Many rumors were deliberately spread about mass desertions and bitterness among the Irish against Robinson and others in authority. But these were denied from every quarter, including the older settlers of the district who at first had expected only the worst from the immigrants.

Any unrest there was, quickly disappeared when Robinson and his assistants began settling the immigrants on their lands during late October and early November.

Apparently the settlers drew their land by lot. Robinson reported, "The location of the emigrants, by far the most troublesome and laborious part of the service, was completed before the winter commenced, and I had a small log house built for the head of each family on their respective lots."

Robinson ran into considerable trouble because some of the 307 families selected in Ireland and brought to Canada were not genuine families. These began to break up and caused much confusion. Of the 307 heads of families who left Cork, only 224 were given lots in the Peterborough area and one was given scrip to pick a lot anywhere in the province.

Sons and brothers 18 years old and over were given 132 lots and two more given scrip. Four sons 17 years old and three even younger were given lots. Another 25 men over 45 who were not supposed to get land were nevertheless given lots. Thirty-eight who chanced along or local men who married Irish girls were given lots.

Before the settlers could be moved out from Scott's Plains to their lots, roads had to be built and cabins erected. The work was directed by surveyors Birdsall, Huston and Smith. They hired men from north and south of Rice Lake. These woodsmen in turn hired hundreds of the more industrious and healthy Irish to help them.

The Communication Road northwest through Smith township to Chemong Lake was already well established. Immigrants heading for Emily, Ops and Ennismore went to Chemong Lake over this road. From there they were taken across to Cottingham's Landing in a scow then on a road through Ennismore. Settlers for the northern part of Smith went north on Chemong Lake.

Another road was cut directly west from Scott's Plains from Smith St., on the line between North Monaghan and Smith townships. Farther south a road was cut southwest through Monaghan, Cavan and Emily.

Skilled axemen made a good deal of money by building log cabins on the lots. Robinson paid $10 for each shanty. Two experienced men could build one every two days. Some of the Irishmen who had acquired some skill with an axe built their own cabins and made the $10 themselves.

Building of Cabins

P. G. Towns in some articles on "Early Douro" told how it was done in that township. "The first part of their work was to clear a small place to erect a shanty built of logs and thatched with wild grass and balsam boughs which served as a shelter until they could get something better. Later they put in a fireplace which consisted of a very large chimney with an arch at the bottom on which was a crane on which they hung a pot to do their cooking. Those who were fortunate to have a shanty large enough, erected a bed by boring three holes in the wall, then driving stakes in them and propping them on the outside, then covering them with homemade planks. On top of this they placed grasses and cedar boughs for a mattress and made pillows from the down of bullrushes gathered from neighboring marshes. This being done, they brought their wives and families."

Many of the Irish made their shanties more like those in Ireland by putting sods around the lower part of the outside walls and on the roof, plastering the outside with a thick coating of mud later whitewashed, and putting bark or branches on the roof to hold down the sods.

Some of those first shanties stand today.

The families were moved to their lands mostly by oxcart. The men of the group would walk ahead clearing stumps, logs and large stones from the path and helped to push the heavy cart out of mudholes. The carts were piled high with trunks, boxes, farm tools, spinning wheels, food and bedding.

"INVERLEA", ONCE THE HOME of Mr. Justice R. M. Dennistoun, became in 1895 the Victoria Museum (Above) and housed a collection of articles dealing with the history of the city. The house stood in what is now Inverlea Park, and was torn down shortly before the First World War.

Lt. Charles Rubidge, prominent early settler of Otonabee township, was in charge of locating the Irish on lots. Like all the others who did this job, he made many mistakes, putting Irish on lots which were already claimed, on unsuitable lots, or on lots incorrectly surveyed.

Apparently from the very start the village which had sprung up on Scott's Plains, was given the name Peterborough. Old letters of business dated in December, 1825 were addressed to Hon. Peter Robinson, Peterborough.

Visit of Governor

It was, however, officially named Peterborough at a banquet held to celebrate the visit of Governor Maitland in February, 1926. The governor's visit was the biggest social event Peterborough had had.

He and his party arrived in five sleighs. A double line of Irish immigrants a quarter of a mile long welcomed them with loud cheers.

Sixty men unharnessed the horses and pulled the sleighs with basswood ropes through a beflagged evergreen arch across the river from Scotch Village on the ice and along Water St. to the front door of Government House.

The district gentry, but not the settlers, were all on hand for a banquet. Hon. John and Peter Robinson, Hon. Z. Burnham, Col. Talbot, James Bethune, Dr. and Mrs. Reade, R. Birdsall, and wife, Dr. Conlin, T. Stewart, and wife, R. Reid and wife, Lt. A. McDonnel Capt. J. Armstrong and wife, Col. Burke, S. Strickland, Sidney Bellingham and a few others.

Mrs. Stewart claimed for herself the honor of suggesting the name Peterborough, but actually it had been commonly used for some months. The name was popular for several reasons. It honored the founder of the settlement, Peter Robinson; it pleased the Irish settlers since it honored St. Peter; and to the English settlers it brought memories of Peterborough, England.

At the reception for the settlers after the banquet, many delegations received a hearing from the Governor impressively seated at the farthest end of the room, flanked by the local gentry in their uniforms.

The Smith delegation plunked for a government mill immediately. The delegation's speaker, Walton Wilson, got stage fright and Jacob Brumwell had to describe the great need for a gristmill ending "Save it in your presence sir, I have to get up at night to chew corn for the children to eat."

The Governor was apparently impressed for he promised them a mill without delay.

Another delegation asked for clergymen and good schoolmasters. In about two years, the government had given them their priests, schools and fine grist and saw mills. The Family Compact headed by Governor Maitland was looking for a solid block of votes from Peterborough.

Over opposition from Archdeacon Strachan of York, a member of the Family Compact and head of the Anglican Church in Upper Canada, Bishop McDonell of Glengarry sent a Roman Catholic mission to serve the Irish immigrants around Peterborough.

First Priest in Peterborough

Father Crowley was probably the earliest priest to live in the Peterborough area. He was given a grant of land by the Governor during his visit. In the spring of 1826, Father Ahearn arrived and lived in a cabin on the corner of George and Charlotte Sts., celebrating mass regularly in Dr. Reade's house.

Bishop McDonell asked for government assistance to send 20 priests and 20 teachers to the Peterborough area after making a visit to the district. However, he received little help except for a few lots of land.

Because the Church of England was to a large extent the official church of Upper Canada, it received considerable government aid. A month or two after the Governor's visit a combined church and school was built on the ground just behind the present site of the western building of Central Public School facing diagonally toward the corner of Murray and Water Sts. This log building could hold 150 people. Here Rev. Samuel Armour conducted Church of England services and school classes from 1826 to 1832.

One of the earliest Methodist chapels in the district was built in 1826 on the site of Millbrook where Rev. Anson Green of Cobourg came regularly to preach. The same year another chapel was built on the northwest corner of lot 13, concession 2, of Emily township.

Rev. James Evans, Methodist missionary to the Indians of the Newcastle district, also preached at the homes of John Fife, John Stewart and George Howson in Otonabee and in various homes in Monaghan and Smith.

Rev. Egerton Ryerson served a term on the Cobourg district in 1827, which included visits to the Rice and Mud Lake Indians.

Baptist and Presbyterian missionaries probably visited the area occasionally.

The grammar school at Peterborough was the only one north of Rice Lake to receive direct government aid. But parents saw to it that their children had a school to go to in most cases. They built a school on government supplied land and boarded a teacher in turns a few weeks at a time.

Before the spring breakup in 1826 the government called for tenders to build a mill and mill dam on the Otonabee River near the north end of the town site. Horace Perry won the contract.

He built the dam first in the fall across the Otonabee at the foot of London St. where the river turns east for about 200 yards. The flume cut across the short side of the triangle (the river forming the other two sides) down to the mills erected on the west bank just above Murray St. The spillway of the modern power plant runs down the same route now.

Early in 1827 the saw mill was begun and men from many miles around gave several days' free labor to speed the job. As soon as it was finished it sawed lumber to build the gristmill, which was completed in the summer of 1828. Together they were the largest buildings north of Lake Ontario in the Newcastle district.

As soon as they were built, the government offered the mills for sale and John Hall and Moore Lee bought them for £2,500

A wooden bridge was also built in 1827 as a government favour. But it was swept away by the spring floods of 1828 and until a steel bridge was put across to replace it several years later, the people continued to ferry across in scows or wade in the dry seasons to Ashburnham.

When the government-built mill put Adam Scott out of business, he took his six children to Port Hope and tried farming. In two years he purchased a lot with mill privileges at Cavan and with his son Adam Jr., 16, built a saw and grist mill.

Adam Scott died Feb. 7, 1838 and was buried at Bridgenorth.

While the town was being built the Irish immigrants were having their first experiences as settlers in the wilds.

To keep the Irish on their lands clearing the bush instead of wandering away to get work, the government continued to supply them with rations until November 24, 1826. They got flour instead of the ship biscuit they had been given on their crossing from Ireland and fresh meat at times instead of salt pork. Thus an average family of seven persons would get 25 to 40 pounds of flour and 20 to 35 pounds of meat each week.

Most of them could live comfortably on half this, especially when they caught fish, shot animals and gathered abundant wild fruit.

This fare was a greatly superior to the diet of potatoes they had been used to in Ireland. P. G. Towns of Douro wrote, "The principal diet of these early settlers was pea soup and pork, rye bread and butter . . . Some of the poorer settlers were content with potatoes, porridge and milk, and sometimes bran flakes . . . " Of course they added venison, rabbit, fish and wild fruits.

Besides the rations and the cabins which had been built for them, each household received a cow, an axe, an auger, a handsaw, a hammer, 100 nails, two gimlets, three hoes, a kettle, a frying pan, an iron pot, eight quarts of Indian corn to plan and five bushel of seed potatoes.

Together with the tools and muskets many of these immigrants were better equipped than most other settlers. An ox was given to each group of settlers to do much of the hard work, such as pulling out stumps.

During that first winter many of the settlers were sick. They seemed to have no resistance against ague and malarial fever. However after a few years they became immune—or they died.

Dr. Reade was kept very busy even with the help of Dr. Conin in the eastern and Dr. Hutchinson in the western townships. As well as the blankets given out to the Irish on board ship, Dr. Reade gave out 295 blankets to 108 families in the first winter.

The only medicine the doctors had for the ague and malaria which produced fits of chills, fever, vomiting and shaking, were peppermint and tansy, wild sarsaparilla or chamoline, taken with doses of raw whisky.

The settlers also found the forest could be very dangerous as well as supplying food. Most of them had a good deal of trouble with marauding bears. Sometimes the bears would carry away a pig, but more than once they carried away a child.

Men and boys often drowned in accidents in poorly constructed boats or through their own foolishness.

Most of the settlers began to clear land as soon as they reached their lots. They cut the trees on an acre or two and the first spring scattered grain about the stumps. The seed was covered by using a hoe or dragging bushes over the ground. When ripe the grain and corn was harvested with a reaping hook or scythe. The potatoes were dug up and the crop taken to a leanto barn or potato cellar on a flat wooden sleigh pulled by oxen or manpower. Grain was threshed with a flail on the barn floor, and the corn husked at autumn bees.

The Irish settlers were soon able to adapt themselves to the wild land they had been given. Report after report and records of business and sales of lands all show that they were settling down and prospering.

Robinson died in 1838. For some time before his death he had had to watch over his settlements by remote control. He had contracted the fever which plagued almost all the immigrants and he had to leave the area.

But at his death he left a memorial of a prospering community and an area would long remember him.

ANCIENT WRITING

Hieroglyphics were used by the ancient Egyptians as a sort of writing which conveys the idea of a thing without actually naming it.

HOCKEY PLAYED FOR YEARS ON POND NEAR LACROSSE BOX SITE

Report of Games Appeared In Examiners of 70's; Won Four Junior Crowns

By CEC PERDUE

Old newspapers of nearly a century ago in Peterborough were pretty skimpy with their news, especially their sports news. The front page was usually half filled with ads and quite often a brief account of a game appeared as well on the sacred front page. Back in the 70s and more so in the 80s little accounts of hockey matches appeared in the Examiner, though often without lineups listed.

While it is debatable where hockey originated, it was undoubtedly—following cricket and along with lacrosse—one of the earlier sports in vogue in this centre. And it has had a continuous successful sequence through the decades, through rule and rink changes, even to the present where artificial ice is something new in Peterborough.

Just 60 Years

The OHA lists winners only from 1891 on—barely 60 years back—so there were no official organized hockey champions here in several decades before that, even though it's known that hockey was played in the town. It was played for a lengthy spell on an open pond down George St., practically on the site of the present lacrosse box. It was played later in the old Charlotte St. rink, and it was played for many years in the Brock St. arena before moving finally — after several rinkless years— to the present Civic Arena south of the CGE on Park St.

In the senior series—it was the "A" series, though they had no senior "B" at that time—the Petes didn't hit Ontario finals till 1925 when they lost out to Niagara Falls 5-3. But the next year, they won the provincial title, beating London in the finals 7-5. That was the team of Joe Dwyer, Bert McLeod, Snap Parker, Frank Collins, Ace Bailey, Biffer Ranger, with Ab Rose, Bogardis and Cox as the subs.

Captured Crowns

The Petes won the senior "B" title in 1942 and again—the local Legionnaires this time—in 1949, but these are too recent to have to remind readers of these starry players of the present. In 1940, they won the intermediate "A" title and went on to beat Maxville out in Ottawa in straight games for the Eastern Canada final, there being no playoff with the western winner. In a sense, this team could be termed Dominion intermediate champs.

Frank Buckland coached that team which had Ray Harding in goal, Don Crowe, Drake Jopling, Jim Ellis and Jack Gardner on defence, with Ed Starr, Joe Blewett, Les Burton, Honey Tompkins, Art Heal, Jack Jopling and Bun Kingdon up front. A great team all the way through. Three times before the Petes won the intermediate title, back in 1902, again in 1906 and in 1924 before they stepped up to senior.

Juniors Victorious

And they won the provincial junior championship back in 1894, in 1895, in 1900 and once more in 1901. But not since. They have come close many times, often reaching Ontario semi-finals and sometimes finals but they haven't quite clicked in recent years in junior competition. But the intermediates and seniors continue to let Ontario puck fans know that this is a real hockey centre. Last season, Legion lost out to Brantford in the seventh game of the provincial senior "B" finals. With players like Nicholls, Godfrey, the Mortimers, Burns, Montgomery, Rochetta, Vitarelli, Crowley, Hill, Coombs, Parnell, Greenlaw, Stewart.

Peterborough has a life member and past president of the OHA in Rollie Glover, a hockey great of the past, who served in 1918-20. Percy Bond was president in 1933-34. George Horkins was vice-president in 1896 and Lionel King had that office in '99. W. A. Buchanan was the last OHA secretary before Bill Hewitt—still in office—and he had the important job in 1902-03. Frank Buckland is an executive member now.

Those Early Years

When "Put on Your Old Gray Bonnet" and "Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" were popular numbers, those husky youths of old Peterborough — who put in their training licks on canal ice—played strenuous hockey, indeed. There were no subs allowed for many years, including the seven-man game. One had to have the endurance as well as the ability, and hockey was not a gentle sport in the distant past. It was as rugged as the speedier brand served up today. Players who went through those swinging doors too often didn't go through rival teams on the ice for long.

But when the season was over and training broken for another spell, they celebrated properly. They really dined in style on six-course meals with potent beverages pretty much a "must" for our rugged forebears. Back in 1901, the local Colts won the OHA junior championship, and the team consisted of: Lionel King, Fred Whitcroft—a truly great puckist—Harry Morgan, E. Smith, H. Armstrong, W. Cavanah, A. Brundrette with H. Gilman and T. Robinson as spares. They beat Stratford in the finals 12-7.

What a Meal!

Officers of the day were: Dr. Bradd, Rev. W. L. Armitage, H. R. H. Kenner, A. H. Stratton, F. D. Kerr, A. W. McPherson, E. S. Clarry, Jas. McCabe, A. J. Terrill, T. F. Matthews W. J. English, Dr. A. Scott, R. M. Glover and W. H. Cavanah. The menu at the Oriental called for New York counts, mock turtle soup with lettuce, celery and queen olives, Columbia River salmon with white wine and special potatoes, chicken croquettes with boiled spuds, fillet de beef and succotash, fruit short cake, then spring stuffed turkey with all the trimmings, and later pudding, cognac, peaches, ice cream, assorted cakes, nuts, raisins, crackers and cheese, along with black coffee. By then, they likely needed it black.

Again in '06, when the intermediates took the provincial crown—beating Goderich 14-8 in the finals—they dished up a hefty banquet of New York counts, chicken soup, olives, celery, salmon, murphies, beef with boiled spuds and peas, cognac, championship punch — these weren't juniors, you see — roast turkey, mashed potatoes, corn, sponge pudding, brandy, pie and whipped cream, ice cream, cakes, fruit, cheese, etc., followed by black coffee again.

Oldtime Greats:

Players then were: W. E. Wasson, R. M. Glover, Wm. Crowley, R. M. Moore, Fred Whitcroft, Harry Morgan, Chris Graham and W. H. Cavanagh. Officers were: A. A. Hollingshead, W. E. Wasson, W. Crowley, F. A. Clarke, C. G. Graham, Jas. McCabe, H. Morgan, Geo. Lynch, Dr. H. Wightman, R. M. Glover and F. Whitcroft. Trainer was W. Breen, with auditors W. J. Green and Ross Cameron. Entertainers at the "do" included: W. McElroy, W. Breen, A. P. McDonald, J. Crane, W. S. Davidson, W. H. Denham, H. W. Morphet, Geo. Lynch, and Alex. Elliott. Patrons were: Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Morrow, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Denham, Mr. and Mrs. H. LeBrun, Mr. and Mrs. K. Eardley-Wilmot, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Hall and Mr. and Mrs. John Crane. 'Twas a big affair, indeed.

Of course, there were many other good teams through the first two decades of this century, though the first world war—like the second one—spoiled many young puckists' chances, there being more important things to do then. Jerry Coughlin was one of the best that ever went out of here to play professionally, and Lornie Rose later on passed up a chance to play for Toronto in the National Hockey League. Bailey did star for the Leafs. Jack Adams performed here for a time in the late war years, and then (as later) fans lined up hours beforehand around Brock and down George St. to get into games.

Do You Remember?

They'd come to see the stick wizardry of Bailey, the goaltending of Dwyer or Murray, the 60-minute display of Collins, and so on. Jim McMartin's bullet shot always drew comments, and the flashy playing of redheads like Legon and Sheehan. Grover Halpin was a great little battler, too. And so it went.

Do you remember those good juniors of 1920, chaps like Bergoine, Sheehan, Lawson, Collins, Jackson, Foley, Ranger and Edey? The intermediates of that period were Murray, Halpin, Harry and Pete Thornton, Lornie and Ray Rose, Jackson and Evans. Later on there were Lebarr, Howe, Dundas, Maudsley, Creighton, Dallin, McDougall—a great little performer — Legrow, Calladine and many more.

Hockey has always been popular since early settlers of the district played shinny on frozen ponds in the winter right down to the present. Peterborough has made its name known well throughout the province for more than 60 years in hockey circles, and it is a name well known today wherever the game is played. Many cities have heard that victory cry floating from bus windows of the Petes: "Ricketty-rackety-rumskull, rickety-rackety-roe, we're the boys you read about, we come from Peterborough; P-E-T-E-R-B-O-R-O, Peterborough!"

By CEC PERDUE

While Peterborough was prominent in the gridiron game for many years before the turn of the century, it was not until 1899 that the rugby Petes won a provincial title, taking the intermediate crown. They lost out 4-2 to Westmounts of Quebec in the Eastern Canada final that year. They won Ontario honors again in intermediate in the 1901 season and once more in 1902, having a powerful squad. In each case they lost out later to Quebec.

A senior provincial title came this way in 1907 but the strong Montrealers of the interprovincial union knocked the Petes off in the Eastern Canada final or the Dominion semi-final, since the ORFU winners played off then with the Big Four champions, as they still do today. Not since '07 has this city won an ORFU crown, though COSSA—high school—grid championships have come here frequently.

Different Sites

Various parks had been used for rugby football down through the years. The Cricket Grounds, Riverside, Exhibition Park, the Oval and other sites. Large crowds attended those games of 50 years and more ago as sports provided much of the entertainment of yesteryear. The big-shouldered men with moustaches —in many cases—played hard and wore few pads then. They played against district teams, squads from Kingston and Belleville, and from more distant centres, even in Montreal and Ottawa.

It was straight rugby then, first the flying wedges till those were outlawed as being too rough, and later the two bucks and a kick type. Kicking was highly important, as the forward pass was unknown. Brawn played a big part in early rugby in Peterborough, and many husky grandfathers of today delighted the girls of the Gay Nineties with their power on the gridiron.

Powerful Gene

Gene Hurtubise was as powerful an athlete as ever lived here and he played on those championship clubs. The tale is told of how he tricked Lou Marsh, sports editor of the Toronto Star, years ago. Lou was chatting with the local team on a train to Montreal and Gene said: "I'll just bet you $10, Lou, I can tell you the score of this game before it starts." Lou figured that was a good bet and took it, but he didn't like forking over when Gene said drily: "Before the game starts it'll be 0-0, Lou!"

Tom Colledge was a member of the 1907 senior Ontario champions, and a great kicker. Other ace booters of the old days in this town were Hal Burnham, a left-footed star of half a century back; and Ben Simpson, who shone later for Hamilton Tigers in the Big Four. Ross Craig was a great plunger who went to the Tigers later on and helped keep their name prominent.

One Of Best

Pete Campbell was one of the best, also, and Dick Sheehy and Frank Heffernan were outstanding here and in college, Dick being a scrappy and brilliant performer at Ottawa and Toronto before settling down to his dental business. Arthur Poe, a Princeton import of 40 years or so back, was another dandy footballer in the days of unpaved city streets and outdoor privies and such. And there were Jack Corkery and the Gonter boys.

But their name is legion, and many must be missed in a brief recounting of the Peterborough rugby football story. Dr. A. W. McPherson was a star, George

PETERBOROUGH'S LACROSSE HISTORY DATES BACK TO 1882

Teams Been Winning Titles For More Than 60 Years; Old Champions Are Recalled

By CEC PERDUF

Lacrosse is a popular sport in Peterborough today and has a big following, but it was a very prominent sport with practically the whole populace for a following when this town was quite young. Cricket may be the oldest organized sport played here, but lacrosse was not far behind Rugged field lacrosse it was, not the speedy boxla variety seen now.

Peterborough was winning titles in the gutted-stick game more than 60 years ago and travelling long distances in the process. Places like Brockville, Ottawa and Montreal. These were mighty long hauls in the horse-and-buggy days. They entailed overnight train trips and heavy expenses long before a dollar a day was considered good pay for the average working man.

It Was Different

There were no cars then and no paved highways. Indeed, no paved city streets. Trailing skirts stirred up the dust on boardwalks and the dryness of sandy George Street encouraged many a tavern in the downtown area. They didn't dream in those days of radio, talking movies and many other forms of present-day entertainment. But they had their fun, and sports flourished here as elsewhere. They trudged across the little bridge on Hunter St.—those moustached men of yesteryear—or perhaps could afford to ride in a hack to the Cricket Grounds to see many a stirring contest.

A large throng was at the Ashburnham P.A.A.A. grounds one October day in 1882 to see Peterborough play the famed Shamrock Club of Montreal, lacrosse champions. The town shut up shop, according to dusty files. The teams paraded from the City Hotel behind a band, the home team players being: George Giroux, Mike Halpin, Dod Fortye, Kit Rutherford, Billy Rudkins, Joe Joyal, A. King, Mike McDonald, Dr. A. Yelland, W. Morrow, J. Reynolds and the captain Harry LeBrun.

Treated Royally

The game started at 3.30 and Shamrocks got the first goal, but Rudkins finally flipped a long shot between the flags on the big field. Shamrocks got another later and the teams quit at 5.30 according to previous agreement with Montreal in front. The visitors were treated royally ere their departure. Shortly after, the local club gave a farewell dinner in the Choate House to Secretary William Baillie. President A. D Braithwaite was chairman, with other speakers being T Munro, J. R. Stratton and John Corkery.

In 188' the Petes played Ottawa, some of their other players being Percy Myles, Mike Tierney, Jack Howden W J. Scott, Jim Sheehy, Dick Kelly and a few more. They had lost by a goal here with Rudkins having his collarbone fractured and others cut up considerably. But they went back to Ottawa and won. Left the Russell House singing: "Goodbye My Lover Goodbye," the song hit of the time The Marquis of Lansdowne, Governor-General, faced the ball at 10.45 a.m and Ottawa scored first It see-sawed till Billy Scott put in the winner for Peterborough and the happy warriors rolled home at 6.45 next morning. Despite the hour, a big crowd and band met them and they paraded to the Windsor House for another celebration before going to work or homes.

Good Juniors

There was a good junior team here then, too, consisting of: Joe Phelan, J. Hall, P. Arrands, J. Canning, A. Rose, Frank Larone, F. Traynor, Wm. McAvella, T. Giroux, Joe and Bob Begley, and Harry Neil. Others playing around around then included: R Stevenson, J. Coughlin, W. Welsh, E. Rogers, Jack Shelvin, J. Carveth, A. Mooney, S. Heaps, H. Myers, D. Deyell, P. Moscrop and S. Wright.

It was mighty good lacrosse in this centre some half a century ago and after, with Dick Kelly able to join the senior Shamrocks of Montreal and star, and later Jack McCabe becoming an international star. Others, too, received offers to play in various cities and many accepted. Peterborough was known as the best lacrosse place within 100 miles Every cornerlot saw kids tearing around with lacrosse sticks, and most of the later stars were developed on these lots.

Won The Title

In '88 the Petes won the northeastern championship, beating out Brockville, Kingston and Ottawa. They had such players as Mike Halpin, George Jovles, Doc Brennan, Tom Meagher, Ab Rose, Father Joe Phelan Tom Duncan, J. Coughlin, John Donoghue, Frank Larone, Joe Begley and some more Dr. McGrath was club president. There were others about that time or later, like Jack Mein, Percy Rubidge, Ed Hickey, Billie Borland, George Lipsett, the two McCabe boys, Fred Lynch, Walter (Scuddy) Phelan, a young fellow named Rollie Glover and so on.

On more than one occasion visiting teams had to hike fast for the railway coaches as angry fans followed with elderly eggs and even stones The Petes, too, had to run for it on more than one occasion in Orillia, Port Hope or elsewhere as the feeling was high in hot lacrosse matches of that era.

Among Stars

Don Hogarth, later Brigadier-General and Conservative member for Port Arthur, starred for Peterborough along with Jim Mooney, an import. Dr. Vic Hamilton also played. And Lionel King, one of the greatest all-around athletes ever developed here. Club officers of this 1897 team were Mayor A L. Davis, Dr McGrath and Fred Sullivan.

Just before the century turn, Peterborough had another ace lacrosse squad made up of: Goal, Dobbin; point, Brown; cover point, Borland; 1st defence, Mein; 2nd defence, Glover; 3rd defence, King; centre, Galley; 3rd home, McCabe, 2nd home, Lipsett; inside home, McCabe; field captain, Begley; umpires were R. F. McWilliams and F. Might.

Game Flourished

Through the first two decades, field lacrosse flourished here, being played on various sites. Dillon, Meagher, Hurtubise, McPherson, Deannard, McCoy and a whole lot of stars paraded down the years and kept the sport very much alive in this growing city But the game gradually diminished some in popularity as war came and more cars and cottages came into use, and the picture houses drew their share, and finally the radio became common It eventually folded up completely a little more than 20 years ago. That was the end of field lacrosse —not only here but everywhere.

But lacrosse was not dead, not by any means. It just changed over to meet changing times. The tempo of living had stepped up after the jazzy decade of the 20s. So lacrosse was jazzed up, too, and it was played under the lights. A smaller field was used with fewer players in action at a time but everyone travelling fast when out there. It was the birth of box lacrosse and Peterborough was right on the band wagon at its birth. Boxla started here in 1931, one year after it was introduced in Canada. And it was still the national game, an offshoot of the sport started hundreds of years ago by the Indians in what is now Canada.

Promoted Boxla

Doug Miller and Pete King were among the promoters of boxla in this city. Johnny Sutherland, Jack Creighton, Bud Fisher Ches Mowry and others helped organize it, and early players along with King and Miller included Red Creighton, Ira Dundas, Fred Goodfellow, Mick Magee, Goalie Meyette, Fred Shaw, Red Dallin, Buster Whitton, Shine Bovin and so on. They played for a time in the old Brock St. rink and one season reached provincial semi-finals and another year got to the finals. They were good.

A few years before the war, the bunch built an outdoor box with lights opposite the George St. wharf and they drew large crowds until war broke up the game. The box was torn down and lacrosse was forgotten for the duration. But these doughty chaps went to work when peace arrived and built another and better box on the same property. And they won two provincial senior "B" titles in a row. With Red Creighton coaching and few of the veterans still active but many newcomers like the Breakspear and the Vitarelli brothers, the Creightons, Arn Dugan, Barney Dundas, Farmer Connelly, Rowan Chute and Mick Magee among the vets, Terry Gordon for a year, Ron Horton, Pup Curtin, Jack Foote, and the rest.

Goes Senior "A"

With no more worlds to conquer in senior "B", the Petes stepped up last year to senior "A", drawing huge crowds all along till they lost out in quarter-final playoffs. This year they have bolstered and are making a good showing in the stiff "A" competition with Ralph Speck, Jerry Fitzgerald, Pup Curtin, Don Ashbee, Arn Dugan, Bob Thorpe, Jim Kinna, Russ Buchanan, Dootch Vitarelli, Mick Magee, the Breakspears, Em Creighton, Wendell Lewis and several others.

Red Creighton is coach again with Pete King manager as Paul Irwin heads a good working executive. Ken Kingston heads a large minor lacrosse association here, where Jerry Fitzgerald is chief coach. This PMLA handles up to 400 boys and promises to provide Peterborough with senior lacrosse stars for many years to come. That, in brief, is the story —a success story—of the gutted-stick game in Peterborough.

LOOK—NO PARKING METERS! Those indeed were the good old days—you didn't have to fight with a machine for the privilege of half-an-hour's parking, and if you wanted to park on the wrong side of the street, you could do it. Witness the two gentlemen who have their carriages pointing in what would now be the wrong way. The blurs on the sidewalk are not spirit images, but the result of a time exposure. The location? This picture was taken about 1890, looking south at the west side of George St. from Hunter. Building at the right is much the same, except that T. Dolan no longer deals in drygods on the bottom floor. Streets and sidewalks have improved.

CHARLOTTE AND REID STREETS in 1856 looked like this. The house above was owned by the Rev. Vincent Clementi and was situated on the present southwest corner. There were only one or two houses in the block at that time and the rest of the land was filled up with cedars and other trees.

First Rugby

MacDonald was another, Jack Sullivan a fine competitor, and such huskies as Dillon, Deannard, Meagher, Crowley and a whole lot more will be remembered by the oldtimers as among the best gridders ever to perform in Peterborough livery.

Played Senior

Just before the last war, this city went in for senior ORFU play again, but the war ruined things when the local Orfuns were building up for serious contenders. Some of the players graduated to senior ranks in other bigger cities, fellows like Leo Deadey, Les Ascott, Pup Curtin, Mick Magee, Mike Loucks, Don Crowe, Jerry Creighton and others. They had some real footballers as well in Harry Marsh, Jack Kirkwood, Curly Krug, Bill Irwin, Hendry, Haig Kelly, Don Hendren and more.

Collegiate rugby for many years has been tops in this city. H. R. H. Kenner always encouraged it at PCI and those teams have taken many interscholastic crowns for decades. Coaches like C. S. Browne, Ernie Legon, Harv. Bamforth and lately Bev Goulding and Alex Londry, have piloted winning teams in provincial competition, usually proving much too strong for district groupings.

So Many Stars

It would require far too much space to list most of the stars in high school football here through the many autumns of the past. Dozens of names come to mind, but it is unfair to pick some and miss others, to name more recent stars and forget great players of the past, particularly in PCI rugby history, as it is more recent than the ORFU play of more than half a century back. Suffice to say, the Garnet and Gray has made a big contribution to the sport in Peterborough, and is continuing to do so with winning teams right up to the present and prospects bright for this coming campaign.

That, in brief, is an outline of the gridiron game in this city. They played it hard and successfully when present young fellows' grandmothers were young, and they are playing it well today both in COSSA competition and in ORFU. They now have lights for night contests in Morrow Park, many rules have changed down the years, but football is still football with its great autumnal appeal to redblooded players and grid followers.

FIRST ARRIVAL

Admiral Robert E. Peary reached the North Pole April 6, 1909.

what a magnificent Century it has been...

A century of progress and achievement . . . a century that has seen the development of Peterborough from a 'stumbling backwoods village' to an enviable position amongst the cities of our Dominion.

We too have been proud to play a part in its development. Our founding fifty years ago by the late Wm. P. Adamson and the late Lewis G. Dobbin brought with it an ideal . . . an ideal based on safeguarding the health and providing comfort and convenience to this community. Today this ideal is still proudly maintained and we look forward to being of service to Peterborough in the years to come in the field of sanitation, healthful heating and industrial application.

MANY ROUSING BASEBALL GAMES PLAYED ON CRICKET GROUNDS

One-Arm Dan McCabe Knew No Diamond Peer In His Day Good Pitcher, Fielder, Hitter

By CEC PERDUE

"Take Me Out to the Ball Park, Take Me Out to the Game," used to be a popular number, sung many years ago in the town which is called after Peter Robinson. It is still heard today over the PA system at Riverside Park, and that is as it should be. Because baseball was a highly popular sport in the dim and distant past around here, just as it is now.

The diamond sport was played here before sports stories received any amount of publicity in the weekly of its day. It was popular, too, when the daily Examiner gave scant reports on sports for the busy settlers in the small town of Peterborough back in the 60s and 70s. True, it was not baseball then as we know it today. In fact, many claim it was a type of rounders imported from the British Isles. But it was baseball, a game which has seen many changes in rules in succeeding decades.

Various numbers played the first version of baseball and often rules were made up just before a match started. Catchers in bygone years didn't have masks, pads and gloves—they stayed well back of the batter and took the ball on the bounce. It is said that Chris Graham learned to catch in this manner many years ago, though he later moved up toward the plate as the game became more streamlined.

The first organized baseball reported in Peterborough was in the late 80s and through the 90s when folks drove in buggies across the bridge to the village of Ashburnham. There, many a rousing contest was staged on the old Cricket Grounds, now a quiet residential street known as Cricket Place, running off Driscoll Terrace a short block north of Hunter St. It was, of course, a spacious field at that time.

The Great Dan

It was then that one-armed Dan McCabe was winning fame all over this part of the province for his pitching. He was a great pitcher—oldtimers agree—and also a good fielder and hitter, despite his handicap. A big man and a natural athlete, he knew no diamond peer in his day, and he was so popular he might well have been elected mayor in the 90s had he been interested. The same Dan, who died only a few years ago, maintained his interest in baseball to the end. A year before his death, he said that the outfield of Les Burton, Tommy Foley and Chuck Kearns—when in their prime in the middle 30s—was the best he had ever seen in Peterborough.

There were quite a few log houses about the town—which did not spread nearly as far as today's city does—back in the 70s and 80s. They didn't have movies then, nor cars, nor radios, nor summer cottages. One travelled afoot or by horse-drawn vehicles on board walks or dusty roads. They didn't even have furnaces or modern toilet conveniences. But they had fun—and great-grandfather will sigh for those good old days.

They Had Fun

They had their square dances, their church lawn socials, their bar-rooms—and they outnumbered the churches at one time here—and they had their sports. They really went for sports in those days, and a keen ball game on a hot summer afternoon was a most popular event. Large bets, for those days, were laid and local winning players were idolized and feted afterward. It meant a lot in the community to be a star athlete.

Art Johnston, proprietor of the Windsor House, was prominent in organizing baseball in the city during the first decade of this century. He had a team in the old Midland League, a fore-runner to the Central Ontario League. The odd import might arrive by train and turn out with the team, and inquisitive opposing clubs would be informed that "he's just a boy we found playing ball out around Warsaw". Rules were strict then but some smart fellow could always get around them.

Pro Ball Comes

It was shortly before the First World War—it was 1914, remember?—when the pros moved in here. They had some good local backers and it was about Class "A" ball in its professional day, the old Canadian Pro League. Urban Shocker, who later pitched for New York Yankees, was with Ottawa in this circuit and several more moved up later. Stan Cresswell was a local product out with the team, and old Knotty Lee was manager for a time in this setup, though not with Peterborough.

Middle-aged citizens today may recall going over to Riverside after school was out and getting in free after the seventh inning—it was worth it, too. One saw Schettler, Tracy, Miller, Blount, Byrnes, Faux, King and the rest in earnest action and it was mighty good baseball. But the blinkin' war came, the Germans figuring the time was ripe to take over the world. Just as they did in 1939. That ended ball here for four years.

Started COBL

It was after the war that Jake Solomon decided on a new amateur senior baseball setup for Peterborough, and he did a lot toward organizing the Central Ontario Baseball League. He put it over, too, and was made an OBAA member, later rising to a vice-president of the provincial body before he retired. Edgar Worth, Ward Patterson, Gordon Mattews and later Nagle Phelan were also prominent in the re-organization period shortly after.

The Petes came up with some fine teams during 1919 and the early 20s. Some of the players at that time were Stan Lowe, Nagle Phelan, Howard Kirn, Lornie Rose, Mickey Murray, Roy Cherrett, Abbie Rose, Jack McCarney, Bob Ross, Hap Harrison, Mac Guerin, Adams, Wolff, Jim Hall, Max Swanston, Al Heckman, Tommy Holyman, Mike Sheehy, Ansaldo, Camolli and a whole lot of others. And later Hardill, Whitehouse, etc.

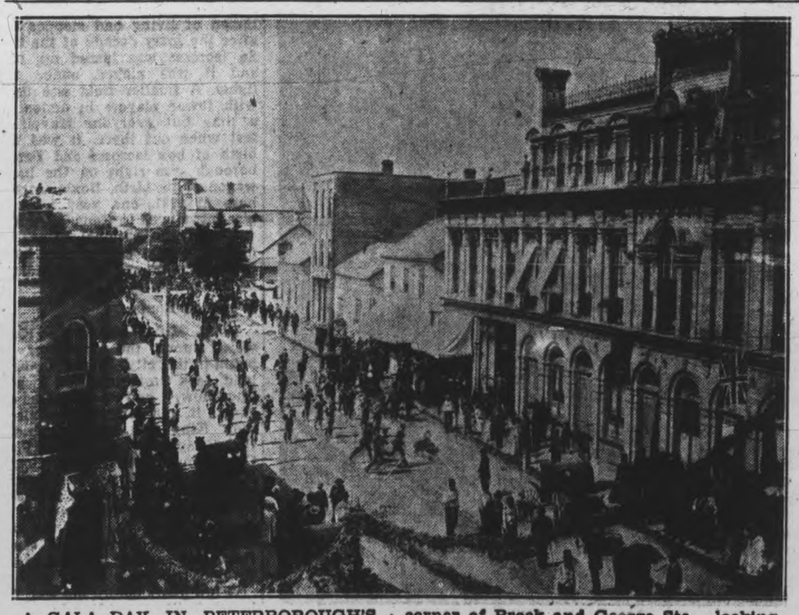
Dunk The Umps

Oldtimers will remember the day in the early 20s when Belleville Nationals were playing the Petes on July 1 here, with Goyer opposing Rose on the mound. A nifty 12-inning thriller, but police had to act fast to halt local rooters who swarmed on the field once and were toting the Belleville umpire toward the river to dunk him. That wasn't uncommon when Jake Solomon and Walt Gerow had their teams fighting fiercely and the only law observed was "survival of the fittest".

The game declined in the late 20s and senior ball died out for a time, only the East Peterborough League—four intermediate clubs—operating. It revived in 1931 with the pick of the intermediates forming a fair club in a revived COBL. Art Primeau and Shiner Johnston managed for a time, and later Josh Craig and Fred Collins. But Knotty Lee was brought in for three years and he put the game over again. He had such players as Foley, Burton, Kearns, Murphy, Ash, Scully, Konopka, Batten, Calladine, Whatley, Kitchen, Deyell, Murray, and various others during his managerial term. Hugh Campbell was president then with Vern Dawson, Pete Lang, Jack Sullivan, Ed Riley, George Hewitt, Vic Hamilton, Jim Dorris, Cyril Giroux, Max Swanston and others on the executive. Minor ball was well looked after, too.

Eddie In Charge

Eddie Murphy returned from a stretch of minor pro ball in Ogdensburg in the late 30s to pilot the Petes, and has been doing that ever since—apart from his service overseas when senior ball was dormant here in the last war. He has kept the game going in the city both in the COBL and in the Toronto Viaduct League. And he has worked hard to get floodlights into Riverside Park (an accomplished fact) this year to keep the scientific and popular game of baseball one of the major summer sports in Peterborough, as it was so many, many years ago.



A GALA DAY IN PETERBOROUGH'S HISTORY was this one. The picture was taken from a building on the southwest corner of Brock and George Sts., looking north. It is not known what the occasion was, but the number of bands, etc., suggest a military parade or July 12.

UK Commodore Now Retires

SOUTHAMPTON, England —(CP)— Captain Charles Musgrave Ford, commodore of the Cunard-White Star fleet, has just retired after an eventful 38-year career on the world's sea routes.

His ocean-going days ended when the Queen Elizabeth, the 83,673-ton Atlantic passenger ship, docked at Southampton from New York June 6, ending his term as master of the world's largest liner.

Ford has been in merchant navy service since 1912, with time out during both the First and Second World Wars for duties with the Royal Navy.

During the later part of the Second World War he commanded the Queen Elizabeth and the 81,135-ton Queen Mary in their vital role as transports for Allied forces. From the outbreak of the war in 1939 until 1942 he was in naval service.

Since the war he has been master in turn of the Mauretania, the Aquitania and both the Queens.

He started his sea service as a junior fourth officer in the old liner, Caronia.

200 MILITIAMEN VOLUNTEERED IN THE REBELLION OF 1837

Citizen-Trained Soldiers Played Prominent Part In All Of Canada's Wars

By DAVID WHITE

When rebellion broke out in Upper Canada in December 1837 the Peterborough militia mustered nearly 200 strong in less than 24 hours. Under the command of Col. Alexander McDonnel and Captain Cowall the volunteers set out for the "front."

It was a brave undertaking; for unlike campaigns these days it meant extreme hardship for those left behind. Preparations for the winter were incomplete: the family wood supply and the store of provisions were "scanty" in many instances.

Actually the volunteers were never in combat. The "rebels" of William Lyon McKenzie were dispersed before the locals got any further than Port Hope.

The alertness and enthusiasm of the Peterborough militia was symbolic of sacrifices that the later soldiery of this district were prepared to make. The same spirit existed among the volunteers who helped repel the Fenian invaders, fought in the North West Rebellion and the Nile Expedition, the South African War and the two World Wars.

After demobilization at the end of the Napoleonic Wars many officers and other ranks were given grants of land in Upper Canada. A strong military feeling existed among the emigrants and it took only a little while for them to form detached units in various localities.

Early Drilling

One historian recounts, rather stiffly, that for many years the militia of the town and county met annually at Major Charles Anderson's on the north shore of Rice Lake for "training."

The drill was elementary and consisted mainly of teaching the volunteers to form in double column, as well as answer the muster call of their several companies.

But then as now some of the trainees apparently took advantage of the fact they were away from their womenfolk for a few days. And at the drop of a cork they were ready to break open a bottle or two.

"Drinking and dissipation not unusally followed, and formed no small portion of the apparent duties of the day," says Thomas W. Poole, MD.

When His Excellency Sir Francis Bond Head (nicknamed "bonehead" by some irreverent wag of the time) issued the call to arms in December 1837, the response was immediate.

Before the outbreak some 250 muskets, with flint locks and bayonets had been sent to Peterborough. These were issued to the volunteers, but the majority—most of them marksmen from the bush country—carried their own guns or rifles.

There was no prepared ammunition. Some of the more ingenius manufactured their own cartridges and others equipped themselves with ball and shot before starting their march.

The loyal militamen soon found that the "rebels"—the immediate enemy—were the least of their worries.

Sir Francis Bond Head—probably the worst governor in Canadian history—was the No. 1 opponent of responsible government. The people existed for the government rather than the government for the people, as contended.

This blimpish attitude, the main cause of the rebellion percolated down through the governing hierarchy, including the military "brass." Ironically enough, among the victims were the very men who volunteered to defend the regime.

Arbitrary Rule

Historian Poole has a few sharp things to say on this:

"The trials of the hour were increased by the arbitary measures and unnecessary severity exercised by some of those who found themselves 'clothed with a little brief authority'," he said.

"Men who happened to be at a little distance from their homes were refused permission to visit their families to effect a change of clothing, or make even the most temporary arrangement of their affairs. If they demurred, they were threatened with imprisonment or confiscation of their properties."

It speaks well of the resoluteness of the local militiamen that despite the undemocratic policy of the government and their own shabby treatment by the senior "brass" they remained loyal. And so did the whole town and county, with but a few exceptions.

By the time the militiamen reached Port Hope they were about 1,000 strong. There they hoped to board the steamer "Traveller" on her way to Toronto. Because of some miscalculation the steamer kept to her course despite the firing of guns and other signals. The volunteers had just about made up their minds they were going to have to footslog it to Toronto when a dispatch arrived telling of the scattering of the "rebels" and permitting them to go home.

Apart from a detachment sent into the Lindsay area (in the vain hope of capturing the rebel leaders) this ended the first phase of the rebellion.

But within a couple of weeks, because of the occupation of Navy Island by the rebels and American sympathizers, the militia were called out again.

A battalion under Col. Brown was ordered to march to Toronto for active servcie. About 800 militiamen from Otonabee, Douro, Dummer, and Asphodel assembled in Peterborough.

After a night's billeting the 350 most active were issued with muskets, haversacks and other equipment and after officers were selected they started off. The remainder were left behind as a reserve under Col. Crawford.

Five days later they arrived in Toronto and after a day's rest were inspected and complimented by Governor Bond Head himself.

A new battalion known as the "Queen's Own was formed from a number of battalions in Toronto. Those included in the unit served on the frontier till the following May when they were discharged and the battalion disbanded. The others were allowed to return home immediately.

In November 1838 the 7th Provisional Battalion of Peterborough was formed, consisting of county volunteers. This unit was formed after a rebel expedition had been aimed at Prescott and other attacks threatened from the frontier.

The 7th, later consolidated into a regiment, consisted of six companies of 50 men, under Co. Alexander McDonell and Major Cowall. They continued drilling and other active service duties in Peterborough until discharged in May 1839.

First military unit inside what is now the city of Peterborough Rifle Company," the forerunner of the 57th Regiment Peterborough Rangers, organized in 1857.

Because of considerable interest in this Company it was expanded. Other companies were formed and began training at Ashburnham and Lakefield. The Peterborough campany became a rifle unit, Ashburnham an infantry unit and Lakefield a light infantry unit.

The Fenian Raid and the period of emergency in 1865-66 spurred the militia into action once again. In June three officers and 50 other ranks left to take part in repelling the Fenian Raid.

Then on the 8th of May, 1867 the Canada Gazette authorized formation of the 57th Battalion of Infantry—consisting of seven companies organized in the following localities:

Two infantry and one rifle company from Peterborough; a light infantry company from Ashburnham; an infantry company from Lakefield; and other infantry companies from Norwood and Hastings.

Lt.-Col. Edwin Poole was the first commanding officer.

In 1886 the 57th Battalion was reorganized as a city unit under command of Lt.-Col. J. Z. Rogers.

ONLY 20 YEARS AGO the southwest corner of George and Charlotte Sts. looked like this, for this picture was taken just before the Eaton store was built. Right on the corner was the Moore Monumental Works while immediately south was the wholesale and retail of John Hill.

A short time later a presentation of North West Rebellion medals was made to seven members of the unit who served in the North West Rebellion. And still later 18 received medals for participation in the Nile Expedition.

Volunteers again served with distinction as members of the first and second contingent of troops in the South African War 1899-1902. The first detachment left Peterborough in October 1899 and the second in January 1900. They were joined at the railway station by officers and other ranks of the 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons.

In 1900 the battalion became known as the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers and that same year honored the returning veterans of the South African War.

New colors were presented in 1904 and in May of this year they passed through the streets of Peterborough—probably for the last time—to be deposited for safe keeping in St. John's Church.

(Subsequent re-organization of the Canadian army caused the Rangers to become a heavy anti-aircraft regiment and an artillery unit, according to military tradition, does not have military colors.)

A milestone in the life of the Battalion was when the present armouries was offically opened in April 1908 by the Minister of Militia, Sir Frederick W. Borden. Prior to the laying of the corner stone the men were inspected by Sir Frederick in Central Park. The 57th Regiment and the 24th Field Battery saluted him as he arrived.

There was a guard of honor numbering 120 men under Captain Mills, Capt. Housell and F. Neal. And there were some 30 members of the Fenian Raids.

The old drill shed was the first home of the Peterborough militia, and was the roof over the heads of trainees for 42 years. Among some of the outside regiments that were received in the historic old drill shed were the Queen's Own of Toronto, the Governor General's Footguard of Ottawa (twice), the 15th Regiment of Belleville.

The most distinguished soldier that visited it was Lord Dundonald, veteran of Ladysmith, who was in Peterborough for the presentation of the regimental colors. It was the scene of recruiting for the South African War and the Northwest Rebellion and was associated with the military life of Peterborough for more than 40 years.

In 1910 the new armouries were completed and occupied.

When King Edward VII died in 1910 and again at the coronation of King George V in 1911 some ranks made the journey to Great Britain to participate.

In June 1912 the regiment was allied with the Duke of Cambridge's Own Middlesex Regiment. And a new company.

Then came the First World War 1914-18 which gave the militia an opportunity for active service.

The first contingent left Peterborough in August 1914, for Valcartier camp and eventually became a company of the 2nd Battalion, CEF, under command of Major G. Bennett. They took part in the heavy battles at Langemark and the 2nd Battle of Ypres.

Numerous drafts were recruited through the ranks of the regiment and units such as the 21st, 39th, 59th and 80th Battalions received their overseas quotas.

In 1915 Peterborough raised its own infantry battalion for overseas service and the 93rd Battalion was formed with the late Lt.-Col. T. J. Johnston commanding. Previously he had commanded the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons.

Drafts to other units followed and finally the 247th Battalion was raised in this area under the command of Lt.-Col. C. H. Ackerman. Lt.-Col. Ackerman had originally gone overseas with the first contingent in 1914, was seriously wounded in Festubert, Belgium, and returned to Canada for further service.

After the First World War the men returned to civil life and the local regiment experienced a long period when little interest was shown in it by either its former members or the general public. Consequently the training of units between 1920 and 1936 was carried on under considerable difficulties.

In 1920 the unit was changed to the Peterborough Rangers, 9th Infantry Brigade, and this allowed it to perpetuate the 2nd Battalion, CEF, and carry its battle honors on the colors. The 2nd and 3rd Reserve Battalions perpetuated the 93rd and 247th Battalions.

Also a new unit was brought to Peterborough known as "C" Company, the 4th Canadian Machine Gun Battalion.

The rising danger in Europe caused a drastic re-organization to begin in the Canadian militia. In October 1936 Lt. Col. J. A.

CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATES WON 15 OF 22 ELECTIONS SINCE 1867

Party Rivalry and Vigilance Been Sharply Manifested Since Days of Confederation

By HARRY THEOBALD

In the 83 years since Confederation, Peterborough West has elected twelve members of the Parliament. Seven were Conservatives and five Liberals.

Peterborough West, as it is now constituted, comprises the townships of North Monaghan, South Monaghan, Smith, Ennismore, Douro, Galway, Cavendish, Harvey, Otonabee and the City of Peterborough.

The list of the members of Parliament for this constituency since 1867, with party identification and majorities, follows:

1867—Charles Perry (Con) 30
1872—John Bertram (Lib) .. 40
1874—John Bertram 91
1878—George Hilliard (Con) 197
1884—George Hilliard 160
1887—James Stevenson (Con) 16
1891—James Stevenson 232
1896—James Kendry (Con) . 313
1900—James Kendry 351
1904—R. R. Hall (Lib) 187
1908—James R. Stratton (Lib) 333
1911—J. Hampden Burnham (Con) 42
1917—J. H. Burnham (Union) 3418
1921—G. N. Gordon (Lib) ..1284
1921—G. N. Gordon 2158
1925—E. A. Peck (Con) 1963
1926—E. A. Peck 2109
1930—E. A. Peck 1761
1935—J. J. Duffus (Lib) 1685
1940—G. K. Fraser (Con) .. 178
1945—G. K. Fraser 2768
1949—G. K. Fraser .....

That brief tabulation calls up from record and memory the periodic excitements and tensions of partisan controversy within the democratic procedure of establishing and continuing the British system of representative government.

A Mould Which Was Followed

The principle and the pattern were at hand when the writs were issued for the first general election after Confederation, and in its general features that federal campaign fixed the form by which a free people exercised their suffrage. If hardly a model, at least it was a mould which the country has retained with deepening respect for the medium of the ballot. Innovations have been largely mechanical and on the plane of facility in addressing the electorate, and particularly in bringing the affairs of government and the administration of the nation's business closer than ever to the ultimate citizen.

Following Confederation on July 1, 1867, the date of the first general elections was announced; official nominations were filed on August 26, and polling was on two days,—Sept. 2 and 3.

In Peterborough West Charles Perry, Conservative nominee, defeated John Gordon, Liberal, by 682 to 652, a majority of 30 votes.

Party rivalry and vigilance were just as sharply manifested 80 years ago, as it has been ever since. Political spirit, like men themselves, changes but little.

In the elections of 1872, the Peterborough candidates were William Cluxton, Conservative, and John Bertram, Liberal. Both were prominent in the old town of Victorian days.

Election Protested

Bertram won by a majority of 40 votes, but his election was protested on the ground that he did not comply with the demand for his qualifications that was made on him at the nominations. So, Mr. Cluxton was declared elected.

By that time the British North America Act was adjusting the four provinces, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario, into their new relationship. Nova Scotia appealed to the Mother Country for release from the provincial family, in a reaction of pique and disappointment, but British sentiment was strongly in favor of the new federal union.

In Peterborough West the electors had quickly settled into the political routine. The Conservatives nominated W. H. Scott, a lawyer, in 1874, but Bertram repeated his victory by a majority of 92.

John Bertram was in the hardware business here, and later went to Toronto and opened a store on Yonge St., finally switching to the lumber industry.

His home was west of Jackson Park. One of his daughters married Thomas Bradshaw who served Toronto so efficiently as its municipal treasurer and financial adviser.

One-Time Mayor

A grandson of John Bertram is still living in Peterborough. Charles Perry, the first elected representative of the riding, was at one time Mayor of Peterborough. Many citizens will probably remember his daughter as a teacher at Central School years ago.

Conservatives were strongly fortified with candidates, and after W. H. Scott, who later went to Winnipeg, they brought out George Hilliard in 1878. At that time John A. Macdonald was advocating his national policy and beginning his long administration until his death in 1891.

Hilliard defeated Bertram by 971-874, and six years later, in 1884, he turned back the threat of the next Liberal, John J. Lundy, by 1036-876.

Operated Lumber Mill

George Hilliard operated a lumber mill at the west side of the Auburn dam, opposite the Auburn Woollen Mills of which James Kendry, another Conservative leader, and a subsequent member of parliament was owner. The Hilliard home was at the southwest corner of Langton and Water Sts., on the slope of the hill down from the Queen Mary Hospital, and with a broad view of the river.

The city bought the Hilliard Farm probably 25 or 30 years ago. The Isolation Hospital is on its north boundary and Anson House on the south.

John J. Lundy's home was at the northeast corner of Maria and Burnham Sts., overlooking Little Lake. A few years ago it was converted into apartments. It must have been a beautiful domestic estate in the years before the C.P.R. was laid past its doors, but during the depression years it had become so fallen into ruin that it became a shelter for homeless men wandering this way in quest of work.

George Cox A Candidate

The election of 1887 brought out George A. Cox for the Reform or Liberal party and James Stevenson as the Conservative candidate. Cox was the outstanding citizen of Peterborough, on his way to a high financial position in Canada, and eventually the first Senator from this town. He became a wealthy and influential citizen and was head of the Midland Railway Company.

Mr. Stevenson was a local power, mayor of the town, engaged in the hardware business on George St. That election, it is said, was one of the most strenuously contested in the old riding when the total number of qualified electors was comparatively small.

Stevenson won a majority of 22, which was reduced to 16 in a recount a month later. He retained the seat for the Conservative party in 1891, defeating Richard Hall by 1447-1215.

Mr. Hall was for many years a drygoods merchant of the firm of Hall, Innis Company, on Simcoe St. Most of that building is now owned and occupied by Elim Tabernacle. For years it was one of the leading stores of Peterborough.

The Hall residence was on the west side of Water St., at Argyle St. It was an attractive, gracious home with a semicircular carriage entrance.

Richard Hall was for years chairman of the board of management of Nicholls Hospital. His old home is now owned by Robert Tedford of Norwood. As the years go by bringing about many changes of residence and family within a community, it is altogether appropriate and rather ironic that the home of Richard Hall is now a residence for nurses of Civic Hospital, to be vacated soon when the hospital service, and its accommodation for nurses is transferred to the new institution on the west side of the city.

First Three-cornered Fight

The federal election of June 23, 1896 brought James Kendry, head of the Auburn Woollen Mills, into the field as a new leader of the Conservative party in Peterborough West. Richard Hall again represented the Liberals, and Robert C. Newman, grand organizer of the True Blues, a branch of the Orange Order, was nominated as an Independent. Officers of that temporary party included Robert Weir, J. H. Cobb, John Sawers and W. A. Shaw.

W. H. Moore, KC, who was prominent as a barrister and also as a member of the Utilities Commission, was president of the Conservative Association.

James Stevenson wrote Mr Moore to the effect that he was not satisfied with the unanimity of the vote in the party primary May 15 which renewed his nomination.

Mr. Stevenson had been chosen by a small majority over T. Evans Bradburn, who later became member of the Ontario Legislature.

A thoroughly representative meeting of Conservatives in Bradburn's Opera House, May 20, transferred the party banner to Mr. Kendry. The vote at the polls was: Kendry 1,485; Hall, 1,166; Newman, 622.

In that campaign, it is recalled, Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, the new leader of the federal Liberals, spoke at a mass meeting in the skating rink on Charlotte St. He was accompanied by Hon. George W. Ross, who succeeded Hon. Arthur S. Hardy as Premier of Ontario in 1899.

Sir John A. Macdonald, the great Conservative Prime Minister and designer and inspirer of Confederation, had died in 1891, and was succeeded by Sir Charles Tupper. Sir Charles visited Peterborough June 18, 1896, five days after Laurier, and addressed a great Conservative gathering in the old armouries, a huge wooden building that was subsequently destroyed by fire.

James Kendry won the riding again in 1900, defeating J. Harris McClellan by 351. The Liberal representative was the father of J. Arthur McClellan, and was in business as head of the People's Coal Company.

Named To Senate

George A. Cox was appointed to Senate in 1896, and was guest of a congratulatory dinner at the Empress Hotel, Dec. 23. Conservatives joined with Liberals in their tribute to the citizen who was deeply interested in the industrial progress of Peterborough, and had an influential hand in bringing to town the Edison Electrical Company, which developed into the Canadian General Electrical Company and one of the great industries of Canada.

It is said of Senator Cox that he was too busy to be keenly disappointed with a political reverse at the polls, but it appeared to be evident in later years that when his sons left Peterborough they did not return.

Trent Canal Long Promised

Through the 80's and 90's, Peterborough and other constituencies in the Trent watershed had been advocating and agitating for construction of the long proposed canal from Trenton to Georgian Bay.

Surveys had been projected through this district, and men like Stevenson and Kendry had been urging the local claims at Ottawa. In the campaign early in 1891, a telegram was received here from Sir John A. Macdonald at Kingston: "The Trent Canal commissioners having reported favorably on the completion of the scheme, Parliament will be asked in the estimates next sesssion for a grant for that purpose."

The story of the construction of the liftlock at Peterborough is too long except for passing reference. Mr. R. B. Rogers, an experienced engineer of Peterborough, was sent to Europe to examine two or three locks which were expected to provide a model for the lifts at Peterborough and Kirkfield.

The local contract was let to Cory & Laverdure, of Ottawa. Much of the rough labor was done by Italians who were not long out from the Mediterranean.

In the 1904 elections in which R. R. Hall wrested the riding for the Liberals from James Kendry by 2,467-2,280, a majority of 187, some of the Liberal workers are said to have lined up a group of canal employees to make sure they went to the polls, and presumably to vote "right."

In the sting of that loss, Conservatives for months afterward tried to associate discredit for that manoeuvre with Hall himself.

Conservatives had monopolized Peterborough West for 26 years. Laurier had attained leaderhsip of the government in 1896, but in this riding the Conservative momentum from the time of Hilliard, Stevenson and Kendry extended into the ranks of the opposition until Robert Roger Hall terminated that long tenure.

Others proposed at the Liberal convention were George M. Roger, later appointed judge at Cobourg, and R. F. McWilliams, the present Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba.

In Parliament, Mr. Hall was among his peers, and has been regarded as one of the most energetic representatives Peterborough had sent to Ottawa up to that time.

Citizen-Trained

Dewart, commanding the 4th CMG Battalion, ordered him to merge the Peterborough Rangers, 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons and "C" Company, 4th MG Battalion into a new regiment, the Prince of Wales (MG) Peterborough Regiment.

Col. Dewart was succeeded by Lt.-Col. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, MC, in 1938. And when the Second World War broke out in September 1939 practically all ranks were qualified in machine gunnery. With the war continuous training began.

During the winter months many of the officers and other ranks became restless because their unit was not mobilized. Other units that benefited were the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment of the 1st Division; Canadian Active Service Force, the RCN and the RCAF.

In June 1940 the OC was instructed to mobilize headquarters and HQ Company from the regiment for the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders. Only a handful of the regiment remained as most of them volunteered.

This necessitated another reorganization and Col. Dewart was again called on to submit a slate of officers and bring the regiment up to war establishment. Again this was done in three weeks and shortly afterwards went to camp 550 strong.

LITTLE KNOWN EVENTS IN LOCAL HISTORY: Although it had been a subject of discussion for many years it was not until 1904 that Ashburnham (popularly known as "The Scotch Village") was united with Irish Peterborough. This happy consummation was brought about only after statesmanlike deliberations comparable to those attending the entry of Newfoundland into the Confederation. The scene above represents the rejoicing as the two factions meet upon the bridge across the Otonabee; rejoicing and mutual congratulation have continued ever since. Failed To Get Nomination

Whatever happened within the inner councils of the Liberal party in this riding, Hall was not renominated in 1908. The party choice was J. R. Stratton, who had been provincial secretary in the Ross government of Ontario. In 1903, Stratton was implicated in a charge of bribery alleged by R. R. Gamey, Conservative member for Manitoulin. William H. Price, of Toronto Parkdale, afterwards provincial treasurer, claimed to have overheard the deal, hiding behind a piano box.

Gamey is said to have let the impression circulate among his friends that he had deserted his party. Finally, the story broke in the press headlines, Stratton eventually retired, and the long administration of the Ross government ended in the election of brought James Whitney into the provincial Conservative premiership. As suggesting his rugged character some one coined the phrase, "Bold enough to be honest, and honest enough to be bold." Whitney is reputed to have held a tight rein on his cabinet.

In the Hall vs. Kendry election of 1904, Laurier spoke here in the cause of the government, and Robert Laird Borden, then approaching national leadership of the Conservative party, appeared on the Kendry platform. Actually Borden accepted leadership in January 1905.

J. R. Stratton retained the riding for the government in 1908, defeating John Hampden Burnham by 2851-2518, a majority of 333

The officers of the Liberal party in the spring o. 1900 were: Hon Presidents R. R. Hall and J. R. Stratton; president Peter Hamilton; vice-president A. J. Gough and George E. Elliott; secretary-treasurer, George M. Roger.

Robert E. Layfield was active in organizing the Young Conservative Club in 1905 and was elected its president. Harry Morgan, an employee of the Peterborough Canoe Company, and later an alderman, was vice-president; and William A. Brundrett was secretary.

Federal Conservative officers in 1907 were; Pres. James Kendry; vice-president Harry Phelan; secretary-treas. Roland M Waddell, the father of Ald. H. F. Waddell.

R. L. Borden made his first visit to Peterborough as Conservative leader Sept 11, 1907, speaking at the Grand Opera House, and returned in Sept. 1908 during the Burnham candidature. He was accompanied by Hon. R. P. Roblin who with Hon. Robert Rogers had come into national prominence from Manitoba. The Conservative rally included a torchlight procession and a full house at the Grand.

Burnham alleged irregularities in the Stratton victory of 1908 Justices McMahon and Magee dismissed the action on the ground of unreliable evidence of bribery treating, vote buying For years it was remembered ocally as a celebrated case featured by shrewd and clever cross-examination by defense counsel.

For the Reciprocity election of 1911, Peterborough Conservatives again nominated Burnham against Stratton. They were grooming E. A. Peck, K.C., for a provincial contest in which the Conservative member of the legislature, T. Evans Bradburn, was retiring from political life without a defeat.

J. H. Burnham Elected

A fairly broad measure of reciprocity in natural products was proposed by the United States in a departure from its established policy of high tariffs, and the Laurier government favored a treaty of acceptance. Strenuous Conservative opposition in the early summer of 1911 precipitated the general elections of Sept 21, resulting in the defeat of the Liberals by a margin of 43 seats. J. H. Burnham won in Peterborough by a majority of 42. With that reverse J. R. Stratton retired from political life.

The federal campaign of 1911 developed a confusion of distracting issues. The Canadian farmer and lumberman, for instance, wanted entry into the United States market, but one phase of the Conservative appeal carried the suggestion that increased trade with Uncle Sam would weaken the British connection.

The climax of that hysteria of doubt, however sincere its motive may have been, was the Montreal Star's front page display of a poem written by Rudyard Kipling entitled "Under Which Flag?" It was set in big type under two draped flags, the Union Jack on one side, the Stars and Stripes on the other.

Canadians have grown into political maturity and the sense of nationhood since them. In two world wars they have proved their loyalty to the Crown and their attachment to British traditions. Today the Canadian farmer is selling beef across the border and the lumberman is getting a high price for his products in the same market. Export of newsprint has developed into tremendous volume. The only reaction among the great majority of the people is resentment of the competitive effect of American buying power. At the same time complaints are heard from Ottawa of recent difficulty in maintaining trading relations with Britain.

Among the advocates of reciprocity, the clearest and most convincing voice was that of Ernest C. Drury, afterwards leader of the Farmer-Labor government of Ontario.

Those were days of dark portent to the world and particularly the British Empire, grown accustomed to the long era of Victorian and Edwardian peace. Few leaders recognized the clouds gathering over Europe, but there was increasing apprehension in London and Paris of the evidence of quickening military and naval activity in Germany. Awareness of growing menace was reflected in the election campaign of 1911. It inspired an upsurge of a dormant nationalism in Quebec opposing entanglement and commitment of Canada in possible results of British alliances in Europe.

The protagonist of the Quebec nationalists was Henri Bourassa who, as a member of parliament, had quarrelled with Laurier. He brought out the daily newspaper, Le Devoir, mustered a strong and vocal faction, seriously embarrassed the Liberal leader throughout the campaign and captured many Quebec seats.

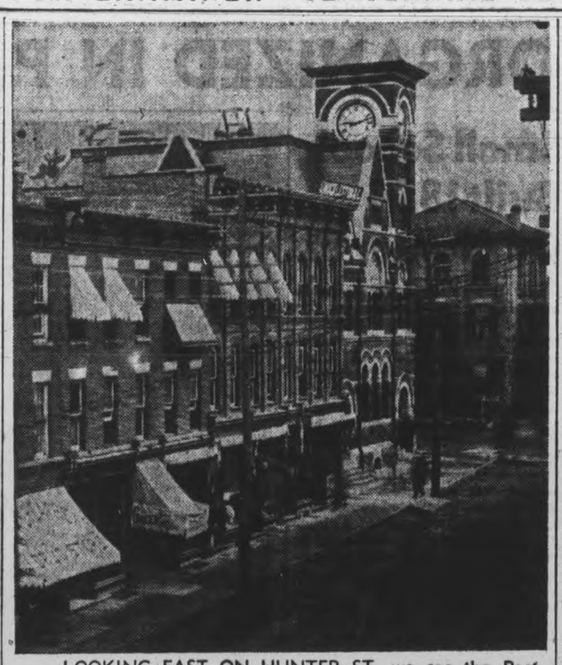
Contrary repercussions spread in Ontario and other parts of the Dominion. However, that is a long and involved story that may be summarized in the attacks on Laurier from two flanks alleging in Quebec that he was too British, and elsewhere in the country that he was not British enough.

The Conservative party was never more versatile and effective than in its conduct of that campaign. Subordinate and largely local issues were exploited here and there, while the dignified R. L. Borden travelled across the country magnifying risks confronting Canada as a relatively small nation in entering a trade pact with its great and rapidly expanding industrial neighbor.

Borden gave the national Conservatives their sweetest victory, and in West Peterborough they celebrated the dual accomplishment of electing a member and helping to redeem the federal fortunes of their party.

Burnham was an officer in the 93rd Battalion, which was recruited in Peterborough, when he defeated R. R. Hall by 4,318 in the 1917 election on the national issue of conscription. Sir Robert Borden remained Prime Minister and leader of the Union Government in which he was joined by many prominent Liberals, men of the standing of N. W. Rowell, Hugh Guthrie, General Mewburn and others. The division of the House was 153 to 82. Laurier had only ten followers west of the Ottawa River.

Mr. Hall has sat under the Liberal chief in the Commons, and as a member of the government. A remnant of the local riding executive was faced with the prospect of letting the seat go by acclamation to Captain Burnham, and in that exigency Mr. Hall accepted and conducted the campaign almost single-handed.



LOOKING EAST ON HUNTER ST. we see the Post Office building as it was some years ago, when Green's Photo Gallery stood almost where the Roy Studio is today. In the right background can be seen the building which now houses the offices of the Sun Life. The pitched roof has since been removed, and made into a flat one.

Typical of R. R. Hall

He declared his utmost confidence in the loyalty of Laurier, and in the wisdom of the decision he had taken, and said he was standing by the "Chief" if no one else did. That was typical of the covenanting spirit of Hall. Likewise, it was characteristic of "Ham" Burnham that he transferred his army pay cheques to the fund for the maintenance of the wives and families of soldiers on active service. He was then Paymaster of the 93rd. In that First World War, citizens and municipalities made outright contributions for its financing. They did not have a chance of lending money to the government at three per cent.

When Hon. Arthur Meighen succeeded to the government leadership after the war, Mr. Burnham was one of those who questioned the constitutional propriety of that course. In July 1920 he resigned his seat in the House as a protest, from within the party ranks, that Meighen had no mandate from the electors to continue in office. Subsequently, a by-election in East Elgin was won by the Progressives, and in February 1920 Burnham became an Independent Conservative candidate in the now famous Peterborough West by-election, which was won by the Liberal, George Newcombe Gordon.

Mr. Burnham's statement was, in part: "I resigned because, when Liberals and others joined in electing me to support a Union government of Sir Robert Borden in 1917, I promised, as did Sir Robert and those supporting him, to go to the people in a general election when the war was over Union government was elected for the period of the war and no longer. A defeat for the new government (National Liberal and Conservative) here will mean an immediate general election with the old parties lined up against each other as before.

Among those who had quit government posts were Borden, Rowell, Sir Thomas White, Hon. Frank Carvell, Hon. T. A. Crerar and others.

Gordon's plurality was 1284 in a wide open contest that brought four other candidates into the field. Roland Denne was the official National Liberal-Conservative representative, supporting Mr. Meighen; Mr. Burnham was Independent Conservative; James Corbett Campbell of Bailieboro was the Progressive party nominee and Thomas McMurray of Peterborough was Independent Labor.

In that campaign, the Conservative old guard challenged Mr. Burnham to name the time and place when he had promised in 1917 to resign after the war, and that presumably meant, after the Union government had accomplished its specific purpose.

If Mr. Burnham considered that he was taking his bearings from a sense of consistency, many of those who had helped elect him bitterly disagreed with him, but they were not publicly vocal in resentment.

A prominent member of the party remarked: "He has ability and many fine qualities, but you can never be certain what he'll do. In this instance he has been like the cow that filled the pail with milk and then kicked it over."

The Meighen incident has been told elsewhere in chapters but briefly he went to the country in December that year, 1921, and was defeated. The Liberals under their new leader, Mackenzie King, elected 117 members, Conservatives 50, Progressives 64 and Labor 3.

Gordon Returned

Mr. Gordon was returned in Peterborough West, defeating Mr. Burnham, as Conservative candidate, by 2,158. Toward the close of that Parliament he was made Minister of Immigration, the first Peterborough representative to attain Cabinet rank. That was in 1925.

Mr. Gordon's ministerial stature was of brief duration. In the general elections of that year, the Conservatives persuaded Edward Armour Peck, K.C., to accept nomination under the leadership of Hon. Arthur Meighen. Mr. Peck could probably have had that honor in previous campaigns, but he was not a seeker of office. He was content to serve in executive and advisory capacity, and certainly was one of the foremost of the Conservatives of Peterborough for something like 30 to 40 years.

Mr. Peck redeemed the riding for his party by a majority of 1,963, Gordon was one of the group of eight Ministers, including Mackenzie King himself, who fell in that campaign. Peterborough's regard for E. A. Peck was manifested in the fact that he won decisively over the Minister of Immigration.

A by-election in Prince Albert, Sask., brought Mr. King back to the House early in 1926. In the 1925 general elections the Liberals strength receded to 101 from the previous 117; the Conservatives advanced from 50 to 116, and the Progressives were down from 64 to 24.

The government managed to survive precariously with slim majorities in the first session of 1926, but the end was in sight. Mackenzie King proposed dissolution of parliament to the Governor-General, which would have sent the members back to the electors, but Lord Byng refused. Finally Mr. King resigned, and the Governor-General called upon Meighen to form a government.

When the Conservative cabinet faced the Commons in early summer, Mr. King charged that the ministers had not been duly sworn in as ministers of the Crown, had not taken the oath of office and had no constitutional right to carry on the government of the country. Those hectic days of parliamentary drama ended with defeat of the government by one vote, and dissolution of the House.

In September 1926 the Liberals returned to Ottawa with 116 members Conservatives, 91, Progressives 13, Alberta's 11 United Farmers, Liberal-Progressives 9 a complexion of the House that enabled Mr. King to take charge of the nation's affairs In Peterborough West, Mr Peck defeated J. J. Duffus, Liberal, by 2,109

Richard Bedford Bennett carried the country for the Conservatives in 1930 with a House of 137 members, and on a vigorous trade policy to which was popularly attached the expressive phrase "to blast agreements" with Britain. But, those were years of the depression. Its distressing problems harrassed Bennett and embarrassed his plans.

Mr. Peck Retained Seat

In the local riding Mr. Peck had held his seat in 1930 by again turning back the challenge of J. J. Duffus.

Mackenzie King was back in power in 1935 with a following of 171. The Conservative membership of the Commons had shrunk to 39. Mr. Peck did not seek renomination. He retired to private life without a defeat in both the federal and provincial arenas, in the conviction that he should leave to a younger man the exertions of campaigning and of attending the sessions of the House. He had done all that his party and his other supporters had asked of him.

The results in Peterborough West in 1935 were: J. J. Duffus (Lib.) 8,027; J. Jordyce Strickland (Con.) 7,551; Charles H. Ackerman (Reconstruction) 3,071; Dr. Lorna Cotton Thomas (CCF) 1,489

The Reconstruction party was inspired by the Hon. Harry H. Stevens who was a minister of the Bennett cabinet. One of his planks in that year of the peak of industrial and economic depression was a broad program of construction. He enlisted the support of many candidates, but he alone was elected, in his own riding of East Kootenay.

Mr. Duffus had become increasingly active in the Liberal party after his experience in public life as a member of the city council of Peterborough and two years as Mayor. He had acquired a personal following, and it appeared to be that affairs he engaged in turned out successfully. It may not be in any way significant, but it was a fact that he was president of the Peterborough Hockey Club in 1926, the year they won the Senior O.H.A. championship. Division in the Conservative party in 1935 was undoubtedly a fortuitously helpful factor in his victory at the polls. He devoted a great deal of time and energy to the Central Ontario Liberal Association of which he was president for three years.

Finally, in Feb. 1940 he was called to the Senate on the eve of the general elections early in March in which R. M. Glover (Lib.) was defeated by Gordon K. Fraser (Prog.-Con.) by 178.

Mr. Fraser repeated in 1945 with a plurality of 2768 over Mr. Glover and Dr. Lorna Thomas (CCF); and won again in 1949 as follows: Fraser (Prog.-Cons.) 10,981; Aubrey (Dit) Clapper (Lib.), 10,738; and J. H. Miles (CCF) 2,804.

With three victories in ten years he had matched the record of E. A. Peck.

Meanwhile, after 1921, John Hampden Burnham, once a khaki-clad captain in the Commons, the M.P. who tossed a challenge of constitutionality at his leader Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, retreated into comparative obscurity, "the world forgetting, by the world forgot". For some years he was an occasional contributor to the columns of the Examiner, then under the management and co-proprietorship of Roland M. Glover.

When others whom he had materially aided in his days of political power at length passed him indifferently by, it was extraordinarily strange that he found a friend in Mr. Glover, the close associate of Hon. J. R. Stratton.

The Burnham campaigns against Stratton in 1908 and 1911 would probably have excluded him from any further consideration, especially in kindliness, except from a man who had "learned to take it" in his years of sport, and in whose nature there was not the slightest vein of grudge.

Whatever was that eventual relationship it was a private matter, with but few observable indications of its reality. A younger Liberal who was aware of it, and who had met John Hampden Burnham on that March day in 1940, remarked long afterward: "I'd like to have seen the Burnham ballot."

Unreasonable Noise

MONTREAL — (CP) — The question of how loud an ice salesman has to shout before he can be charged with disturbing the peace was raised here. A city by-law forbids "unreasonable" noise. Four salesmen were given suspended sentences and told to use their own judgment.

FIRST SEPARATE SCHOOL ORGANIZED IN PETERBOROUGH IN 1851

ST. MARY'S CONVENT SCHOOL, one of the six Separate Schools in the city, has been conducted as a day school for girls since 1902 by the Sisters of St. Joseph. The school was built in 1865. Since that time there have been several changes made to the original building. The last addition of two rooms was made during the past two years. In 1867, the school became St. Mary's Convent School under the guidance of the nuns of the congregation of Notre Dame.

Small School Built 1854 On Hunter St.

Six Roman Catholic Separate Schools are now situated in the city of Peterborough. Approximately 1,500 students are receiving their education at these schools that have a regular staff of 48 members, 38 of which are Sisters of St. Joseph. This extensive Separate School system had a humble beginning 16 years before the Confederation of Canada when in 1851 the first Separate School was organized. The first school occupied rented rooms in a building on the corner of Aylmer and Simcoe Streets. The teacher received a salary of £14 per annum. These historical facts can be found in Dr. Poole's Sketch of the Early Settlement of the Town of Peterborough and F. H. Dobbin's History of Peterborough.

Destroyed By Fire

In 1864, fire destroyed a rough cast two-room school which had been erected 10 years before where St. Mary's Convent, Hunter Street, now stands. This fire also destroyed the valuable library owned by the St. Patrick's Society of Peterborough. While this rough cast school was being erected, temporary accommodation was found in the basement of the rectory on the lot where the Cathedral is now situated.

Until 1865, when a brick building was erected on the present Convent grounds, the old Union School located where the Central School now stands was leased. Much of the money for the new school came from voluntary contributions of the congregation of St. Peter's Church.

A section of this school still remains as a part of St. Mary's Convent School. The staff consisted of from two to four teachers. The number of pupils listed on the register in 1865 was 265. Religious and secular education were combined and the boys and girls classified in separate departments. Teachers employed in the school included Miss Mary C. Meany, Miss Young, Miss Vinette, Miss Bridget Hogan, Miss Mary Ann O'Callaghan, Messrs. Bernard Boyd, Hogan, Smith, D. A. Sullivan, C. J. McCabe, Daniel Sullivan, John Curtin, John Keating, Francis O'Hara, David Roche, Michael Healy, William Keating and Patrick Smyth.

In 1867, the school became St. Mary's Convent under the guidance of the nuns of the congregation of Notre Dame. In December of that year two sisters, who came to Peterborough from the Mother House in Montreal, opened the convent and residence to 50 pupils. Later the convent was expanded to accommodate 271 day pupils and approximately 25 boarders. The staff was enlarged to seven teachers. The convent remained under the guidance of the Sisters of Notre Dame until 1902 when they were replaced by the Sisters of St. Joseph, who have since conducted the convent as a day school.

Murray Scheet School

A new two-storey red brick school for boys was constructed on Murray Street in 1867, on the site where the Armouries now stands. Two years later, an additional two rooms were added to the original two-roomed building. One of the rooms of the school was used as a reading room for the literary society, another became the residence of the caretaker, while the remaining two rooms were class rooms for approximately 250 pupils.

Five years before the erection of the present Sacred Heart School on Lake Street in 1883, a private residence situated on the same street was opened as a school to accommodate the children of that section of the town. This school was originally in charge of lay teachers. The first teacher was Miss J. Sheehy. Another of the teachers was Miss Hurley, who later became Mother Superior of the Sisters of St. Joseph at Mount St. Joseph.

By 1886, there were 500 Separate School pupils in the town.

When the new Collegiate Institute and the Armouries were built, the old Murray Street school was demolished and St. Peter's High School was erected, and opened on August 22, 1906.

In Ashburnham, in 1913, two Public School buildings on Mark Street were purchased and one room was opened in the smaller building. During the next year, repairs were made and four additional rooms were opened. Later the smaller building was repaired and two more rooms were added. These buildings became the Immaculate Conception School.

Superintendent For All Schools

The first County Superintendent of the schools of this district, then called Colborne District, was Elias Burnham. Mr. Burnham was called to the Bar in 1835 and received his appointment as the County Superintendent in 1844. His initial salary was £25 per annum, which was later increased to £50, including travelling expenses. Until 1850, he discharged his duties, travelling on horseback from 600 to 800 miles annually.

He gave his first official report in 1844. Each school in his inspectorate had an attendance of about 25 pupils, the majority of which were very small children. Mr. Burnham stressed the need for more commodious accommodation and criticized the course of study which omitted history entirely and seldom included geography. He claimed that in only two cases had he seen the English grammar in use. He reported that there was a serious shortage of books, but he was pleased to note that the teachers relied more on their common sense and reason than upon the use of the rod.

The successor to Mr. Burnham was Thomas Benson, first Mayor of Peterborough, who received an increased salary of £130. He remained in office for only a year.

After Mr. Benson's retirement, the county was divided into four sections and superintendents were assigned to each of these sections. Rev. E. Roberts was superintendent of the first division comprising the townships of Smith, Douro, and Otonabee; Thomas Searight of the second, comprising Asphodel, Dummer, and Belmont; Thomas Fortye was superintendent of North Monaghan, and Patrick Sullivan superintendent of Ennismore.

In 1853 local superintendents were appointed for the Separate Schools. The first secretary-treasurer of the Separate School Board was Michael Hogan.

The present Board of Trustees of the Separate Schools of Peterborough are: John McCarney, chairman; J. S. Black, secretary-treasurer; His Excellency the Most Rev. Berry, Superintendent of Education; the Right Rev. Monseigneur O'Brien, the Right Rev. Monseigneur Butler, W. J. Grady, Arthur Primeau, Fergus O'Connor, Victor Mattucci, Dr. J. R. Epping, R. S. Hull, D. W. Hull, Frank Doris, and W. H. Toal.

This year will mark the opening of the seventh Separate School. In September, St. Alphonsus School, St. Marys Street, will be completed to receive 178 pupils expected to start in the fall.

St. John's School, Mary Street, was built three years ago, but it was found necessary to build an additional four rooms last fall. During the past three years, two rooms have been added to St. Mary's Convent School, and an annex of two rooms was built to St. Peter's School.

An excellent library has been provided for each of these schools. Supplementing their academic training, the students of the Separate Schools receive special musical training that has proved its worth in the high calibre choirs in each of the schools.

The Separate Schools have the following Sister Principals: Sister Lucretia, St. Peter's; Sister Doloretta, St. Mary's; Sister Adele, Sacred eHart; Sister Mary Garnier, St. John's; Sister Dominica, Immaculate Conception. Mr. E. Boland is principal of St. Anne's School, in Smith Township, which was opened last fall.

THIS TRULY PIONEER GROUP of telephone men are seen relaxing at a temporary camp set up while constructing one of the first Bell Telephone long distance lines between Peterborough and Toronto. It was in the summer of 1884 that these men were engaged in clearing brush, erecting poles and installing wire that would result in a telephone highway between the two Ontario centres.

City's Oldest Retail Store Marks 118th Year

One of the oldest stores in this district, Richard Ltd., George St., is celebrating the 118th anniversary of its opening, this year. In 1832 William Hall and Robert Nicholls entered into partnership to open a general store situated on the corner of Water and Simcoe streets, where the Bank of Montreal now stands.

Five years before the building of this two storey, rough cast store, there were only three residents in "Scott's Plains" as Peterborough was then called. Later immigration swelled the population and "Nicholls and Hall's" did a thriving business in groceries, draperies, haberdashery, ironware, lumber, grain, feed, and oils.

William Hall was a stonemason who came to Canada from Scotland in 1827 and settled in Smith Township. Robert Nicholls was born in New York. Besides his partnership in the store, he owned a "flouring" mill, as it was then called, bought grain and acted as an agent for the Bank of Montreal. He also served as a town councillor for several years. When he died in 1883, he left all his money, $498,717, to his widow who was one of the greatest public benefactors of Peterborough. The main one of her many public bequests was the foundation of Nicholls Hospital, now Civic Hospital.

The Hall Benevolent Trust Fund for the Protestant poor of the city was left by Mr. Hall when he died.

After the death of his uncle, Richard Hall carried on the business. Born in Smith Township in 1843, he was the son of John Hall, who was a pioneer of the township. Under Richard Hall, the business flourished and extended farther down on Simcoe St., to include the store now occupied by William Hamilton Grocery and the Elim Tabernacle.

In 1873 the business was divided. W. Robinson bought the grocery section of the business. Robert Innes entered partnership with Richard Hall to carry on the dry goods section. In 1888, the store was moved to its present site on George St. This building was constructed in 1852 by E. Burnham and much of the stone used in the foundations was brought from the old quarry near Jackson Park.

When Mr. Innes retired, Mr. Hall brought his son, Dickson Hall into the partnership and the firm became known as Richard Hall & Son. Herbert Hall another son of Richard Hall later succeeded to the active management of the business. After his death 25 years ago, Gordon McKay and Company assumed control, but retained the old name. Richard Hall Ltd. then became one of the Walker Stores chain.

As Peterborough—growing and prosperous—starts her second century, we at the Russelle Service Station and Robb & Hendren Auto Repairs look forward to many busy years . . . years that will be short because we will be working hard to continue our own growth. At the same time, we realize there is more to our business than . . .

THIS . . . .

AND THIS . . . .

. . . . AND THIS

We, as one of the city's business organizations, feel a responsibility for contributing to the city's welfare in every way possible. Part of this can be achieved by a sound, ethical business policy . . . and part lies in giving time and effort to civic activities.

We are proud to be "in at the start" of Peterborough's second century, and are confident that the progress made in the past is but an indication of what is ahead.

Postscript To A Century Of Music

An Ethical Conspectus of the Dehumanized Thingamajigs of Modern Art

By RICHARD F. CHOATE.

Music is made by musicians.

The statement seems to be simple and obvious fact.

But let us look at the converse: Musicians are made by music.

Not quite so obvious, perhaps, on the surface. But possibly we may penetrate a little more deeply—that is, if we happen to be one of those outlandish, plodding souls, so rare in our time, who do not subsist solely by leaping from one raw sensation to another, or by consuming graphs and charts having to do with our prodigious car loadings or our roaring trade in soap and saleratus.

Let us, if we are hard driven, create a hypothetical soul who has time and inclination to be interested in the affairs of the Holy Ghost. Such a soul conceivably would perceive that our second proposition is not just another paradox but that it is a logical complementary of the first, which we cannot escape if we are looking for a statement of the necessary and sufficient (not merely subsidiary) function of music in promoting the growth of what Ruskin called "souls of good quality."

A postscript to a century (or more exactly some 125 years) of music in the Peterborough district would fall short of completeness were it to look only at what has happened to music and neglect what has happened to musicians and their listeners. For as he sings or plays good music, the musician (and his listener) is building into his own character enriching and ennobling powers which may find expression in many wider fields.

Re-examine Pioneer Ways

In this centenary year there can be nothing more important than to re-examine the modes of life of the pioneers who shaped the beginnings of the community before it assumed the present corporate form. It might well be that such a survey would show that music in those early days was more closely integrated with the life of the people than it is in this day of mass production of mechanisms and the attendant mass salesmanship, which, as has been well said, tend to "canalize the aesthetic enjoyments of the population," stifling thereby the creative rights of the free human spirit. Certainly we know very little about what people really wnat or need though we know a great deal about what they can be induced or compelled (perhaps my monopoly) to buy.

Music came to Peterborough County as an integral part of a cultural continuum. It is a common and grievous mistake to suppose that a continuum persists only through an external nexus. It is an inner necessity of the structure of thought—and "Ar we think we live." It has been pointed out that a basic peculiarity of continuity is to be an indivisible point (or unity) and at the same time to radiate a duality. Unity in itself is quite as unthinkable as an outer without an inner. Oneness is experienced only in the "everlasting yea and nay." Herein lies the root of the antinomies and paradoxes and dichotomies which have baffled philosophers since the time of Zeno, and the difficulty is not solved by following the crooked paths of the modern dialectics (either the original Hegelian or its misbegotten progeny the Marxist dialectical materialism) which fail to connect any larger uniformities and proceed from nowhere to nowhere.

The great epistemologist, Descartes, the 300th anniversary of whose death is being observed this year, gave the world the famous "Cogito Edgo Sum." The "I am" of the "I think therefore I am" as doubtless a harmless piece of prediction. But had Descartes paused to ask himself Who or what is this "I" that thinks? he might have been content to say, "There is thinking going on"; for he might have perceived that the human ego is not a simple primary datum to be accepted without analysis—but is instead the most complex entity in the world. And thereby he might have spared his fellow men the burden of a vast quantity of excess baggage.

Synthesis without analysis will not do. If we fail to give thought to what the great Whitehead called the "unique togetherness" of the Ego or I, with its swarm of inner tendencies and powers, all involved in the ethical "freedom of the will," we shall not grasp the inner significance of our century of music. The acute mind of Samuel Butler may perhaps help us. Dr. Charles Fox one of the most eminent of British educational psychologists — who is a genuine psychologist and not a psycho-physicist— has recently paid tribute to the abiding cogency of Butler's theory of elapsed conscious striving."

We learn with great effort, he remarks, to perform a task (as let us say early piano practice). On repetition this becomes easier so that less attention is necessary. Finally the task becomes quasi-automatic. In other words, the fully conscious becomes more or less unconscious.

What has all this to do with the advent of music and musicians in the heavily forested areas of the earlier Peterborough district? Perhaps it will be helpful if we ask our selves the basically important question: What manner of men were these pioneers of Peterborough, out of whose "lapsed conscious striving" had come rich continuing increments which could be transplanted into the living dynamic values of personality and beyond that into the multiple social values? The rapidity with which the roots of a genuine musical artistry struck deep into what seemed to be a rugged and inhospitable soil may amaze many among us today who have ears only for tunes played by public relations' victuosi on box office cash registers.

Production records of the time show how well these pioneers performed the physical tasks necessary to simple subsistence — incredibly difficult tasks that tried hard-driven sinews. All this was only one facet of a magnificent unity; with it was integrated a high sense of ethical responsibility and a freely expressed devotion to the spiritually creative values of the Arts. For the time was not without its poets and painters. Let us not forget our debt to Peterborough's Isabella Valencey Crawford, who though referred to by Sir Edwin Arnold in his Canadian travel book as Canada's finest poet, yet was literally starved to death in Toronto, that dazzling centre of the literae humaniores.

Sang Because They Wanted To

What kind of technical equipment did these pioneers bring with them—these pioneers who happily combined musical culture with agriculture, the greatest of all the cultures (if we include with it the kindred silviculture, which is still in embryonic stage)? The answer seems to be that they did not mistake means for ends! that they lived their technology and did not set it up as a fetish apart. They sang because they wanted to sing; they lived not merely because they wanted to eat and drink, but because they wanted to live well, which means, as Professor John Laird has remarked, to "concern ourselves with beauty, truth, the welfare of others and other excellent things," while bypassing poorer and feebler aims. In short they had the good ethical sense to perceive that moral life is an inner growth, that it does not issue from reason but rather is directed toward reason and values.

If we were to ask one of the savants of physiological psychology, who dwell sometimes within the Colleges of Unreason, we might be told that all this business of living is directed by a meat pudding, situated in the cerebral cortex and called a brain. In earlier versions of the Brain Myth, the seat of the wits was supposed to be bowels, or heart or midriff in general.

Dr. Fox, who directed the training of schoolmasters at Cambridge has remarked that the events which improve a tennis-players' game are the changes made on himself, his senses, muscles and so on, not the impressions he makes on the ball or the court. Speaking of the illusions which commonly befog the notion of mental images supposed to be stored somehow in brain tissue, (which is of a piece with other tissue) he adds: "The tennis-player with his muscular and sensory adjustments corresponds to the act of awareness or apprehension whilst the court and balls and the rest of it may be likened to what is apprehended. What the tennis player permanently carried about with him, after playing, is a more finely adjusted organism. To suppose that sensations in a faint form must be permanent in order to enable us to remember what has occurred is equivalent to supposing that the tennis player must always carry about with him his old balls and racquets in order to improve his play."

What some, at least, of the Peterborough county pioneers, who made of the industrial and fine arts a single indivisible pattern, brought with them was essentially a "more finely adjusted organism" born of earlier "conscious striving," rather than a multiplicity of machines. Henri Bergson has remarked: "The essence of man, lies in his power of creation both material and moral. Materially he is a maker of things; morally a maker of himself." So we may pass along the ultra-Bulfinchian Brain Myth to the many unhelpful Brain Trusts who flourish in our shiny new Welfare State while we ask ourselves, as Dr. L. P. Jacks has done, if the business of life—the function proclaimed by the structure of the whole man as a living unity of mind, brain and body—is not creation, and not merely the pursuit of happiness (whatever happiness may be). Or, in other words, if instead of seeking "salvation by cerebration" we shall not do better to look for Kindly Light from a mind of another order, that is not cabined and confined in a cranial dome but has its being, rather, in Whitehead's "unique togetherness' of the whole organism.

Mother of Many Myths

The Brain Myth is the mother of many myths. In itself it would scarcely be worth exploring were it not that from it proceeds the Myth of Localized Function, a widely diffused illusion which is a positive menace to clarity of perception, particularly perception of the nature of the living organic unity from which spring the artistic impulses directed toward intrinsic values (values in themselves). Such values are objective, are perceived apriori (as Plato saw) not psycholigically but in the mode of presentational immediacy.

Both our original propositions seem to be true. Music is made by musicians and in the practice of music musicians make themselves. The point may be important and if we have in mind the outgiving of our latter-day brood who chatter incessantly of new "forms" and seem to think that music (and the space arts) proceed from the theories of the mystagogues who call themselves "Aestheticians" (kindred no doubt of the beauticians and morticians). Neville Lytton, in his book on water-color, remarks that it takes at least a thousand years for a new fact to establish itself in art. When a present-day picture, he adds, contains all the faults that the great masters of the past have carefully avoided it may be said to have the Modern Spirit.

The product of the aestheticians seems to fall within the same class of decorative inutilities which proceed from the workshops of modern sociology—"which has been described as a rag-bag of Science into which anything is thrown for which no place can be found elsewhere. In neither of these branches of the New Mystagoguery do we find human beings (men and women). In the elysian fields of Sociology, as Robert Littell has pointed out, dwell only thingamajigs. They never live in a slum, only in "interstitial area," upon which "depends the configuration of the stimuli." A "delinquent female" who has lost her sense of shame has been through a process of depudorization." If a youthful male does not mix freely with his fellows he is a subject for "quantitative and qualitative survey of juvenile non-conformity. If he does mix it is with a "playground of spontaneous origin" (Hail, hail, the playground of spontaneous origin's all here).

Of the making of new "forms" by the Aestheticians there is no end. A "form" doubless in a frame of reference of some kind. Otherwise it would be formless, void and doubtless "non-objective." A "form" to be of any value must in some sense be a form of order—of ordered thinking. But in no time at all the Aethetician will cooper up for you a frame of reference out of the bits of string and broken twigs in his magpie's nest of ill-ordered and unrelated concepts. To provide a content for this "form," there is, to be sure, a vast potential supply of "atmospheric" music and even bolshevist music, saturated with "marvelous color beauties," "profound meanings" and bold modulations," which call forth a flood of unrestrainable emotion in the initiated adept who "understands and enjoys the modern spirit and the modern radical style, which so successfully dispenses with keytonality, counterpoint, rhythm, melody and every other essential requirement of old-fashioned theory." Shall we not pity the poor unsophisticate who in his agony cries "Let me have jazz or swing, which may be at least sincere and intelligible rather than compounded ugliness." Perhaps, indeed, he might prefer the "music" of the Irishman who played the fiddle "nayther by note, nor by ear but by main force."

Such a hopeless reactionary would be turned out of the room as "too dull for words", as Luigi Von Kunits remarked. Perhaps, poor chap, he may still be fond of Mozart and Haydn and similar "food for musical babies".

Sense of Ethical Responsibility

If the aestheticians and sociologists have their way how long will it be before musicians, too, are transformed into "thingamajigs"? Heretofore, musicians have been people. A good many, doubtless most of them have become persons—that is to say people who are no longer mere Typhoid Marys carrying disvalue but have attained a sense of ethical responsibility as carriers of value. Values must compete not only against disvalues but against other values in different stages and orders of life. Musical values cannot be isolated from the other values of plenary reality. And it is well so. For they assuredly will find their proper level, and high in the scale, if musicians are true to their ethical responsibilities. Philosophic Ethics is the most practical of philosophies. Unlike so many others it does not mistake empirical psychology for genuine philosophy.

The great Handel was a human musician, not a thingamajig. He could scarcely have been persuaded that a piece such as we have today, which changes the time each and every measure, "defying any attempt to fix the tonality of a single bar", would be fitting material for a Concerto. Human, yes all too human, perhaps, he is said on one occasion to have smashed a 'cello on the head of a luckless player who was mangling one of his compositions. Ethically deplorable from one standpoint as his act was, one can scarcely restrain a certain sympathy with his lusty defence of the musical verities. But Handel has not heard, as we may hear, "Sweet and Low" as rendered by ten saxophones. Neither had he heard the steam calliope diapasons rend the air in a Toronto Church causing those who had come to pray to believe they had wandered mistakenly into the concourse of the Union Station. Truly, in a time which so sorely tries the souls of those who stand for musical intelligibility and integrity, may there not, sadly enough, arise a simple humanitarian need for a liberalizing of the laws of justifiable homicide.

Somehow, one likes to think that music will continue to be made by musicians who are capable of handling the laws of intelligible modulation and that musicians will continue to be made by the actual practice of music. With the wish may go a silent prayer that genuine asthetic theory may be delivered from the hands of the aestheticians. For the aesthetician, any notion of "purpose" in art seems to be too horrifying for words. He reminds one of Shaw's description of the mass meeting of athiests who lifted the rafters of Albert Hall with their cheers because they had no everlasting souls. Coupled with the monstrosities are the trivialities of many of the newer "abstractionists". Speaking of many of the productions of the "non-objectives" in painting, one critic remarks that the case is like that of buying air mail and special delivery stamps to put on a letter conveying the information that Friday comes after Thursday.

Since an unnecessary triviality involves a transgression of the law of diminishing return (a genuine economic law which can be tested empirically) it may well be a sin against the Holy Ghost. "The way to hell is paved with good intentions" is a cardinal fact of Ethics—a state of affairs that must somehow be met and mastered. Is this so with an aesthetics which is devoid of "purpose"? All along the line aesthetic considerations are ultimately sublated by the ethical. To paraphrase an apt saying: An aesthetics without a soul is a soulless aestetics.

Aristotle, ending his Ethics, remarked: "Let us begin". In a continuum an ending without a converse beginning is unthinkable. We are aware of the relativity of flux or change only as we see it in contrast with an Absolute which does not change. The indivisible static point of unity radiates the dynamic duality of "yea and nay". Shaw has a predeliction for prefaces. Others may go in for postcripts. Doubtless they are two facets of the same thing. For whatever value a Postcript to Peterborough's Century of Music may have will lie in its value as a preface which may be helpful in the shaping of better things to come.

Court House Built in 1840 For Administration Of District of Colborne

The history of Peterborough's Court House dates back to June 2, 1838 when a meeting of the magistrates of the new Colborne district was held in Peterborough. The meeting was held in the government school house which stood on a site to the north of the present Central School. The purpose behind the meeting was the naming of a building committee to erect a court house and jail.

The Hon. T. A. Stewart M.L.C. was in the chair and John Darcus, was appointed as secretary. The following were appointed officers and members of the building committee, of whom three would make a quorum: Hon. Thomas A. Stewart, William H. Wrighton, Edward Duffy, Ephraim Sanford, Robert P. Madge, Edward S. Hickson.

On a motion of C. Moe, seconded by E. Duffy, the committee was restricted to an expenditure of 4,000 pounds on the new buildings, but subsequently, on finding that the tenders for the work, exceeded that amount, second meeting of the magistrates was held, at which on the motion of James Wallis, seconded by R. Dennistoun, the building committee was empowered to proceed to the extent of 6,000 pounds.

At the first meeting, the magistrates instructed the building committee to direct the Clerk of of the Peace, of the Newcastle District to add one penny on the pound to the assessment roll of the proposed District of Colborne for that year (1838) pursuant to the act establishing the said proposed District.

Procured Loans

The building committee at its second meeting arranged to meet every Friday for the dispatch of business. It also entered into negotiations with several of the provincial banks as well as with private individuals to procure loans of money to carry on the work until the taxes of the district should be available for that purpose. Some of the sources of these funds were: Commercial Bank, O. Morrow, Hon. John Kirby, Mrs. Elizabeth Fowler, Rev. Francis Kirkpatrcik, Hon. Z. Burnham.

The sums procured, lessened as they were by discount and interest, did not suffice for the completion of the buildings, but several of the contractors accepted the Committee's debentures for sums varying from 100 to 1,000 pounds and as they were matured were met by taxes levied on the new district in subsequent years.

In a short time plans and specifications for the new buildings were submitted to the committee by Joseph Scobell and Walter Sheridan. That of the former met with the most favor and was awarded the first prize while Mr. Sheridan's entitled him to the second prize. The Hon. T. A. Stewart was delegated to proceed to Toronto and submit the plans to the Chief Justice who confirmed the decision of the committee. Some alteration in minor details to the plans were adopted, which occasioned an additional outlay and which exceeded the sum that had been stipulated as the committee's limit but the magistrates endorsed its proceedings as well as did the public.

The tenders of Messrs. Thomas Harper and D. Bletcher for 800 cords of stone at 14s. 9d. each, was accepted, provided they furnish all quarried stone.

On August 23, 1838, John Reid P.L.S. reported to the committee in reference to a survey of the government appropriation of ground which consists in all of seven acres, lots 5, 6, and 7 of which would be required for the intended buildings.

The foundation had not been excavated, and the grounds were still covered with bush and trees when it became known that His Excellency Sir George Arthur, Lieut. Governor of Upper Canada, was about to visit Peterboroughs. As it was desirable that the foundation stone be laid by so distinguished a personage, Mr. Scobell was requested to open six feet of ground and to have placed on the spot one load of stone so the ceremony could be performed. The chairman was instructed to solicit this favor through His Excellency's secretary on his arrival and should he consent, the Rev. C. T. Wade was to be requested to offer a short blessing on the success of the undertaking.

An Early Start

His Excellency cheerfully consented, but his time was limited so the committee met at its room at 6.30 in the morning of August 25, 1838, waited upon the governor at 7, and at 7.30 His Excellency and suite accompanied by the building committee proceeded to the ground and in the presence of numerous spectators laid the corner stone of the new buildings. The Reverend Mr. Wade offered up an impressive and appropriate prayer.

The following articles were placed by His Excellency beneath the stone in the foundation of the southwest corner: A parchment scroll telling of the dedication, the names of the building committee, a British shilling of the reign of George IV, 1829, a sixpence, a penny and a half penny of the reign of William IV. The lettering of the scroll was executed in elegant styles by townsman Arthur O'Beirne.

Tenders were received from time to time for the erection and completion of several parts of the court house building and jail the entire cost of which, including alterations and extra work amounting to over 7,000 pounds.

During the progress of the work, meetings of the magistrates of the proposed district were several times held to advise with and assist the committee. Towards the close of the work Ephraim Sanford was appointed treasurer of the committee in place of Mr. Duffy who had removed from the province; and D. Griffith was appointed a member of the building committee.

Completed In 1840

The walls and the roof of the court house and jail were complete in 1839, and the work on the interior of the building complete when the building was handed over to the committee by E. Chamberlain on November 16, 1840, but it was not finally accepted by the committee until the following May.

The jail was not entirely finished until the summer of 1842, owing to a deficit in the written agreement, by which the contractor, Edward Lee, claimed that the plastering was not included in his contract; and the season of 1841 was so far advanced when this became known that the plastering of the jail had to be deferred until the following spring.

At length on December 27, 1841, and after three years of arduous duty, the building committee was finally relieved of its task. At a meeting of magistrates held that day, its accounts were examined and declared correct and a vote of thanks was tendered to the gentlemen composing the building committee.

An interesting highlight in the history of this building was the finding of an engraved plate in Toronto. The plate was for turning out coupons of five shillings and states that these were issued by the Colborne district for the purpose of raising funds for the erection of a court house and a jail in Peterborough. The plate was one from which the debentures of that time were issued. This was in 1882, on January 7th.

NOW LEGION HALL, this building was once Murray St. Baptist Church, the second church occupied by the congregation. Before the Murray Street congregation moved in it was owned by the Bible Christians. It was vacated in 1912, when the present church was completed. First building used as a church by the Murray St. Baptist congregation was the building on Aylmer St. now used by the Gillespie Garage.

East Peterborough Politics Lively Since 1867 First Member Conservative

By HARRY THEOBALD

East Peterborough was a political entity of itself from Confederation until the redistribution bill of 1924 shuffled together most of its municipalities and a large part of East Hastings to form the new federal constituency of Hastings-Peterborough.

The first Member of Parliament for East Peterborough was P. M. Grover, Conservative, a family name that has been prominently identified with the village of Norwood from its civic inception down to the present time. Mr. Grover defeated James Anderson by 956-644 in 1867, and held the seat by a majority of 48 over E. Inghram, another Reformer, in 1872.

In 1874, the riding switched over to the Reform or Liberal representation with the election of James Hall, who was the sheriff of the county. He defeated by 993 to 879, Col. R D. Rogers, fathter of R. B. Rogers, engineer in the building of the Peterborough liftlock, and great grandfather of John A. and David Rogers, who are present residents of this city.

John Burnham of Ashburnham regained the seat for the Conservative party in 1878, defeating Thomas Buck of Asphodel by 308-277, and also retained it in 1882 by a majority of 196 over W. E. Roxburgh of Norwood, father of the late John Roxburgh of that village.

In their political touring, some of the leaders of the Liberal party visiting Norwood on speaking engagements, used to be guests of the fine old Roxburgh home. It was demolished a few years ago. Col. Frederick Haultain was the returning officer at Norwood for the election of 1882. He later gained prominence in western Canada.

In 1887 John Lang of Otonabee captured East Peterborough for the Reform party, with a majority of 119 over John Burnham, who reversed the decision by a majority of 29 in 1891.

Lang regained the riding for the Reformers in 1896 by a margin of 615 votes over Burnham. The elections of 1900 brought John A. Sexsmith, then reeve of Belmont-Methuen, into the broader field of politics as a candidate, but he lost to Lang by 174.

In 1904, John Finlay, head of a Norwood industry manufacturing wheels and other carriage and wagon parts, won for the Liberals by 73 votes over Sexsmith, who carried the next three campaigns into the Conservative victory column. He defeated Edward A. Tanner of Lakefield by 261 majority in 1908; Frank D. Kerr, KC, of Peterborough, in 1911, by 593; and W. H. Johnson of Havelock in the wartime election of 1917 by 1,166.

A story has been told of Ed Tanner which suggests that his defeat in 1908 was a rather dramatic turning point in his personal fortune. The Warden of the county was a Conservative, James Thompson, who was elected to the Legislature in that year. John Sexsmith's position in the riding had been gradually gaining strength, and the combination of Sexsmith-Thompson had left the federal Liberals with little hope of holding the seat at Ottawa.

It is recalled that Ed Tanner was a reluctant candidate, accepting nomination as a duty to the party. On the morrow of his defeat he decided that he had business in Toronto, so it is said, and he left the management of his Lakefield drug store to his brother Charles.

Away from the celebrating Conservatives, Mr. Tanner happened to notice apparent liveliness in Toronto real estate as he strolled Bloor St. Opportunity seemed to be beckoning him. He was related to Senator George A. Cox, and called at the office of one of his sons. It is said that Mr. Tanner's impression of realty activity was confirmed there, and that almost immediately he made his first investments in Toronto property. Eventually he acquired larger holdings, formed his own realty company, and was reputed to have acquired substantial wealth at his death.

John Sexsmith was a member of the Commons from 1908 until 1921 when G. A. Brethen of Norwood carried the riding for the Progressive party which had gathered its forces in the west and recruited many followers in the east, especially in some of the rural ridings of Ontario. Mr. Brethen was elected with a plurality of 351 over Sexsmith and John A. Dewart.

The party standing in that election was: Liberals 117, Conservatives 50, Progressives 65, Labor 3.

The Peterborough County municipalities whose political centre was transferred easterly to Madoc in the carving of the new riding of Hastings-Peterborough were: Asphodel, Dummer, Norwood, Havelock, Belmont-Methuen, Burleigh - Anstruther, and Chandos.

In the general elections of 1925, Dr. Alex T. Embury of Bancroft won for the Conservatives by 2,764, defeating G. A. Brethen by 6,511 to 2,747. He repeated in 1926 with a majority of 4,117 over the Liberal candidate, J. G. Marshall of Stirling; and again in 1930 his majority was 3,994 over Fraser Aylesworth of Madoc.

Rork Ferguson of Norwood, then a farmer in Asphodel, captured the riding for the Liberals in 1935. By that time the Federal Progressives had disappeared, but a new Social Credit party in Alberta elected 17 members and the CCF 7.

The vote in Hastings-Peterborough was: Ferguson 5671, Embury (Con.) 4619, and J. A. Gunter (Reconstruction) 2,552.

It was obvious that the H. H. Stevens candidate diverted many Conservative votes from the Embury column.

George S. White, Madoc lawyer, regained the riding for the Conservatives in 1940, defeating Ferguson by a margin of 264. He has retained the seat since then.

White's plurality in 1945 was 2,650 over Rork Ferguson (Lib.) and Ralph F. Turner (CCF).

And in 1949 he carried the riding again as follows: White 6,578, J. W. Munro (Lib.) 4,681, and J. Haffey (CCF) 732.

In that election the Liberals under a new leader, Louis S. St. Laurent as successor to Mackenzie King, resumed the Federal administration with 193 members. The other party representations were: Progressive - Conservatives 42, CCF 12, Social Credit 10, Independents 4, Independent Liberal 1.

Pearson Warns Canadians Not To Put All Strength Into Korean War Zone

Fear Russia Poised To Strike Elsewhere Can't Afford To Weaken Defence; McNaughton Says Intervention Right

TORONTO, July 15.—(CP). — External Affairs Minister Pearson says Canada must avoid throwing all its strength into the Korean war. He made the statement Friday night, just a few hours after Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the United Nations, asked U.N. members to supply more aid to U.N. forces fighting the North Koreans. Meanwhile, Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former permanent Canadian delegate to the U.N., and one-time commander of the Canadian army overseas, said Canada's intervention in the Korean war is "right and inescapable."

He spoke at a Hamilton meeting called by a group of members of the United Electrical Workers to counteract Communist-line propaganda on the Korean war.

Mr. Pearson said some have suggested that Canada should mobilize all her forces and begin moving them to the Pacific. That would be a "very unwise" move Apparently referring to the possibility that Russia might strike elsewhere if large numbers of western troops were sent to Korea, he said such a move "might give some satisfaction to those who would like to trouble the water elswhere so that they could fish in them."

Of Primary Concern

The minister said, however, that the defence of Korea is of primary concern to Canada. He also told his audience to beware of Communist-inspired peace campaigns.

"When the Communists now tell us to fight for peace, they mean to make it possible for this Communist aggression to succeed; just as they have told us it would be their duty, if war ever broke out with Russia, to fight for peace by stabbing their own countries in the back."

Gen. McNaughton, who has been chairman of the U.N. Security Council, said the U.N. was to have armed forces to meet a situation such as that in Korea but "the Soviet union has refused to agree to measures necessary to make collective forces available to the U.N."

PUSHED BACK—American armored forces are shown here at the Kum River where they have been rolled back in a new Communist attack. After repulsing three attempts, the Americans were forced to withdraw in one section of the front, by the swarming North Koreans. The Kum is the last great strategic defence line in the South.

Communists Advancing Under Heavy Fire In Effort To Drive Wedge Between American Soldiers - South Koreans

TOKYO, July 16.—(Sunday)—(CP).—An army spokesman in Korea said late Saturday night the United States' left flank has been pushed back from the Kum river to a new position by attacking Communists. The advanced headquarters spokesman said the U.S. troops were holding firm at the centre of their front, northwest of Taejon, but have been moved back generally west, somewhat from Taejon, the emergency capital. Northward, midway to Chongju, some 40 miles north of Taejon, South Korean forces gave some ground.

The spokesman said no Red tanks had been seen south of the river. But several were seen on two north-south roads west of Taejon.

American front-line defenders appeared in danger of encirclement following the first crossing of the strategic Kum River by Northern forces, said a Reuters dispatch.

Overrun Positions

The North Koreans breached the American river line near Samgyo, 20 miles northwest of Taejon, over-ran field gun positions, and established a bridgehead.

The Communist forces apparently were trying to drive a wedge between the United States right flank and South Korean troops defending a sector 10 miles south of Chongju, said the Associated Press.

Some Communist soldiers were seen advancing under heavy mortar fire, an AP correspondent at advanced headquarters said in a dispatch timed at 10:52 p.m. Saturday (8.52 a.m. EDT Saturday).

The correspondent, William R. Moore, said the northern self-propelled 76-millimetre guns were believed to have been brought into use.

Earlier Moore had reported from Korea the Americans had stabilized their positions near the Kum river toehold grabbed by the Communists earlier in the day.

Four Red tanks were destroyed attempting ferry crossings of the river.

Heavy fighting raged in the sector, south of Changju. The South Koreans were holding their own in this battle, AP correspondent reported.

Salvage Work Difficult On Big Liner

QUEBEC, July 15 (CP) — The 20,000-ton liner Franconia seesawed with the tides on a rocky reef today, with underwater punctures in her hull. Work crews tried to keep her pumped out.

The powerful salvage tug Traverse was to arrive late today. Unofficial sources said the Cunard Donaldson ship was taking water in increasing quantity. Friday night they reported two pumps had been added to five already working.

A reporter who circled the vessel in a launch said the prow is solidly on the craggy shore off the west end of the Isle of Orleans, a mile from here, but the stern is in deep St. Lawrence river water.

Assess Damage

Divers have been at work in the swirling water at Pointe au Taureau—name of the jutting head of rock where the ship struck—trying to establish the damage and assess the difficulties of refloating the vessel.

A preliminary inquiry ordered by the Department of Transport was to open today aboard the ship. The hearing would be closed, it was understood.

Friday a big barge towed by the tug Marion-B was grounded on the rocks by treacherous currents while it unloaded the Franconia's cargo to reduce the ship's weight and give her an easier chance to float. Grounding of the barge demonstrated that salvage will be difficult.

One report said the gash in the ship's underside is 60 feet long.

Cars Collide Head On, 3 Die

BRAMPTON, July 15—(CP)—Three persons were killed and three others injured when two automobiles collided head-on 10 miles north of here Friday night.

James Cobban, 44, Ferguson Cassidy, 51, and Edward Haddad, 17, all of Toronto, died. All were passengers in a car driven by George Martin, of Toronto, who suffered facial cuts.

Less seriously injured were Marjorie Cameron, Caledon, Ont., driver of the other car, and Allan Neeley, Inglewood, Ont., driver of a tractor which took to the ditch as Martin tried to pass it.

Asks Private Trial For Armed Bandit

SIMCOE, Ont., July 15 (CP)—Preliminary hearing of charges of murder and bank robbery against Herbert Joseph McAuliffe 32-year-old army veteran, open Monday in this South-western Ontario tobacco-growing town.

McAuliffe's counsel, W. E. Ross, said Friday he will ask for exclusion of the public from the hearing because accused has not had "a fair deal" from newspaper accounts of the case. The hearing will be conducted by Magistrate H. P. Innes.

McAuliffe, mosquito-bitten and unshaven, was arrested June 24, just 74 hours after an armed bandit, fleeing with $22,500 loot from a Langton, Ont., bank, coolly cut down two pursuers with a withering blast of sub-machinegun fire from the rear window of his car.

APPLETON, Ont., July 15 (CP)—Three firemen were injured today fighting a $100,000 blaze which destroyed most of the Collie Woollen Mills and left more than 100 workers jobless. Appleton is about 40 miles west of Ottawa.

John Lyons of the Almonte fire department was taken to hospital for injuries suffered when struck by a falling beam. Gordon Lyons, no relation, of the Carleton Place fire department also had to be treated in hospital George Julian of Almonte suffered minor injuries and was treated at home.

Cause of the early morning outbreak in the town's only industry was not known.

Walter Stanfield, mill superintendent, said the mill will be reorganized and the efforts will be made to "farm out" the orders now on hand.

Happy Ending In Korea Generals Sure

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP)—The chiefs of staff of the United States army and air force flew back from Korea today with the word that American troops "are doing damn well there, and everything will come out all right."

Their return from the war theatre was expected to speed up President Truman's decision on what to do about mobilizing American resources.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief, stepepd off the plane with Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, air force chief, in a driving early-morning rain at the military airport, after a 4½-day flying trip to Japan and the Korean battlefront.

Collins told reporters: that "you know more about what has happened in the last 24 hours than we do." It was he who expressed the optimistic summary of the situation in the war area.

Neither general would say anything about the nature of the recommendations they will make as to stepping up support for the Americans fighting the Communists in South Korea.

The army and air force chiefs left Washington Monday night with the announced intention of finding out on the spot how best the defence department and armed services could support Gen. Douglas MacArthur's elements in Korea.

Argentina's Quints Have 7th Birthday

(AP) — Argentina's Diligenti quintuplets today celebrate their seventh birthdays.

They already speak five languages—Spanish, English, French, German and Italian — and are ready to start on the five times five multiplication table.

The two boys and three girls are the children of Franco Diligenti, a wealthy textile manufacturer, who has spurned all offers to exhibit the quints publicly.

Each one is having a birthday cake today at the party to which 40 adults and about 80 children have been invited.

The children are Franco, Jr., Carlos, Maria Fernanda, Maria Esther, and Maria Christina.

Offers 19 Million To Buy Northern Ireland From UK

LONDON, July 15 (Reuters)—The self-styled "Baron of Broadway," who wants to buy Northern Ireland for $19,600,000 and hand it over to the Republic of Ireland, had the door of Prime Minister Attlee's house shut in his face.

He called Friday at 10 Downing Street—Attlee's official residence —"to protest against the partition of Ireland" and talk business.

Still smarting under the rebuff he received in Belfast two weeks ago when police seized two Irish Republican pennants from his car, Irish-born John J. Hanley of New York drove up to the Prime Minister's house with the pennants fluttering on the car's radio aerial.

The 56-year-old "Baron," who claims to be a multimillionaire, heaved himself out of his car and mounted the steps.

That was as far as he got. His request for a talk with Attlee was politely but firmly refused by a servant.

Hanley drove away with the promise that he would be back.

"I'll certainly write for an appointment," he said in a brogue as thick as peat smoke.

Hanley began his one-man campaign to unite Ireland a month ago.

"Ive offered Sir Basil Brooke (Northern Ireland premier) £1,000,000 for eac hcounty (of six) and I stick to that offer."

Bookies Laying 6 To 1 Hill To Die In Barrel Trip

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 15.—(CP).—Bookmakers are said to be laying as much as 6 to 1 that Major Hill will die if he persists in his plan of going over Niagara Falls tomorrow in a barrel. Hill, veteran 32-year-old river man, says he'll make it. And he adds that Sunday night he'll "sit back and snicker at the people who said it couldn't be done."

But before he does make the 155-foot descent in a 12-foot, 725-pound steel barrel, he'll have to avoid the Niagara parks commission and police.

In a letter to Hill Friday, Labor Minister Charles Daley of Ontario reminded him that he will violate park regulations and leave himself open to a fine if he tries it.

Won't Violate Rules

Said Hill: "The way my trip is planned, it will not violate the park regulations."

If he makes the drop over the Horseshoe Falls on the Canadian side of the border, he will be the sixth person to try. Three have made it and two have been killed.

Hill—Major is his first name, not a military title—has shot the Rapids at the foot of the Falls in a barrel.

His two brothers, Norman and Wesley, plan to use a power launch to pick him up after the perilous descent. The pick-up itself is a dangerous feat near the base of the Falls.

India Rushes Note To Attlee

LONDON, July 15 (Reuters) — A further message on Korea from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India today was rushed 40 miles to Prime Minister Attlee by special dispatch rider.

It was announced Thursday Nehru has made personal approaches to Prime Minister Stalin and to State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States on the Korea conflict.

Today's message was dispatched from India House in London, to Chequers in Buckinghamshire, Attlee's official country residence, where he is entertaining the Australian prime minister, Robert Menzies, during the weekend.

The Indian High Commissioner in London, V. K. Krishna Menon, is believed to be holding himself in readiness in case Attlee wishes to consult him during the weekend.

Asks Divine Guidance

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP). — President Truman prayed for Divine guidance in his office Friday with Evangelist Billy Graham of North Carolina. The evangelist said he suggested a prayer while in Truman's office, and the president agreed.

Organize Committee For Flood Damage

FORT FRANCES, July 15 (CP)—Officials of Koochiching county, Ont., and Minnesota met Friday at International Falls, Minn., to organize a civil-defence and disaster relief committee to assess public and private flood damage.

The committee will survey needs of victims of the month-long high water on Rainy Lake. The lake is receding gradually, both there and in Fort Frances, just across the Rainy river on the international border.

The United States federal government has allocated $150,000 for repair of roads and public buildings and utilities.

Generally, the damage was confined to cottages and installations along the lakeshore. Neither town was hit.

Love Affair Ends In Murder

DETROIT, July 15—(AP)—With two families broken and bewildered, the sordid ending to an illicit love led today towards trial court.

Brooding in a jail cell, 42-year-old Sam Sampson is to be charged with murder in the pants-belt strangling of pretty Mrs. Vivian Stanley, 37.

The husky grocer-butcher, married and father of three children, confessed the slaying Friday after 16 hours of police grilling.

Prosecutor Gerald K. O'Brien said a murder charge will be asked on the basis of a statement from Sampson that he killed Mrs. Stanley, mother of two, in a quarrel.

Police said Sampson admitted strangling Mrs. Stanley with his trousers belt in a quarrel after he rebuked her for employing private detectives to watch him.

Some months ago Mrs. Stanley loaned Sampson $5,000 for his business. The two were intimate but Sampson's ardor cooled, police said.

"I told her I didn't want to marry her. I wanted to get rid of her," Sampson was quoted as having told her in the car.

Egypt Won't Give Ground Forces To UN

CAIRO, July 15—(Reuters)—Egypt's war minister, Mustafa Mosrat Bey, said today that Egypt will not send ground forces to Korea.

Commenting on Trygve Lie's appeal to the United States for aid for the South Koreans, he said that "in keeping with our declared neutral attitude in the conflict there, we are not giving any assistance."

Budget Surplus 213 Million For 3 Months

OTTAWA, July 15. (CP)—The Federal Government, aiming at a $20,000,000 surplus for the 1950-51 fiscal year, built up a budgetary surplus of $213,600,000 in the first three months of the year's operations, it was announced Friday.

The three-month figure compared with a surplus of $202,900,000 in the April 1-to-June 30 period of 1949. The last fiscal year ended with a surplus of more than $110,000,000.

Finance Minister Abbott has said frequently that revenues always run ahead of expenditures during the first months of the year. Expenditures usually are heaviest in the last few months when accounts for the year are received.

Since the outbreak of the war in Korea, there has been some conjecture in unofficial circles that Mr. Abbott will end the year with a deficit rather than a surplus.

Although Canada's contribution to the fight against North Korea so far has been limited to three destroyers, it is anticipated that defense expenditures will be heavier than anticipated when the budget was brought down last March.

In June, revenues amounted to $195,000,000 and expenditures to $175,800,000. In June, 1949, revenues were $191,000,000 and expenditures $240,400,000. The June, 1949, expenditure figure included a charge of $71,700,000 arising out of the assumption by Canada of Newfoundland guaranteed stock as provided for under the terms of union.

In the three-month period, revenues were $634,200,000 compared with $674,000,000. Expenditures were $420,600,000 compared with $471,100,000.

Outlays for loans, advanced and investments — classed as non-budgetary disbursements — amounted to $30,700,000 compared with 54,100,000 in the first three months of 1949-50.

Ban Two Korea Reporters 'Made Army Look Bad'

TOKYO, July 15. (AP)—United States Army authorities today told Tom Lambert, Associated Press correspondent, and United Press correspondent Peter Kalischer that they could not return to the South Korean war front.

Lambert was notified as he was about to board a bus to return to Korea. He had been here briefly on leave.

Col. M. P. Echols, Gen. MacArthur's public information officer, told the Associated Press Bureau here that some of Lambert's dispatches had been objectionable because "they gave aid and comfort to the enemy."

He cited as an example a quotation from a front-line soldier that "this is a damned useless war." Echols was reminded that soldiers on all fronts in the Second World War made similar comment. He agreed

The United Press office here said it received a similar explanation for the ban against Kalischer.

Lambert, whose dispatches have won wide play in newspapers all over the world, including The Examiner, was threatened with expulsion from South Korea a few days ago.

In this instance, too, military authorities said there was no question of security or inaccuracy in his dispatches.

The United Press office in Tokyo said Col. Echols told it that Kalischer was being prohibited from returning to Korea because his stories gave "aid and comfort to the enemy" and because "they made the army look bad."

The bureau said it was told by Echols that it was his opinion that Gen. McArthur's headquarters had taken action against Kalischer in a move to get all foreign correspondents to "soft pedal" the stories of the American defeat.

Then news bureau spokesman said it was told that the facts in Kalischer's stories were correct but the army did not like the way they were written, contending they were "sensational."

Admiral Says - No Sabotage In UK Explosions

PORTSMOUTH, England, July 15—(Reuters)—Admiral of the Fleet Sir Algernon Willis, commander-in-chief of the Portsmouth naval base, said today there is no reason to suspect sabotage caused the fire which set off last night's ammunition explosions in Gosport Harbor.

The high-ranking Royal Navy officer made this statement after holding a preliminary on-the-spot enquiry into the blasts which destroyed nine naval ammunition barges, wrecked a loading jetty and three railroad ammunition trucks, and shattered doors and windows over a wide area.

Patrol Docks

Armed police today patrolled the entire dock area of Portsmouth —Britain's principal naval base— while naval intelligence officers combed the devastated area for clues. First information, said the Admiralty, suggests that the explosions were caused by an accident.

A senior dockyard armament depot official said today that despite the severe damage, it now was almost certain that no one was killed. Three of thirty men loading barges at the time were at first reported missing but a check early today showed that they were safe at home.

Most men took cover in the shelter of defence mounds when a shout of "fire" gave warning of the first explosion, the official added.

The unknown man who shouted the warning had seen flames leap along the deck of a barge toward 500 cordite containers. Seconds later three barges blew up, followed by three more. Two other barges sank, presumably holed below the water line.

Canada Producing Hydrogen Isotopes

OTTAWA, July 15 — (CP) — Government spokesmen said Friday Canada has produced both heavy water and hydrogen isotopes, from which the basic ingredients of the hydrogen bomb are made, but declined to discuss the possibility of this country doing any research work on the H-bomb.

Canada's entire atomic energy program, they said, is devoted to peacetime application.

Bushman Held As Suspect

THESSALON, Ont., July 15. — (CP).—Police Friday night ordered a mental examination for a 52-year-old six-foot bushman and said they will question him to see if he is the mystery man who has been terrorizing this district and mutilating livestock.

They ordered the examination after an inmate in the town jail complained the bushman tried to assault him.

Police did not divulge the man's name. They said, however, he had given his home as a farm 10 miles from Quebec and reported he had said he came to the Thessalon area in search of work.

Provincial police took the bushman from a train east of here Thursday after the train crew complained that the man was acting queerly. They said he was shouting incoherently and waving his arms.

U.S. Agrees To Equip Iranian Army Now

TEHRAN, Iran, July 15.—(AP). —Premier Gen. Ali Razmara said Friday the United States has agreed to equip Iran's army for defensive mountain fighting.

The equipment, he said, will include infantry arms, light mountain artillery and other material. It will be worth from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000, and will start arriving in about a month.

The premier said in an interview that the threat of an invasion from Russia, Iran's northern neighbor, was "a reality."

Stock Prices Continue Their Tumble

By FRANK KAPLAN,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Stock prices continued tumbling this week despite recovery attempts.

This was the third successive week of declining stock market prices following the outbreak of fighting in Korea.

Movements were shaky over the five days. The market changed quickly from one hour to the next. Traders were uncertain.

One New York broker, quoted in the Wall Street Journal, said: "Everyone is asking about buying for a turn. The answer, of course, should be given by an expert on mass phychology rather than a security analyst."

Wall Street prices rallied partially from early selling, Monday but failed to wipe out the losses. Repeated waves of selling battered prices Tuesday and continuation of the rapid-fire selling sent the market back on Wednesday in its sharpest break since the beginning of the Korean war.

Selling Haevy

Selling continued heavy early Thursday but support appeared, reducing many of the declines. Friday the list chalked up its first advance of the week.

The Associated Press 60-stock average closed the five days' trading yesterday at 71.5, a loss of 1.9.

Canadian markets reflected the new York movements. In Toronto the exchange's index of representative stocks showed a loss of 5.95 over the week despite strong attempts to rally the list. Inter-listed stocks—issues also listed in New York—were hardest hit.

The gold list dropped to a seven-year low Thursday, rallied strongly yesterday but still showed a loss of 6.21 on the index. Base metals held firm allowing increases in the price of lead. The index lost only .15.

Western oils also dipped despite recovery movements. The index dipped 2.18, largely the result of sharp setbacks Wednesday and Thursday after strong advances in two previous sessions.

Entire Family In Parade As Home Town Rodeo Held

By JACK SCOTT

Y-CROSS RANCH, High River, Alta.—Here are some footnotes on our stopover in the foothills:

This has been a wonderful experience for our Judy, whose riding experience was hitherto limited to Saturday morning trots around a sawdust ring.

She now has temporary custody of a mild-mannered, black mare name of "Molly" and, with the help of Nora Bews, also 10, she's rapidly learning to handle her steed in open country. The method being to set a course and let "Molly" go her own sweet way.

Tomorrow is the day of the annual High River Rodeo. The youngsters here on the ranch look forward to it with as much excitement as to Christmas. Most of today was spent washing and polishing the saddles and harness and trying on the new clothes. The whole family will be riding in the parade. A mighty handsome group they'll make, too.

Nearly every town in Alberta of any size has its own personal rodeo, far more important to the country people than the big Calgary show.

One of the surprising aspects of ranch life is that two men, Joe Bews and his hired man, George, should be the entire "staff" for an operation covering 5,000 acres.

George, a slim fellow of 24, is an interesting case. A year ago he was making Ford engine blocks in Sarnia, Ontario. All he knew about the west was what he saw in cowboy movies. Seems that a girl said "no" and George decided to head for other parts. Now he's at home in the saddle and determined to roam no more.

There's no isolationism among these ranchers.

Last night we were guests of Dick Machin at his nearby dude ranch. As we drove up to the picturesque ranch house we could see the folks on the porch. It was a beautiful night, the sky filled with stars and a moon over the Rockies and pleasantly cool after a warm day.

I had the feeling of being in another world and another and perhaps happier age. But when we neared the porch and could hear the conversation I was back in the uncertain present.

They were discussing Korea.

A favorite topic of discussion in these parts is the miracle of the Chinook winds, a warm, soft breeze that can change winter into summer in a few hours. One rancher told us of going to bed last winter at 40 below zero and waking to find the snow melting on the roof.

That bright moon last night, by the way, gave us our first hearing of coyotes in full voice, howling at the moon. Their mournful chorus died out, however, when a new and mysterious sound came out of the west: Trans-Canada Airlines night flight passing directly overhead.

Ranchers have a philosophic and sensible attitude about the certain fate of their cattle.

One told me, "One way or another, you get to know every one and I sometimes hate to see the poor devils go. But what the hell? We grow 'em to eat. They are put on this earth to feed us and that's that. It always annoys me when city people suggest I'm hard-hearted about it. I wonder if they ever stop before biting into a good steak and think about it."

On the Y-Cross this attitude broke down in the case of Minnie, the pig. Minnie had a personality, was loved by the kids and Joe Bews finally gave her away rather than resort to the usual slaughter.

"It wouldn't have mattered, anyway," he says. "Nobody could have eaten Minnie."

We heard here, too, of the boy who doesn't eat lamb. Seems he had a pet lamb that finally got too big and was sent off to get the axe. The kid has resolutely refused to touch meat since then.

Considering the fact that the nearest neighbor is three miles away there's a surprising amount of social life.

Monday night Joe and his wife danced until near-dawn after a branding bee. Next day they were away to Calgary for a wedding. Day after that Joe was pall-bearer at a funeral in High River.

There's always somebody "dropping in." Yesterday it was the game warden with a truck load of fine looking cut-throat trout to be released in the small streams that rush into the Highwood River.

There's rarely a dull moment around a ranch.

Coming back here into the foothills, I was congratulating myself on getting into country far from the beaten track. But from the moment we arrived we kept getting reminded that another chronicler had been this way in the person of John "Mr. Canada" Fisher. There's a boy who really gets around.

And about that gigantic hill we must ascend to get our trailer out of this Shangri-la: We're being towed out tomorrow by truck.

Novice Huckleberry Picker No Match For Veteran

By W. J. COTTRELL

MARMORA, July 15 (ENS)—At last it can be said that this scribe has ventured forth for the first time to pick huckleberries. For it is indeed a venture to go in quest of that fruit, abundant most summers which attracted the Crowe tribe of Indians here a century ago as well as the good deer hunting of that time. The same wilderness exists east of Deloro as then. No doubt the Indians were the first to make those luscious huckleberry pies for which there is still a large following of connoisseurs.

Friends of mine tried their hardest to dissuade me from joining a huckleberry picking expedition, but to no avail.

Eventually I linked up with the party of Steve Glembiski of Deloro. Steve is a native of Poland but how he has learned to traverse the aforementioned wilderness with utmost safety since becoming a resident of Deloro somewhat over 20 years ago. If there are any professional huckleberry pickers he is of the number.

He has his own paths through the woods undiscernable to those of his company. A woody swamp had to be crossed before the most productive patches were reached and also the scaling of granite ledges and boulders. Steve pointed out the advisability of wearing rubber-heeled boots and walking on your heels when descending or ascending a rocky imminence.

His deftness at picking was soon evident. I was fortunate perhaps in being invited to become a member of his party for whereas he picked more than 12 quarts with ease in about five hours, I as the novice, got less than half the amount in the same time in spite of the fact I was directed to patches equally as good as the ones he picked.

My observations on this new venture of mine were that there are two varieties of the berries, blue and black, and that each is to be found growing on short bushes which protrude from crevices in these massive red granite formations as well as growing on the sides of the rock and beneath shady trees. Fortunately, I chose a day for my new occupation when a good breeze was blowing to keep perspiration and mosquitoes at a minimum.

The most tiresome part of the trip was the walk home when one relished the knowledge of the guide.

Do I want to go again?

Not exactly.

I am prepared to say this of those who go to the so-called huckleberry rocks day after day while the season lasts, that they earn their pay whatever it is, and in the case of Steve, two dollars only for a six quart basket. Initiation was sufficient for me.

Canada Waits UN Aid Appeal

OTTAWA, July 15.—(CP.)—Canada today awaited official word of a United Nations appeal for more military aid to Korea. The U.N. appeal, said to stress the need for ground troops, had not been received in Ottawa up to an early hour this morning. Until it is, there is no way of knowing the nature of the call upon Canada, which has sent three destroyers to help the U.N.'s intervention in South Korea. But it became clear that home-defence requirements would be a guiding factor in any decision on sending further forces to Korea. It was believed that while further naval aid, and possibly some air power, might be considered, commitment of Canadian troops from the Dominion's small home-defence force was unlikely.

Canada's present army strength is no more than 22,000 or 23,000 men with only about 30 per cent. of them actual fighting men. The backbone of her present ground force is an airborne brigade of about 4,000 men and two armored regiments which at full strength would contain about 300 men each.

At Half-Strength

In addition she has reserve army units organized in all parts of the country but these are said to be at only about 50 per cent. of full strength. Recruiting for the reserve on a voluntary basis is in full swing.

Informed sources said the airborne brigade has always been considered as a "shield" for Canada in event of emergency, a force which might hold off an enemy until the country could mobilize. To send it out of Canada would be a fundamental change of policy.

Most of Canada's Cabinet ministers are out of the capital but many are within close reach and ready to return at a moment's notice. Prime Minister St. Laurent is at his summer home at St. Patrice, Que., where he is being kept informed on international developments. He is expected in Ottawa for the regular Cabinet meeting next Wednesday at which the Korean situation will be reconsidered.

Come By Plane To Seek Help

H. McDaniel of Espanola came via airplane to Peterborough with an SOS call to the CGE this week.

The Kalamazoo Vegetable Parchment Paper Company at Kalamazoo had had its supply of chlorine gas suddenly cut off with the result that the cost of bleaching pulp had risen $8.00 a ton.

The CGE was manufacturing some generating equipment for this firm, but due to the emergency, Mr. McDaniel chartered a plane at Sudbury and flew to this city. The plane landed in Little Lake and Mr. McDaniel walked over to CGE.

To meet this emergency, part of the Main Test equipment of the CGE plant was sent to Espanola Wednesday in a special truck shipment. This will be used until the ordered equipment can be delivered.

Mr. McDaniel left after lunch on Tuesday for Chemong where he boarded his plane at Rockland Airways and by 6:15 the same day he was back in Espanola.

Carry Water Fom Well To Supply Booster Pumper

CAMPBELLFORD, July 15 — (ENS)—An urgent call sent the Campbellford fire department to the home of Jack Maier on the northern outskirts of the town on Friday evening, when flames of undetermined origin broke out in a woodshed at the rear of the building.

Although the equipment was on hand almost immediately, the flames ate their way into the kitchen of the house, and threatened to spread into the upper part of the dwelling. Neighbors and firemen feared the flames would not be checked, and so hastily started to carry out what furniture and personal belongings they could. Most of the contents of the building were saved, although they suffered extensive breakage.

With no water supply to support them, the firemen had to move their truck dangerously close to the flames, in order that water from a well near the house could be carried in pails and poured into the pumper tank on the fire truck. This water was run through the boosters on the truck, and in this way, one stream of water under pressure was brought into play.

Neighbors quickly assembled a garden hose and stretched it about a half mile to the nearest tap. The hose was manned by 16-year-old Ron Chapman, who stood on a burning roof to play the rather weak stream of water on the rear part of the house itself. This probably stopped the flames from destroying the upper part of the dwelling.

The woodshed and kitchen was destroyed in the blaze, and the interior of the home suffered smoke and water damage.

Mr. Maier is out of town on a business trip, and his mother was alone in the house when the fire broke out.

Loss is unofficially estimated at $1,500, but when the accounting is made, this may run higher.

MORE ABOUT—

pondent Moore said in a field headquarters dispatch.

He said there was relatively little fighting during the day around the Samgyo foothold seized by the Reds. Some of these waded the shallow river to reach the south side, where they held on tenaciously.

The Red bridgehead was established by large forces of infiltrating guerrillas wearing G. I. uniforms and that 1,000 soldiers made the initial crossing.

They apparently spread rapidly over an extensive area.

Repel Three Attacks

Small arms in the hands of U.S. soldiers repelled three attempted crossings by Communists in boats. An attempted crossing Friday which the Americans smashed was made by about a company of Red soldiers trying to walk across the ruins of a blown bridge.

The Reds lost heavily in sharp artillery and small arms duels.

The first crossing was made about 20 miles northwest of Taejon. Taejon was the provisional capital of South Korea after Seoul fell.

The Reds, some wearing American fatigues, attacked in overwhelming force. They over-ran one American artillery unit.

Earlier General MacArthur said the American and South Korean forces were withdrawing before superior forces. He said they were fighting rearguard actions awaiting reinforcements.

MacArthur reported that the 6th North Korean Division, veterans of China warfare, was engaged in an encircling movement north of the Kum river near Yesan, about 40 miles northwest of Taejon.

The Red 5th and 15th divisions were active around Tanyang, 65 miles northeast of Taejon, is the springboard for a possible wide envelopment that might eventually threaten American communication lines running northwestward from Pusan.

Two other Communist divisions, the 2nd and 4th, continued steady pressure against South Koreans in the Chochiwon-Chongju area, about 15 miles directly north of Taejon. A field dispatch said South Koreans in this general area had surrounded a battalion of Red troops.

The Allied aid offensive was slowed by bad weather for the second consecutive day. American and Australian planes made 190 sorties, however, and blasted targets from the front to Seoul, 90 miles north.

A Far East air forces communique said two Russian-made Yak-9 fighters were destroyed on the ground at Kimpo air field near Seoul. In all, pilots reported six tanks destroyed and seven damaged. They said they also destroyed 37 trucks and damaged 55 others.

B - 29 Superforts pounded bridges, roads and vehicles near Chungju, 50 miles northeast of Taejon. Others bombed the North Korean east port city of Wonsan for the second day. The communique said results of the strikes were good but that extent of damage was unknown.

Today's strafing attacks along the Kum took up where Australian Mustang fighters left off when darkness fell last night.

The Australian fliers concentrated on the north bank of the river Friday.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, July 15 (CP) — Prices generally showed a weaker tone Friday on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, with heavier hedging and more liberal offerings in all grains. Oats and barley prices closed near the low levels of the day. American house buying gave way to local selling in rye, and prices declined along with coarse grains. Losses in United States markets and more favorable crop erports in the Canadian West influenced the trade.

Request Easing Of Newsprint

GENEVA, July 15 (Reuters)— The social committee of the United Nations Economic and Social Council Friday adopted a resolution calling on all governments concerned to end confiscation of newsprint and other discriminatory actions contrary to the freedom of the press.

The vote was 12 in favor, with Peru, Mexico and Pakistan abstaining.

The resolution said shortage of newsprint supplies in various countries "has caused certain governments to intervene officially in sale and purchase of newsprint.

"Government interference in this matter has led in certain cases to confiscation and to other forms of arbitrary and discriminatory action, which it is desirable to avoid," it added.

Car, Transport, Truck Crash, Occupants Safe

COBOURG, July 15 (ENS)—A small English car, a big transport loader with steel, a light truck pulling a small grader, were all involved in an accident yesterday about two miles east of Cobourg on Highw[illegible] 2.

Nobody was seriously injured. Traffic was held up for an hour and the highway was not completely cleared for three and a half hours.

Driving the transport was Rene Chardenteir of Montreal, proceeding west. The eastbound car, driven by Mrs. Isobel Grey of Mimico, first collided with the transport and then hit the light truck and grader.

The small car had the front smashed in but the body was not damaged.

Mrs. Grey sustained a cut on her head but her two grandsons, Tom, age 7 and Kenny, age 9, escaped without a scratch.

The transport rolled over and flung steel joists and steel pipes all over the highway. The driver was shaken up. Harry Landymore, who was in charge of the light truck and grader, was unhurt. The accident was investigated by Provincial Constable Lyle Erskine of Cobourg.

Mourns For Call of Whistle Diesel Siren Said Toneless

In the interests of efficiency one of the great natural sounds of Canada is being muted. I call it a natural sound though it is produced by machinery for surely no sound, not even the honk of the goose, is more natural in Canadian ears than the shriek of a locomotive whistle, writes Bruce Hutchinson, in The Vancouver News-Herald.

Daily Hello

As I write this in the Canadian forest, I can hear a freight train laboriously climbing the Cliffside hill. In the old days its whistle would shout a daily hello to the few human inhabitants of these parts . . . . . four blasts, clear, friendly, sweet with the music of Canada. But today the battered old box cars are hauled by a glistening Diesel engine which has no music in it, and no soul. Listen to its whistle—a series of flatulent obscene grunts. Soon, no doubt, the Diesel, soulless and efficient, will be grunting from coast to coast.

I do not blame the railways. They have to consider efficiency, costs, and the other unimportant aspects of life. I only protest, on behalf of the older people of Canada, that another morsel of magic is going out of Canadian life with the old-fashioned steam whistle.

Beauty in Whistle

The young, I suppose, will not understand this. You have to live with the daily shriek of the whistle before you can appreciate its beauty, and the sound must echo with old memories To the Canadian of middle age every whistle tells a story known to him only.

The whistle, indeed, tells almost the whole story of Canada, for our nation was built along a railway line. To the lonely men who built it a distant whistle was the only sure intimation that the nation actually existed.

The steam locomotive screamed defiance at geography, at economics, at mountain, plain and tundra, and the Canadian, hearing it in the wilderness, knew that the frail young nation would survive.

The diesel engine will serve well, I dare say, but it is too new to carry memories, it is too efficient for poetry, and it cannot make music. Every Canadian has lain awake at night, heard the distant steam whistle and suddenly felt within him the size, the beauty and the loneliness of Canada.

Diesel Torment

He will never hear these things from the Diesel. He will not fall peacefully asleep in the concord of sweet sound. Tormented in his bed by the Diesel's donkey bray, he will lie sleepless, cursing the efficiency of modern science.

In the interests of what the politicians call national unity and what the poet might call our Canadian dream, I suggest that the railways keep a few steam locomotives moving on the rails, moving anywhere so long as they whistle in the night. At least until the older generation, perhaps, having heard nothing better, may some day find Canada in a Diesel whistle. That is beyond our grasp, We hear only the grunts.

Keep a few whistles going so that we can remember our own youth and the youth of this country, which was a pretty good time. Let us fade out, as the lonely night whistle fades, in echoes through the Canadian hills.

I.r One Alone

There is no music like this. I once heard Wagner's Gotterdammerung played by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra in Carnegie Hall, but I was glad to return to my cabin and listen to the night freight shout its greeting on the Cliffside summit. The orchestra played for millions of people by radio. The locomotive always seems to whistle for me alone.

It is a personal greeting to every Canadian in his bed, the collective voice of his country reaching surely the ear of the individual citizen, reminding him of the sea rocks of the Maritime coast, the St. Lawrence Valley, the broad plains and the Rockies.

It is all there, the whole gigantic shape and substance of Canada, for the locomotive has been everywhere, a busy needle, perpetually sewing together the fabric of the nation. We listen and for a moment we hold Canada in our hand.

Giant Sugar Mill

KARACHI—(CP)—The larges sugar mill in Asia, situated in the Mardan district of Pakistan will go into production in November. The mill took four years to complete and has a crushing capacity of more than 3,000 tons of cane daily which will yield about 350 tons of fine sugar.

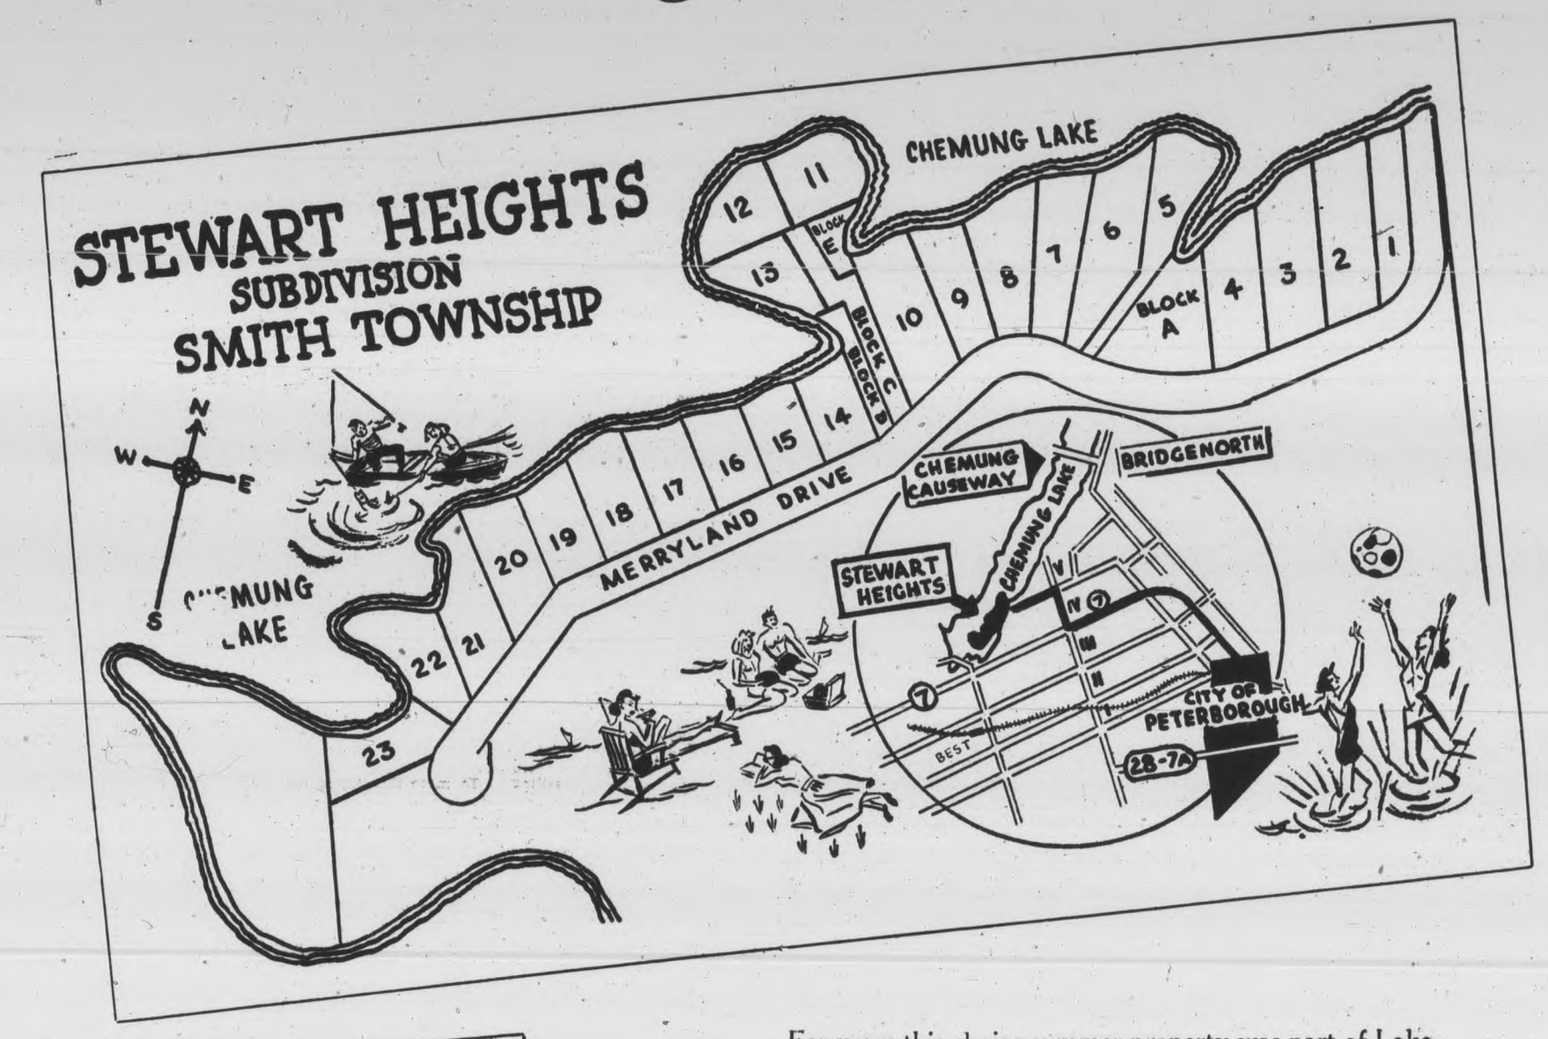
The Finest Summer Property on Chemung Lake!



PLAN PASSED BY MUNICIPAL BOARD

The plan of Stewart Heights has been passed by the Ontario Municipal Board. It stipulates that each lot must have at least 14,000 square feet of land—and only one dwelling on each lot. These restrictions assure purchasers of adequate space around building and greater privacy for every cottager.

Here are the advantages of STEWART HEIGHTS

- Only 7 Miles from Peterborough.
- Hydro to Your Door.
- Private and Peaceful.
- No Lots Less Than 14,000 sq. ft.
- Good Roads All the Way.
- Excellent Swimming and Boating.
- Good Elevation Above Water.

For years this choice summer property was part of Lakehead Farm and was not available for summer cottage building lots. Recently Mr. Hugh Stewart bought this section and has now had it subdivided into 23 beautiful lots. The lots are well wooded with oak, maple, birch and cedar --- the shore line is clear --- and there is a delightful sandy beach for safe bathing. It's secluded and quiet --- and only seven miles from Peterborough. A 66 foot winding, scenic roadway has been built, making excellent driving right to Stewart Heights.

NOW OPEN FOR INSPECTION

Drive out tomorrow and see for yourself how lovely it really is. Follow the arrows, after making the turn off the Chemung Rd. You'll be delighted with how easy it is to get there. Mr. Stewart will be there to show you around and answer any questions you may have regarding the property.

Emphasis On Capital Investment

Repeated rebukes are given Britain by people in this country and the U.S.A. for alleged squandering of her substance on socialistic measures such as National Health Insurance. The British Labour Government is socialistic but it has not thrown overboard the canons of good business and the foundations of Britain's economy. Nor are its chief items of expense on social, unproductive services. For instance, the amount of capital investment which the Government has made should reassure even a North American businessman who, with good reason, believes that a nation's prosperity and its outlays on construction and equipment (capital investment) are closely related.

Only last week we commented on the high rate of capital investment in Canada ($3,701,000,000 this year) as a reasonable indication of Canada's continuing prosperity. If a high rate of capital investment is good for Canada, it would seem to be good for Britain, too. And socialistic Britain is spending billions on new construction and equipment, from developing great hydro-electric power plants in the Scottish highlands, to modernizing coal and steel industries. Here is a table showing Britain's expenditure on various types of capital investment in 1948 and 1949, with proposed expenditures this year:

(In £ million)	1948	1949	1950
Fuel and Power	162	198	223
Transport and Communications	266	322	395
Shipping	76	68	54
Agriculture, forestry and fisheries	81	81	81
Manufacturing industry	424	455	450
Housing (including repair and maintenance)	492	475	451
Other social services	69	90	107
Administration and defence	65	74	89
Northern Ireland	27	37	36
Total	1,622	1,790	1,786

Labour and Industry in Britain, a quarterly review, points out that "the great part of capital investment is in the hands of private enterprise. Only a relatively small sector of the economy is in public ownership. The directors of corporations make their own decisions on what they would like to do and see ways of assigning or raising capital to get it done."

In view of the slowly-closing gap in Britain's dollar resources, its closeness to an overall balance of trade (in 1949 its deficit was only £70 million and a surplus of £50 is expected this year), and its huge capital investment, Britain's economic future is impressively good, even rosy, barring some international disruption.

Lack of Initiative In Housing

Last Saturday in these columns we discussed the new small houses being erected in this country, and the possibilities of improving the types. There is a modern architecture suitable to small houses which is being little used in Canada. Not only are our new houses merely cut-down versions of older, larger styles; it seems that the lack of initiative in building modernly and suitably extends also to the number of houses being built.

In 1949 three parliaments passed new housing acts; the British, the American and the Canadian. All were designed to provide housing for rental or sale within the means of average or poorer than average people. A recent study by the Community Planning Association of Canada shows that Canada has made least use of its Housing Act. The fault seems to lie with municipalities, builders and private citizens. Under Section 35 of the National Housing Act the federal government pays 75 per cent of the costs of housing schemes and the provincial governments 25 per cent. In six months since the Act was passed there have been propositions to build only 2,000 homes. In the same 6-month period the largest cities of the northern States have planned for 93,000 dwellings. Our twelve largest cities (with a smaller population) should comparatively have concrete plans for 12,000 units, at the same rate of building.

This city has kept as well abreast of its housing needs as most in Canada. More houses are of course needed. The fact is that there seems to be an ignoring, or an ignorance of, financial aids which are available to private builders as well as to corporations.

Nor has the opportunity been taken to branch out into newer types of housing. Under the Act, as Mr. R. H. Winters told the House of Commons last November: "The Dominion and the Province, with the co-operation of the municipality, would determine the type of rental housing which is needed . . . After the rental scale, allowing for the element of subsidy, has been determined, Central Mortgage will proceed with the construction of the buildings." Have the municipalities been too contented to stick to old types of houses or has Central Mortgage been too stodgy with its house plans?

Further, what has become of the $30,000,000 four-point Ontario program announced by Premier Frost in the budget of April 1948? Specifically, what has been done about Point 3 which provided for ten million dollars to encourage new building, the use of new materials, and the like? Are Ontario and Canada in a rut: content to put up the same old boxes dressed in green wood and new paint, and pretending to look modern with a new wide window and a new kitchen gadget?

Ships Aground

Stephen Leacock's chapter on the phlegmatic, frequent running-aground of the Mariposa Belle, the steamer chock-full of holiday makers, has a submersed relation to the tourist-laden Franconia's story of the last couple of days. The Franconia grounded as did the Mariposa Belle within sight of her home port. The 850 passengers seem to have suffered no rigours, though they cannot have been as unperturbed about the situation as the villagers on the Mariposa Belle. The incident is a reminder that the St. Lawrence is a seagoing channel not without navigational risks, in peace-time as in war. The St. Lawrence was hunted during the last war by German submarines; its reefs, islands and coast must ever be guarded against. The pilots who take the ships from Quebec on the first leg of the trans-Atlantic, and drop off at Father Point, later, like homing pigeons, to pick up a west-bound ship to pilot her to Quebec and Montreal, are not provided merely to give tourists their last and first contact with land, nor to ferry last and first mail on the pilot-boats.

Blast The Horn-Honkers

Peterborough drivers have many faults, but one of them is not a penchant for blowing their horns, except at weddings and while waiting for their girl-friends. Montreal is probably the horn-blowingest place in Canada, but there the thousands of taxi-drivers are Gallicly impatient or merely imitating their noisy brethren in New York. The exceptions to quiet Peterborough drivers are noticeable because they are so few and infrequent. However, they do choose the most annoying times to blow.

The residential street is quiet in the early evening. Nearly everybody is sitting on his verandah enjoying the peace, when a car pulls up across the road and blat! goes the horn. It happens that he is calling for the only people who are not sitting on their verandah, and he is too lazy or discourteous to get out of the car and ring the house bell. Then there is the midnight caller, or celebrant. He is merely tooting to say good-night, but, confound him (or her) he is saying good-night to the whole neighborhood, which has already said its adieus to the day, is awakened and does not get back to sleep again for an hour. People who blow horns at houses, and who are too discourteous to announce their presence in an orderly quiet knock at the door, ought to be ostracized by their friends so accosted, and pea-shot by everybody else whom they annoy.

Waters of Wisdom

by Lord Dunsany

UNDER the brilliant fountains of Trafalgar Square lie pools of water far down in the earth, the remnants of old showers that fell on the hills of Kent. I think that all proverbs lie like those deep pools, waters of wisdom that have drained there from common fields, from which may flash up here and there the inspiration of poets. But whether or not they may be thus called up, there they lie, a store of wisdom that has drained down from the generations.

ALL nations are the fields from which that wisdom seeps down through time, and whenever any chance brings one of these proverbs to the surface it has about it the commonness and simplicity and everlastingness and beauty of water. Who first said any one of them is as unknown as the date of the storm that was the source of any fountain, or the wind upon which it rode. All you can do is to say the country in which the words were uttered, as though you could say of a fountain on what farm fell the rain that fed the part of the pool from which it arises.

HERE is a simple and brilliant one from Spain, simple in its obvious and daily application, brilliant in its accuracy: "By the street of By-and-By one comes to the house of Never." By turning events into pictures, which is one of the functions of metaphor, a vividness is given to a truth which makes it easily seen, so that no explanation that anyone could attempt can add anything to the wisdom of that old saying by one who must have studied procrastination in the warm South till he knew the way and the end of it.

AND then there is an old Chinese saying engraved on a seat in some garden: "Enjoy yourself. It is later than you think." Simple words, as are the words of all proverbs. But could one cram more philosophy into a hundred?

ONLY recently I saw an example of the power of proverbs, when a village entertainment was being given, and five of us sat on a platform while others asked us questions. And one of the questions asked was: "Should women make up in public?" One of us gave an answer, and my turn came second. But instead of using my own wits I used a proverb out of the Book of Proverbs: "Vain is the snare of the fowler laid in sight of the bird." And the effect of it was like picking up an axe to enter a fight in which others were using their bare fists, and no more answers were asked for to that question.

ANOTHER proverb from Spain has often been of practical use to me. For often I have sat cold before an unlit fire, reflecting that one cannot light a fire in May, or June, or whatever the month was, or that it wasn't worth lighting it because I was going to be in the room for only half an hour; and then this proverb, once heard by chance, has come back to my memory: "Only a beggar or a fool need be cold." And I have lit the fire and kept warm. Indeed, I suppose that all proverbs are of practical use to us: that is what they are for. Either they help us to do things, in the case of the very simple Chinese one, "Softly, softly, catchee monkey"; or they help us to mend things that may require mending, as Shakespeare tells us where he says in "Much Ado About Nothing," "Patch grief with proverbs."

ALL lands are strewn with these little gems, sometimes glowing like rubies, a rather startling red, as in the Turkish proverb, "Kiss the hand that you cannot cut off"; sometimes shining with the gentler gleams of a semi-precious stone in the desert, as in that proverb that is a useful guide in the valley of the Nile, where a wind will often blow suddenly on men in thin shirts of blue cotton, perspiring in a hot sun: "Who turns his back to the wind turns his face to Death."

AND then there was the German proverb, wherever they got it, that the Kaiser used to have engraved on his guns. Ultima ratio regis, the last argument of the King. The proverb was good enough, but the Kaiser neglected to be guided by its wisdom, and, instead of keeping the gun as his final argument, used it as one of his first, so that a long double row of those guns came as captives to ornament the Mall, while their improvident owner went into exile; and we, who might surely have borrowed proverbs to guide us from men who knew something of the secure caging of tigers, for lack of such simple wisdom let it all happen again.

Recruiting Male Nurses

(Toronto Star)

The suggestion was made at a recent convention of nurses in Toronto that more men should be induced to enter the profession. It would seem that this is an occupation for which men as well as women should be able to qualify. The ever-increasing demand for nurses would require that both men and women should be recruited in larger numbers.

That there is a place for men in the nursing profession is already being demonstrated in general hospitals and in institutions specializing in the treatment of chronic diseases. Psychiatry alone offers a wide field of interest to male nurses. The improvement of services in mental institutions may to a considerable extent depend on an adequate supply of qualified nurses and nursing aides of both sexes.

It is gratifying to note that a movement has been started to encourage recruitment of men to serve as nurses and aides in mental hospitals. This is being done by the National Mental Health Foundation, which last year for the first time awarded a prize of $500 and a citation to the "Aide of the Year" at Winter Veterans' Hospital in Topeka, Kansas.

The first such award bestowed on this continent was won by Walter Starnes, a Negro veteran, who was nominated by his colleagues for kindness and understanding, for promoting the standards of aides in mental hospitals and for developing techniques by which aides could be helpful to patients and the institution. Starnes was selected from among 12,000 contestants from private and public mental hospitals in the United States. The qualities for which he was chosen are important in the nursing profession as a whole and in mental hospitals in particular. They are: "Kindness, patience, tact, understanding and a deep sensitivity to the needs and feelings of others."

Ah, Take One Consideration With Another

(The Calgary Herald)

THE policeman's lot, as Gilbert and Sullivan have reminded us, is not a happy one. It is certainly not happy in Canada: for reasons that Walter Mulligan, Chief Constable of Vancouver, made plain in a speech last week. Mr. Mulligan was addressing the British Columbia Temperance Federation, and of course he was dealing with the observance (and non-observance) of laws relating to liquor and gambling.

These laws were hard to enforce, said Mr. Mulligan, because the public refused to co-operate. They cheered the policeman when he was tracking down thieves, but they booed him when he was tracking down bootleggers. They assisted his efforts to maintain public order, but they hindered his efforts to maintain public morality.

It was "ironical," said the chief, that citizens should pay the policeman to enforce the law — and then turn against him when he tried to do what they were paying him to do. Quite right: it is most ironical. But Canada is an ironical country. It is especially ironical in its attitude towards drink, gambling and the like—the frailties generally included under the vague heading of "vice."

To outsiders, this attitude is bewildering. But to Canadians it is, or should be, perfectly clear. We, like the Americans, are schizophrenic in the matter of "vice". One half of our split personality just loves "yice" and is drawn to it like a moth to a candle. The other half abhors "vice" and passes stringent laws against it.

Neither part of our split personality is dominant: they are halves, they are evenly matched. We are quite sincere in our desire to abolish gambling; but alas, we are equally sincere in our desire to have a little flutter. We are really quite proud of our liquor laws: but alas, we get so much comfort from that nip in the parked car.

IF some Canadians were virtuous in these matters, and others lax, then the whole issue could be decided by plebiscite. The good would vanquish the bad, or the bad the good, and that would be that. But it is not quite so simple: most Canadians are a mixture of easily-offended virtue and easily-encouraged laxity. The virtuous half votes, makes speeches, writes letters to the newspapers, passes strongly-worded resolutions: the lax half breaths a sigh of relief when all this effort is over, and sneaks around to Pete's for a shot of whisky and a roll of the ivories.

And we don't want to change: that would take the fun out of it. The semi-illegality of drinking in Canada gives every drop a bouquet all its own: the total illegality gambling in Canada gives it a fascination that Monte Carlo could never match. Let the forbidden fruits become permitted fruits, and they would be changed straightaway from nectarines to crab-apples.

We are what time and space have made us, and there is nothing to be done about it. We shall go on denouncing wickedness, and we shall go on enjoying it thoroughly. We shall go on passing "blue" laws, and we shall go on cursing the police for trying to enforce them. We are righteous rogues: we are sinful saints. We are contradictory and irrational, and thus we are well equipped for survival in a contradictory and irrational world.

A BRITISH OPINION

Progress of Peterborough: XXVI

Gentlefolk's Ways and Views In The County In 1830's

By HOWARD PAMMETT, M.A.

Thomas Need was a gay young Oxford graduate who came to the Kawarthas in 1832 to make his fortune. He kept a diary from May 1832 until September 1837, which he published the next year on going back to England, under the title "Six Years in the Bush." His description of his trip through the upper lakes is one of the first on record since Champlain's time. "I took a careful survey of Verulam township, and finally decided upon purchasing a lot of 3,000 acres, as a first investment of capital . . a dollar an acre or £750 provincial currency." As a moneyed gentleman he made a bargain with a woodsman to clear him 20 acres the first winter, for £3, 7s.6d. per acre, which freed Need himself to cut a fine figure in Peterborough society. Of a ball given by the bachelors, he wrote "A ball in the Bush." I thing I hear my fair partners of former days exclaim; but let me assure them that the bachelors of our district are not at all to be despised, and that the 'rank and fashion' of the neighborhood comprised nearly 200 persons."

His land was at the "Bob Cajwin" rapids between Sturgeon and Pigeon Lakes, where in June 1833 he purchased the millsite, and with the help of four Peterborough builders, constructed a sawmill for £350. "The erection of a sawmill is always the first marked event in the formation of a settlement in the Bush. At first, some one or two adventurers possessed of a little capital, purchase a few acres on the bank of a river where there is good waterpower; two or three rude huts or shanties are erected and a small clearing made in the forest; by degrees, others are attracted to the spot; the original settler meanwhile has turned a little money and embarks it in a sawmill; this induced many to come into the neighborhood from the facility it offers for building. Then as the settlement increases, some bold man is persuaded to erect a gristmill . . stores are opened, a tavern licensed, and in a few years a thriving village, or as in the case of Peterboro an important town, springs up in the heart of the forest."

Later he started a store also, apologizing "In this country, a gentleman may, if he chooses, keep an open store or shop without derogation . . " However, he soon tired of the backwoods, and in 1837 went back to England, returning to the Kawarthas for a short time in 1844 to sell his holdings to Mossom Boyd before he vanished from the district. The townsite which Need had laid out on his land in October 1833 is now part of the Village of Bobcaygeon.

The night has a thousand eyes,
The day but one;
Yet the light of the bright world dies
With the dying sun.

F. W. BOURDILLON: 1873

John and Anne Langton wrote letters to relatives in England, and kept diaries, of which selections have only been published recently; "Early Days in Upper Canada" by John Langton in 1926, and "A Gentlewoman in Upper Canada: Journals of Anne Langton" in 1950. John emigrated to Canada in 1833 at the age of twenty-five, and settled in Blythe on the eastern arm of Sturgeon Lake, where he attempted farming with the help of a couple of "hired hands." He bought 300 acres from McDonell at a Peterborough land auction at 10-14s. per acre, and another 200 acres adjoining on UEL land scrip at 3/9 per acre, with the idea of selling some land later at a profit. He wrote his father: "Land, except to one residing upon it and cultivating it himself, can never for many years to come be looked upon as a permanent investment . . Purchasing land is only a speculation for the purpose of selling it again, and it is the most profitable and certain kind of speculation that Canada holds out." Being more interested in quick profits than in cultivating the land, he concluded by 1844: "The complaints are universal of the difficulty of making a living by farming . . It is not to be done." Possibly this was natural among a group like those in Harvey township, whom Langton described in an early letter: "Four of them have been at a University, one at the military college at Woolwich, and the sixth, though boasting no such honors, has half a dozen silver spoons and a wife who plays the guitar."

There were some ordinary settlers coming into the upper lakes district by 1835, but to youths like Langton, Need, McAndrew, McCall, Mudge, King, Dennistoun and Evans, farming operations were never allowed to interfere with social jaunts to Cobourg and Peterborough. This item from a letter in February 1835 is typical: "We have had a very gay winter; several parties from Peterborough have been up to see the back lakes and observe how we backwoodsmen live . . .(We) are now undergoing a round of dancing etc. which has kept us from home for a week already and promises to detain us a day or two more . On the 13th inst. we had a grand ball at Major Sharp's which we kept up till half-past five; last night at Col. Brown's we stayed till two, and tonight at Major Hamilton's we are going to keep it up as long as we can find anyone to dance with." Sharp, Brown, and Hamilton were retired officers living in Peterborough.

Problems of Gentry

John's father, mother, aunt and sister Anne came out to join him in 1837; the father noted very quickly that "Few or none can maintain themselves by mere farming . This is meant of the gentleman farmers, but the laborer, if sober and in good health, never fails to do well. The fortunes that have been made generally been made by men who came without a shilling." Anne's letters and diaries for the period 1837-46 (recently published, and reviewed in the Examiner on June 7) gave a valuable insight into the reactions of a gentlewoman upon backwoods life, particularly as she was an unusually talented artist as well. Among the numerous complaints about the cold, the servant problem, the homesick loneliness, the social tidbits, she gives interesting items about life on the upper lakes, as seen from the relative security of Blythe House on Sturgeon Lake (which is still standing, deserted). The gentle snobbery of an English country gentlewoman seems strange in the Kawartha bushland, as when she writes in October 1838 about the first regatta-week on the Upper Lakes, when "Beauty and Fashion" gathered at Sturgeon Point. "Before it we had been more than 9 months without seeing a single Lady . . John entertains the gentlemen of the Verulam and Fenelon Hunt . This summer, when our bustling household made a little help from the ladies often necessary, I used to be amused at myself going so composedly about my duties at the cooking stove . . One would feel shocked at such observation in England . . " Dennistoun's engagement to one of the seven Hamilton girls in Peterborough is noted, and the arrival of Mr. Dunsford to settle near Blythe with five grown daughters (one of whom brother John married later).

Her dislike of the frontier continued to grow through 1839 "I daresay our lakes, waterfalls, rapids . . forests, Indian encampments, sound very well to you dwellers in the suburbs of a manufacturing town; nevertheless I assure you there cannot well be a more unpoetical and anti-romantic existence than ours . . We all joined in a little tirade against Canada this morning, my mother's ground of complaint being the slovenly nature of its inhabitants . . .Poor Country! It bears the blame of all the various sins of the MOTLEY HERD that inhabit it . . I take it that an English lady transported here is ordinarily a more useful character than a Canadian-bred one. This I gather from what I hear for of course I know nothing of it myself . . . Until the autumn of our arrival Mrs. Fraser had been the only lady in the settlement. Now there will be Mrs. Dennistoun, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Fidler, Mrs. Hoare, ourselves, and all the Dunsfords in addition . . " In order to distract herself, Anne taught some of the children of the "motley herd" who had settled around, noting in March, 1840, "I have been again trying to drive a little intelligence into the untutored children of the forest." In September of that year a canoe expedition of some of the Sturgeon Lake gentry went to Balsam Lake to visit Admiral Vansittart, who had been granted 1,000 acres and had purchased another 24,000 acres there, "but this was unhappily frustrated by a thunderstorm." In February 1841 she noted "Mr. Dunsford says his novel is the most delightful amusement to him. He is very ready to talk about it, so that the fact of there being one in progress is spoken of, I hear, at a great distance from Sturgeon Lake." This masterpiece apparently was printed in a Peterborough newspaper under the title "The King's Messengers."

First Agricultural Meeting

A letter of June 29, 1842, is of more than usual interest, for it described "the first agricultural meeting in this district," consisting of a ploughing match. Afterwards the young gentlemen who organized it entertained the ladies in a tent on the hill with "a cold dinner," while the hired men who competed, with their women and children, were treated to "an entertainment in the barn, where music will be provided, and plenty of bun loaves, good rice pudding, gingerbread, and tea and coffee . . Our party mean to look in at them, and John will open the dance." This ridiculous class segregation of the ordinary settlers, whom Anne refers to constantly as "the rabble," "the Motley herd," "slovenly inhabitants," deservedly failed in the free air of Canada.

In 1841 John was appointed to the District Council to represent Fenelon township, and later became Warden. Due to illness, the Langtons went to Peterborough in 1846, and to England in 1847. In 1849 John became a partner of his brother-in-law Mossom Boyd in the lumbering business, but withdrew in 1850, and in 1851 was elected to Parliament, as member

Summer has really arrived when Kawartha families have become somewhat settled at their cottages and the kids start hollering for a boat-picnic trip to the mouth of Eel's Brook on the Burleigh shore of Upper Stony. It is one of the beauty spots of the lakes, and certainly the hottest. Not a breath of air wafts down the narrow gorge in the wilderness but between the first and second rapids the rocky shores are high enough to cast deep shadows even at high noon. If a person is not too energetic, he can float under the overhanging banks in a canoe and enjoy a picnic lunch. The common picnic spot at the first falls is too public and, although well shaded, heat bounces off the scored rocks. A canoe-picnic is more pleasant. Children gambol in the fast water like otters and intrepid canoemen run the "rapids" and hole their boats in the foot-deep water, a high price for grandstanding.

The second rapids is the prettiest and can be reached by a well worn footpath through the bush. After many years of use, the portage trail is getting dangerously rough. Generations of summer footwear have worn away the humus soil and roots criss-cross the path like snakes. Oh, yes, snakes. The water variety is there and can be found sunning themselves on the hot rocks beside the edge of the stream.

A person with the most elementary knowledge of geology will be fascinated by the weathered rocks, smooth pot holes, faults, intrusions and all the phenomena of formations are clearly shown.

In Junes long past, the silences rang with the shouts of river drivers who guided their logs down on the early summer freshet. Booms were rafted at the mouth off Grubb's Island and warped down the lakes by horse-driven windlass. This was the spot where small boys could eat their fill of fresh pies on the wannigan raft and run logs all day. It was all the more attractive because parents forbade their youngsters to mix with the rough colourful rivermen. The joy of it all was worth a good hiding.

How Old Is That Big Lunge?

Suppose some fishermen are interested in the ages of muskies that they boat. It at least tells them of the years of care in artificial rearing necessary to providing for the sport. A small 'lunge between eight and 12 inches long, weighing seven ounces, is six months old. It gains weight rapidly and at one year will grow from 12 to 14 inches and build up to two pounds. A three-footer is probably eight years old and will weigh 15. Those 30-pound mantel models that are taken not too infrequently in these parts, are normally about 13 years old.

Was sitting in an ice cream parlour in Lindsay on the Glorious Twelfth trying to get the dope on a good fish story from Ed Jones of Fenelon Falls. Between celebrating Orangemen taking one lick at their cones and on their flutes, the biggest muskie story of the season unfolded. Ed was out with some American friends last weekend and snagged this bruiser on Upper Sturgeon trolling with a copper line in 60 feet of water. It weighed 31 pounds, 3. First time I ever heard a fish story to a fanfare of the "Protestant Boys" on flutes. Bizarre story, bizarre setting.

How Many Fish Allowed?

Great controversy going on by resort operators and their American guests about the number of fish they are allowed to take home on family licenses. It's very plain in the Fish and Game Act which says, two muskies, a total of six black or green bass and six pickerel. The same limits apply to non-resident individual licenses, of course, and visitors who wish to take home the maximum should purchase individual licenses in the first place.

Know the best way to release an undersized bass without harming it? Grasp the lowen jaw between thumb and finger. A light pressure seems to paralyze the fish and hooks may be removed without difficulty. This method eliminates handling the fish elsewhere that would result in breaking and disturbing the protective slime. Of course a greedy bass might swallow the hook. In such cases, snip the gut or line as close to its mouth as possible. Digestive juices in the fish's stomach will dissolve the hook in time.

About the only way to keep cool during some of this muggy weather in a newspaper office is to read of some distant spots in Canada. Ted Horton's "News of the North", Yellowknife, N.W.T., carried some cool items from a Coppermine correspondent. Eskimos had gone out to sea (Beaufort) to hunt seals . . . . White foxes are moving west from Cambridge Bay . . . . Lemmings are more numerous around Coppermine than in previous years . . . Wolf packs have switched from hunting down caribou on Kent Peninsula to attacking seals at sea ice breathing holes . . . . Caribou on Victoria and Banks Islands are much smaller than the barren land breed . . . . The sun never sets these nights but the mild SE winds are playing hob with June snow . . . . Mackenzie River break-up at Coppermine occurred on June 25th and the temperature shot up to 78 degrees and with the heat wave came mosquitoes and flies . . . . Grass and tundra is showing green, blooming with 40 varieties of wild flowers . . Cole's Yellowknife theatre is playing "In the Good Old Summer Time", time to take off your kulitahs at Coppermine, kiddies.

Don Smedmor who says he is joe-boy of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association, otherwise chairman of its finance committee, tells of releasing 2,000 tourist auto windshield stickers through merchant outlets on Thursday. They are four inches in diameter, carry a picture of the Lift Lock superimposed by a fishing rod and a message on its rim. WE HAVE FISHED THE KAWARTHAS, PETERBOROUGH, CANADA. They sell for a dime and since it is the first effort of its kind, and a good one, let's push them Mr. Shopkeeper.

Ladle In A Pot Of Gold

"Say Not The Struggle"

Say not the struggle nought availeth,
The labour and the wounds are vain,
The enemy faints not, nor faileth,
And as things have been they remain.

If hopes were dupes, fears may be liars;
It may be, in yon smoke concealed,
Your comrades chase e'en now the fliers,
And, but for you, possess the field.

For while the tired waves vainly breaking,
Seem here no painful inch to gain,
Far back, through creeks and inlets making,
Comes silent, flooding in, the main.

And not by eastern windows only,
When daylight comes, comes in the light,
In front, the sun climbs slow, how slowly,
But westward, look, the land is bright.

The Emotional Life of Young Children

FROM A WOMAN'S POINT OF VIEW

By Alison Settle

Ed. Note: This is the first of three articles by Alison Settle, based on visits to Child Guidance Clinics and talks with practising psychiatrists. The illustrations are by Haro Hodson.

1.—The Tantrum Child

THE long waiting lists at Child Guidance Clinics and the many demands from groups of women in country areas for guidance on what is normal emotional development of a child are indications of the growing need for information on child development. These demands come from such varied sources as from mothers attending baby clinics to members of village institutes.

Young mothers do not know whether to blame the uneasy conditions of life today, inadequate living space, or their own lack of basic information for the disturbances and stresses which they discover in their children, particularly where the under-fives are concerned.

Child Guidance Clinics are now set up by county and borough authorities; here social workers are employed, part of a team of three (psychiatrist, psychologist, and psychiatric social worker), and to them is given much of the educational work of getting into touch with worried mothers. Holborn is an example of a metropolitan borough where a Child Guidance Clinic has been set up within the baby clinic. West Sussex, as a county borough, has set up three separate Child Guidance Clinics but, due to the great distances to be covered, also arranges for the psychiatric workers to meet mothers in less formal ways.

One of the most usual troubles to be brought to these experienced psychiatric social workers concerns the under-five child who loses such complete control of himself that the energy of both mother and child is drained by constant conflict, which again affects the emotional development of other children in the family. Too often the conflicts of adult life have their roots in these "scenes" of early life while the tension and anxiety which they bring blights the happiness of the home. Yet few young mothers are able, unaided, to know when furies or tantrums overstep the normal or which are to be regarded as merely a tiresome part of growing up. Here the advice of the trained psychiatric social worker is invaluable.

Hitting, biting, pinching, and prolonged screaming in fury, the worker tells the mother, may well be a distress signal from the child, not to be ignored. Often it is due to perpetual clashes of authority with an adult, who instead of holding back orders until absolutely necessary, is constantly giving directions, wasting authority on trifles.

There is, too, the constantly met problem of the mother who asks too much of the small child for his stage of development. Many compare their own toddler to a neighbour's or relative's child who is developing on quite different levels. The clinics are constantly urging young mothers never to make comparisons: it is easy, they say, for a young child, who requires his mother's unqualified acceptance of him as he is, to feel rejected. Criticism seems to the under-fives lack of love, and once that is felt by the child a state of desperation and loneliness may result, showing itself in furious impulses, aggressions, defiances, even to the point where a child will bang its head constantly against a chair or table.

Such behaviour frightens the mother, who comes for help and advice, but no less does it frighten the child, which feels its own loss of self-control and invasions of anger as coming from the outside itself.

In these discussions between the trained workers and parents (both parents being urged to come where possible), the advice is given to realise the inability of a young child to distinguish what is "right" from what is "wrong," standards often being set rather by the parents' convenience than by anything deeper. The child is profoundly upset when he discovers how "wrong" his parents feel him to be; his comforting sense of being loved vanishes and its place is taken by the strong sense of guilt which so often and disastrously floods a young child's being.

The clinics find that this point is deeply interesting to mothers, most of them being totally unaware of the strong and bitter pressure that this feeling causes in the growing child. They are especially urged to let children "verbalise" their troubles: the child who says right out that he hates his mother and wants to hit her gets over a difficult phase far quicker than the child flooded with antagonisms and aggressions which he dare not mention aloud.

Young mothers as well as being informed of possible neurotic troubles to come are reassured in such discussions on the "tantrum problem." It is explained that such outbursts take place most often in a child's second year, when he enters on a fresh stage of development. Obstinacy, a negative attitude to strangers, the rejection of food and furious expressions of dislikes should not be unexpected, especially in the ardent type of child, and may last into the third year.

The tremendous vitality of the small child and the intensity of its emotional life have to be reckoned with, yet in the vast majority of homes to-day there is no room for the expenditure of this surplus energy. "Scenes" cannot be allowed to work themselves out, with the mother's presence for reassurance, because neighbours may be annoyed by the noise.

Further problems discussed concern the immensely upsetting experience of the child who becomes "the old baby"; emotional insecurity in the mother; also her suppressed feelings of antagonism against a child who is complicating not only family life but marital life also. This feeling, mothers discover with surprise, is considered natural and by no means culpable.

". . . the intensity of its emotional life."

Unfortunately, the chances of sustained treatment remain slight because the waiting lists at Child Guidance Clinics are so heavy that priority must be given to such children as exhibit really serious emotional symptoms. (Copyright to Peterborough Examiner from London Observer).

Canada Slim Chance To Win Own Open Golf Tournament

By DON GRANT

Will a Canadian golfer manage to win the Canadian Open this year?

Wherever the soft swish of a long putt, the solid smack of a long drive or the grate of cleats on wood is heard, this question is asked.

Twenty-six years have passed since a Canadian captured "the" golf event of the year in Canada and with it the Seagram Gold Cup. Karl Keffer of Ottawa won the coveted trophy and the Open in 1914; since then American top amateurs and professionals have carried home the prize money.

Canadian are looking hopefully across the green of Canada for summer in Canadian competitions.

Although himself out of the Canadian Open this year due to his preoccupation with teaching at the Kawartha Club, Robson picked Stan Leonard of Marine Drive Club of Vancouver as Canada's top contender. Leonard has had 13 years as a professional, has taken three Canadian Professional Golfers' Association titles and won at some time or other of every pro and open tournament in the Western Province.

Next in line was Bill Kerr of Beaconsfield who placed third last year in a tie at St. George's with a 277. Robson chose Kerr because he spent the past winter with Stan Horne of Islemere. Dick Borthwick of Hamilton and Gord Brydson of Toronto's Mississauga Club, all contenders for the Open, in the States with a fine record. Kerr was in on the prize money at the Atlanta Open when he fired a final round of 67.

Robson's third choice went to Bob Gray.

Confirming Opinion

Gord Harrison, professional at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club, commented "tough proposition" when asked if a Canadian might win the Open this year. Harrison is considered by many professionals across Canada as one of the up-and-coming young professionals.

He matched statements with Robson saying that Canadians haven't enough on the ball to play against the American pros. Their all-year-round play accounts for the difference in competition, he explained His two choices for Canadian contenders were first, Leonard, and second Kerr.

All in all Peterborough's club professionals believe that chances are weighted against any Canadian who hopes to win the Canadian Open this year.

It was a masterpiece of the English to make Sunday so solemn and gloomy that the workman unconsciously longs for his work to begin again.

possible contenders this year at the Royal Montreal, August 24. Last year Little Rock's "Dutch" Harrison, the Arkansas Traveller, with a low of 271 took the top money of $2,000 at Toronto St. George's course before 3,000 spectators.

Chicago's Jim Ferrier will be well remembered for setting a new course record of 65 (seven under par) on his final round for 275. This is the type of golfer Canadian amateurs and pros have to compete with.

Pro Contender In '33

Lex Robson, Kawartha Golf and Country Club's professional, came close in 1933 when he tied for the second slot with Lighthorse Harry Cooper. They placed eight strokes behind the winner, Joe Kirkwood.

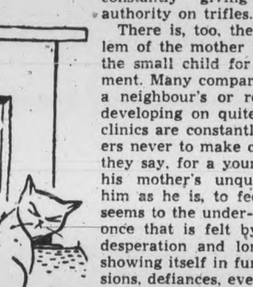
Not again until 1941 did a Canadian even come close to the flying Yanks. Then Bob Gray of Scarboro's course edged within two strokes of Slammin' Sammy Snead.

Lex Robson takes a dim view of either a Canadian pro or amateur taking the Canadian Open this year. Canadians' he explained don't get the same amount of golf each year as their fellow Americans, therefore they don't have the polish that counts when the chips are down.

"If Canadian pros play in the States during the winter, it will make quite a difference in the Canadian game."

Robson said that he found a winter's run in the American circuits improved his game the next

Hints On Horticulture



SCARING GARDEN POACHERS

In many sections of Canada, and not necessarily away out in the country either, rabbits, groundhogs, coons and other four-footed animals do a lot of damage Sometimes even on the edge of the big cities they are troublesome. Where one has scruples against sterner measures an experiment in the writer's garden last summer may be worthwhile.

A family of coons started to raid the corn patch, and knowing from previous experience that only a few of these raids would mean no corn roasts that season, a light cow-bell was rigged up with long strings to several stalks of corn on the outside row Even a light wind made the bell ring, and the coons if they were not very careful would do the same. In any case the raids on that patch ended. Whether the same scheme will work again this year is another matter.

An electric fence would probably check these robbers and also groundhogs and rabbits, and often some loose, white string tied here and there will scare them.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

In view of the fact that Staffords are slated to play the Petes this aft in Riverside, it might be interesting to take a look back and pick an all-star senior Peterborough baseball club of the past 30 years. Since the time the old COBL commenced. It's a sure way to start arguments, as few fans will agree on every position on an all-star squad picked through three decades. We'll make mistakes on some—and probably completely forget other stars of yesteryear—but let's give it a rundown. Our righthand hurling selection would be Al Heckman, with Frank Whitehouse the best of the southpaws. When in their prime here, of course.

* * * * * *

While there were several fine receivers through the years in Riverside, we'll name Max Swanston as the best. He and Al are generally rated among the top few in all-time COBL dream teams. The three we've named so far were all powerful hitters and heady players as well as starring defensively. Because of his hitting, we'd have to pick Hap Harrison on first base over Fred Ash (a peerless fielder). Second base is a big problem as one recalls McCarney, Rose, Johnston—sometimes on third—Scully and others. But we'll pick Bun Kingdon. With hard-hitting Eddie Murphy (not forgetting Cherrett, Konopa, Ansaldo or Brown) best at short. While Murray, Collins, Batten, Calladine and others shone at third, we figure Howe Dalton tops.

* * * * * *

Top Three Gardeners

So much for the infield. We'll go along with the late Dan McCabe (who saw them all here) and name Les Burton, Tommy Foley and Chuck Kearns, when in their prime, the best outfield trio. Yes, we know there were Hall, Wolfe, Legon and many other great gardeners, but this trio is tops in our book for their fielding, hitting, running and throwing. So, there you are: Heckman, Whitehouse, Swanston, Harrison, Kingdon, Murphy, Dalton, Burton, Foley and Kearns. A grand team if they all played together in their best years huh? Fans disagreeing with any or all our choices are invited to send along their selections. After all, we can change the mind. The manager? Take a choice of Jake Solomon, Knotty Lee and Ed Murphy. We can't.

* * * * * *

Figuring the autumn semester and the football season are on the way, the athletic board of control at Queen's University sends out copies of the 1950 football book. And we note in the list of returning senior football members the names of former PCVS gridiron aces. Big-shouldered boys like Jack Sisson, Morris Richardson, Don Griffin and Eric McIlveen, though the latter came here from Bowmanville. Griffin is mentioned for his fine basketball, while Sisson and Richardson are expected, according to the writeup, to continue their high-class grid performances of last year. Blair Thomson will play for McGill.

* * * * * *

Too Little Too Late

Had the Petes shown the drive in the first half that they did in the final two quarters here last eve, they should have beaten Hamilton Tigers. But they didn't, and so they didn't. The Mann Cup champs turned it on from the start whilst the locals were slow getting organized. It ended 15-11 for the Tigers and put 'em in a second-place senior OLA tie with the Creighton crew. A rugged fray with the homesters definitely below form at the start but finishing strong to make it close and exciting. However, they should win in Weston on Tuesday and maybe here 'gainst Mimico next Friday to stay up around the top. If they play all-out lacrosse and not a spotty brand. Ashbee and Dugan led the way in sniping for the Petes while husky Merv McKenzie was dynamite for Hamilton. Jim Kinna suffered a back injury in the stiff going.

* * * * * *

Woollens were hot at the Bowl last night to whitewash Ashby's 5-0 in a snappy girls' softball struggle. A five-run splash in the first frame did it as they had the hurling and fielding the rest of the route to stave off Ashby attacks. CGE came through with a 10-inning 8-7 decision over Marines in another nice number and it looks like the lasses will be serving 'em up piping hot during the semi-final serials which start Monday. Marines meet Ashby's at seven the first of the week, followed by CGE vs. Westclox, both openers of best-of-five series, resuming on Wednesday night. Finals will be four out of seven.

Marines Lose To CGE In 10th Heat

CGE edged Marines 8-7 in 10 innings last evening in the Bowl to conclude their girls' softball schedule. The winners scored two in the 10th after Marines showed one across in overtime. It was a nifty number all the way with Marines' errors proving costly. The pitching was good on both sides. R. Richards, C. Rowan and M. Hill went well defensively for the losers, as M. Hodson and E. Boyce shone in the field for the victors. M. Hodson and B. McMahon reeled off a nice double play. C. Rowan came through with a homer as triples were hit by D. Jackson and E. Mantle. Teams:

Tigers Pile Up Early Lead To Defeat The Petes, 15-11

Starting slow in Miller Bowl last night, the Petes finished strong but still lost out 15-11 to Hamilton Tigers, who pulled up into a second-place tie with the Creighton crew in the OLA senior "A" standing. A crowd of 2,000 saw a rugged struggle with Tigers short-handed (with a car of players late) in the first quarter still outplay the Petes. Only in the last half did the homesters really play up to form.

The seore was 5-2 in the first frame for the Mann Cup holders and 9-3 for them at the half. They had a 4-3 margin in the third but were outscored 5-2 in an exciting final chukker. The visitors checked hard and drew nine of the 14 penalties, Horton and Fitzgerald going off with minor injuries, and Jim Kinna being taken to the hospital with a back injury in the second period.

Bit Off Form

The Petes had the major advantage at the start—and no long trip behind them—but seemed off form all through the first half. The Tigers had but two subs through the first quarter, yet played solid lacrosse and couldn't do anything wrong. None of the homesters, from the goalie out, got going properly till after the halftime intermission, and then they made it a real game. They finally whittled the count down to 13-11 with a few minutes to go, when Tigers tore in for two to put it on ice.

While the game wasn't unduly rough, there were some rough spots and the checking was generally stiff. Kinna was clipped on the back while off-balance reaching for a ball near the enemy net, apparently an accidental crack. He was carried off. A few fights threatened but didn't develop, but a lot of slashing was seen on both sides in the torrid tussle as the third place Tigers sought to climb up on even terms with the Peterborough pack.

Led The Way

Don Ashbee and Arn Dugan were the leading scorers for the losers with five points apiece. Bob Thorpe got three, as Em Creighton scored a pair in a good effort, Dootch Vitarelli getting one and aiding on two more with hard work. Mick Magee also went well to tally one and help on a pair, single assists going to Joe Nolan and Jack Breakspear. Big Merv McKenzie led the winners with four goals and two assists in a fine showing, Blain McDonald getting one and aiding on three. Bob Grainger scored three and helped on another. Jack Dorney counted a pair and assisted on one. Stew Scott had two as Tony Capula, Norm Shortride and Al Doyle each hit the twine once, the latter having two assists and Bill Hogan one.

Hamilton: Goal, Favell; defence, McKenzie and Grainger; centre, McDonald; wings, Shortridge and Dorney; rover, Lee; alternates, Love, Doyle, Scott, Guthro, Capula and Hogan.

Petes: Goal, Speck; defence, Nolan and Fitzgerald; centre, L. Vitarelli; wings, Kinna and Horton; rover, Magee; alternates, J. Breakspear, D. Vitarelli, Creighton, Ashbee, Dugan, Thorpe and R. Breakspear.

Referee P. Bain and C. Davidson.

Woollens Get Neat One Over Ashby's

Woollens blanked Ashby's 5-0 at the Bowl last night to conclude the Girls' Softball League schedule. S. Harris hurled seven-hit ball and had good support for the winners while M. Stewart went good after the first inning when the victors got all their runs on walks, hits and errors. The Woollens played heads-up ball with R. Naylor good in the field, and Ashby's had a double play in the sixth by J. Dunk to L. Jordan to M. Freeman. G. Dracup went good in the snappy tilt. M. Stewart had two hits for four, one a triple as J. Lawson led the Woollens with two bingles in three times.

Ashby's: E. McFadden, 3b; J. Reynolds, c; L. Jordan, ss; M. Stewart, p; E. Simmonds, rf; D. Callan, cf; J. Dunk, 2b; G. Dracup, lf; M. Freeman, 1b.

LINDSAY, July 15.—Eighteen-year-old Hank Debois, making his first start in the Lakeshore League, scattered seven hits as Lindsay Merchants walloped Colborne Dodgers 9-2, here Friday.

Lemon Sparks Cleveland To Victory Against Yanks

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cleveland is coming strong with Bob Lemon, top pitcher in the majors, showing the way.

Success of the Indians' midsummer American League pennant drive hinges on Rapid Robert, the second. No longer is Bobby Feller the key man with the Tribe.

The former infielder is one of the best fielding pitchers in the game. At bat, he's a dangerous long-distance slugger with a .278 average, three home runs and 14 runs batted in.

Years ago they decided that Lemon couldn't hit enough to make the majors as an infielder or outfielder. But Tommy Byrne will carry for the rest of the season the bruises of the three-run home Lemon hit Friday night.

Lemon became the first major leaguer to win 13 games this season with a neat three-hit job against New York Yankees Friday night. The three-run homer in the eighth was just an added frill. He didn't need it.

Hit Their Stride

It was a vital victory for the Tribe. They trail Detroit by 4½ games but now are only a half-game behind the second-place Yanks. Since the Indians hit their stride June 14, they have won 22 of 30. And Lemon has taken six of seven, the last five in a row.

Johnny Mize's homer in the ninth ruined Lemon's shutout.

Detroit took advantage of the Yankee loss to stretch its lead to 4½ games on Freddie Hutchinson's 2-0 job against Washington. It was the Tigers' seventh straight victory at Griffith Stadium.

The run-happy Boston Red Sox came up with their second 11-run inning of the season while overwhelming Chicago 13-1. Birdie Tebbetts and Vern Stephens homered in the big inning. It was No. 20 for Stephens. Stephens' clout with two on sen. him into the league runs-batted-in lead with an 87 total.

Split Twin Bill

St. Louis and Philadelphia remained in a last-place tie by splitting a twilight-night doubleheader. The A's took the first game 3-2.

Homers by Roy Sievers, Owen Friend and Don Lenhardt carried the Browniés to a 5-2 second-game victory.

The Cardinals tightened the National League race, drawing within one game of Philadelphia with a 4-2 victory over the Phils. It may have been a costly victory for St. Louis because Stan Musial left the game with a wrenched knee and pitcher Harry Brecheen retired with a sore left arm.

Erv Pallica pitched his second straight five-hit victory for Brooklyn to shut out Chicago 1-0. Not a Cub reached second base until Andy Pafko doubled in the ninth. It was only the second start for 22-year-old Palica after 22 relief jobs.

Del Crandall drove in four runs with a homer and double in Boston's 6-4 edge over Cincinnati.

Ralph Kiner belted his 25th home, a double and triple but his Pittsburgh club lost to New York 7-5.

Athletics Down Toronto 15-11

By The Canadian Press.

St. Catharines Athletics trailed Toronto's lowly Riverdales 10-9 going into the last period, but staged a terrific rally for six goals as against the Toronto club to hang up a 15-11 win in the Ontario Senior Lacrosse series Friday night.

McMahon, Bird and Oneschuk paced the winners, each turning in the hat trick. Tony Damico and Croft each scored twice. For Toronto, Wimpy Timpson kicked in with three goals and Lorne Howes two.

Mimico stopped the league-leading Owen Sound Crescents' eight game winning streak with a 14-11 overtime win in Owen Sound.

Kenny Dixon and Penny Peterson paced Mounties to their win with four goals apiece, while Arn Smith came up with tree goals for the losers.

Samuel Was Child Of Prayer Dedicated To Service Of God

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

In the story of Samuel, the child born in answer to his mother's earnest prayer and dedicated to the service of God, there are some elements, that are seldom, if ever, mentioned.

I like to think, for instance, of Elkanah, Samuel's father, and the husband of Hannah. I have never known a man called Elkanah, though many men have been called by less honorable Biblical names.

Elkanah stands as conspicuous example of the good husband and devoted lover. According to the custom of the time he had two wives. When childless Hannah was disconsolate because of the reproach and ill treatment of the other wife, who had children, Elkanah, finding her weeping and not eating, said to her: "Why is thy heart grieved? Am not I better to thee than ten sons."

Surely there spoke the voice of true love. What joy, therefore, when Hannah's prayers for a child were answered with the birth of Samuel. Hannah made good her vow, and the child in the temple, serving the High Priest Eli, began a great career as High Priest, prophet, and leader in Israel.

The times were difficult, calling for a leader of strength, courage, and of high integrity. Eli was not an exemplary father and his sons had grown up in unrestrained evil, bringing corruption and licentiousness into the very offices of religion. The establishment of righteousness, and the purging of evil, was absent from the very temple itself.

Moreover, the times were of great danger, and Samuel came to leadership in an hour of overwhelming disaster for Israel. The sons of Eli were both killed in battle as the Philistines completely routed the armies of Israel. Eli died when he learned of his sons' death.

How Samuel rallied Israel, and wrested victory from defeat is told in Samuel 7, with the incident establishing the symbol, Ebenezer, and the saying, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us."

Unfortunately, Samuel's sons followed in the corrupt ways of the sons of Eli. Angered, the people demanded a new king. Disheartened by this virtual rejection at the end of a great career, Samuel acceded to their demands, and Saul became king.

But the life and work of Samuel as leader in Israel were unsullied by any unworthiness. He was a true priest, an honest prophet, and a fearless and courageous leader. He gave evidence of a vigor and intensity in action of which the gentle life of the child in the temple gave little suggestion.

Justice Rough In Saudi Arabia

JEDDAN, Saudi Arabia, July 15 (Reuters)—Justice is rough in this vast, little-known desert state which is the Holy Land to the Moslems of the world.

In this country, about one-quarter the size of Canada with a population of about 10,000,000, justice is administered according to the precepts of the Koran. The basis is: "An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth."

Theft and robbery in Saudi Arabia are punished by cutting off one or both hands of the culprit.

In cases of premeditated murder, a close relative of the victim may be invited to execute the killer.

The body of the murderer is left on public view for some time. In cases of unpremeditated murder, the killer has to pay compensation to the dead man's family, which decides on the minimum of payment.

Great Women Of Bible-Ruth

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, DD

The significance of Ruth in the records of the Bible is not always grasped by those who read, and admire, the story of the Moabitish woman's loyalty and devotion to her Israelitish mother-in-law, in the book of the Bible that bears her name.

The significance is brought out in a passage in the New Testament far removed from the ancient story. There in the genealogy of Jesus (Matthew 1), is the record that Ruth was the mother of Obed, the grandfather of King David. I like to think that in the ancestry of Jesus who belongs to the whole world, was this Gentile Moabitish woman, worthy in every respect of the Christ who was to come, centuries later.

For Ruth was worthy of the Christ, who gave His commandments of love and who glorified loyalty in human relationships. The story is a simple one, even if involved in elements of deep tragedy, and it is the triumph emerging out of tragedy that makes it a story of such beauty.

Naomi, the Israelitish woman, had gone with her husband and two sons to the land of Moab, the land across the Jordan from Palestine, where Moses had died in sight of the Promised Land. Here the family, fleeing famine, evidently found the food and prosperity they had come seeking, for the two sons took wives there. Then tragedy came in the death of the husband and father, followed by the death of the two sons.

Left with only her two daughters-in-law, Naomi turned longingly to her native land, where report said bread now was plentiful. Her two daughters-in-law accompanied her, despite Naomi's protests that they remain in their native land. When one daughter, Orphah, finally agreed to return home, Ruth embraced Naomi, uttering the famous words, "Entreat me not to leave thee—for whither thou goest I will go. Vowing that "...Thy people shall be my people, and thy God, my God," Ruth married a just man, Boaz, and foraged in their fields for grain left in the wake of the reapers that she might feed her mother-in-law.

Apart from all other details, and Ruth's place in the genealogy of Jesus, it is a noble story of two women in a relationship that is not always so happy, even among intelligent and educated women from whom better things might be expected.

The example of Ruth and Naomi, and the teaching of the great Teacher descended from Ruth, ought to make it possible for women to live in love and loyalty with each other, even in circumstances where the situation may be trying.

VOL. CI. No. 12 SATURDAY, JULY 15, 1950

F.D. NO. 1 BRIDGENORTH, got a workout on Thursday evening at the edge of Chemong Lake. In the Upper photo, are volunteer firemen J. Bridgenorth Community Celebrates Arrival of New $11,500 Fire Pumper

Sounds of revelry on Friday evening from the crowded Bridgenorth community hall had a true ring to it, celebration of a community achievement. Many months ago it was the wish of the people to provide themselves with adequate fire protection. They had experienced the loss of property too often over the years with only a willing bucket brigade for assistance. It was decided that a new pumper fire truck must be secured. The funds would be found in taxation, provincial grants and money raised to build a suitable fire hall. The hall was built from monies raised through community entertainments, $1,400 in all. Wiring of it was completed on Friday.

The shiny red pumping unit was delivered on Wednesday to Fire Chief Al Crowe. He and his volunteer brigade gave it a proud survey. On Thursday evening, with a supplier field man, Ronald Edwards, the brigade moved to the west end of the Chemong Causeway. "Don't let the people think we had to go to Ennismore, for a workout," warned Chief Crowe.

After considerable experimenting, the pumper started pumping, from its four hose outlets handled by several of the volunteers. The demonstration was a complete success.

The truck unit cost the community $11,500 of which the Provincial government will pay 35 per cent. It carries 1000 feet of 2½-inch hose and 1500 feet of 1½ inch. A 400-gallon tank incorporated in the body of the vehicle produces a stream of water at 300 pounds pressure. Crew present for the first working demonstration, in addition to the Chief, were, E. Chamberlain, T. White, E. McConkey, J. Smith, B. Forsythe, J. Pettersone, F. Ray, D. Robinson, J. Forsythe, E., C. and C. Blewett, T. Cole, R. Jopling, W. Nicholls, Arthur Murray, B. Hardill, E. Harrison, B. Mann and D. Johnson.

The new unit will serve a five-mile radius of Smith Township with Bridgenorth as its hub. Number Two pumper stationed just north of the city on Chemong Road will meet Number One's arc at the 5th Line of Smith.

RELIGHT FIVE PCVS ROOMS

Five rooms at PCVS are in line for relighting. They include rooms 218, 216, 118, 100 and the library. The contract for the job went to Grant and Loucks whose bid of $1,204 was the lowest offered.

Making Rain

Wiping Tears From Eyes Of Farmers

By JIM ENGLISH

There's a man in town who can wipe the tears from the farmer's eye, and who might even be able to make members of the Hydro Commission smile.

Peterborough has a sure 'nough inventor on her hands, a man who calls himself a natural scientist. Even though people may not be interested after Thursday's storm, he says he can make rain fall. He hasn't any university degrees, but he says he doesn't need them.

"Don't need degrees. Got enough trouble with them already," he says. "Here it's 80 degrees one day and 90 degrees the next. Don't want to hear any more about them."

The man says he has better ways of making rain fall than by seeding potential rain clouds with silver iodide or bits of dry ice. It's sure-fire, he claims.

Visit To Inventor

We paid a visit to this inventor the other day, and found him leaning against the pot of a still, idly skimming the scum from the bubbling liquid. His straw hat was pushed back on his head, and he was using his black cigar to test the inflammable qualities of the liquid.

"Hi there, buster," he called. "Great little still I got here. Best in the county since they ran the moonshiners out of Douro back in 1929. Didn't know I was a scientist, did you?

"Well, I am." By the way he swivelled his head around, we could tell he had another world-shaker up his sleeve. "Know what? I can make rain fall. An' that's only one of my inventions. Been inventin' since I was knee-high to a mash bucket."

Requires Nerve

Not everybody, he said, had the gall to be an inventor. "You gotta go around beatin' on doors all the time, tellin' people how good you are. Takes gall. Not everybody has it. I got it."

What about this rain-making business, we asked.

"Oh, that. Well, I'll tell you. It just about had me licked for a long time. Thought I'd never find the answer. Had the idea all right, but there were a coupla little details slowing me down.

"'Member I told you once about using this here silver iodide and dry ice for makin' rain? I decided it wasn't so good. Awful waste of chemicals and things.

"Anyhow, the principle's all wrong. There are all these pilots with their little planes loaded with dry ice and silver iodine, throwin' it on the clouds. Tryin' to push the rain out. That ain't good.

Must Tease Rain

"Can't push rain, you gotta tease it. Way I work it, the rain just sort of e-a-s-e-s out. Nice and slow. But you get a good yield."

He put a bicycle pump into the kettle of mash and pumped out a pail full of brown fluid.

We asked if that was the stuff that drew the rain out of the clouds. He said no, it was to drink. He took a long sip from the pail, and set it into a washtub of ice to cool.

"I guess you just want to pry my secrets outa me," he said. "Well, I'll tell you. I was stayin' home for a few days after that fella knocked me through the window, and one of the cuts I got started to fester. I put a poultice on it and drew all the moisture out. Cured it right up.

"That's where I got my idea. I says to myself, now why couldn't I use some sort of poultice to draw rain outa the clouds. Well, I figured for a long time. Three, four days it must have been, and then I come on the answer.

"I says to myself, now what draws water out of things and absorbs moisture in general. Blotting paper, I says. And that's my secret. Blotting paper."

He picked up the pail and took another long, noisy sip. "Haaaa," he sighed. "Good stuff for the brain. Gives a fellow a little extra imagination."

"I reckoned for a while that big sheets of blotting papr'd turn the trick, but I saw that wouldn't work so good. Would have covered up the crops and kept the sun off.

"Then I hit right on it. Decided I'd use little balls of blotting paper and scatter them all through the crops. That way the sun gets at the plants and the blotting paper draws like Gypsy Rose Lee at an Elks benefit.

"You take and heave those little balls of blotting paper out there on a moist day with some clouds and you'll have more rain than the west has wheat."

He stirred the mash a little while, as a dreamy smile crept onto his face. In the presence of a man so great, we felt a little awed.

Then we asked if he had tried it.

"Nope. Couldn't get anybody to finance me. All said I was a dreamer, not practical at all. Okay, I says, throw me to the wolves. And they threw me. But you go ahead. Take my idea. Tell the world about it."

And, for what it was worth, we took it.

Bus Drivers Told Park Parallel

City bus drivers will have to park their buses parallel to Simcoe St. curb, Police Chief John Thompson said today.

Angle parking by the buses creates a traffic hazard by lessening the travelled portion of the street, the chief said.

The bus drivers say the problem could be ironed out very simply. If parking meters on the north side of Simcoe near Water St. were removed, they say, there would be no problem at all.

The meters are a barrier to parallel parking, they claim.

Entrance Class Winners Named

Nine leading Grade VIII pupils from the city public schools have won the Board of Education prize of $10.

For some years now the Board has been giving cash awards to the top-standing pupil of each entrance class.

Boy, 15, Drowns At Dam Caught By Whirlpool, Rescue Attempt Fails

COBOCONK, July 15.—(ENS).—Caught in the boil at the bottom of village dam, 15-year-old Mervyn John Berrie, Coboconk, was drowned Friday afternoon despite the efforts of friends to rescue him. The dam is 10 feet high and the waoter at the bottom of the falls is about 30 feet deep. With some companions Berrie was swimming in the river and he may have tried to swim over the falls as other local youths have done. He became caught in the boil at the bottom and disappeared.

Another Coboconk youth, George Weaver, 23, jumped in fully dressed and recovered the body after it had been in the water for seven minutes. Artificial respiration was applied and an inhalator was brought from Lindsay, but Berrie did not respond.

Dr. R. E. Jamieson of Coboconk was present as was the coroner Dr. G. C. Graham of Fenelon Falls. There will be no inquest. Provincial Constable Lloyd Lyle of Fenelon Falls investigated.

Father Of Four Walking On Rd. Fatally Injured

BANCROFT, July 15—Hit by a car as he was walking beside the road almost in front of his own home, Edgar Covert, died of his injuries in Bancroft hospital.

His companion, Cyrus Thoms, also of Highland Grove, is still in serious condition in Bancroft Red Cross hospital.

Driver of the car, James W. Evans, Bancroft, has been charged with dangerous driving and careless driving.

Nearing Home

Covert, the father or four children, was walking home with Thoms about 11:30 p.m. The car, driven by Evans, with three male companions of Bancroft, was driving home from a dance.

The car rounded a curve in the road coming down a grade and both men were hit, and thrown some distance. The car continued a short distance and overturned in a ditch. None of the occupants was seriously hurt.

Thoms is believed to have internal injuries, a broken collar bone and leg injuries, but no X-rays have yet been taken.

Covert died of a brain hemmorhage. Constables Gordon L. Lankin and A. R. Edwards of the Provincial Police investigated the accident.

Crash Victims Still Critical

The condition of David Adam, 18, and Allen Baldwin, 18, both critically injured in Thursday night's truck-car crash on the Port Hope Highway, remains unchanged.

Hospital authorities say that Pierre Comte, 23, rested a little more quietly Friday night. He was the least seriously injured of the three survivors. His brother, 26-year-old Stanley Comte, was instantly killed when a ton-and-a-half truck collided with their car at the fork in the highway where 7A intersects 28.

Baldwin sustained two broken legs in the crash as well as two fractured hip bones, broken ankle and severe head injuries Adam has severe internal injuries Both have been unconscious since the accident.

David Armstrong was driving west on a road leading from McFarlane Ave. to Canal Rd., and when his car was eight feet into the intersection, it was struck on the left front fender by Teece's car.

Mrs. Armstrong was taken to her home.

Teece said he didn't see the Armstrong car until he was almost on top of it. Damage to Armstrong's car consisted of a dented left front wheel, the left front fender crumpled, and the front of Teece's auto was knocked in.

Kitchens Near Front Doors Have Many Advantages

The modern "porchless" housewife may scoff at her Victorian ancestors who settled unabashedly on the front porch to watch all the comings and goings of the neighborhood. Yet just watch how interested she will be in peeping out at the neighborhood happenings through the windows of the front porch. Whether she admits it or not, it is fun, too, and interesting to have the kitchen looking out on to the street.

From the utilitarian and work-saving viewpoint, though, is where the greatest advantages of the front kitchen are most apparent. Just think of the hundreds of steps it will save between the kitchen and the front door. The service-entrance, variant of the old-style back door, can still be retained, but placed near a front corner of the house.

Service Entrance More Accessible

By placement of the kitchen at the front and in conjunction with the garage, you will have another important advantage in that a shorter driveway will be required, affording not only a monetary saving but a saving in the land as well. Not only will more land be available at the back of the house, but the garage at the front will usually lend added privacy to this yard area. And how your delivery man will respond to the added convenience of a service entrance near the street.

Savings are also often made possible with the kitchen in front as a less expensive plumbing installation will be required since the length of plumbing lines will be shortened when bathroom and laundry fixtures are similarly placed towards the front of the house.

Many More Advtantages

While home builders may decide on the front-of-house kitchen for the reasons already mentioned, perhaps the most commonly desired feature that it affords is the greater space allowed at the rear for privacy, better exposure and less noise in living and sleeping quarters. This was undoubtedly the aim of the first builder who broke away from the time-honored position of the kitchen at the back of the house.

Gone are the days of the old kitchen with its smoky coal range and miscellaneous clutter....and here is further reason for approval of the front location. The old style kitchen with its variety of odors and general unattractiveness naturally set its location as far as possible from the "dressed up" part of the home. With the modern kitchen's pleasing lines and freedom from smoke and odors, with its blend of livability and efficiency it is now another matter, however.

Kitchen Deserves Pleasant Location.

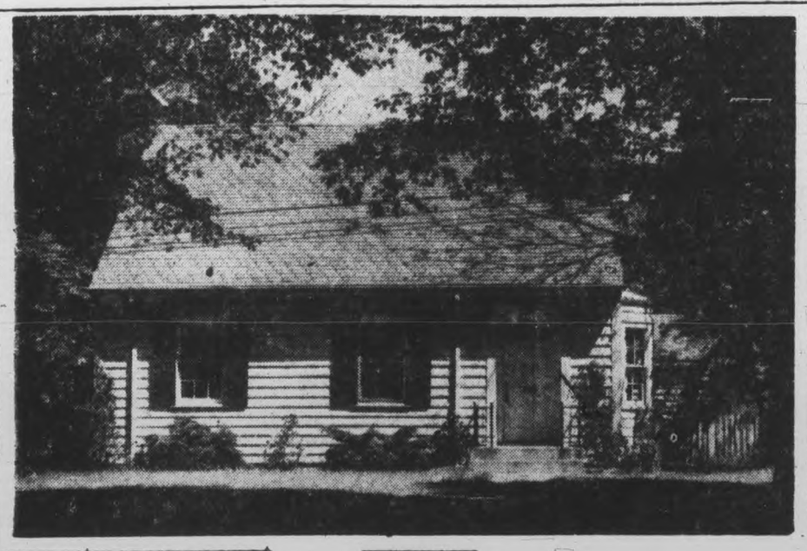
The modern kitchen with its gay color schemes, its air of comfort as well as convenience, is now doubling for other activities besides cooking....so that it has in fact become to many home owners a real living room. Today's kitchen is so completely livable that you can afford to give it the benefit of a pleasant location.

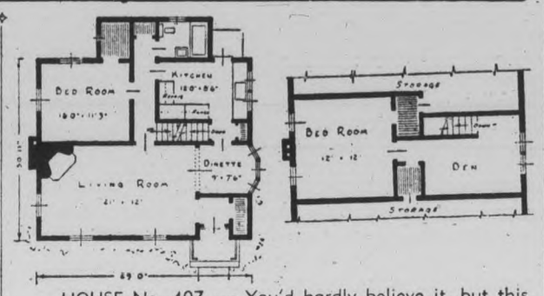
Built-In Cedar Closets

A cedar closet sufficiently large to hold the winter clothing for the whole family will pay for itself many times over in the space of a few short years.

If a closet exists, line the door, walls and ceiling with ⅜" heartwood aromatic red cedar; ⅞" stock cedar flooring may also be used. If no partitions exist, a closet may be made from ⅞" tongue and groove red cedar.

Care should be exercised in closinb all cracks, particularly those about the doors, which may be weatherstripped. Leave the cedar natural....use no paint, varnish or other finishes.





HOUSE No. 407 — You'd hardly believe it, but this house was built in 1940. Sound construction and careful maintenance have kept it as fresh as a daisy! We think many will be as enthusiastic about the inside as the outside! It would be difficult to imagine a friendlier arrangement of living room and dinette, and don't let that bay window command all your attention! See how the corner fireplace serves as a major attraction for both rooms. In the kitchen a breakfast table and two benches cleverly fold away into the north wall. The upstairs den is equipped to pinch hit as a bedroom. It has a built-in bunk and book shelves, and the walls are of natural pine. Woodstock Man Named Head Of Engineers

TORONTO, July 15—(CP)—James A. Vance of Woodstock, Friday night was installed as President of the Engineering Institute of Canada at the closing sessions of the 64th annual meeting. He succeeds John E. Armstrong, Chief Engineer of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

New vice-presidents are Earle O. Turner, Fredericton; John F. Wickenden, Three Rivers, Que.; and Drummond Gilesin, Cornwall.

The Institute honored four persons with honorary memberships: Sir Frank Whittle of London, England, inventor of the jet engine; John B. Challies, vice-president and executive engineer of Shawinigan Water and Power Company, Montreal; C. R. Young, former Dean of Applied Science and Engineering of the University of Toronto, and Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth, Consulting Management Engineer, Montclair, N.J.

The institute's senior award, the Julian C. Smith medal for "achievement in the development of Canada" was presented jointly to G. A. Gaherty, president of the Montreal Engineering Co., and J. A. McCrory, president of the Shawinigan Engineering Co. Ltd., both of Montreal.

Mr. Gaherty received it in recognition of his contribution to irrigation and power development on the prairies. Mr. McCrory for his contribution to the development of power resources on the St. Maurice river.

Turn Down Request Of Kinsmen Club

A bid by the Kinsmen Club to have the Summer Theatre run September 4-16 at PCVS auditorium has been turned down by the Board of Education.

This would have given the Summer Theatre a 12-week run in Peterborough instead of the present 10 weeks.

K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools, said he had informed the Kinsmen of a previous decision of the Board not to allow the theatre to play when school is on. The letter received from the Kinsman was a formal application.

But the answer was an emphatic "No."

"I'm sure the Kinsmen were unaware of the Board's ruling when they made the request," said Dr. Ralph Honey.

All members felt it would interrupt school activities and voted unanimously to turn down the extra two-week run.

Mule, Dog Touch Off Worst Traffic Jam

JERSEY CITY, N.J., July 15—(AP)—A man with a mule and a dog wandered onto the big Pulaski Skyway Friday and set off what police described as the worst 20-minute traffic jam in the history of the elevated super-highway.

The man, dressed in a battered top hat, said he merely wanted to find the road back to Galesburg, Ill.

He identified himself as Clarence Hornbeck, 58, and said that nobody told him the Pulaski Skyway wasn't for mules.

Police came upon him nonchalantly leading his mule and his dog at the head of a snail-paced line of motorists.

Stocks of vegetables, frozen and in brine, totalled 4,727,000 against 5,401,000 and 5,441,000.

ALUMINUM BRIDGE — Construction of the world's first all-aluminum highway bridge, across the Saguenay River between Arvida and Shipshaw in northeast Quebec, has been completed. The $500,000 structure is close to Canada's big aluminum smelter at Arvida. An aluminum bridge was opened in Sunderland, Eng., last year, but unlike the 504-foot Arvida structure, it it a railway bridge.

Floor Beams Help Support Inner End Of Joisting

Following the installation of the foundation sills, a girder or floor beam, laid crosswise and embedded in the foundation walls, is used to support the inner ends of the floor joists. This is either a large timber or several planks nailed together and set on edge. It takes the placeof an interior foundation wall and eliminates bearing partitions in the basement.

Bearing posts or columns, set at equal intervals, support the girder and prevent sagging. These may be of steel, wood or masonry. The bottom ends of wood posts should be set a few inches above the basement floor to reduce the possibility of decay.

The spacing of beams depends on the size and length of the floor joists. The usual is from eight to 14 feet. If they are too far apart, the joists must be larger and the beams stronger. This increases cost.

As it is desirable to place the beam directly under wall partitions, room arrangement usually determines the location. The size of beam depends on its length and the total load to be placed on it. It also varies with the species and grade of wood used. In 1½-storey or 2-storey houses, the size should be determined from standard engineering formula. This is usually stated in the local Building By-Laws. If not, then the National Building Code applies. A general guide for bungalows is to be found in the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation building standards. The beam should be long enough to rest not less than four inches in each foundation wall.

The Accusing Finger

REGINA — (CP) — Reporting has its hazards. A court reporter here had an uncomfortable two minutes recently when a 13-year-old girl pointed him out in court as a man she had seen behaving in a disorderly manner. While the embarrassed reporter mumbled into his notes, a detective corrected the identification and the real accused was fined $5.

UK Mistakes Blamed For 60 Deaths

THE HAGUE, July 15 (Reuters) —A parliamentary commission Friday blamed British "mistakes" for the wartime capture and deaths of 60 Allied Secret Service agents parachuted into Holland.

Responsibility for the capture of the British and Dutch agents, 50 of whom later died in concentration camps, was placed squarely on mistakes by Britain and individual members of the Netherlands' wartime government in exile. Suspicion of treason was dismissed.

The commission also dismissed as unfounded allegations in Holland that among the treacherous acts by Christiaan Lindemans, a resistance worker who went over to the Germans, was a tip-off that the airborne attack on Arnhem was imminent.

The commission has been examining the conduct of the wartime Dutch government in London and the "England Spiel"—German counter-espionage organization which faked code messages to Britain to trap agents.

Independent Firms Won't Hike Rates

TORONTO, July 15 (CP)—The 840 independent telephone companies in Ontario and Quebec will not follow the Bell Telephone Company in its successful bid for higher rates, H. A. Rogers, secretary of the Canadian Independent Telephone Association said Friday night.

No mass application for higher rates will be made to the Board of Transport Commissioners, he said, although some individual companies might seek increases.

Mr. Rogers said, however, that rural subscribers making long distance calls through the Bell system would have to pay the higher rates authorized by the board.

Good Weather Likely

CALGARY, July 15—(CP)—Good weather appeared to be in store for the remainder of the Calgary Stampede after rain dampened the arrival Friday of Governor-General Viscount Alexander and his family. Rain has cut attendance at this year's stampede, washing out two of the first four nightly grandstand shows.

Ask Larger Crop

WASHINGTON, July 15—(AP) —The government—with an eye on a possible broadening of the Korean war—Friday called for a larger U.S. wheat crop next year. The agriculture department set a 1951 production goal of 1,150,000,000 bushels, or 193,000,000 more than this year's indicated crop and 119,000,000 more than the 1939-48 average.

Shoot 5 Communists

MADRAS, India, July 15 — (Reuters)—Police combing the northern border districts for absconding Communists wanted in connection with alleged crimes shot five of them dead Friday in Kondapalli forest near the State border. The police seized guns, ammunition, spears and grenades. There were no police casualties.

Dear Friend,
Your Address
Your City or Town

CHERNEY BROS. have just finished the installation of 1-8" tile in our 9' x 12' kitchen for as little as $79.00. We decided on this lifetime flooring after comparison of various price estimations in the city and after seeing Cherney Bros.' complete range of beautiful colours.

This was not the cheapest. Cherney Bros. measured the floor and submitted a quotation with inlaid linoleum for as little as $33.50.

The permanent installation requires the installation of a plywood sub-flooring (if necessary) or the sanding of an uneven hardwood floor with the cementing of the rubber tile over felt paper.

Their expert craftsmen were very pleasant and neat, leaving the finished floor shiny and clean. Be sure and call in at Cherney's House Furnishing Dept. (Downstairs) the next time you are down town.

Coats For Fall Spectacular And Dramatic

By DOROTHY ROE.

NEW YORK, July 15 (AP) — This winter North American women are going to be sitting around in their coats, because they are too beautiful to be hidden in the check room.

Philip Mangone outdoes even his own distinguished record this season with a collection of coats and suits of handsome fabrics and skilful cut.

Most spectacular of the coats are in bulky imported fabrics, often two-faced, used in dashing greatcoats of loose and ample cut that look as if they were designed to be worn in a blizzard. One such is a dramatic coat of almost circular cut, in an imported double-woven fabric that is grey fleece on the outside, red and grey bold plaid inside. The coat is made with the plaid side out on the collar and on the huge buttonback double cuffs.

Claire McCardell, young American designer who has started most of the college lads for the last 10 years, uses red wool-and-cotton carpet fabric for the most striking coat in her fall collection.

Rough and Ready

The "carpet-bagger" coat is a big, bulky affair that should look well in football stadiums next fall equipped with outside pockets, a huge collar that can be turned up around the ears, big sleeves and a general rough-and-ready air.

Miss McCardell shows her usual casual, youthful line, going in strong for soft, lightweight woollens in unusual colors and textures, usually pleated or gathered from the shoulder and tightly wrapped about the midriff with yards of shoestring ties.

Her Mother Hubbard raincoat, in multi-color awning striped cotton, is a hit of the show, shown with matching boots.

Woollens Go Bare-top

This all-American designer also likes casual fabrics such as flannel, jersey or lightweight tweed used in bare-top short-dinner dresses worn for daytime with cover-up boleros.

Winding up the crowded week of fashion previews was the showing of Cecile Chapman, famous for frothy dance dresses for the younger set. This fall Miss Chapman goes all out for billowing skirts of nylon net topped by strapless bodices of taffeta or satin cut as low as the law allows and further spiced by petal effects about the bosom.

For less formal wear she likes short strapless taffeta sheaths in ash blonde, black or white taffeta, draped to dramatize the figure with cover-up boleros.

TOURISTS VACATIONING in the Kawartha district are interested only with getting drunk and chasing unattached young women or being chased as the case may be, according to the "comic" cartoon postcards sold in local stores, apparently with the intention that they will help entice others here. How much they are likely to succeed you can judge for yourself from the sample shown.

Postcards Portray Kawarthas Happy-Hunting Ground

"What a time I'm having," a tousled red-nosed drunk leers as he hands to a lamp post with one hand while he flourishes a mug of beer with the other.

The drunk is on his holidays and from the postmark and the name on the postcard which pictures him, he's having his beer-soaked holidays in the great outdoors of the Kawarthas.

The drunk is but one of a limitless number of characters, all of whom are supposed to be funny, drawn on postcards which tourists apparently buy and send to their friends all over Canada and the United States.

Another favourite character on these postcards is the big-bellied 'aging wolf' dressed in a pair of swimming trunks while he lolls about a beach making double-meaning remarks about the scenery which is blotted out by a curvaceous blonde strutting along in a skimpy bathing suit.

Fat women with Betty Boop eyes desport themselves on beaches and under trees. Whatever they do apparently is a source of great amusement to someone.

The erring husband being caught in the act by a fire-breathing wife is another favorite situation.

The implication from these pictures is that husbands on holidays in the Peterborough area, and everywhere else, spend all pretty with Betty Grable figures which they delight in showing off.

their time chasing blondes, brunettes and red-heads—all young,

Something quite diferent are the photo-type cards which use trick photography to show fishermen landing trout, bass, pickerel and muskie only slightly smaller than whales.

A variation of this type is the postcard which pictures farmers harvesting wheat with stalks as big as tree trunks, cabbages which dwarf a man standing beside and other similar photo tricks.

But the standbys for comic postcards are the one-cent garishly colored, vulgar "cartoons."

Peterborough and the whole Kawartha district, according to the cards, is a happy hunting ground for beer-swizzling, girl-chasing husbands slightly mad from the heat.

SENTIMENTAL

For 33 years, Benjamin Disraeli's hair was cut by his wife, who preserved the clippings until her death.

Marion Beatty R.N. Weds In Tweed

The wedding took place in St. Carthagh's Roman Catholic Church, Tweed, of Marion Keitha Beatty, graduate of the Peterborough Civic Hospital, School of Nursing, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Beatty of Picton, to Mr. Raymond A. Rashotte, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rashotte of Tweed. The Rev. L. B. Garvin performed the ceremony and Sister Mary Carmel Rose played accompaniment for mass, and for soloist, Mr. Jack Marchen.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore an Elizabethan period gown of white slipper satin with stand-up collar of French lace. Her illusion veil of French tulle was caught with white lilacs and she carried a mauve orchid with bouvardia.

Bridal attendants were Miss Dorothy Rashotte, sister of the groom, maid of honor, Mrs. Gordon Beatty, Picton, Miss Olive Holmes, Peterborough, Mrs. Harold Sanderson, Peterborough, Miss Phyllis Arbuckle, Belleville, and Miss Dorothy Brenton, Peterborough, bridesmaids. Their taffeta frocks were in rainbow shades, yellow, green, peach-bloom, lilac, pink and powder blue and they wore floral bandeaux and carried nosegays. Flower girl Patricia Graham of Peterborough was in blue organdy eyelet over blue taffeta with headdress to match and carried a tiny basket of sweet peas.

Mr. Kenneth Rashotte was groomsman for his brother and ushers were Joseph Lessard and Donald Rashotte, Tweed, and Everette Beatty, Thomasburg.

Following a reception in the school auditorium, the couple left for Georgian Bay and points north, the bride travelling in a grey English worsted suit with dark green and natural accessories. On return they will live in Belleville.

Bethany Interest In Toronto Rites

An interesting ceremony in Timothy Eaton Memorial Church, Toronto, on July 7 was the marriage of Jane Grandy, daughter of Mrs. Mills of Bethany and the late David Norton Mills, to Mr. Alexander Beveridge Morrison, son of Mrs. Morrison and the late Donald Morrison, Toronto. The Rev. Dr. Trevor Davies officiated, assisted by the Rev. Robert Beveridge, uncle of the groom. Mr. David Ouchterlony was at the organ.

Given in marriage by Mr. Emerson Tyers, the bride wore an original model of pink imported Swiss eyelet-embroidered georgette over white taffeta. The gown, Edwardian in style, was made with high neckline, bell sleeves and bustle skirt falling into a train. A pill-box headdress held her matching lace veil and she carried a prayer book with orchids. Miss Marlisle Ferguson, her only attendant, chose an Edwardian suit of royal blue gabardine, matching wide-brimmed hat and carried a muff of white sweet peas.

Mr. John McEachern was groomsman and Dr. D. Bruce Morrison was usher.

The bride's mother wore a dress of navy blue faille, navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother chose a frock of navy crepe with matching accessories and a corsage of white roses.

A reception followed at the King Edward Hotel. For travelling the bride chose a suit of navy shantung with navy accessories. On return from the Laurentians the bride and groom will live in Toronto.

New Window Hat To Protect Eyes

PARIS, July 14 (Reuters)—The window hat is the latest sun wear being shown here.

A band of isinglass is let into the grim of a turned-down straw hat. The dipping brim protests the wearer's eyes from the sun's rays and enables her to see at the same time.

Other hats, designed especially for seaside wear this season, have exaggeratedly high crowns, some with large brims, others with tiny ones.

Fashion Flashes

TRICKS with scarves marked the recent mid-season showings abroad. Dresses used long chiffon scarves as halters, the wide ends completed by a snap so that they covered the entire back like a decollette. Most designers used plain, rather than printed scarfs.

COOLISH DAYS bring out tissue-weight woolens, especially at the race track. Banker's gray flannel, in a very light weight, for a charming coat dress made with side wrapped closing slanting from the bodice to the hipline. The deep, scooped-out neck is filled in with a white dickie.

BIG SEASON for velvet hats, either entirely of the fabric or velvet-trimmed. Black velvet makes a wide-brimmed hat, the edge wired and made so that it can be folded back to serve as a cuff for a head-hugging theatre-cap.

FIND A PLACE in your luggage for a knitted suit if you intend to travel much. Bright navy blue wool is used for a charming suit, the jacket made with a fancy, open stitch and bound all around. Skirt is all-around pleated.

FAVORITE fashion for warm weather is the sheath dress worn with a full-length, filmy coat. Black linen for a sheath dress, its deep, oval scooped-out neckline edged with white pique daisies that work to a cluster in front. Over it a filmy black organdie coat.

COMING IN to the stores for the late June and July promotion is the light-weight velvet suit done on softly tailored lines. Low lapels rippled at the base, double pockets at the hips, stitched collar and cuffs, square rhinestone-and-mirror buttons mark a pretty afternoon suit.

NOTHING FINER than the fitted luxury handbags turned out by our manufacturers. One house does fittings keyed to magnificent gilt and enamel frames. One bag is of calf, with an outside flap that covers compact, lipstick, cigarette lighter and case, pen, pencil and comb. The frame part of the bag opens by means of a fan shaped gilt clasp to a pocket fitted interior.

NEAT NUMBERS for the beach include a nice suit in rust sailcloth printed in a vivid green, yellow, white and black undersea motif and teamed up with a reversible beach coat of white terry cloth lined with the print.

DON'T DISCOUNT the importance of the real little black dress in all the welter of sunback, strapless and separate fashions. Firm black silk crepe makes a charming afternoon dress with wide, scooped out boat-shaped neckline, tiny sleeves, and a swathed hipline. Fall will see this type of dress going strong in smart circles.

A NICE COMPANION for one of those cool summer suits in rayon is a blouse made of airy silk organza printed in luscious colors and rich designs. Many of these blouses have soft bow-tied necklines.

FIRST FAVORITE with many women all over the country is the short evening dress in lace. A flared skirt marks one such dress, fashioned of beige cotton dress over a rust colored taffeta slip. The top has a deep, square neckline and broad shoulder straps. Slim waist is held by a rust velvet belt.

Forward-Tilting Most Aging Hat

The most aging hat is apt to be the one which tilts forward over a woman's brow.

Remember this tip when you angle your new fall bonnet on your head. There are hats, of course, which offer women no choice but to tilt them forward. Millinery for the most part, however, lends itself to whatever angle a woman wants to wear it.

If she believes that a forward-tilting hat is a help in hiding the little evidences of age about which she is inclined to feel self-conscious, she is mistaken. While a hat may cover up a lined brow or cast shadows over her eyes, the lowered brim under which a woman tries to hide will give to her face and figure a general effect of advanced maturity.

A much better angle at which to perch a hat, when a more rejuvenating effect is desired is a slightly backward tilt or a side slant that looks saucy.

If you don't believe that a hat is capable of adding to the apparent years of a face, try angling one completely forward on the head of an obliging youngster. You'll discover that even a 15-year-old will look like twice her age if you pull forward the hat that you put on her head so that it hides a good part of her face.

MUTUAL LEADERS HONORED

ROBERT E. DIMMA, C.L.U. R. A. MAGAHAY J. A. NORNABELL, C.L.U.

The Mutual Life of Canada has released its Honors List, recognizing three members of its Peterborough Branch for outstanding service to their communities in the club year recently closed. Messrs. Robert E. Dimma, C.L.U., of Peterborough and R. A. Magahay of Lindsay have qualified for the Leaders' Century Club and Mr. J. A. Nornabell, C.L.U., Branch Manager, is an Honorary Member of the Leaders' Century Club.

Qualification for club membership requires not only the underwriting of a large volume of protection, but, more important, the writing from year to year of "quality" business, that is, life insurance that is continued in force. These two factors, combined with a high personal standard of confidential service to policyholders, earn this recognition for Mutual Life representatives.

Foolish Arguments Cause Many Domestic Quarrels

A large proportion of the marriages whose obsequies take place in the divorce courts are talked to death. This may seem a strange saying to newlyweds, who cherish the artless belief that husbands and wives should tell each other everything and talk over together every detail of their lives.

Dorothy Dix

This is a swell theory, and it would work if any two people ever saw eye to eye and had the same tastes and habits and opinions and points of view. Unfortunately, this is not the case and especially is not the case when one of the parties is of the male persuasion and the other of the female. No man and woman ever yet thought alike, or got exactly the same slant on a subject, and so it is inevitable that when a husband and wife discuss every detail of every trivial and inconsequential domestic episode, they turn marriage into nothing but a debating society. And that's nobody's idea of a happy home life.

Of course, rational human beings, and especially those who love each other, should be able to discuss any question that is before the house, whether it is religion or politics or the mixing of a salad dressing, in a calm and temperate manner and reach an amicable agreement. But again, unfortunately, such is not the case. The minute people begin to argue about a matter, that minute their temperatures begin to rise, their voices take on an edge and they commence hunting around in their minds for words and phrases that will stab like stilletos.

Trivial Points Start Fights

Nine-tenths of the family quarrels that end in wrecked homes begin in foolish arguments over things as unimportant as what color a room shall be painted, the kind of auomobile they shall buy, the movies they shall attend, or whether spinach is edible or not, whether the wife shall use cosmetics and the husband go to a baseball games or not.

We have only to assist, as the French say, at the average domestic fight to perceive that it was precipitated by too much talk. If the husbands and wives would only go along and do what they want to do without discussing it beforehand, it would be accepted as a matter of course and there would be no row over it. It is when every move, and even what they think has to be thrashed out in endless argument that one or the other is sure to say the fighting word.

Of the folly of husbands and wives telling each other of every episode in their past lives, too much cannot be said. It is the act of a moron, yet intelligent men and women do it without apparently realizing that they are blighting the happiness of their mates and putting in their mates' hands a weapon with which to slay them. For in marriage it is literally true that what one doesn't know doesn't trouble one. Whereas knowing something that hurts is a wound in the heart that never ceases to throb with pain.

Anyway what's done is done. It cannot be changed, so what is the good in telling of romantic adventures and former loves when all that is accomplished is to sow the seeds of doubt in a wife's or husband's heart and poison her or his soul with jealousy?

Many a woman drives her husband away from home by talking too much about her domestic affairs. Her whole conversational gamut runs from the nursery to the kitchen and back again, and that is dull fodder for a man to feed on who is hungry for some tasty bit of gossip, or some stimulating and amusing talk about books or plays or world affairs.

Whining Women

And there are plenty of women who meet tired and exhausted men, who have been battling all day against discouraging business conditions, with a recital of everything that has gone wrong in the home during the day. They whine and complain about how much trouble the children are, and how long they have stood over the stove preparing the dinner, and discourse about the high cost of everything, and generally pitch in great gobs of gloom to add to the depression until the poor man flees from his home as soon as he gets his dinner as he would from a morgue.

Women lose out in marriage because they talk to their husbands about the wrong things. Some evil genius has led the average wife to believe that it is her sacred duty to tell her husband of his faults. That is her undoing. She tells him that he is getting fat and bald. She reminds him of his every fault and foible and then she wonders why he wanders off to some woman who tells him how young and handsome and wonderful he is.

And women make the fatal mistake of telling their husbands of all the blunders they themselves commit, thereby depreciating themselves in their husband's eyes. They never realize that all a husband ever knows about his wife is what she tells him herself, and that as long as she represents herself as a paragon he believes her to be one.

SUITS WILL BE FEMININE THIS FALL, with longer torso, arched hipline and pinched-in waist. A slim gray flannel suit (left) from Philip Mangone has notched collar, longer torso, and wrap-around skirt with back panel. The rounded hipline and narrow skirt are displayed in a gray wool gabardine suit (centre) by Paul Parnes. Revers and cuffs are charcoal velvet; strap closings are studded with rhinestones. The tiny waist and curved hipline appear again in a soft blue wool suit (right) designed by Martini. The suit has pocket flaps trimmed in blue mole and is worn with a blue mole stole.

Autumn's Suits Mold Femininity

By GAILE DUCAS.

NEW YORK (NEA). — Autumn's suits are molded to the feminine figure.

The waist is nipped and the hipline is rounded. This rounded effect is achieved by padding and by unusual shaped pockets.

Skirts are very slim and are shorter than last year's. Most of them measure 14 inches from the floor.

While the waist is sharply defined, waistlines generally are longer than they were last fall. Bloused or belted jackets often have belts which dip at the back.

The horseshoe-neck jacket, which has a place of importance, also serves to point up the longer torso. Here, the buttons frequently start at the waist since the collar curves down to the waistline.

Tweed and flannel both are prominent in fall suit collections, with the tweed trend extending even to accessories. Color is strong for deep violet and plum, for charcoal grey and for the spice tones: curry, ginger, mace and cinnamon. Brown is coming back, typified by the new "oxford brown," which is a dark heather brown.

Smoke silver-grey flannel is fashioned by Philip Mangone into a slim suit which gains tuxedo lines through its notched collar. This suit has its own costume blouse of two-toned silver-grey silk, with a matching lining for the jacket. The skirt is wrap-around, closing with a wide panel at the back.

The rounded hipline is apparent in a grey wool gabardine suit by designer Paul Parnes. The waist is minute and the slick, straight skirt is offset by a walking pleat in the back. Charcoal velvet revers and cuffs pick up the grey of the suit and complement the rhinestone - studded horizontal strap closings.

The tiny waist and new hipline appears again in a mole-trimmed wool suit from Martini. Both suit and fur are a soft blue, with the fur topping pocket flaps which are designed to aid in curving the hip-line. The waistline is pointed up by a flaring peplum. The jacket has a wide, notched collar and the skirt has narrow lines.

Gentlefolk's Ways and Views

for Peterborough County. At this time he gave up Blythe Farm and moved to Peterborough, accompanied by Anne who never married but lived with her brother. In 1855 he was made Auditor-General of Canada by John A. MacDonald, and the family moved to Toronto. After Confederation he was also Deputy-Minister of Finance, was superannuated in 1878, and died in 1894 at the age of 86 years. Anne died in 1893 in her 89th year.

"High Tone of Society"

It was natural that the numerous travellers who visited Peterborough in the period 1830-50, who were of the same gentry, admired Peterborough and the Kawartha district for "the high tone of its society . . . the polished, agreeable inhabitants . . . the genteel fashionable families" who entertained them. Their books spread the news of a little section of upper-middle-class English life in the backwoods, where the gentlefolk played at being "landed gentry" on cheap bush-lands, drank port, played whist, organized fox-hunts, cricket matches, regattas, and indulged in various sports among the most beautiful scenery in Canada. Inevitably, hundreds of other younger sons of gentry, retired officers, and displaced farmers with some capital emigrated to share in this backwoods utopia, of whom most were quickly disillusioned when they had lost their money and had to get down to work or return to Britain. It is noteworthy that only a very few of this class, who were not suited to the grinding hardships of pioneer farm life, remained on their "estates" unless they had enough money to get into land speculation, lumbering, or some more profitable enterprise. Others came into the towns and obtained government posts of some sort, or went into business with their remaining capital. Only the genuine settlers, mostly on 100 acres, who worked hard themselves and did not depend on "hired hands," succeeded in forging prosperous farms from the forest.

And yet the gentry settlers were of great value to the Kawartha district. They brought in a lot of capital and started many industries — mills, breweries, etc. They started numerous towns by marking off townsites where lots could be sold at a profit—Lakefield, Bobcaygeon, Fenelon Falls, Keene, Hastings, etc. They gave the region valuable publicity in the British Isles, attracting more useful and solid immigrants. Those who wrote about the Kawarthas in their books gave us a valuable insight into the life of the district, even if their accounts are superficial and aloof. One might also say that they gave the Kawarthas a tourist complex with their emphasis on hunting, shooting and fishing, the basis of the flourishing tourist industry. And finally, they gave a conservative balance to the democratic majority, as we shall see later.

LAMB—In loving memory of our dear grandson, Buddy Norman Beatty Lamb, who passed away July 16, 1944.

His death is our silent grief,
He sleeps in God's beautiful garden,
In the sunshine of perfect peace.

LATCHFORD—In loving memory of a dear father, Herbert Latchford, who passed away July 16, 1939.

MORDEN—In loving memory of Mrs. J. A. Morden, who passed away July 15, 1948.

Then left them to remember.

None will ever know.
Alone yet not alone.

Television Troubles Seen By Censor Head

TORONTO, July 15 — (CP) — Difficulties in television are foreseen in the annual report of O. J. Silverthorn, chairman of the Ontario Board of Censors.

Mr. Silverthorn's report, released Friday, said he planned to invite all Canadian censors and those of bordering states to attend a conference in Toronto to discuss methods of coping with the newest form of entertainment.

"We will have to consider the coast-to-coast television of motion pictures when the new medium reaches the broadcast stage in Canada. In addition there arises the question of whether or not TV stations will be permitted to override the motion picture censors by broadcasting the same print nationally regardless of the varying standards of each province."

MOSCOW, July 15. (AP)—The army newspaper Red Star said today that reactionary Swedish circles are preparing for a war with Russia.

Oshawa Takes 9-2 Win Against Petes

OSHAWA, July 15—Oshawa Merchants said it with extra-base blows last night as they pounded out a 9-2 victory over the Petes here in a Viaduct Major League schedule game.

The win kept Oshawa's lead in the loop race a little safer and further established the fact that, when the Merchants want to break out in a hitting spree the ructions can come from any corner.

Late in arriving again, the Peterborough club didn't have much of a warmup and veteran Gunner Whitehill, who went to the mound for the Liftlock City team, walked two batters and hit another to fill the bases in the first inning. Even though one runner was nipped at the plate, eventually the homesters scored, Harry Hill marking his Oshawa debut with a single to score Napolitano.

In the 4th inning, with the score only 1-0, Andy McMullen drew a walk with one out and Jerry Creasy smacked one over the new signboard in right field. The blow cleared signboard, fence and all. Next batter, Ted Barnes, then poled one over the wall in centre, to make it 4-0.

The First Run

Howie Dalton tripled to open the 7th inning for the Petes and scored on an infield out for Peterborough's first run.

Oshawa promptly came back with six hits, including a triple, double and four singles, plus a walk, to score three runs in their half. Another run in the 8th when Rog Wood tripled and scored on Harry Hill's third hit of the night, concluded the game's scoring.

In addition to the two homers, there were triples by Wood and Hill, and Sherry Rowland hit a double while Andy McMullen had two two-baggers.

Oshawa's power at the plate was too much for Gunner Whitehill, who was good until the 6th inning but at that time the writing went on the wall.

Jerry Creasy was in rare form striking out 14 batters and walking only two men. He gave up only four scattered hits and was little short of terrific in the early stages, when the visitors were still in the running.

Sharing honors with Creasy was his battery mate Charles Walsh, who had 14 putouts while Sherry Rowland had nine putouts.

Stole The Show

However, Danny Brown, shortstop for the Petes, stole the defensive limelight with 11 assists and three putouts for a terrific night's work.

In addition, it took the best catch of the night by Bill Harper, who turned his back on the plate and ran deep into left to haul down Brown's bid for extra bases. Joe Lowery was another star for Peterborough.

Springville Welcomes Mildred Brown Back

SPRINGVILLE, July 15 (ENS) —About 70 people from Springville and Peterborough honored Miss Mildred Brown at a party Thursday.

Miss Brown, a former resident of Springville, had returned to the village after living some years in Peterborough.

To help her become established in her new home, her friends presented Miss Brown with a living room table.

Mrs. Argue (nee Jean Fairbairn) of Bethany welcomed Miss Brown back on behalf of the community. Mrs. Bert Visee also added words of welcome.

Women of the community served refreshments. In charge of the evening's arrangements were Mrs. Donald Cathcart, Mrs. Jack Whitfield and Mrs. Owen Murray.

BASTOGNE, Belgium, July 15. (AP) — Belgium will dedicate a monument here tomorrow to the memory of the American soldiers who perished in the Battle of the Bulge. In the centre of the $500,000 edifice is a plaque saying, in Latin, "American Liberators, the Belgian People Remember."

FUNNY BUSINESS —By Hershberger

"I should have known better than to have a confirmed bachelor for decorating wedding cakes!"

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Premier Frost reiterated that the Ontario government will not permit night harness horse or greyhound racing with pari-mutuel betting.

"I have no objection to night harness racing at fall fairs where it is a matter of a day or two but when you bring it in to the city it is a matter of big business," the Premier said in a statement.

Operators of Thorncliffe Raceway, who now are conducting a 42-day harness meeting here, have been seeking permission to run races at night. The first race now starts at 4:15 p.m. and the last ends around 6:30 p.m.

The operators twice have run exhibition races at night with no betting permitted to acquaint the public with the sport under floodlights.

Premier Frost said that extending night harness racing into large tracks involves "a principle of great importance and much wider in its implications that at first appears" since in the ordinary course it would have to be extended to flat racing.

The United States Trotting Association Friday disclosed an alleged stimulation of a winning harness horse at Maywood Park last Tuesday night. A hearing for the driver, Pat Harvie of Athens, Mich., was set for next Monday.

A track saliva test showed the horse, a pacer named Jimmy Brooke, presumably was given procain, a stimulant, on the day it won the fifth race at Maywood Park, the association said.

The "war" between the International Boxing Club and the New York Managers' Guild was settled Friday when the managers' group accepted the IBC offer of a minimum of $4,500 for the two main event fighters from the club's share of the radio and television receipts.

Because the two were at odds on the amount to be paid the righters from the radio and television revenue, Madison Square Garden has been without boxing most of the Friday nights this spring and summer.

Last Wednesday's Jake Lamotta-Tiberio Mitri middleweight title bout was held without either radio or television because of the manager's strike.

Second baseman Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn Dodgers Friday was sued for $100,000 damages by a Chicago advertising executive who charged the baseball player with breach of contract.

Stanley Kuttner charged in his Superior Court suit that Robinson violated a contract which gave Kuttner exclusive rights to use of Robinson's name in connection with the sale and distribution of men's clothing.

The Yankees' Joe DiMaggio will be sidelined at least three or four days by strained groin muscles, the club doctor said on Friday. DiMag hurt himself in the all-star game in Chicago Tuesday.

No serious injuries resulted on the field Thursday when Brazil beat Spain 6-1 in a world cup soccer game—but among the 200,000 fans in the stands:

One man died of a cracked head.

One died of a heart attack when the first goal was scored.

Four suffered dangerous injuries.

251 went to hospital seriously hurt.

Newspapers reported that a young man listening to the game over the radio with his sweetheart beside him ran amok when the Spaniards scored their single goal, and shot the girl dead.

Losing Market

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., July 15 (CP).—A spokesman for British Columbia's $2,000,000 peat industry said Friday B. C. is losing its United States market to Germany. He added this year's harvest may be cut as much as 25 per cent, with more than 1,200 persons directly hit by the tightening market.

Modernize Destroyer

VICTORIA, B. C., July 15 — (CP)—Modernization of the destroyer Angonquin, part of Canada's mothball fleet, may be speeded up because of the Korean situation, it was reported on Friday.

Appointment Announced

R. J. FAULKNER

The Empire Life Insurance Company announces the appointment of Robert J. Faulkner as Branch Manager at Peterborough. Mr. Faulkner was transferred from the Hamilton Office where he joined the Company following his return from overseas with the Canadian Army. Associated with Mr. Faulkner in his Agency are W. V. Drury, G. W. Birch, D. A. Nichols and Mrs. J. N. Wood. Office Room No. 15, Bank of Commerce Bldg., Peterborough, Ont. Phone 3398.

NEW APPOINTMENT — J. Lucien Dansereau, Montreal consulting engineer, has been appointed to the International Joint Commission. He will take over the post formerly held by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, who now becomes chairman of the Canadian section of the Commission. The Commission deals with problems arising from lakes and rivers stretching across the Canada-United States boundary.

Rochester Dumps Buffalo In 16-6 Rout

By The Associated Press

How things have changed with Del Wilber, Rochester Red Wing catcher.

Take 1948. That was his second full season with St. Louis Cards. After a poor .232 year in 47, it was to be Wilber's deciding campaign—whether he stayed in the big time.

He hit .190. He was farmed out.

But the St. Louis management saw more in Delbert Quentin Wilber than his impotent bat. They saw a smart, alert catcher, capable of directing a minor league team.

They appointed Wilber manager of the Houston club in the Texas League.

The responsibility seemed to do something to his bat. He hit .309 for the Buffs, the highest figure in his career. But the stick work didn't help—the Buffs finished seventh, 38½ games back.

Wilber moved his 200 pound frame to Rochester this year, to play under the leadership of Johnny Keane. He brought his hot Texas League bat with him.

Same As Houston

Current batting average? Why, .309—the same as with Houston.

Wilber enjoyed a perfect plate record Friday night—five hits in five tries—as Rochester pummelled Buffalo 16-6. He drove in six runs with a homer, double and three singles, scoring three times.

Russ Derry, Wilber's teammate, also batted 1.000, smacking three singles, and his 19th home run—tops in the loop.

It strictly was a case of the rich get richer for righthander Tom Poholsky who picked up his 11th victory. Already the league's No. 1 hurler, the 20-year-old righthander was helped by a 20-hit attack. Don Richmond and Lou Ortiz each contributed a home run to the assault on three Buffalo hurlers.

Baltimore, meanwhile, stayed 1½ games behind Rochester, nipping Syracuse 2-1 behind Russ Bauer's five-hit pitching.

Montreal swept a doubleheader from Toronto 3-1 and 5-3. Springfield and Jersey City divided a twin bill, the Giants taking the afterpiece 6-5 after losing the opener 3-1.

Inquest Ordered

TORONTO, July 15 (CP) — Donald Thornton, 16, was killed Friday when his head was jammed against the wall by a rising elevator at National Grocers Company, Ltd. Thornton, a summer vacation helper, leaned out of the elevator when it was rising. An inquest has been ordered.

Deportation Order

Ignore Appeal To Go To Work

NEW YORK, July 15—(AP)—The New York World-Telegram and Sun received no response Friday to its appeal that mechanical workers appear for work Sunday despite a strike by 400 CIO American Newspaper Guild employees.

The management asked eight craft unions, representing the bulk of the newspaper's 1,000 mechanical workers, to "permit and direct" members to come to work.

These workers, chiefly AFL members, have refused to cross Guild picket lines since the strike began June 13 and the afternoon newspaper has not been able to publish.

A high union official, after a 2½ hour meeting to consider the newspaper's appeal, said he knew of no craft union members who would report for work Monday. He declined use of his name.

The Guild went on strike in support of the demands for higher wages and other benefits.

Peck Has Hand In Running Summer Theatre

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, July 15—(AP)—The man seated behind the desk and looking like a theatrical producer was Gregory Peck.

He gave a convincing performance. He handed letters to a couple of secretaries, interviewed an actor for a role, weighed the billing on forthcoming plays, tossed scripts around and talked to his theatre on the phone.

This is a real-life role for the long-limbed actor. It is the result of his long romance with the theatre.

"I am a co-producer of the La Jolla Playhouse, along with Dorothy McGuire and Mel Ferrer," Peck explained in his Beverly Hills office. "This summer we are presenting nine weeks of top plays with star leads and actors' equity casts."

Peck, a Lajolla, Calif., boy who made good, returned to his home town with good theatre. And the home-towners appreciate it, too.

100 Per Cent

"They're behind us 100 per cent," he said.

"We're also getting some enthusiasm here in Hollywood among the actors. A lot of them come to us offering their services. They realize it's a good chance to be seen, to gain experience with experienced casts and capable directors and to do something for the good old theatah.

"Robert Ryan was back for the second time, doing 'Born Yesterday' with Marie McDonald. Dorothy McGuire is doing her fourth show. This year we'll also have Pat O'Brien, Joan Caulfield, Una Merkel, Richard Carlson, John Ireland, Don Defore and others."

Earns Nil

Peck went to work for the playhouse the day after he returned from England where he made "Capt. Horatio Hornblower." He puts in a full afternoon at the office. Normally, he earns several thousand dollars a week in movies. I asked him how much he made on his theatrical venture.

He held up his finger and thumb joined in a zero.

Peck and his partners are also members of the Actors' Company, which plans a Hollywood theatre some day.

Men Puzzled Where Shark Swallowed Boy

GALVESTON, Tex., July 15—(AP). — The shark that swallowed a boy has officers puzzled. They know where the shark, a nine-foot man-eater, came from, but they don't know where he found his victim.

Thursday the carcass of the shark was discovered in the shallow waters of Galveston Bay. A human foot protruded from the decomposed shark. Inside the carcass ofifcers found the torso of a youth, perhaps 17 or 18 years old.

J. L. Baughman, marine biologist, said the shark could have found his human meal a long way from Galveston since a shark can swim 250 miles in a day.

Opposition Gagged In Argentine Congress

By JOE ARRIETA

BUENOS AIRES, July 15 — (Ruters)—Renewed protests against what it calls the gagging of the dwindling opposition in the Argentine congress have been voiced by the independent newspaper La Prensa.

"There is hardly a session of the chamber of deputies at which the majority does not fall back on some recourse or other aimed at preventing the free discussion of affairs," it said in an editorial.

Recalling that last year a radical deputy had been ruled out of order by the Peronista majority when he had pronounced only the first four words of his speech, La Prensa said this had been going on since 1946 and was becoming "more acute all the time."

Argenina's present chamber of deputies started out with 42 radicals against 114 Peronistas. The former have since been whittled down to 19.

One of these, their leader Dr. Ricardo Balbin, has been suspended and in prison since last March.

La Nacion, Argentina's newswidely-read independent newspaper, also referred editorially to conditions in the chamber of deputies.

Incident Suppressed

It recalled that in a recent debate, the radical deputy, Senor Silvano Santander, had insisted on speaking even though the chairman, Dr. Campora, was ringing the bell calling the chamber to order.

Dr. Campara asked the chamber if the sanctions provided in the constitution for disorderly conduct in congress could not be applied.

The chamber voted, by 69 to 19, to appoint a special committee to investigate deputy Santander's behavior. When the relevant issue of "Diario De Sesiones" (Hansard) was published, however, the entire incident was found to have been suppressed.

Dr. Campora told a radical questioner in the chamber that the alteration of the official record pertained only to his own words.

Can't Get Started

La Nacion commented:

"This is going too far, since if the words belonged to the person who pronounced them, the vote belonged to the house and should not be reversed except by another vote.

"But this interesting case of procedure could not be debated because the chairman put an end to the discussion by ruling that the questioner was out of order. The majority assented and the chamber turned to other matters."

Hamilton Forms Committee To Boost Naturalists' Efforts

Written For The Canadian Press
By PERCY GHENT

"Long lists of birds observed, technicolor motion pictures of nature's flora and fauna, are not enough for those who call themselves naturalists," says Miss Edith Austen of Hamilton, who is a director of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists.

Miss Austen says that the Hamilton Nature Club has formed an active conservation committee and plans are under way to engage in useful, constructive efforts in the local field. Program outlined includes the establishment of wildlife sanctuaries for the protection and preservation of birds, mammals and the rarer wild flowers and plants. Woodlot care, educational efforts to stress the importance of swamps, and the protection of local beauty spots from disfigurement and devastation are also part of the campaign of ambitious Hamilton naturalists.

Summer School

The summer school at Camp Billie Bear, on the fringe of Algonquin Park was also referred to by Miss Austen. Sponsored by the Ontario Federation, this school in the woods has just concluded its 12th annual session, and prospective leaders in the various fields of nature education and conservation have had a thorough but enjoyable course in the fascinating ways of nature seen at first hand.

Said Miss Austen, "I should very much like to see the directors of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists sponsor a fund which would be used, when adequate, to purchase a permanent site for the summer nature school, and so broaden its scope and usefulness."

Whenever a flock of a score or so of American mergansers (fish ducks) swim into view on a Canadian lake, the chances are they are all adult females, for the males depart for a prolonged summer vacation when the babies arrive.

Nor are the mother ducks in the flotilla unduly concerned about the ducklings. They have a superbly organized day nursery, and elsewhere on the lake some sober-minded merganser is keeping 30 or 40 baby ducks in order—the community offspring—while their mothers are enjoying a bit of social life. She will have her days off in due course, and another day nurse will assume the maternal care.

Day nurseries are far from a modern idea for these mergansers—they organized them in dim antiquity.

Prehistoric Bird Bath

Bird baths for gardens are made in many attractive designs and have come into happy use everywhere. On the grounds of Canada's National Museum at Ottawa, there's a bird bath that a footprint made in the morning of time. At least, the bath was cast from the footprint of a mighty dinosaur.

Bank Bandit Identified In Courtroom

Magistrate Refuses To Bar Public From Langton Trial

SIMCOE, July 17.—(CP).—Joseph Herbert McAuliffe, 32, today was identified as the man who looted the Imperial Bank at Langton, of $22,500 last June 21.

Harold Thompson, a member of the bank staff, made the identification in magistrate's court as McAuliffe's preliminary hearing began on charges of murder and bank robbery.

Earlier Magistrate H. P. Innes denied a defence move to bar the public.

McAuliffe, an army veteran from North Bay, is charged with the machine-gun slaying of two Langton tobacco farmers—killed as they pursued the bank bandit.

Thompson said he was standing near the teller's cage when he heard a strange voice and looked up to see a stranger "pointing a gun at me over the counter."

Told To Open Vault

Thompson said the robber herded the bank staff into a corner, then ordered Thompson to enter the vault and open the inner door.

He remonstrated with the hold-up man but was told: "You get in there if you don't want a sore head."

Later the robber told him: "I'm coming back to Langton and if you do any talking, I'll kill you."

Thompson told of being forced to fill a paper bag with bills and silver after other staff members had aided in opening the safe.

The whole staff were forced to enter the vault before the robber left.

"He pointed a gun at us and warned us . . . and that was the last I saw of him until I came here," Thompson testified.

Magistrate H. P. Innes said in rejecting the defence move for exclusion of the public: "I think it would be highly improper and irregular for me to make any such orders."

400 Soldiers On Manoeuvres

PETAWAWA, July 17 (CP) — One of Canada's three regular airborne infantry regiments launched three weeks of tough, new training today "to train all personnel to operate efficiently over difficult terrain."

Four hundred men of the Royal Canadian Regiment headed into the thickly-wooded Algonquin Park area near this army base for a "jungle fighting" exercise (known as Beaverdam) that will pit them against rugged, almost virgin territory as well as an active, simulated enemy.

(The RCR's are one of three battalions in the army's regular airborne brigade, the fighting formation Canada could conceivably use if she wanted to go all out to meet the United Nations' request for ground troops in Korea. Opinion in Ottawa, however, is that the brigade won't be sent because that would be a serious blow to Canada's own defences.

(Army headquarters said the Algonquin Park exercise has been scheduled for some time and has no connection with Korea.)

Flung 40 Ft. In Crash Woman, Baby Unhurt

KIRKLAND LAKE, July 17 — (CP)—Although flung 40 feet from a speeding car Sunday when it was sideswiped by another, Mrs. Gordon Lehman, Matheson, Ont., and her two-months-old baby escaped with minor lacerations.

Mrs. Lehman was catapulted from the car when the door whipped open. She clung tightly to her child, protecting it with her arms when they hit the asphalt. They were passengers in a car driven by her husband.

The driver of the other cab, Edward Lovsin of Val D'or, Que., has been charged with careless driving.

Arctic Expedition Ends In Northern Lake

9 Escape Icy Waters After RCAF Plane Crashes In Takeoff

EDMONTON, July 17 (CP)—Members of a nine-man scientific expedition to the north magnetic pole arrived here in an RCAF rescue aircraft early today. The expedition's own plane is in 20 feet of water in a North West Territories lake.

The men, who spent two nights in the sub-Arctic shivering in wet clothes and taking turns using a single sleeping bag, were picked up last night from the shore of Spitfire Lake, 544 miles northeast of Edmonton.

An RCAF spokesman gave this account:

The expedition was headed by Ralph Hutchinson of Ottawa and Kenneth Whitham of Toronto, scientists who were to study the constantly-shifting magnetic pole. Mr. Hutchinson is head magnetician in the Federal technical surveys department and Mr. Whitham is a geophysicist.

In an RCAF Canso with a seven-man crew, the party took off from Ottawa July 7 for a 43-stop tour of the northland. Friday it landed on Spitfire Lake and set up a magnetic survey point.

Late in the day it prepared to leave. FO. A. G. Carswell of Ottawa and Toronto, the pilot, said the plane skinned over what he took to be a rock. It left a hole in the forward part of the aircraft. He taxied the Canso to within 100 yards of the shore, then it sank.

Everyone got to shore. Most of the scientific information was saved but all the instruments were lost.

The spokesman said the expedition likely will return to Ottawa, finished for this year.

FO. D. L. Munroe, Aylmer, Que., and Vancouver, navigator; FO. F. W. Baril, Ottawa, co-pilot; FO. G. O. Paynter, Ottawa, radio officer, A. B. Hillman, Ottawa and Belleville, flight engineer; LAC. R. A McLean, Cyrville, Ont., and Monston, N. B., flight mechanic, and LAC. W. E. Southcombe, Ottawa and Sarnia, crewman.

Cabinet Meets Wednesday, On Korean Crisis

OTTAWA, July 17 (CP). — Canadians may gain an inkling later this week of possible additional commitments facing their country as a result of the United Nations appeal for more help in the Korean war.

While three Canadian destroyers steamed toward the war zone to join in the fighting, it was announced that Prime Minister St Laurent is interrupting a vacation to return to the capital and attend a cabinet meeting Wednesday.

Two questions of paramount interest to Canadians face the government:

1. Will ground and air forces be added to the three-destroyer naval unit—Cayuga, Athabaskan and Sioux—which sailed from Hawaii late Friday. The destroyers will be placed under orders of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander of the UN armed forces (United States) now fighting in Southern Korea.

2. Will parliament be called in emergency session to approve the dispatch of additional assistance.

It is considered unlikely that the government will take any hasty action.

It is known that ever since Prime Minister St. Laurent announced diversion of the three destroyers for possible service in Korean waters, the government has based its planning on the possibility that additional aid might be necessary.

However, at least some government leaders feel it would be unwise for Canada to throw all her strength into the Pacific area for fear of trouble elsewhere.

Given New Kidney Woman Up Around

CHICAGO, July 17 (AP)—Mrs. Howard Tucker, 49, the woman with the only transplanted kidney in medical history, Sunday walked cheerfully out of hospital. She said further tests must be made in about three weeks to determine whether the new kidney is functioning properly.

Shortly after the operation on June 17, surgeons said Mrs. Tucker's other kidney might be doing the work of both.

The transplanted kidney was taken from another woman shortly after she died of a liver ailment. Physicians had said that without the operation, Mrs. Tucker herself was doomed to die.

Hill's Trip In Barrel Fails Hopes To Make New Try

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 17.—(CP).—Another attempt to defy the swirling waters of Niagara Falls has failed. The Niagara river, filled with eddies and cross-currents, Sunday dashed the hopes of dare-devil Major Lloyd Hill, who tried to go over the 175-foot horseshoe falls in a steel barrel. Hill navigated about 2½ miles of river successfully in the 725-pound cylinder but the barrel was caught in cross-currents within a half-mile of the cataract and hurled against a shoreside power station abutment.

Friends attempted to dislodge the bouncing, tossing barrel with pike poles but failed. A strong inshore current kept pushing the stainless steel craft back against the wall.

After an hour, they attached ropes to the barrel and hauled it ashore.

Hill Bitter

Hill, uninjured but badly shaken up when the river hurled the barrel about like a matchbox, was bitter about it.

"Why didn't you shove her out again?" he mumbled to his brothers, Red Jr., and Corky, as they helped him to his feet.

"I could have made it. I know I could have."

Hill said today he will try again "sometime around Labor Day" to go over Niagara Falls in a barrel. Earlier, he said the second attempt would be made "in about a week."

While Hill himself didn't make the trip over the falls Sunday, the barrel did. Within minutes after he was dragged out and whisked away in a waiting truck, one of his brothers untied the ropes and shoved the cylinder into the current.

It got into a downstream channel, hurtling over the precipice near the spot where Hill had hoped to go over.

Many of the estimated 200,000 persons lining the Canadian and American shores were unaware Hill had been removed.

The barrel was dented badly but apparently remained watertight. Hill said he would use it again without any alterations or repairs.

Presents Credentials

DUBLIN, July 17 (Reuters)—W. F. A. Turgeon, Canadian ambassador to the Republic of Ireland, today presented his credentials to President Sean O'Kelly. Turgeon, first Commonwealth ambassador in Dublin, made formal presentation of a letter of credence signed by the King. Hitherto he has been Canadian high commissioner to the Republic of Ireland.

Prisoners Hurt Two Policemen

SARNIA, July. 17 (CP).—Two district police officers were injured, one seriously by a broken wine bottle late Saturday during a mild automobile ride with two prisoners. The prisoners later escaped custody in hospital.

The fugitives, 26-year-old Ronald Dion, and 24-year-old Mrs. Laura Moore, walked from the hospital while Chief Constable Hugh Peden of Sarnia township police was telephoning for aid. They are still at large.

Risdale said he was summoned to the home of Albert Lumley in Sarnia township where Lumley charged Mrs. Moore and Dion with trespassing on his property. With the help of Peden he started to take the prisoners to Sarnia jail. During the ride a fight broke out.

Hint Sabotage In Ship Blast

LONDON, July 17 (AP) — A blast which blew up nine barges full of naval ammunition Friday night may have been caused by sabotage, an admiralty statement said today.

The munitions barges exploded after one of them caught fire. About 30 persons were injured but no one was killed. The explosion scattered live ammunition over a wide area around Gosport and neighboring Portsmouth naval yard.

A previous admiralty statement said sabotage appeared unlikely.

However, the admiralty said "further evidence which has come to light" shows "the possibility of sabotage being the cause of the initial fire . . . cannot now be ruled out. . ."

There have been several recent cases of suspected sabotage of Royal Navy ships.

Discover No Trace Of Haliburton Prisoner

MIDLAND, July 17 (CP) — Four days after their break for freedom from an asylum hayfield, Melville Wilkie and George Herman Woodcox of the Haliburton area, were still at large today from the Ontario Hospital at Penetanguishene.

A provincial police search now under Sgt. J. Lewis, formerly of Orillia, continued day and night still is concentrated largely in the bush area of Midland Point, a summer colony between Midland and Penetanguishene.

Both fugitives were judged insane on charges of murder, but residents of the area, some of whom have ilved through four previous escapes by Wilkie are more interested than alarmed. Cottage doors are locked at nights and residents no longer go abroad alone after dark. Otherwise, summer holidays are continuing as usual.

Two Detectives Victims In Landlord-Tenant Feud

WINNIPEG, July 17—(CP)—A long-standing landlord-tenant feud erupted over the weekend into a knifing and a gunfight that killed one detective and severely wounded another.

Police Chief George MacIver said Henry Malanyk, 48-year-old plumber, will be charged with murdering Det.-Sgt. J. E. Sims, who was blasted in the abdomen by a 12-gauge shotgun at a range of three feet.

Sgt. Sims was investigating a stabbing affray in the shoddy Argyle St. district of Winnipeg's north end. Detectives W. H. Anderson and J. Peachell were with him in the tiny front room of Adolphe Kafka's home.

Kafka, home from his job at Pine Falls, Man., to visit his wife, had been stabbed three times by an assailant alleged to be Malanyk. His wounds were not serious.

The three were taking evidence, the police report said, when Malanyk walked in the front door, saw the detectives, and fired. The first shot caught Sgt. Sims. A second hit Detective Anderson, 29, in the abdomen and chest.

Sims died on the operating table; Anderson's condition was reported improving. Peachell was unhurt.

Anderson, and Peachell opened fire after the first shot, wounding Malanyk in the hand, shoulder and hip.

Chief MacIver said Malyank was drunk on homebrew. He said he will be charged with murder "if he lives—and he will."

Last spring Kafka and Malanyk—then landlord and tenant in another house—were involved in a shooting fracas.

Man 22 Held For Slaying Young Wife

Girl Refused To Leave Invalid Parents, Stabbed Six Times

LITTLE CURRENT, Ont., July 17.—(CP).—A 22-year-old Toronto man today was charged with murder in the knife slaying of his wife on their second wedding aninversary.

Mrs. Emma Maud Galloway, 22, died of at least six wounds believed inflicted with a butcher knife.

Her body was found Sunday in a bedroom of her father's home at Tehkummah, 25 miles south of this Manitoulin Island town.

The husband, John L. Galloway, was arrested soon after the slaying. He was arraigned today in magistrate's court at Sudbury, 50 miles northeast of here, and remanded until July 24.

Goes To Farmhouse

William Bowerman, a farmer, said a young man staggered to his house, his wrists streaming blood.

"I want to call the police," Bowerman quoted the man as saying. "I have killed my wife."

As the man fumbled with the crank of Bowerman's rural telephone, a five-inch knife fell to the floor, Bowerman said.

Mrs. Galloway's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Armstrong, said they believe their daughter was slain because of jealousy.

The young woman, who has a year-old daughter, Brenda, left Toronto some time ago to care for her invalid parents. Galloway remained in Toronto, where he worked in a washing-machine factory.

Wouldn't Go

Recently, he hitchhiked to Manitoulin to see his wife and tr yto persuade her to return to Toronto. Friends said Mrs. Galloway, wishing to remain with her parents for a year, refused.

Mr. Armstrong said he and his family were enjoying a quiet afternoon.

"Boyd, my son, and Bill Gibson, my stepson, and I were working on the car in the yard. Mrs. Armstrong was sitting on the verandah with our granddaughter, Brenda. John and Elma were in the house.

Rushes From House

"All of a sudden, John dashed out the front door. As he did, he turned and shouted, 'Elma, hurry and get supper ready.'"

Mrs. Armstrong took up the story:

"I didn't like the way he had run out of the house and started to dash up the road. I went inside and called Elma. When I did not receive an answer, I went upstairs to the two rooms they have been occupying.

"I saw Elma sort of kneeling beside the bed. I went over and shook her. She gasped and collapsed. Then I saw the great pools of blood all over the floor. I screamed and I don't remember much more after that."

Blood Everywhere

Mrs. Armstrong's scream brought Mr. Armstrong and the two boys dashing upstairs.

"I never say anything like it in my life," said the young woman's shocked father. "There was blood everywhere."

Seek Five Trapped In Burning Lead Mine

LARK, Utah, July 17 (AP) — Thick clouds of smoke were termed the main hazard today as rescue workers tried to reach five men lost underground since Sunday in a lead mine.

Huge blowers were set up in main shafts to clear the smoke which rescue crews said prevented them from exploring depths of the mine where the men might be huddled.

Buck Grant, one of the supervisors of the rescue operation, said it might be hours or days before the five miners are found. It was hoped that the men had found their way to sections of the mine where fresh oxygen is being pumped in.

The rescue workers can spend only about an hour in the shafts. Their oxygen helmets contain only that much supply. They say that they cannot even see their hands in front of their faces because of the smoke.

He Wasn't Fooling

NEW YORK, July 17. — (AP).—A Brooklyn gunman robbed a taxi driver today, stole a car for his getaway, killed the owner and finally escaped after hand-to-hand fight with his unwilling driver. Police identified the murdered man as Wiliam Callaghan, 42. When the holdup man ran from the taxi he had just robbed and jumped into the machine beside the driver, George Siffri. Callaghan objected. The gunman shot and killed Callaghan with a bullet in the heart. Later he fled.

Ocean Liner Refloated Near Quebec

QUEBEC, July 17 — (CP) — The ocean liner Franconia is in drydock here today, ready for minute inspection of her hull, damaged when she ran ground near Quebec harbor Wednesday night.

The liner, stranded on a rocky point of the western tip of the Isle of Orleans, was refloated early Sunday by six tugs, her own engines and flood tide that made the actual job of pulling her off the rocks possible in 32 minutes.

As she clattered noisily off the craggy bottom, several hundred curious Quebecers applauded.

Moves Gracefully

The Franconia, a 20,000-ton Cunard Donaldson liner, rammed into the rocks with 850 passengers shortly after leaving Quebec on a trip to Liverpool. No one was injured as the big vessel ground to a stop at Pointe au Atureau in full view of startled vacationists and island residents.

When the Franconia was pulled out in the river she slid along gracefully, her water line high above the water. A company spokesman said: "We are greatly relieved."

Cause of the grounding has not been announced. It has been reported that a steering mechanism failed. Edmond Lamontagne, veteran St. Lawrence River pilot who was at the helm, said to a reporter: "I haven't got the slightest indication what caused the grounding".

Hand Grenade In Hospital

NEW YORK, July 17 (AP) — A hand grenade that turned out to be emepty threw a scare into the emergency section of Roosevelt Hospital today.

A police guard found it on top of a hospital desk. When no one could account for it, he called an emergency squad.

The emergency squad dumped it into a can of oil and called the bomb squad.

The bomb squad took it apart at headquarters and found the explosive charge had been removed.

How it got in the hospital was a mystery.

Hordes Of Enemy Soldiers Swarming Close To Slender American Lines

Had To Sacrifice 24th Division Piecemeal Along Taejon Front, South Koreans Halt Enemy In Other Sector

TOKYO, July 18.—(Tuesday)—(AP).—Three North Korean infantry divisions, heavily aided by artillery but shy on tanks, swarmed close on Taejon today, forcing the slender United States defence to abandon the airfield three miles north of that South Korean city. Gen. MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters communique reported early this morning that the North Korean invaders are "continuing to pay a high price for ground gained," but acknowledged that they were gaining.

Late field dispatches said Taejon, until last week the provisional capital of the Korean republic and site of American field headquarters, was still in American hands but virtually deserted. Its abandonment appeared near, however.

(Fall of Taejon within 24 hours appears likely, said a Reuters Tokyo dispatch.)

Pulling Back

MacArthur's communique described a situation in which the Americans had to quit Kongju, 20 miles northwest of Taejon, and pulled west and south, so that their former west flank had become a north flank.

The North Korean 2nd division was struggling to turn this flank "in the Taejon area," the communique reported. Exact distances from the city were not disclosed.

The airfield, three miles north, was admitted to be under Red artillery fire and threatened by infiltrating enemy foot soldiers, however.

Although MacArthur said the enemy had succeeded in getting only two tanks across to the south bank of the Kum River and that both these had been destroyed, field dispatches intimated the Reds since had brought up more armor. This evidently came from the heavy Red concentrations which MacArthur reported were building up just north of the Kum.

Sacrifice Division

(Reuters said the Americans "have been forced practically to sacrifice the 24th division in piecemeal actions" on the Taejon front.

(It added that rugged terrain in southeast Korea will help the Americans "but hills are no substitutes for men on the flanks when the attackers are able to throw hordes of well-equipped troops into an offensive."

(Reuters also reported that units of the British Navy on patrol duty in Korean waters have been in action eight times since July 3, chiefly against shore targets.)

While the Americans were rolled back in one sector at least six miles from the Kum, MacArthur said the northern Communist suffered their worst setbacks of the Korean war on the east coast.

The Taejon airfield, three miles north of the one time South Korean provisional capital, was abandoned Sunday night. Leif Erickson, Associated Press correspondent at American headquarters in

Assures Farmers Storage Space Can Take Wheat

OTTAWA, July 17 (CP) — Trade Minister Howe today assured Ontario wheat farmers there will be sufficient elevator storage space in the province to hold all their winter wheat crop now being harvested.

The minister said in a statement that he gave the assurance because of reports that farmers who planted 860,000 acres to winter wheat, compared with 805,000 last year, would be unable to find sufficient storage space and therefore would have to sell their crop immediately to millers.

The winter wheat crop in Ontario last year amounted to approximately 24,700,000 bushels and while no official estimate has yet been made of this year's crop, it is expected to total about 25,000,000 bushels or more.

With western wheat now moving in great quantities from the Prairie Provinces through the Lakehead to eastern ports and overseas points, Mr. Howe said there was some question in the minds of Ontario farmers whether there would be sufficient storage space available for their winter crop.

Mr. Howe said the farmers should experience "little or no difficulty" in getting storage space. Most storage points are controlled by the Board of Grain Commissioners which in turn is under the administration of Mr. Howe's department.

British Cabinet Discusses Korea

LONDON, July 17.—(CP). — Prime Minister Robert Menzies of Australia and Britain's defence chief today attended an important cabinet session to hammer out the comonwealth's role in turbulent Asia.

The chief of the imperial general staff, Field Marshal Sir William Slim, showed up at 10 Downing St. with admiral of the fleet Lord Fraser. Slim has just completed a swing through Britain's Far Eastern imperial outposts, and through the Middle East where last week he conferred with Egyptian leaders on defence of vital Suez canal. He also visited Australia.

The cabinet was understood to have before it Marshal Stalin's reply to the personal approach made by Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India to Moscow and to Washington on the Korean situation, said unofficially to have been 'welcomed" by Stalin.

Allow Chinese Reds In UN Stalin Answer For Peace

WASHINGTON, July 17—(AP) —State Secretary Dean Acheson is planning to make one of the most delicate diplomatic moves of the world crisis this week in reply to suggestions of India's Prime Minister Nehru for settling the Korean war.

The New York Times and a New Delhi source reported today that Russian Prime Minister Stalin has replied to these suggestions by asking for the seating of Communist China in the United Nations Security Council as a step toward ending the war.

Acheson is expected in his answer to draw a sharp line between peace and appeasement, as those terms are applied here to the Korean situation.

The essential condition to any settlement of the Korean and related far eastern issues is complete withdrawal of the Communist invasion forces from South Korea, the United States Secretary is expected to write.

At the same time, associates said, Acheson will not close any door to an international effort to work out a just, permanent solution of the Korean problem in the United Nations once the Red aggression has been ended.

The New York Times, quoting confidential sources, said Stalin wrote that he "welcomed Nhru's initiative in trying to restore peace in Korea;" and "reactivation of the Security Council should be the first step."

The Times noted that this latter reference obviously meant that the Chinese Communists should be seated on the U.N. Council in place of the Nationalists.

WarOfWordsReaches New Level In Hungary

LONDON, July 17 (Reuters)—The war of words being waged by Russian satellites against Yugoslavia reached a new level this week-end with an attack on the Tito government by a member of the Hungarian cabinet.

Speaking to a peace rally, Geza Losonczi, secretary for people's culture, accused the "Tito gang" of being "mad dogs of the imperialist war incendiaries. Tito, he added, is a threat to Hungary's peace and to the peace of the world as a whole.

Losonczi's attack was the latest Hungarian move in the new Balkan "war of words," which reach a high pitch of intensity during the last week.

Budpest and Bucharest radio alleged that Yugoslavia was being supplied with heavy weapons from former Wehrmacht stores in Western Germany.

West In Gravest Danger Since Year 1940 Churchill Tells Britain

Declares He Doesn't Mean War Imminent But Time Not On Our Side, Kremlin Policy One Of Aggression

PLYMOUTH, England, July 17—(CP).—Winston Churchill said Saturday night that the West now in graver danger than at any time since Hitler was on the verge of victory in 1940. Britain's wartime Prime Minister said that "promoting and directing the war in Korea" is only one aspect of a relentless global drive for domination by the Communists. "I tell you with utmost earnestness," he said at a rally of the Conservative party which he leads, that my own anxiety for the free world reminds me of the summer of 1940.

"By this I do not mean that war is imminent. We cannot tell, but I do no think it is imminent. But I must not ask you to suppose that time is on our side."

Churchill said the Soviet Union with an army which outnumbers the combined forces of all other nations, has embarked on a deliberate campaign.

"The 14 men in the Kremlin—maybe there are 13, they drop out sometimes—are not drifting with events," he said. "They have a policy the aim of which we can see. But the execution and timing of their ambitions for communist world government we cannot predict.

Infiltrate Agents

"They infiltrate in our countries with their agents. Their adherents have no loyalty to any home. They care nothing for the lands of their birth. They owe allegiance solely to Moscow.

"Communism is a religion with all its discipline and some of its fervor but a religion utterly without God and anti-God.

"The Communists pay lip service to the doctrine of pesce but by peace they mean submission to their will and system.

"They preach the reduction of armaments but they have more men organized and trained under arms than all the rest of the world put together.

"They urge the banning of the atomic bomb, which in the hands of the United States is at this moment the only physical shield and protection of the free world.

"Meanwhile, they themselves have rejected any bona fide international control and are trying to make bombs as fast as they can.

Aggression Policy

"They maintain a policy of unending aggression and menace They are massing troops against Tibet. They threaten Persia (Iran). They are seeking to overawe and quell Yugoslavia. They cause great fear in Finland and Sweden."

Nevertheless, he called for a top level bid to approach the Soviet Union saying: "I wish that every effort could be made on the highest level to bring home to the Russian Soviet Government the gravity of the facts which confront us all, them as well as us."

Prices Mark Time On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, July 17 — (CP) — Prices marked time on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. A slightly easier tone developed as the session progressed largely the result of lack of buyers rather than increased selling.

Opening trends pointed higher but leaders settled into easier ground.

Utilities showed a wide list of losses with Union Gas selling at a new low. Papers and textiles also weakened while constructions and steels held firm. Refining oils were strong in early dealings but lost the advantage in mid-session.

Western oils slumped over a comparatively broad front. Piccadilly, a penny issue, was active on the downside and leaders like Pacific Petroleum, Anglo-Canadian and Atlantic Oil dipped.

Golds held steady following recent sharp drops, the lowest average price levels in seven years.

Base metals were slightly lower in dull dealings. United Keno Hill sold at a new low for the year at $5.05 and International Nickel and Quemont dipped fractions.

Volume for the first three hours was only 545,000 shares.

Falls Off Yacht R. Dayton Drowns

PORT DALHOUSIE, July 17—(CP)—Maj. Reginald H. Dayton, 59, of Toronto, administrator of the Canadian International Trade Fair, drowned here Sunday when he fell off a yacht in the harbor.

Major Dayton, a member of the National Yacht Club of Toronto, had travelled here to attend opening ceremonies of a new Port Dalhousie Yacht Club building.

Eye witnesses said he apparently suffered a heart attack while standing near the rail of the motor launch Elsie May III.

Ron Chapman of Toronto, sitting on the deck, said, "he seemed to take a step forward, then lost his balance. There was a crack as he went over, as though he struck head or legs on the side of the boat."

Dragging operations failed to recover the body. Police said there was a strong current in the harbor and the body was probably swept out in the lake in the direction of Port Weller, Ont., five miles north east.

MacArthur Rescinds Ban On Two War Reporters

TOKYO, July 17—(AP)—Associated Press correspondent Tom Lambert flew back to the Korean war front Sunday night after Gen. Douglas MacArthur personally rescinded a ban the army had placed on field reporting by him and another correspondent.

The supreme commander expressed confidence in the handling of future front assignments by Lambert and Peter Kalischer of the United Press. MacArthur said he was lifting the ban because both were old friends of his.

Saturday, U.S. military officials abruptly notified Lambert and Kallischer that they could not return to Korea. The two were accompanied to MacArthur's office by Russell Brines, chief of The Associated Press bureau in Tokyo, and Earnest Hoberecht, United Press bureau chief.

MacArthur greeted all four affably. He said he lacked time to discuss the causes, which he indicated had been initiated by some of his subordinates.

MacArthur intimated, however, that the basic objection was to parts of dispatches reflecting disillusionment among some frontline troops.

The general said the psychological factor was an important part of a military campaign. This factor, he said, increased the responsibilities of reporters to exercise their judgment and professional training in selecting the news to be reported.

MacArthur said he was not advocating false reporting nor the suppression of pertinent facts. But he said a correspondent could get a shocked front-line soldier to say anything he wanted him to say. He expressed belief circumstances warranted a leavening balance.

The general repeated that formal censorship was abhorrent to him and said the army was not adequately trained to apply it.

An officer high in MacArthur's headquarters said Saturday that Lt.-Gen. Walton H. Walker, commander of allied forces in Korea, had been given authority to apply military censorship.

MacArthur told the four correspondents, however, that he believed censorship was not the proper means of assuring sound war reporting. He felt sound reporting rested on the almost intuitive judgment of trained newspaper men.

Korea, said a spokesman announced the field had been under Red artillery fire since Monday noon.

Two Russian-built Yak fighter planes were shot down today by American pilots. It was the first time the Red planes had shown any fight since 17 were shot down early in the war.

In the west the Americans, outnumbered 10 to 1 by the North Koreans, were pushed back six miles. The entire 24th American Infantry Division fell back slowly from the Kum River southwest of Kongju and northwest of Taejon.

Tank-led North Korean infantrymen pushed across the Kum Saturday, MacArthur said.

Gain Time

But, the United Nations commander reported, the 24th held them up 48 hours, giving Southern elements time to gather men and supplies for "assuming the offensive" against the North.

He said American troops had taken up defensive positions along the north and west approaches to Taejon, the abandoned southern emergency capital.

Once they crossed the Kum, MacArthur said, the Reds resumed their flanking and infiltration tactics. This forced the Americans back. But they inflicted losses out of proportion to the ground gained by the North Koreans, he said. American losses were "not excessive."

The Communists apparently had a twin-pronged drive going south of the river. Both field dispatches and eight army headquarters in Korea said Taejon still was in American hands.

200 Sorties

American and Australian fighters and U.S. light bombers ranged along the front or just behind it in more than 200 combat sorties. They were credited with destroying or damaging 28 Red tanks, 32 trucks and 14 railway box cars.

Superfortress bombers struck deep into North Korean territory. Fifty of them dumped 400 tons on the railroad yards at Seoul, 90 miles beyond the front. Other planes plastered the closer Chungju area.

The North Korean ground forcesran into shattering surprises in two actions on the eastern front. MacArthur said they were "two of the most conclusive setbacks" of the Korean war.

North of Yongdok on the east coast, United States planes tore the Reds apart. In the critical sector around Chechon it was artillery that mauled them.

Yongdok is 85 miles north of the port of Pusan, which is the American supply depot on the peninsula.

Get Big Surprise

MacArthur said the Reds had been heartened by limited success there in a combined sea and land operation against the South Koreans Sunday. The North Korean force attacked Monday morning and—as MacArthur put it—"received its biggest surprise of the war."

Fighters roared in to support a South Korean regiment. The result was a "catastrophe" for the Reds, MacArthur's communique said.

The other North Korean setback around Yechon, 55 miles northeast of Taejon, came Sunday night. A South Korean regiment came up with a unit of U.S. artillery—not previously reported in that sector — and the Red force halted dead in its tracks.

2 Havelock Men Sent To Jail

Two Havelock men were today convicted of drunk driving by Magistrate W. R. Philp and sentenced to seven days in jail. Each man's car was impounded for three months.

B. M. Bell, Havelock chief constable, testified he saw George Albert drive up Ottawa St. in Havelock to a service station, and that Albert was very unsteady when he got out of his car. The officer said he found a case of beer with five bottles gone in Albert's car.

Albert said he and his wife had drunk five bottles. He said he bought the beer in the afternoon, had taken it home and packed it in his car to take it up to the huckleberry plains up north.

"I guess you didn't want it to spoil," Magistrate Philp commented.

Other in Norwood

Constable Bell said Randall Cole, also of Havelock, had been driving in Norwood, and had a strong smell of liquor on his breath. "When he got out of the car, he left the motor running and the car in gear. It stalled," said the officer.

Cole offered no defence.

Lakefield Council Approves District High School 2 Rooms On Apsley School

LAKEFIELD, July 17 (ENS)—Lakefield village council gave tentative approval of the construction of a Lakefield and District High School, in the village of Lakefield at a total cost of $310,000.00 to be financed by twenty year debentures, on the approval of the municipal Board.

The council also approved the construction of two secondary school rooms on the new Apsley school, and will bear a share of the debentures issued by the Burleigh and Anstruther township councils. Cost of this building will be approximately $34,100.

Allan Clark, the council's representative to the High School Board, was spokesman for the High School Board which was represented by Chairman Max Tucker of Apsley, E. H. Northey, Lakefield and Principal R. E. Sutton.

Mr. Clark presented the specifications to the council for the new school, which will consist of a gymnasium 40 by 60 feet, general workshop, 1200 sq. ft., economics room 1000 sq. ft.; library classroom 900 sq. ft.; science room 900 sq. ft.; commercial room 900 sq. ft; art room 900 sq. ft; three class rooms of 700 sq. ft. each.

The total cost of $310,000 broken down is as follows—Building contract $250,000; architect $15,000; site $6,000; equipment $39,000.

Cost for the two room school at Apsley was $34,000, divided as follows: Building contract $29,800; furnishings, $1700; architect $1800; land $600; general expenses $200.

The board asked for approval of both buildings.

Councillor Ken Jakins asked if the board had chosen a site for the new school. Mr. Clark replied that one had not definitely been chosen but a seven-acre field of John Murphy's was being considered at an approximate cost of $6,000.

E. H. Northey, member of the High School Board arose at this point and said as chairman of the property committee he was not aware that this site was being considered and would not sanction building the school "on a pig sty."

Councillor Ken Morris asked why Mr. Northey didn't know this site was under consideration.

Mr. Northey replied he didn't know about the meeting where the site had apparently been discussed.

Mr. Clark stated he had merely mentioned one site, which did not necessarily mean he was in favour of it.

The Board must pick three sites for the approval of the Department or Education.

Reeve W. C. Grant suggested the site be left out of the discussion.

Trustee Max Tucker said a day had been set aside for the High School Board to choose a site and he had looked all over town for Mr. Northey and been unable to find him, so the rest of the board had picked four sites: at Dr. M. Moher's, John Murphy's, Stanley Richardson's and the present school site. He hoped that clarified the situation.

Mr. Northey replied that it did not and Reeve Grant suggested the school board settle their argument elsewhere.

Mr. Northey said the department had to sanction the site.

Councillor Art Kingden asked if the board approves of a site wouldn't the department in all probability choose it? Some one replied: "Not necessarily."

Councillor Ken Morris asked Mr. Clark if he wanted council's approval of a site. Mr. Clark answered: "No, just on the building."

Principal R. E. Sutton said the council's approval was desired only on the $310,000 for a Lakefield High School, and $34,100 on the proposed Apsley school.

Mr. Sutton stated the school board was facing a difficult proposition as it was impossible to bring pupils in from Chandos. There was a break in education at Grade 10 where approximately 40 per cent of the pupils stop school.

Mr. Sutton added the council must get permission to issue debentures. If the majority of the councils in the area give their approval of the new school, the others in the district have to go into the area.

Outlining the plans for debentures, Mr. Sutton said it would be $70 per $1,000 for 20 years. The two schools will cost $344,100, an annual cost of $23,080.

Government grants would amount to 85 per cent. This district was only responsible for approximately one-fifth of the cost—$4,616 per year to establish the school and retire the debt in 20 years.

At the present the High School Board pays $2,650. per year to the public school on which there is no grant. Last year $12,000 was spent on two new rooms and no debentures could be raised as they were erected on rented land.

Principal Sutton said Lakefield's share would be approximately $1,000 per year.

Mr. Sutton said it was only fair the council should know the grant comes a year after the building is paid for, which means that $23,000 has to be paid the first year.

To cushion this the two temporary buildings could be sold for $8,000 or $9,000.

Councillor L. Fraser said that in other words Lakefield's share for the first year would be $4,000.

Mr. Sutton said Burleigh and Anstruther have approved

Councillor Jakens interjected: "How about Smith?"

Trustee Tucker replied: "Smith did not approve."

Councillor Kingdon said he did not think the transportation of pupils should be carried by the general assessment.

Councillor Jakens asked if Douro and Dummer came into the area in a few years do they pay a penalty?

Principal Sutton said they paid $2,800 for their pupils this year.

Councillor Jakens asked: "How does that compare with the other municipalities in the area?"

Principal Sutton said, "the same, only they pay their own transportation. Incidentally, we received a bill from Bancroft school for one of our outlying pupils sent there and amounted to $2.05 per day. Smith township does not understand the situation. They would actually only be paying the bus. The grants cover the rest."

"If the Apsley school is approved by the councils involved," asked Councillor Fraser, "will the Apsley pupils be absorbed this year?"

Principal Sutton said the Legionhall is available until the new school is erected.

Councillor Kingdon queried "If the approval goes through does the council have any say on the site?"

"Only through me, "Trustee Clark replied.

Trustee Northey said it was much more economical to operate a school in Apsley than to bring the pupils here.

Reene Grant said the council would discuss it further and the school board retired.

The motion of approval was made by Councillors Jakins and Fraser with all the council in agreement.

Discuss Change In Britain's Dollar Position

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The quarterly review, "Labor and Industry in Britain," issued from the United Kingdom Information Office in Ottawa, discussed the recent improvement in Britain's dollar position.

It notes that in the six months from Oct. 1, 1949, the dollar accounts in London of the sterling area show a surplus of $9,000,000, whereas in the six months before October there had been a deficit of $1,171,000,000. It adds, however:

"This remarkably healthy change must be carefully examined before conclusions are drawn as to its implications.

"It is quite certain that just as the exceptionally heavy dollar deficit in the six months before devaluation was partly due to delay in placing orders and making payments to Britain because of the expectation that devaluation might come, so they after devaluation were exceptionally large to make up for the previous arrears both in orders and in actual payments. A large of the inflow of dollars since September must therefore be regarded as non- existent.

Seasonal Factor

"The seasonal factor is important also, especially in the first quarter of 1950, for payments are normally made in the first quarter for imports of some Important raw materials from overseas sterling countries . . .

"Britain, too, was able to curtail dollar imports somewhat . . .

"Finally, Britain was able, in the period after devaluation, to avoid making dollar payments to Iran. Previously these dollar payments to 'third' countries had been a serious factor in the dollar deficit.

"For all these reasons it is clearly too early to regard the dollar gap as having been closed."

"When the Ump called '3 STRIKES' he could have meant me"

"I remember how I'd looked forward to that game . . . how I'd prayed for just one afternoon's relief from miserable, sluggish, half-sick feelings. But even before I started for the park, I felt 'all in'. When the Ump called the first 'Out', he could have been looking right at me.

"But on the way home I saw Kruschen Salts displayed in a drug store window. Next morning I took my first small dose of Kruschen. Right from the first, it quickly brought me the relief I needed. Now I'm regular with Kruschen . . . enjoying my meals again . . . and every day, I'm 'right in there pitching'!"

If bad digestion, "irregularity" and that worn-out, listless feeling have '3 strikes' on you—try a little Kruschen Salts with your morning fruit juice, tea or coffee. Helps you get and keep "regular"... helps knock out sluggish, "liverish" feelings . . . gives you pep that wins! Ask your druggist.

Delay Judgment Against Diabetic In Driving Case

COBOURG, July 17 (ENS) — Judgment was reserved in police court here in connection with a dangerous driving charge against Phillip Speede of Napanee.

Part of the evidence was taken three weeks ago when Corporal Jack Hatch of Madoc, said he had been en route through Port Hope, following Speede's truck in Hope township. Corporal Hatch testified that Speede was following an erratic course down the highway.

He was taken in to Cobourg after the corporal stopped him near Port Hope and blood samples were taken.

Speede, the evidence revealed, was a diabetic. Corporal Hatch testified that the accused smelled of liquor, his eyes were bloodshot and his speech thick.

The blood sugar test showed 230 milligrams per 100 c.c. while normal was 80 to 120, Dr. D. A Gear told the court at that time. Dr. Gear said that he didn't think the blood sugar was high enough to cause him to drive erratically.

Professor Jocelyn Rogers, testifying at the adjourned hearing, said that the blood sample showed 1.55 parts per thousand alcohol. This was sufficient to indicate that he was under the influence of liquor, said Professor Rogers. W. Cass, counsel for the accused, questioned the witness very closely on the effect of the amount of alcohol indicated by his test.

Speede testified that he had had some liquor at 11 o'clock that morning. It was 8:30 p.m. when the police encountered him on the highway. At 5:30 that evening he had drunk two pints of beer before he had his supper in Toronto. Speede said he had been a diabetic since 1930. He had taken his usual amount of insulin and had eaten properly and was not driving in an arratic fashion, declared the accused.

Dr. D. Allacott of Napanee, physician to Seepe, testified that it was safe for Speede to drive as long as he watched his diet and took his insulin regularly. His blood sugar had tested as high as 400 on occasions but for some unexplained reason it did not cause him to go into a coma. He agreed with Crown Attorney Harry Deyman that 230 milligrammes per 100 c.c. was a high normal.

V. Asseltine of Napanee, age 17, pleaded guilty to theft of a bicycle from W. Giddings of Cobourg and was remanded for sentence. James B. Keating of Douro township, who had failed to appear earlier on a summons for intoxication, pleaded guilty. He told the court that he had been busy seeding. Magistrate R. B. Baxter fined him $25 or 30 days.

Edward Champlain of Cornwall pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance in a restaurant at Welcome and was fined $25 and costs.

Ernest Fulford of Toronto, age 38, pleaded guilty to false pretences involving the sum of $175 for a used car.

Lyle Hartman of Trenton, garage operator, said he bought the car from Fulford who said it was free of any lien but later the finance company took back the car. Fulford told the court that it had been his intention to keep the payments up on the car but that he had lost his job.

Two Brothers Out Of Hospital

CAMPBELLFORD, July 17 — (ENS) — Milton and Kenneth Campbell, Campbellford, have been released from Kingston hospital following the accident near Napanee on July 3, in which Floyd Drinkwalter, an occupant of the Campbell car met his death.

Milton, who was driving the car met his death.

Milton, who was driving the car at the time of the accident, said he was travelling between 40 and 45 miles per hour. He started to ease on the brakes to slow the car to make a turn, when the front left wheel locked, pulling the vehicle to the side of the road and flipping it into the ditch. The three youths were pinned in the wrecked auto, and were released by a motorist who was following close behind.

Mr. Drinkwalter died almost instantly but the other two youths were not seriously injured. They were treated in Kingston hospital for cuts and bruises and shock, and Milton bought the car back to Campbellford on Friday. The car was damaged to the extent of about $350.

Milton faces a charge of dangerous driving, which will come up in Napanee shortly.

Reeve W. C. Grant commented that Hendren's Taxi Company had approved the new bylaw as it was.

Councillor Fraser said the average car owner puts on double insurance.

Taxi operator Glen Wannamaker said it would cost $33 a year more to comply with the insurance demands of the bylaw.

Eric Anderson, another taxi operator, asked the council to consider setting taxi rates in the village.

Mr. Wannamaker asked that an area be set aside for taxis on the main street.

Lakefield Raps Highway Raising

LAKEFIELD, July 17 (ENS) — Prompted by a letter from L. Tackenbush, Lakefield's reeve, W. C. Grant, said the village should put pressure on Department of Highways to repair damage done to property on Queen St. by the department while raising the highway.

In his letter, Mr. Tackenbush asked the council to fix his driveway because it was now almost impossible and very dangerous to drive in and out.

Reeve Grant said Mr. Tackenbush should be advised to make a claim against the department for the damage done to his driveway. The Department of Highways, said Reeve Grant, had told the council it was none of the council's business.

The reeve said the department had been high-handed in coming into the village and raising the highway without consulting the village, especially since Lakefield had an agreement with the highways department.

It was moved by Councillors Kingdon and Jokins that a meeting be called July 19 of all citizens concerned and William Anderson, divisional engineer, and his deputy be asked to attend.

Councillor Fraser asked that the department be requested to put a double line on the main streets through the village to curb speeding through Lakefield.

Reeve Grant said it was not all outsiders who were speeding. He said there were a number of drivers in the village who should lose their licenses.

A Brand New Fellow-Traveller?

War is at least the equal of politics in producing strange bed-fellows, and the most oddly assorted we have seen so far are Pravda and the Chicago Tribune. To find the mouthpiece of Col. Robert Rutherford McCormick following the same editorial line as the mouthpiece of the Communist Party of Russia seems fantastic at first glance, but the reason is commonplace enough. Col. McCormick must be rated at least no lower than second to the Communist Party among the foemen of President Truman, and he may even qualify as co-holder of first place.

The main point in Pravda's editorial comment on President Truman's action in ordering United States forces to the defence of Southern Korea is that he usurped an authority he does not rightfully possess. The same point of illegality was also emphasized by The Tribune, which declared Mr. Truman's statement was an "illegal declaration of war," and that Congress alone had the right to decide what action should be taken in Korea.

* * *

Both accusations collapse when the facts are briefly reviewed. The authority Mr. Truman exercised is, by long-established precedent, a possession of the President of the United States. The U.S. Constitution was carefully worded to leave that authority with the President. Furthermore, Mr. Truman did not declare war. If it is argued that, declaration or no declaration, the President's order actually "made" war, the answer is that there is no constitutional provision forbidding him to do so.

The Democratic Senator from Illinois, Paul H. Douglas, went to the history of the U.S. Constitutional Convention to clarify this point. The original resolution before the founding fathers proposed that Congress only should have the power to "make" war. They deliberately changed it and conferred upon Congress the power to "declare" war. There seems little doubt about their object. They wished to leave the President with the power to order instant defence against sudden attack.

That power has been used many times since the signing of the U.S. Constitution. It also has been abused. The occupation of several Latin American countries and the seizure of Panama are now looked upon as regrettable chapters in the past history of the United States. In the present instance, however, there is no trace of abuse. A power legally possessed was legally used in accordance with the charter of the United Nations, and its use has been since approved by at least fifty members of that organization.

Dutch Microscopic Eyed Carnations

The Department of National Health and Welfare has bought a new electron microscope for $20,000 from Holland. The machine, about the size of an ordinary office desk, is temporarily on view in Montreal, but will be installed in Ottawa next month. It can magnify an object 150,000 times, and one of the objects put under its (or its cousin's) eye at the university of Delft, Holland, was a bit of blighted carnation. The microscope discovered a virus which had been killing famed Dutch carnation plants in greenhouses and had caused a loss of 60,000 guilders.

Ottawa will not use the machine to spy on carnation-killers, but it will use it to detect bacteria in foods and for research in fibres, ceramics, agriculture and medicine. The microscope can show the effect of supersonic waves on bacteria. It carries an eight-inch fluorescent screen on which the object being studied is viewed. But the specimen can be photographed by a 35-millimeter camera inserted into the microscope and intercepting the electron beam. There is a special focussing device which causes the electron beam to oscillate. Magnification can be varied continuously. The machine in Montreal was completed six months ago by Philips Research Laboratories at Eindhoven. It has been under development in Holland since 1940.

Canada, whose scientific and engineering skills are high, has the good sense to import and put into use technical machines of other countries' designing and manufacture. The new microscope for the Department of National Health is an example not only of the internationality of science, but also of Canada's public readiness to be in the van of its forward march.

Men On The Ground

It is again being demonstrated, this time in Korea, that bombing is not enough. It ground is wanted then there have to be men on the ground to take or keep it. This was demonstrated frequently in the last war. How often did the Americans bomb Cassino and its environs without putting their ground troops forcibly into the area, and without breaking the German defences? It was left for the British Eighth Army, supported chiefly by artillery, to break through.

The war is going badly for the Americans because they are too few on the ground and lack adequate equipment, especially tanks. The South Korea forces are disorganized and defeated. The northern Reds are numerous and heavily armed. It takes time to put an army into the field, but particularly when it has to be brought over water. But there is also the impediment of the American political or tactical reluctance to risk men. The Americans have a preference for mechanical equipment and bombs, rather than for men and artillery. It has been shown time and again that machines and bombs will not themselves win a war. Air supremacy will not restore Korea as an American enclave.

This point of view is supported by Hanson W. Baldwin, military analyst of the New York Times. In a biting article on the military mistakes in Korea he says that the effectiveness of air power has been over-emphasized:

"It was hoped initially that we could do the Korean job with air power and naval power alone, although a few of our soundest air officers, who see military forces as indivisible and all elements of it as essential in modern war, stated from the beginning that ground power would be essential. But some of our leaders seem to have become bemused . . . forgetting that it is always the man on the ground who dominates, occupies and controls."

Other serious mistakes have contributed to the American reverses. Mr. Baldwin mentions the conflict between political and military policies—the decision to go to Korea was political; the military had long ago written the peninsula off their books. The United States created the South Korean Army as a police force, but did not equip it with armour. It was poorly trained and organized, the military analyst says, yet as late as June 25th the former U. S. commander of the Korean advisory group described it as the best fighting force on the Asiatic continent. The North Koreans have shown how complacent the U.S. military authorities were. The U.S. military intelligence was either "improper" or an "improper assessment" of an available information was made. The Reds marshalling on the 38th parallel had been noted weeks before the attack, but the U.S. command organizations took no steps to meet invasion threats and gave no warnings. The U.S. military have underestimated the role of armor in modern war, even though the U.S. military mission affirmed that Korea was bad tank country. But the advances of the Korean Reds have been accomplished with tanks.

It has been a tragedy of errors, the New York military analyst says, Korea is still not completely lost, but the right kind of military force must be made quickly available: men on the ground, with tanks and artillery and naval guns to support them.

Germany's Forgotten Men In Politics

by Richard Lowenthal

GERMANY'S forgotten men are on the move at last. In last Monday's Schleswig-Holstein State elections, a hitherto obscure party of the refugees from the East suddenly jumped to national importance, with incalculable effects on the whole pattern of German politics. The "Bloc of the Expellees and the Disinherited"—that is the new party's name—got more than three hundred thousand votes or almost a quarter of the total poll, and the sharp division between the Socialists on oneside and the supporters of Dr. Adenauer's (West German Federal Chancellor) Conservative coalition on the other will make it impossible for either to govern the State without the new party's support.

SCHLESWIG-Holstein is Western Germany's most distressed area, where three out of seven voters are refugees and two out of seven workers are unemployed. By voting in their hundreds of thousands for a new party of their own, these people have served notice on the established parties that they will no longer put up with the manner in which their demands for work, housing and minimum financial support have been neglected so far.

IT is a formidable threat, particularly to the parties supporting Dr. Adenauer's coalition; for though the Schleswig-Holstein Government which has now been overthrown was a Socialist one, the chief attack of the new party has been directed against the Federal Government's policy, and about four-fifths of their votes seem to have come from the Conservative parties. A comparison with the Bundestag (Federal Parliament) elections of last August shows this picture:

Party	August 1949	July 1950
Christian Democrats	413,000	259,000
Free Democrats	103,000	93,000
German Party	969,000	125,000
Non-party coalition candidates	69,000	8,000
Coalition total	770,000	485,000
Socialists	413,000	360,000
Expellees	Nil	306,000

IN other words, a clear majority for the coalition parties last August has been changed now into a clear popular majority against them. The Schleswig-Holstein Socialists, who have all along contended that they could have done far better for the refugees but for lack of financial support from Bonn, have immediately announced their readiness to form a new State Government based on this "social-minded" majority. Owing to the complications of the electoral system such a Government would lack a clear majority in the new Parliament—out of 69 members there will be 19 Socialists and 15 refugees members compared with 31 supporters of the Conservative parties, with four representatives of the Danish-minded minority holding the balance. But the latter may be willing to support a coalition under Socialist leadership as they have supported the Socialist Government so far.

THE first successful refugee party entry on the scene may start a landslide in West German politics generally, for there are many people impatient with the old parties and waiting for an opportunity for new alignment. Much will therefore depend on the sense of responsibility and the political shrewdness of the new party's leaders, Herr Waldemar Crast and Dr. Alfred Gille. Their record can hardly be called attractive: Crast was a leader of the German Farmers' Organization in Poland between the wars, and under the German occupation had to organize the cultivation of the land sequestrated from Polish owners pending its final disposal by higher Nazi authorities. Dr. Gille was elected mayor of the East Prussian town of Loetzen shortly before Hitler seized power and held the position throughout the Nazi regime.

YET it must be said that during the election campaign, neither of them has yielded to the temptation of using either aggressively nationalist or anti-democratic slogans. Their platform demands the return of the lands east of the Oder and Neisse by peaceful revision, and expresses support for the ideals of the Christian West. But otherwise it is innocent of wider political ambitions, and it seems that it was precisely this strict limitation of propaganda to the refugees' immediate interests which ensured the party's success.

IN fact, the bloc has for the time being proved a factor hampering rather than furthering nationalist extremism. For the second big surprise of the election has been the fact that even in this distressed area, the right-wing extremists have failed completely. The parties of Herr Hedler and of ex-General Remer have together obtained less than 5 per cent. of the total votes, and their maximum local strength in the Hedler stronghold of Neumuenster is less than 15 per cent.

IT is equally significant that the Socialists, while on the average losing 12 to 15 per cent. of last year's votes, gained wherever the Conservatives parties put up an outspoken rightist, for instance in Neumuenster and in Kiel where the Socialist mayor inflicted a heavy defeat on the former Nazi mayor put up by the Conservative bloc. Finally, the Communists who had been reduced to 3.1 per cent. of the electorate last year, have further fallen to the all-time low of 2.2 per cent.; like the right-wing extremists they will get no seats.

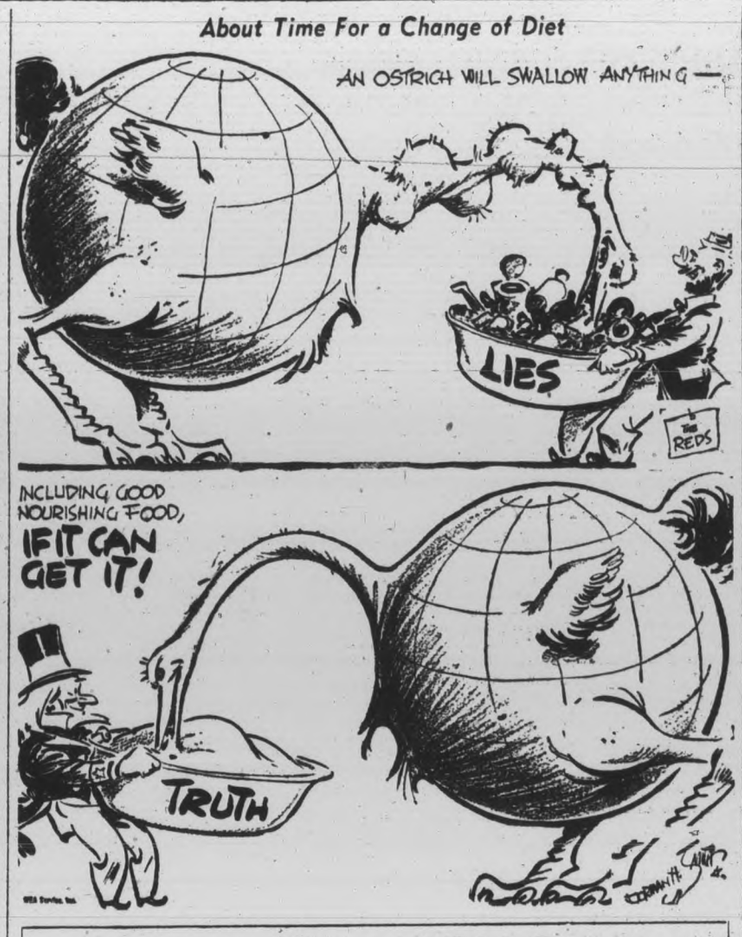
About Time For a Change of Diet



Authentic Voice of Old Ontario

(Ottawa Journal)

LAST week, after 25 years as publisher and editor, Frank Irwin, ex-navyman in the Boxer Rebellion, ex-railroad man and ex-circus hand, sold his weekly newspaper, the Durham Chronicle, penned a farewell. Some of the things he wrote were so true, so humbly honest, we feel we should reproduce them. Thus:

"Since Durham has become a one-newspaper town we have tried to remain neutral in politics, although we must admit that the passing of the two-newspaper towns was a loss to the country as a whole. For one thing, the people knew more of what was going on at Ottawa and Toronto and learned both sides of the political story—something that is impossible today when many newspapers are as silent politically as the Sphinx. Had not conditions and increased expenses made it impossible to have two newspapers in towns like Durham, we don't believe the average voter would have become as lackadaisical as he is at the present time, filled with the false impression that the country owes him a living whether he works or not, and with the belief firmly entrenched that the government should look after him from the cradle to the grave."

Not much doubt about this. Few would wish to return to the days when violently partisan newspapers divided the community into political angels and devils, following the party line as implacably and as obediently as Pravda follows it in Moscow. But equally no one can watch without misgivings the one-town newspaper which politically is neutral, its neutrality born of fear that to speak out honest belief may offend this or that reader. Such a newspaper, deserting the field and tradition of opinion, descending as a substitute to the level of entertainment, abdicates the function of the printing press and foregoes for itself the right to freedom which the printing press, under freedom, should enjoy—makes its shoutings for the "freedom of the press" often unlovely hypocrisy.

And well it may be, too, that the tendency of many today to rely upon the State, this regardless of whether such reliance brings totalitarian methods by government, stems largely from the fact that we have had less and less of political debate and discussion, steadily decreasing party organization, a decline of "grass-roots" politics—that more and more things are being "left to Ottawa", to the most part, have no contacts with electors, have never had the responsibility of facing electors and who, because of their very aloofness from "grass-roots" opinion, are exposed to the danger of belief that what matters is not what people may feel they want but what Ottawa thinks they should want, or what it thinks should be good for them.

The editor of the Durham Chronicle, laying down his pen, views this trend with doubt:

"There is no doubt that we are coming into changed conditions, but this writer is not yet convinced that we can get very far with the little four-letter word WORK thrown into the discard and our law-makers trying to convince us that everything is going to be all right, that we can be more prosperous on a 40-hour week and lots of holidays than if we rolled up our sleeves, did something for ourselves and, like our forefathers, saved in youth that we might enter our declining years with the security we have earned for ourselves.

"As we said a couple of weeks ago, we have had 54 years of work, some of it hard work. We don't know that it has done us any harm, and there is a good deal of satisfaction in knowing that we can get along for a few years without heading a delegation to Ottawa to see if we can't sell Mr. St. Laurent the wolf that may be hanging around our front door."

Here, we feel, the voice — the authentic voice—of old Ontario. It is a voice that today seems muted. Yet drowned out though it be by the more raucous callings of newer ideologies, we cling to belief that still it speaks for something basic and indestructible in our people, telling their true genius.

Famous Athlete At 84

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

Charles Hart has been a noted long-distance runner in England for more years than most people can remember. When we say long-distance we don't mean 10 to 15 miles, nor even 25. A nice run for Hart is 50 miles and even 100, and he has run from Land's End in the southwest corner of England, to John o'Groat's house in the northwest corner of Scotland. Nobody has ever beaten Hart, one reason being that few men care to race another man for 50 miles or over. Once Hart raced a horse 50 miles and won. To celebrate his 60th birthday he challenged any man in the British Isles to a 50-mile race—not any man his age, but any age—and there were no takers. He is now 84 and a few days ago as the result of a friendly discussion, Mr. Hart challenged the owner of a coach and four horses to a 15-mile race. Hart won. He made a non-stop run, carrying a small supply of drinking water. The coach lost time when the coachman had to stop to water his horses.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, that they bring me an offering: of every man that giveth it willingly with his heart ye shall take my offering. (Ex. 25: 1, 2.)

And thou shalt make holy garments for Aaron thy brother for glory and for beauty. And thou shalt speak unto all that are wise wisdom, that they may make the spirit of wisdom, that they may make Aaron's garments to consecrate him, that he may minister unto me in the priest's office.... And thou shalt make the breastplate of judgement with cunning work.... And thou shalt set it in settings of stones.... And the stones shall be with the names of the children of Israel, twelve, according to their names; like the engravings of a signet; every one with his name shall they be according to the twelve tribes.

And thou shalt put in the breastplate of judgement the Urim and Thummim: and they shall be upon Aaron's heart, when he goeth in before the Lord: and Aaron shall bear the judgement of the children of Israel upon his heart before the Lord continually. (Ex. 28: 2, 3, 15, 17, 21, 30.)

The preparations of the heart in man, and the answer of the tongue, is from the Lord. (Prov. 16: 1.)

If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God; if any man minister, let him do it as of the ability which God giveth. (I Pet. 4: 11.)

O send out thy light and thy truth: let them lead me; let them bring me unto thy holy hill, and to thy tabernacles. Then will I go unto the altar of God, unto God my exceeding joy: yea, upon the harp will I praise thee, O God my God. (Ps. 43: 3, 4.)

Letter To The Editor

LET THE WHITE HORSE TRIUMPH

Sir: Inebriated by an insatiable spirit of unrest, greed, selfishness, man has again risked, imperiled, exposed his body, flesh, to become a victim, dupe this time to an outrance war.

Not for a lack of education culture, or religous ritual—perhaps because of them—for they also better arm an ill-starred fiend, our evil genius.

Nor can we blame our parents, and say one must be well-born—that is to refute the saving power of God, Son and Holy Ghost. No one can pick his parents or his thousand, thousand antecedent ancestors, with his traits genes etc. One is no different from his brother in that somewhere we are all related —all are guilty then—it appears to me. Nor does it get us anywhere to blame censure, defame, the brute beast—he has his rights, they were God-given; figuratively though we can say the 'red horse', is running and we must corral him 'red spirit'.

Corral him best I'd say by the 'white spirit', (white horse) winged. He will show the way—reveal that the body, flesh, with its feelings, emotions, can be a good thing—to kill, maim, sicken an evil.

COUNTRY THOUGHTS.

Senator Urges Niagara Treaty Delayed

WASHINGTON, July 17 — (AP)—Senator Alexander Wiley (rep. Wis.) said Saturday he will ask the Senate to defer ratification of a treaty governing new uses of Niagara River water until after legislation authorizing the St. Lawrence seaway and power project is enacted.

Wiley, in a statement, said:

"I see no good reason why the Treaty should receive such high priority attention when the seaway bill long preceded it."

The proposed seaway, he said, is "eminently more necessary and consequential to the national welfare."

The Niagara treaty, on which the Senate foreign relations committee has already held hearings, provides that additional waters be diverted from the river to allow for greater generation of electric energy and safeguarding the scenic value of world-famed Niagara Falls.

Urges Ratification

The treaty, signed last February by Canada and the United States, was sent to the Senate in May by President Truman. He urged its prompt ratification.

Wiley, who has long advocated enactment of seaway legislation, said the dual-purpose project is the "double-barreled" answer to transportation and electric power problems that might arise in the event of a serious national crisis.

The proposed seaway involves deepening of the St. Lawrence river to make ocean shipping possible to the head of the Great Lakes and the Atlantic.

The accompanying power project, to be constructed in the international rapids section of hte river, would generate an estimated 13,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of energy a year. The output would be shared equally by Canada and the United States.

Two Koreans Surrender In B.C.

VANCOUVER, July 17—(CP)—Two young Koreans—northerners but anti-Communist—walked out of hiding Saturday into a fate as uncertain as their homeland's future.

The pair, Young Wan Lee, 22, and Pong Che Yue, 24—after four months as fugitives in the country they want to make their home, surrendered to the Vancouver Sun's marine editor, Pat Keatley.

They asked to be turned over to immigration officials here, from whom they escaped May 9 after arriving as stowaways on a Canadian freighter.

Announcement was made in Ottawa Saturday that a second deportation order had been issued against them.

The slight, neatly - dressed youths said they face certain death on their return to any part of Korea—as traitors in the north and enemies in the south.

They told the Sun that the arrival of Immigration Minister Walter Harris prompted their surrender. Mr. Harris said Saturday he could not immediately talk to the youths but that an interview may be arranged later.

Special Rule Defeats Cricket Club

By C. H. IRESON

Parkdale defeated the Peterborough-Whitaker Cricket Club in Toronto on Saturday with 184 for four wickets against 159 for one. According to council rules laid down, this result is considered a loss for the locals and a draw for Parkdale. The P-W club was in a strong position under the official laws of cricket, which makes it hard to understand the logic of having two results of the same match.

Parkdale batted first and it was 16 for one, followed by S. Cough 47, F. Bromley 18, G. Corbin 18, and the score 118 for four. C. Goodrick 72 and R. Folkard 16 took the score to 184 for four as the innings closed. A. Pope took all four wickets that fell at a cost of 165 runs.

The locals opened with A. Pope and B. Roberts and it went to 60 before Roberts was out for 15. F. Booth joined Pope and they took the score to 159 when the innings closed. It left A. Pope not out for 80, including 12 fours, and F. Booth 40 not out, including six fours, having put on 99 runs for the wicket. But they were declared losers, not having passed the other club's score within a certain time limit. Corbin was the one successful Parkdale bowler with on wickt for 65. A. Pope had a great day, scoring 80 not out and taking all four wickets that fell in the 65 runs. In the five innings he played since rejoining the club, he has scored 258 runs, two being not out, so for three complete innings his average is 86. In bowling, he has taken 21 wickets for an average of 9.57.

Summary of scores:

Parkdale — Batting: L. Thom 4, J. Gough 47, D. Bromley 18, F. Goodrich 72 not out, R. Folkard 16 not out, extras 5; total 184 for 4 wickets; F. Devine, N. Rogers, W. Thompson, G. Ross and B. Mitchell did not bat.

Bowling—A. Pope 4 for 65, F. Booth 0 for 34, B. Roberts 0 for 31, R. Rollwagen 0 for 22, F. Dyer 0 for 17.

Fall of wickets — 1 for 16, 2 for 60, 3 for 81, 4 for 118.

Peterborough - Whitakers — Batting: A. Pope 80 not out, A. Roberts 15, F. Booth 40 not out, extras 18; total 159 for 1 wicket; W. Wright, E. Cotton, R. Rollwagen, R. Titshall, S. Jennings, F. Dyer, W. Freeman, and T. Fraser did not bat.

Fall of wickets — 1 for 60.

Bowling— Corbin 1 for 45, Devine 0 for 22, Folkard 0 for 34, Bromley 0 for 6, Thompsin 0 for 16, Rogers 0 for 9.

Next Saturday, July 22, the local team play Toronto B at Nicholls Oval.

—Remember When

By The Canadian Press

Jimmy Wilde, one of the greatest "little men" the fight game has known, outpointed Pal Moore in a furious 20-round bout at London 31 years ago today, to retain flyweight supremacy. The Welshman overcame a big lead with a two-fisted display in late rounds to gain the unanimous verdict.

Juniors Take OLA Win In Owen Sound

Lou Vitarelli's junior Petes defeated Owen Sound 16-6 on Saturday evening in an OLA junior fixture in the northern centre. It jumped the locals from sixth spot into a fifth-place tie with Weston —and that tie will be broken when these teams clash here tonight.

It was a fine, speedy scrap Saturday with Peterborough racing off to a 5-0 lead in the first frame, having it 8-2 at the half, 8-4 in stickier going in the third heat but finishing well out in front after a wide-open fourth stanza. Play was rugged in spots but not too rough, and the visitors earned the decision on some fine all-around play, going both ways.

Whitnell and B. Robinson starred on the attack, with Killingbeck and Beavis best defensively, but the whole team went well. Whitnell got six goals, as the two Robinsons and Bailey were also prominent on the attack.

Hastings Victors

HASTINGS, July 17 (ENS) — Hastings Legion jumped into a tie for first place in the TVL on Friday night, defeating Trenton 8-4 on the Hastings diamond, in a well played game, before a good crowd.

Crowley on the mound for Hastings rocked up his second victory of the week, and though threatened several times, was unbeatable in the clutches, and was given good support. Scriver was best with the stick with three for four while Porter Fife in his first appearance in Legion uniform came up with two for three and really scooted on the base paths. Curtis pitched fine ball for Trenton after the first inning, when he gave up four runs on five hits. He gave up 11 hits and struck out five, four less than Crowley.

Istead was the big threat at bat geting four for six.

Trenton: Istead rf, Miron ss, Curtis p, J. Scott 3b, Carswell 1b, Jeffery lf, Jordan cf, Flynn 2b, Whitney c.

O. Scott batted for Flynn in the ninth.

Hastings: N. Fife 1b, B. Morrow 3b, Crowley 1b, Scott C, Beavis ss, Richardson cf, Scriver 2b, Phillips lf, P. Fife rf.

Umpires: Stanyard and Stevenson.

Quaker A won in Lindsay July 12 by 6-1 and won from Kawartha July 15 by 4-3. The Lindsay at Quaker A July 16 was postponed. Quaker B was to play at Port Hope on July 16. Games this week: Port Hope at Kawartha July 18; Cobourg at Kawartha July 20; Port Hope at Quaker B July 22; Quaker A at Port Hope July 23.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Girls' softball playoffs commence at seven tonight in the Bowl d'Ashburnham, a semi-final twin bill. It's Marines vs. Ashby's in the opener with CGE vs. Westclox (fresh back from holidays) in the nightcap. Three-of-five series, with the teams and games reversed on Wednesday and again Friday nights. A two-week layoff then ere they resume, due to so many employees on vacation. Finals are four-of-seven, the Woollens meantime being set to go into PWSU junior playdowns. Winner of the finals goes into PWSU intermediate play and will be known as city senior champs, the other three later having a round-robin for the city intermediate title. All games from here on in are highly important.

Some lacrosse notes: Petes are away tomorrow to Weston and have Mimico here on Friday. The junior Petes play here at 8.30 tonight against Weston and it should be worth seeing. Jim Kinna may be out two weeks, according to Bob Peirson, with bruised nerves in the back, being checked hard from behind in the Hamilton fracas here Friday. Fans still argue whether it was deliberate or accidental, but anyway Jim got a nasty one. PMLA had a life-saver day Saturday and did all right. Americans play Irwin-Godson at six tonight in a bantam tilt ere the junior joust. Daytime schedule tomorrow goes as listed Saturday.

* * * * * *

Don't Be A Butterfly

When Kinna collapsed in Friday's fray, a few fans—they might have been Hamiltonians—yelled: "Get up, you big faker, you're not hurt!" Same thing often happens in ball, football and hockey; some customers figure it's no injury but a stall act to draw a penalty. Occasionally it is, but not often. A better known writer than this one, guy by the name of Rudyard Kipling, once wrote this little truism:

The toad beneath the harrow knows
Exactly where each tooth point goes;
The butterfly upon the road
Preaches contentment to the toad.

Moral: Don't be a butterfy—they toil not, neither do they spin; and they die quite young, often ending on a pin.

Young Doug Plunkett came up with another neat twirling chore at Riverside on Saturday as the Petes edged Staffords 4-3. Doug threw a three-hitter and fanned 11, giving but one earned run. He and Paul Estlick hit .500 each for the day, the latter's bag including a hefty triple. Dalton smacked out a two-bagger. A good game, with Pete Wright effective, too, on the other mound to allow but two earned runs. Dick Golden, a Mass. import, looked okay on second. Club beat the deadline Saturday by signing him and also Frank Glazier, a southpaw flinger from the same state. Yeah, the Petes are going all out to give the fans some real ball.

* * * * * *

How Did We Get On It?

The Jack Legris Trophy is up again this diamond semester for the player judged most valuable to the Petes for the season. Not necessarily the leading hitter or a star hurler, but the chap who helps the club most throughout the campaign. Joe Stewart got it last year, holding the big trophy for a year and getting a permanent miniature cup. Anyone winning it three times keeps the big one. Jack has asked Alex Kay, who has been seeing all the games, minor and senior, for many years; Ray Pammett, regular fan, minor loop manager, and secretary of the Peterborough Baseball Commish; and this writer—a guy they rather optimistically feel isn't open to bribes—to do the judging at season's end.

Men's softball league schedule concludes Tuesday eve at the Bowl, weather permitting, with UEW playing Mutuals at seven, followed by Orphans vs. East City. However, there are two postponed twin bills to work in this week. It'll be Orphans vs. Mutuals, and UE vs. East City (washed out last week) on Thursday, we understand. And the June 1 double-header which was postponed will be held Saturday night, Orphans vs. Mutuals, and UE vs. East City again. After that, the loop has a two-week layoff during factory holidays, resuming on Aug. 8 with the second and third teams opening their best-of-seven city semi-final serial.

TORONTO, July 17 (CP)—For the fourth time in seven years, Bill Kerr of Montreal Beaconsfield has the Millar Trophy, the eastern professional match play golf championship and the $500 prize money that goes with it.

He won them at the Islington Club Saturday by staving off two last-minute rallies by his opponents. He set back veteran Lou Cummings of Toronto Golf Club 3 and 2 in the semi-finals then defeated Bob Burns, pro at the Cherry Hill Club near Ridgeway, Ont., 2 and 1 in the afternoon.

Burns qualified for the final by defeating Dick Borthwick of Hamilton 3 and 2.

Lasses Beat Boys

HASTINGS, July 17 (ENS)—Hastings Legion played hosts to Stoney's ladies' senior softball club on Saturday night in Hastings park, before a large crowd and came out on the short end of a 14-11 count.

West and Crowley did the twirling for Stoney with Bruce Scott doing the receiving, while Vi Head, Stoney's ace starter took the mound for Legion with her teammate Vera Breen receiving. West started for Stoney's and Legion took an early lead.

Stoney's outfield seemed best defensively with Marie Kirkpatrick tops, Bruce Scott lead all hitters with five.

Stoney's put on a pantomime before the game in trick uniforms showing how the game should be played.

Kingston Drawn By The UE In Soccer Fray

Peterborough U.E. soccer eleven travelled to Kingston on Saturday and played Kingston Vimy in an Eastern League game to divide the points in a 2-all count. Best for the UE were Strong and Featherstone; for Kingston: Stevens, Coe and J. Anderson.

The opening scoring chance was awarded to UE through penalty that Holroyd made no mistake on from the spot kick. This success started a combination that clicked on the next visit by the UE when Strong registered from close range to make it 2-0. At this point, the Peterborough boys had great difficulty in controlling the ball through the roughness of the playing pitch but held on to the two-goal lead up to the interval.

On resuming, Kingston Vimy pressed continually to harass the Petes' defence around the goal. UE seemed satisfied to hold the advantage but this was short-lived when Stevens, Kingston, from the left wing placed an oblique shot into the net. Again the UE defence bot into trouble with faulty clearances. Eventually Stevens, now playing centre, and playing brilliantly throughout evened up the count with a hot drive that caught the UE goalie unawares. Thereafter UE continued to press with greater vigor than ever to find the Kingston defence unbeatable in every raid. Within a few minutes of the finish, Strong went right through to be brought down inside the penalty area but the referee awarded a free kick instead.

Goal scorers: UE—Holroyd and Strong; Kingston—Stevens.

Peterborough—J. Hutchinson, goal; S. McCann and S. Murduff, full backs; S. Willis, J. Craig and H. Steel, half backs; R. Strong, A. Boyd, A. Holroyd, H. Latham and A. Featherstone, forwards. Subs—E. Downer and J. Chamberlain.

Kingston Vimy—J. Orm, goal; R. Coe and J. Anderson, full backs; R. Hooten-Fox, R. Gresbeck and J. Frame, half backs; W. Anderson, R. Parsons, H. Stevens, J. Boyes and R. Ballard, forwards. R. O'Neill.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

That was one swell crowd out on Saturday evening for the Family Hour tournament. Just a little better than 25 per cent of the club membership. It seems that's what the boys and girls want. Don't be surprised if one of these Saturday nights the attendance will reach 20 rinks. The winning skips were: V. Hili, A. Aitkenhead and H. Northrop.

Tonight, club singles. All players on the greens by 7:00 o'clock sharp.

As yet we have heard nothing about provincial playoffs, singles, doubles or rinks.

And how about the ladies' and men's Globe Doubles competition?

Asked if he would like to see a model home, the man replied, "Glad to. What time does she quit work?"

Westerners Leading

SASKATOON, July 17 (CP).—A couple of tow-headed western youngsters today carried into an 18-hole play-off their tight battle for the Canadian junior golf championship. It was still a toss-up between Roland Laurie of Vancouver Marine Drive and husky Doug Silverberg of Red Deer, Alta., who yesterday finished deadlocked at 152 for the 36-hole route.

Plunkett Hurls Three-Hitter As Petes Beat Staffords 4-3

Doug Plunkett pitched three-hit ball for the Petes here Saturday to beat Toronto Staffords of the Viaduct Baseball League 4-3 in a fine fixture. The husky 21-year-old right-hander kept the three bingles scattered as he whiffed 11 and issued four walks, allowing but one earned run. Pete Wright of Toronto, was effective, too, in giving seven hits and allowing just two earned markers, their backing being wobbly in spots. Paul Estlick had two hits in four tries, one a triple, while Plunkett got one for two and Howie Dalton a two-bagger. Dick Golden, just in from Massachusetts, looked good on second and drove in one of the runs with a single to right, scoring later himself. Al Burrows led the visitors at the puate with a double and single in four times up.

Scored Two

The Murphyites got two markers in the third. Plunkett was safe on an error but was forced by Lowrey who stole and raced home on Golden's single. The latter stole second and took third on an overthrow, crossing the plate then on Dalton's double. Staffs got one back in the fourth on an infield hit by Burrows, an error, an out and a throw-out at second, the out not being made till he had crossed the plate to end the inning.

Staffords went up 3-2 in the sixth on an error on McGillivray's roller, a steal by the latter and Burrows' double, the latter taking third on an out and scoring on a fly to centre. The Petes won the game in their half of this frame with two runs. Danny Brown drew a walk and raced all the way around on a long triple to right by Paul Estlick, the latter counting on a timely single to centre by Freddy Garvey.

Ontario Takes Willingdon Golf Trophy

SASKATOON, July 17—(CP)—Ontario today can thank Dick Weslock and Jerry Kesselring for a fast return shipment of the Willingdon Cup, coveted trophy that represents provincial golf team championship of Canada.

For the annual 36-hole medal play competition, the four-man Ontario team Sunday came through with an aggregate score of 581—only three strokes off the record.

The score was five strokes better than British Columbia's 586 and retained for Ontario the cup won last year at Saint John, N.B., with a 601 score.

Quebec pulled into third place Sunday with 608.

Beats Par

Weslock, the powerful swinger from the Essex club of Windsor, was the only golfer in the field of 32 to beat par over the distance.

He was one under with a 69 on the morning round, and an even par 70 in the afternoon for a total of 139. A heavy shower in the second round failed to upset him.

Kesselring, the lanky youngster from Kitchener, posted the low 18-hole score of the day with a 68 in the morning. He slipped in the afternoon to a 75, but his 143 was second to Weslock.

Bill Mawhinney, of Vancouver, playing with a bandaged left thumb, led the British Columbia team 71-73 for 144.

Quebec's low was Don Doe, of Granby, who shot 75-72 for 147.

Ball Seems To Go Crazy 37 Home Runs In One Day

By JACK HAND,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Here is the dope about that lively ball from the Sunday box scores. The appalling one-day total—37 home runs, 377 base hits, 188 runs, and 68 beat-up pitchers in 15 games.

In Pittsburgh a little guy named Ted Beard who hit .277 for Indianapolis last year, hit one over the right-field stands. No one did that since Babe Ruth in 1935. And this Beard is no Ruth.

Walt Dropo of Boston Red Sox lashed three homers and two doubles in a doubleheader, Duke Snider of Brooklyn went five for five against St. Louis Cardinals—one a homer.

New York Giants and Cincinnati Reds slashed away at one another for a total of 58 hits including 12 homers. There were seven homers in the first game, five in the second.

A total of 53 hits splattered off the walls of Fenway Park where Cleveland and Boston Red Sox divided a doubleheader. In Washington, Bucky Harris sent six pitchers single file after the Brownies.

One Shutout

By some peculiar combination of events there was one shutout. But Walt Dubiel of the Cubs kept in tune with the times by making it a perilous nine-hitter.

Dubiel's shutout was a bitter blow at Philadelphia Phillies who dropped two to the Cubs and fell into second place.

Dubiel did his stuff in the 8-0 first game when the Cubs chased Russ Meyer with six runs in the seventh inning. In the second game, the Cubs ended rookie Bob Miller's eight-game win streak with a 10-3 wallop.

Brooklyn pounded four Cardinal pitchers for 19 hits, winning 10-2 as rookie Chris Van Cuyk coasted home in his major league debut. Despite the loss, the Cards held first place by a half-game.

Ted Wilks, making his first appearance of the season after an arm operation, was hit solidly in the ninth. But Red Munger was the loser.

Lose Second

Boston missed a chance to close in on the leaders by losing the second game to Pittsburgh 6-5 after taking the opened 9-5 for Vern Bickford's 10th win. A flurry of four homers brought reliefer Hank Borowy his first victory of the season in the second game.

Hank Thompson's error on Bobby Usher's grounder with the bases loaded in the 12th gave Cincinnati an 11-10 win over the Giants and a clean sweep of the home-run battles. The Reds took the opener, 16-4, with Ted Kluszewski hitting two homers and Johnny Pramesa, Grady Hatton and Lloyd Merriman one each.

Everybody split in the American League, leaving Detroit with its four-game lead over New York Yankees.

Homers by George Kell, Hoot Evers and Jerry Priddy enabled the Tigers to take a second game from Philadelphia 7-6 after the A's whipped Art Houtteman 5-2 in the first.

Cain Stops Yanks

Just when the Yanks were ready to move in on the Tigers, Bob Cain stopped them. Cain beat the Yanks for the third time 5-2 in the second game. Gene Woodling's two-run double won the first 2-1 for Vic Raschi over Billy Pierce.

Dropo hit two homers in Boston's 13-10 opening victory over Cleveland and added another, No. 22, in the second game which the Sox lost 8-4. The day's slugging sent Dropo into a tie with teammate Vern Stephens for the league lead. Each was 90.

Sid Hudson limited St. Louis to seven hits for a 5-1 Washington victory in the first game but six Senators couldn't stop the Brownies who earned an even break with a 10-8 verdict.

Wings Capture Twin Bill From Buffalo

By The Associated Press.

"The spoiler."

That's what International League pitchers are calling Cy Block, veteran infielder of Buffalo Bisons.

Block ruined a no-hit no-run bid by Syracuse's Jim Prendergast April 23, when he pinch-singled with two out in the seventh and final inning after an error permitted him to bat.

Sunday Block spoiled a no-hit bid by Rochester's George Copeland with another two-out pitch-nit single in the seventh and final inning of the second game of a twin bill which the Red Wings won 5-1. Block batted for losing pitcher Jake Wade.

The pace-setting Wings also won the opener 6-5 winning out in the 10th inning on Russ Derry's two-out double and Don Richmond's single.

Divide Doubleheader

Baltimore's second-place Orioles tumbled two games back of the Wings by dividing a doubleheader with Syracuse Chiefs. The Orioles snared the nightcap 10-7 after losing the opener 6-5.

Syracuse jumped on Bob Raney for five runs in the first inning of the lid-lifter and were never headed. The Chiefs piled up a 7-1 lead entering the sixth inning of the nightcap when the Orioles exploded for nine runs. Anse Moore sparked the game-winning rally with a grand-slam homer.

Montreal Royals took both ends of a doubleheader from Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2 and 1-0 and supplanted Jersey City Giants in third place. The Giants divided with the Springfield Cubs, winning the first game 14-5 but losing the second, 10-2.

Brittin Cuffed

Jack Brittin had the Royals blanked on one hit going into the ninth of the opener when he was cuffed for three singles and two runs. Jocko Thompson came on and yielded a game-wining single to Jack Lindsay.

Carl Erskine blanked the Leafs on three singles in the finale in winning a mound duel from Ken Trinkle. Damon Phillips drove home Don Thompson with the lone run inu the sixth inning.

Nap Reyes belted two homers and Joe Bracchitta and Chet Laabs one each to spark the Giants to victory in the opener with the Cubs.

The Cubs turned the tables in the nightcap as Sepkowski hammered out two homers and Bob Talbot, Ed Ehlers and Randy Jackson one each to allow lefty Al Porto to coast home.

Australia Trounces Canada In Davis Cup

MONTREAL, July 17 (CP).—Australia's classy tennis team left here today for Mexico City after blanking Canada 5-0 in the North American zone Davis Cup tie.

The Australians breezed by the Canadians without losing a set in four singles and one doubles match. The Australia-Mexico winner will meet the European zone champion for the right to face the cup holder, the United States.

Sunday, the Aussies swept through two meaningless singles matchless following flawless performance Friday and Saturday. On Friday they took the opening singles tilts and on Saturday they wrapped up the cup tie with a doubles triumph.

Hear Crates Ticking Spectators Uneasy

RICHMOND HILL, July 17 — (CP)—Spectators watched uneasily Saturday night as a cluster of 25 balloons, holding two crates, floated to rest in a field near here. They were even more uneasy when one of them heard a ticking noise and an alarm clock going off.

Five hundred miles away in Chicago, Professor Marcel Schein, of the University of Chicago, said it was all perfectly harmless"—just part of an experiment in studying cosmic rays.

The balloons were released at Chicago at 7 a.m. (CDT) Saturday. They landed near Richmond Hill, 10 miles north of Toronto, 15 hours later.

Park St. Drain Tenders To Be Let

Letting of a contract for the construction of the long proposed Park St. drain, south from Brioux St. to the river, is included in the business of the board of works tonight.

Appointment of an assessment commissioner is on the slate of the finance committee ,and Mayor Swanston has arranged for a subsequent special meeting of the council to give effect to the expected recommendations of the two committees.

Tenders for the storm drain were opened today by the executive committee and listed for the convenience of the board tonight. Council is also planning a culvert on the extension of Caddy St. in Ashburnham, an improvement that is needed for the opening of that street to the east where many new houses have been built.

The Park St. job was approved by the Ontario Municipal Board. Its financing terms provide for 15 per cent of the cost to be charged to property on the west side of the street and 10 per cent on the east side .

Sidewalk Later

Details of the work are the laying of a concrete duct and the filling of the old ditch. Eventually a concrete sidewalk will be laid when the street has been levelled across its entire width. This walk will be an extension of the slab that has been in use south from Lansdowne St., past the plant of A. Wander Limited.

Finance committee is recommending the sale of another block of debentures to pay for various expenditures of the board of works.

CORNERSTONE OF OUR LADY OF THE ASSUMPTION Church on the Keene Road, Otonabee Township, was laid on Sunday by His Excellency, Bishop Gerald Berry. Cornerstone of New Church In Otonabee Laid By Bishop In Colorful Ceremony

"The laying of the cornerstone of this church . . . fulfills the commission of Christ to spread the Church throughout the world," was the opening of an address by His Excellency Bishop Gerald Berry who laid the cornerstone of the Church of Our Lady of the Assumption in Otonabee in a colorful ceremony on Sunday. Bishop Berry congratulated the people of the new parish and its priest, the Rev. W. C. McCarney, on their zeal and co-operation during the past two years in establishing the church. The Bishop reviewed the parish's development. It began with a community-built parish hall where services are still being held, the priest's residence and now the new red brick church, the walls of which are being completed. It is expected that the new edifice will be ready for use about November 1st.

Sunday's ceremony commenced with a procession of the clergy from the parish hall, flanked by a guard of honor, men of the parish, to the new church site. The choir, accompanied by a reed organ, in what will be the porch of the church, sang "On This Day, Oh Beautiful Mother." Dignitaries proceeded into the body of the church to dedicate the place of the altar, the cornerstone and walls of the building.

Bishop Berry laid mortar on the base of the cornerstone, which was raised into place by Father McCarney and chief bricklayer Cyril Barnes. About 400 parishioners, well-wishers, American tourists and members of the Otonabee Township Council, headed by Reeve Harry Reid, attended the ceremony.

Clergy Attending

Clerical dignitaries participating in the service were: Bishop Berry, the Rev. E. G. McFadden of Downeyville, Deacon the Rev. C. J. Carroll of Norwood, Sub-Deacon the Rt. Rev. Msgr. F. J. O'Sullivan, D. G., Immaculate Conception, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. J. O'Brien, Sacred Heart Church, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. V. McAuley of Lindsay, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. P. P. Butler of St. Peter's Cathedral, the Rev. V. J. Gillogly of Ennismore, the Rev. C. J. Maloney of Campbellford, the Rev. Leo Cleary of Kirkfield, the Rev. Dr. J. V. Masterson of Lakefield, the Rev. S. Coffey of Bowmanville, the Very Rev. V. J. Corkery, chancellor of the diocese, the Rev. W. C. McCarney, parish priest of Our Lady of the Assumption, the Very Rev. E. A. MacDonald, CSSR, and the Rev. J. Corkery, CSSR, both of St. Alphonsus Church, the Rev. K. Malane of St. Peter's Cathedral, crozier bearer, the Rev. Leo Leahy, mitre bearer, the Rev. J. Masky of Sacred Heart Church and the Rev. John Hickey of St. Augustine Seminary, cross bearer. Accolites were Patrick O'Toole and Ronald Carey and servers, Michael O'Toole and Stanley Carey.

BLASTING ON CITY HALL SITE

Blasting operations were in progress today on the site of the new city hall as workman, with small charges of dynamite, sought to remove concrete slabs and foundations. It is expected that the site will be completely cleared by tonight. During the blasting traffic on George Street was rerouted by Water St.

Twelve Large Circuit Breakers Made At CGE For Des Joachims

When the giant Des Joachims power project on the Ottawa river opened, it contained twelve huge circuit breakers manufactured in Peterborough at the CGE. In all, the CGE from all its plants, supplied the Des Joachims (pronounced des Swishim) project $1,500,000 worth of equipment.

The largest of this equipment is being supplied by the Peterborough works. Two more of the giant 230k capacity breakers will go into service next month.

Located in the switching yard alongside the main dam, these breakers will be push button controlled from a power house half a mile away. The breakers will operate as a safety valve of Des Joachims' intricate electrical system. In the event of short circuits or overloading, this system will automatically trip the circuit breaker shutting off the dangerous circuit.

Other Peterborough made equipment includes a 5,000-volt switchgear.

Opening the project, Hydro Commission Chairman Robert Saunders praised Canadian industry for its "truly magnificent cooperation" in speeding deliveries of equipment. Although the power project is not yet working at full capacity, it will be pumping out its full power of 480,000 horsepower early in 1951.

Hospital Releases Killed Man's Brother

Pierre Comte, 23, least seriously injured of the three survivors of Thursday night's truck-car smash, has been released from St. Joseph's hospital.

Both David Adam, 18, and Allen Baldwin, 18, Stewart St. are conscious, but still in serious condition.

Stanley Comte, 26, brother of Pierre, was instantly killed when a ton-and-a-half truck, loaded with 200 gallons of fuel oil, collided with their car Thursday night at the intersection of Highways 28 and 7A.

17 Welders Out At CGE Plant

Seventeen welders from the structural steel department of CGE are on strike.

Six of them were suspended Friday when they refused to work on some unsatisfactory welds for no pay. The other 11 walked out in sympathy.

The union, the United Electrical Workers, claim that the job was in progress for some time and that it was regularly inspected.

C. R. Sullivan, UE representative, explained when there were unsatisfactory welds the welders went back over the job and made repairs. The cost of the repair work was included in the final price for the job.

George Wallace, vice-president of Local 524, UE, is seeking to arrange a meeting with the company to settle the dispute. It will also be discussed at a meeting tonight of the stewards and executive.

Paul Imming Remand Bail Total $8,000

Paul Imming, 26, charged with forgery and obtaining money by false pretences, was today further remanded to July 20. Bail for the forgery charge was continued at $5,000, and on the fraud charge, bail was set at $3,000.

Imming's brother Hugh, of Toronto, arrested last week, was remanded to the same date on bail of $3,000. He is charged with being an accessory after the fact in the $100,000 swindle of the Colonial Finance Company of Toronto.

UE Ban-The-Bomb Leaders Under Fire of Own Officials

By DAVE WHITE

The official attitude of the United Electrical Workers toward the Korean conflict will likely take a thumping tonight from some of Local 524's stewards and executive. Since the invasion of Southern Korea three weeks ago UE publications and the daily leaflets to the membership have been booming the Canadian Peace Petition.

A sizeable proportion of the rank-and-file feel that the whole "Ban the A-Bomb" campaign is nothing but a Communist tactic and they want no part of it.

In the Hamilton Westinghouse Co. plant—the largest UE Local in Canada—a move is underway to oust the leadership of the union. As yet there has been no similar move in Peterborough, but a large number of the membership are plenty hot under the collar.

Peacemongering

As one UE member explained it to the Examiner: "C. S. Jackson (Canadian UE president) is a hard fighter and good union man who can get a good contract for the workers. His politics are his business, but he should keep them to himself. We don't want to get mixed up in this phoney "Peace Petition."

Cassandras are predicting the breakup of the UE if top brass continues its peacemongering campaign.

In the most recent issue of the UE news, eight of the 16 stories are on "the drive for peace" or on the "ban A-bomb warfare" theme. Union affairs played second fiddle.

The stand of the UE has been a shot in the arm for the opposition International Union of Electrical Workers (CIO-CCL). Should the UE leadership continue its Communist-line policy the right wingers expect a large boost in both numbers and prestige.

The CCL Peterborough and District Labor Council have both gone on record as supporting the Canadian government's stand on Korea. The UE has circulated a peace petition.

IUE Challenge

In an address last week John G. Morton, president of Local 524, IUE, said:

"It's time that the local leaders of the UE began to assume their responsibilities. Tommy Davies, the president, George Wallace, the vice-president and others must no longer be allowed to hide behind their plea that they don't know what is going on."

Neither of the two have been available for comment.

Stallions Suffer, Emaciated, Owner Fined

Convicted today of causing horses unnecessary suffering, Thomas Hetherington, Smith township, was warned by Magistrate W. R. Philp either to hire a man to look after his horses, or to get rid of them.

Hetherington was fined $75 and $19 costs.

Dr. Douglas Smith, a veterinary surgeon, testified that on July 4 he found five stallions and a mare in the barn owned by Hetherington.

Two of the stallions were in an emaciated condition, he said, and the other three were suffering severely from malnutrition. The hair on the head of one stallion had been worn off by the horse reaching through a partly boarded window for grass.

Not Epough Fodder

The doctor said Hetherington had told him he was cutting hay for the horses, and showed him the plot he was cutting on. The plot, said the doctor, was about 20 by 30 feet and didn't contain enough fodder for one horse for one day.

"I threw a bitter weed to the most emaciated stallion, and he ate it ravenously," the veterinary testified.

Donald Wilson, dealer in horses, testified he had taken two of the stallions to his farm, and that in his opinion, neither showed signs of mistreatment.

Magistrate Philp said he had no doubt in his mind about Hetherington's guilt ,but that he realized the accused was an elderly man. He said he could not accede to Crown Attorney John Bradshaw's request for a jail sentence.

ing.

PC Louis Rodreque testified he tried accused's brakes and found that only one was holding.

Faulty Brakes Convict Driver

A charge of careless driving against J. E. Paquette, Peterborough mechanic, was dismissed today by Magistrate W. R. Philp, but Paquette was convicted of having inadequate brakes.

On the lesser charge, Magistrate Philp fined him $10 and $18.40 costs. High costs were caused by the larger number of witnesses who testified on the careless driving charge.

Gerald Tully, 667 Chamberlain St., testified he was riding his motorcycle south on George St. and was near Brock St. when he saw a car pull out from Brock and turn north onto George.

Tully said he applied his brakes and the motorcycle skidded. Kevin Scott, of Douro, who was following Tully on another motorcycle, said he braked his cycle and "I went right over Tully's bike." About $60 damage was done to Tully's motorcycle, and $45 to Scott's.

Magistrate Philp ruled there was not sufficient evidence to convict Paquette of careless driv-

Groom's Brother Officiates At Loveday-Jameson Union

White delphinium and Madonna lilies made a beautiful setting at the altar of Murray St. Baptist Church on Saturday afternoon as the nuptial vows were pledged by Miss Vevey Patricia Jameson and Mr. Edward Joseph Loveday, with the Rev. D. A. Loveday, brother of the groom, officiating.

The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Jameson of Peterborough and the groom is son of Mrs. A. J. Loveday of Brantford and the late Rev. A. J. Loveday.

Traditional wedding music was played by organist Mr. Stanley Northrop who accompanied Miss Ruth Hircock of Cobourg when she sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

An ankle length frock of white organdy, over taffeta, with a sash of ice blue velvet was lovely for the mid-summer bride and she wore a Juliet cap of lace which held her circular veil of illusion, falling to fingertip length. She carried a nosegay of Johanna Hill roses and white sweet peas.

Mr. Jameson gave his daughter in marriage and her sister Miss Zetta Jameson was her maid of honor. The latter wore an ankle length frock of yellow nylon sheer over white taffeta and a hat of the dress material trimmed with blue cornflowers and she was carrying a cascade of cornflower with Johanna Hill roses.

Groomsman was Mr. Douglas Bartley of Woodstock and the ushers were Robert Jameson, brother of the bride, and Kenneth Doughty.

Receiving her guests at the reception in the Empress Kawartha Room, Mrs. Jameson was gowned in French blue and wore a navy hat and a corsage of pink roses on her purse. The groom's mother was also in the receiving line and she was wearing black printed silk with a hat of black straw and a corsage of white and purple sweet peas.

When going away later the bride wore a nylon organdy dress with white accessories and a yellow rose corsage.

After their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Loveday wil live on Stewart St., in Peterborough, and both will be teaching. Mr. Loveday has been principal of Queen Elizabeth school, north of the city.

King and Queen Join Margaret In Late Rounds

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON — (CP) — The King and Queen are joining Princess Margaret in a round of late nights.

For the first time since the King's illness last year, the Royal couple is filling a heavy round of social engagements.

One of the most glittering assemblies took place recently at Hertford House, London, when the King, the Queen and Princess Margaret were guests of honor at the 50th anniversary of the opening of the Wallace collection.

London newspapers generally hailed the event as one of the most brilliant held in London since King Edward VII, as Prince of Wales, opened the collection to the public. The collection of art treasures was described as the most fabulous ever presented to the British public.

Lovely Picture

At the foot of a grand staircase, under Lawrence's famous portrait of George IV, the Queen made a lovely picture in a lemon crinoline decorated with hundreds of brilliants that sparkled in the lights and vied with the fire reflected from her diamond tiara and necklace.

The King and Queen made a round of the collection and left shortly after midnight. Princess Margaret stayed to finish the evening.

At Coming-Out Ball

A day or so later at the coming out ball of 18-year-old Ann Abel Smith, granddaughter of the Earl of Athlone and Princess Alice, the King and Queen led the ball with a foxtrot.

The Queen wore a deep pink crinoline gown trimmed with silver and a necklace and tiara of diamonds and rubies. Princess Margaret wore a white tulle gown with crinoline skirt and a three-quarter-length cape of white ermine.

The ball was held in a Knightsbridge hotel (Hyde Park). Dancing continued till 3 a.m. During the evening the King asked the orchestra to play one of his favorite tunes, "True To You in My Fashion."

Princess Margaret stayed after her father and mother left and danced with Lord Plunkett, the Duke of Northumberland and the Marquess of Blandford.

Princess Margaret was also guest of honor at a lavish ball given in a Mayfair hotel by Lady Oakes. She is the widow of Sir Harry Oakes, American born millionaire who acquired most of his wealth in northern Ontario gold mines.

Miss Margaret Sargent Wed In Westwood United Church

In St. Andrew's United Church at Westwood, at seven o'clock Saturday evening, the Rev. N. Cole performed the marriage of Miss Margaret Stewart Sargent, daughter of Mrs. Sargent and the late Mr. James Sargent of Westwood, to Mr. Edwin George Lacey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lacey of Camborne.

The candlelight setting was enhanced with baskets of delphiniums and lilies, banked with ferns. Miss Doreen Graham played the wedding music and Mr. Bruce Warr was soloist Before the ceremony he sang "I love you truly" and during signing of the register, "O Promise Me."

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and was escorted to the altar by her brother Mr. Jack Sargent. She wore a beautiful gown of white flock Swiss organdy, with elbow-length mittens to match and a fingertip illusion veil, caught with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of red roses.

Miss Isabel Shearer, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, and Miss Mary Lacey, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. They were in dresses of pink flock Swiss, made similarly to the bride's gown, and they wore pink caps held in place by wreaths of pink roses and carried nosegays of pink carnations and cornflower

Attending the groom was Mr Clarence Scully and the ushers were Ronald Warner, cousin of the bride, and Everett Jamieson.

The reception was at Mrs. Sargent's home and she received the guests wearing a gown of delphinium blue lace and hat of the same, with grey accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother, assisting to receive, was gowned in navy sheer and wore a white hat and accessories and a corsage of red lilies.

The bride and groom left later for a wedding trip to Algonquin Park and Ottawa. For travelling Mrs. Lacey wore a black and white crepe ensemble with a large black hat and black accessories and carried a green shortie coat.

After their honeymoon the couple will live at Camborne.

Cherry Specials in Season Sweet and Sour Both Good

By MARY MOORE

White cherries to the left of me, dark cherries to the right of me, sour cherries ahead of me—in fact I am submerged in cherries. I like the dark ones so well I could eat my way out, but that is not what you want me to do—you want recipes. "Recipes that you can recommend, Mrs. Moore".

Cherry Pudding

(From Montmorencies)

Make batter: One cup sifted flour, ½ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon melted butter, ½ cup milk. Sift the flour with the sugar, baking powder, and salt. Add butter and milk. Mix until blended. Pour into greased loaf pan. Cover with Cherry Sauce: One cup pitted sour cherries, 1 cup sugar, ½ cup boiling water, 1 teaspoon butter. Let these last four ingredients stand while you make the batter.

Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 45 minutes or until batter is baked through.

You may have had the same experience as I—American visitors from the middle southwest who had never eaten sweet cherries, and wanted a sweet cherry pie. Now while we do not usually think of them as pie filling, I made one, and now it belongs in my permanent files.

Want to try it?

Sweet Cherry Pie

Pit enough dark sweet cherries (I used Tartarians) to make 4 well-packed cups when pitted. Put into pastry-lined pie plate. If desired sprinkle with grated rind from lemon or lime, and 2/3 cup sugar with which you have mixed 2 tablespoons flour or quickcooking tapioca. If tapioca is used the cherries and sugar should be mixed with it and allowed to stand while you make the crust. Cover with gashed crust and seal edges. Bake in very hot oven until crust is baked—about 40 minutes at 450 deg. Fahr. for 10 of them, and 375 for the remaining time.

Sour Cherry Pie

Use same method as for sweet cherry pie, but increase sugar to 1 cup and do not use grated lemon or lime rind.

Cherry Jelly

Seed and crush about 3 pounds ripe sour cherries. Add 2 tablespoons crushed cherry pits and ½ cup water. Simmer 10 minutes. Drain through jelly bag. Measure—there should be 3 cups. Heat juice, and add 6½ cups sugar, bring to boiling point, add 1 cup liquid commercial pectin, boil hard one-half minutes. Remove from heat, let stand a minute, then skim, and fill into sterile jelly glasses. Same method may be used for cherry jam, but do not strain, and do tie seeds in strong small bag.

Cherry Conserve No. 1

One pound sultana raisins, 2 pounds washed and pitted cherries, juice of 3 oranges, 4 pounds sugar, ½ cup water. Boil the sugar and water 20 minutes and add cherries and raisins. Boil over low heat about 10 minutes, but do not burn this. Then add the orange juice, boil 3 minutes, and pour into sterile jam jars and cover with paraffin at once, adding a second coat when cold.

Cherry Conserve No. 2

Five pounds washed and pitted cherries, 1¼ pounds chopped and pitted dates, ½ pound figs, 1 pound sultana raisins, ½ pound pecan meats, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon cloves. Chop dates, figs and nuts and mix with raisins. Drain juice from the pitted cherries, add 3 cups of sugar to it, and boil until it is a syrup that just threads. Add cherries to this syrup and boil 5 minutes, add other fruits and spices, and cook until of thin jam consistency. Pour and seal as above.

Oust Business Men Lawyer Tells Gals

JOHANNESBURG — (CP) — Miss G. Horwitch, a Johannesburg lawyer, has started a sex war in business.

"Men are incompetent — get their jobs and their salaries, Business and Professional Women too," she told a meeting of the girl's Clubs recently.

Miss Horwitch said South African women were too diffident about applying for highly-paid, executive positions.

"I told them to have no hesitation."

Male executives are bearing up. A leading business man retorted promptly: "Women will never oust men. They have inferior brains. That has been proved scientifically."

Dorothy Carpenter Is Wed Honeymooning In Muskoka

A lovely wedding Saturday afternoon was that of Dorothy Flora, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Carpenter, Mark St., to Mr. Condell Murray Alexandra Palmer, the son of Mr. George A. Palmer, also of Peterborough. Setting was St. Luke's Anglican Church with the Rev. W J Gilling performing the ceremony.

Tall standards of blue and white delphinium flanked the altar which was decorated with pink and white snapdragon, and white madonna lilies. Wedding music was played by Mr. Morley Coombes and Mrs. L. McLaren, sister of the groom, was soloist. Before the service she sang "O Perfect Love" and at the signing of the register "O Happy Home."

The bride's gown was of white velvery organdy with a tiny pink flower worked throughout. It was made with a full gathered skirt, and the bodice with Peter Pan scalloped collar and cap sleeves buttoned to the waist with pearl buttons. She wore a circular veil of tulle illusion which fell to fingertip length and was caught with lily of the valley and seed pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of delphiniums and carnations in the wedding colors, pink, blue and white.

Mr. Carpenter gave his daughter in marriage and she was attended by Miss Ruth Barrie as bridesmaid and Miss Linda Palmer, niece of the groom, flower girl. The attendants' frocks were of the same material as the bride's dress, Miss Barrie's with a blue flower and worn over blue taffeta and with a blue sash, and the flower girl's with a pink flower and worn over pink taffeta, finished with a pink sash. They wore hats of matching taffeta, with tiny pink and blue flowers at the side and carried bouquets of blue and white delphiniums and pink sweet peas.

Groomsman was Mr. Howard Anderson, and the ushers were Ralph Carpenter, and Ronald Palmer, brothers of the bride and groom.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Carpenter chose a dress of pale blue mesh, a hat of white Milan straw, and wore a corsage of pink carnations and white sweet peas. She received the guests in the Empress Hotel Kawartha Room, assisted by the groom's sister, Mrs. Leonard Knell of Ottawa who was wearing a dress of black silk printed with blue and white and a black hat and corsage of pink roses.

The couple left for a honeymoon in the Muskoka district and later for a motor trip in the United States. For travelling the bride wore a white nylon flowered dress, a pale blue shortie coat, white hat and accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer will live in Peterborough.

DOROTHY DIX

Ten Tips for Husband How to Keep Wives Happy

Dorothy Dix

DEAR MISS DIX: I am planning on being married soon and it is my ambition to make my fiancee the happiest wife in the world. Can you suggest the ten best rules to follow in order that I may do so?—BILL.

ANSWER: Well Bill, any man can make his wife happy if he wants to and if he deliberately sets out to do so. Marriage can get mighty dull and monotonous in the course of 25 or 30 years if the husband doesn't do anything to pep it up for his wife. And so if a husband wants to keep his wife thinking herself the luckiest woman in the world he should do something about it. And here are the 10 rules that I should suggest for him to follow:

First. Keep up the line by which he won her. Don't drop all courtship at the altar. Before marriage a woman had many men to tell her how beautiful and wonderful she was. After marraige she has only one, so it is up to him to keep handing her out the sweet talk.

Pay Her Compliments

Second. Make it part of your daily dozen to pay your wife a compliment. That keeps up her morale. A wife's public is her husband and if he never gives her the glad-hand she is apt to slump. She thinks, what's the use in dolling up myself for a man who never notices what I have on, or wearing myself out cooking a good dinner for a husband who gobbles it down without apparently knowing the difference between hash and a ragout?

Third. Keep yourself shaven and shorn and easy on your wife's eyes. Women care even more for appearances than men do and no wife looks at a slouchy, slovenly husband with a three day's stubble of beard on his face without wondering why she did it.

Fourth. Be as entertaining at home as you are abroad. Don't be the life at a party and a stuffed shirt at your own fireside. No woman's idea of a happy evening is spending it with a man who only grunts when he is spoken to and never makes a voluntary remark, except to knock something she has done or left undone. Women marry for companionship. See that your wife gets some.

Fifth. Be a little ray of sunshine. No woman can make a happy home by herself. That is a two-handed job that takes both a husband and wife working together to pull off. Don't save all the temper and nerves and irritability that you dared not show the public for home consumption.

Sixth. Deal generously with your wife about money. Give he not only a housekeeping allowance but an allowance for herself. No woman can run a house economically if she doesn't know how much she has to spend. And no woman ever forgives a man who makes her come to him like a beggar for every cent. Giving a wife an allowance saves 365 breakfast-table spats a year. It preseryes a wife's self-respect and makes her think of her husban as a partner instead of a tightwad.

Respect Her Family

Seventh. Don't treat your wife's family as if they were poison and act as if you were being martyred every time they come on a visit. You may not love them, but she does, and if she failed in affection and loyalty to the mother who bore her and the father who toiled to support her and the brothers and sisters she grew up with, she would lack the very qualities that makes her desirable as a wife.

Eight. Make little treats for your wife. Give her surprises. Take her on little trips. Remember anniversaries. Do something to keep her thinking that you still regard her as a Lady Love instead of a household convenience. Spending a little money on giving a wife a good time is the best investment any man ever makes.

Ninth. Chum with your wife. Talk to her about the things she is interested in. Tell her of your hopes and plans. It is the easiest thing in the world for a man to get so absorbed in his business and for a woman to get so obsorbed with the children that they lose touch with each other and drift apart; and come to be such strangers that they cannot even carry on a conversation together, because neither knows anything of the other's inner life. Watch out or this will happen to you.

Tenth. Don't take your wife for granted. She isn't a mind-reader and doesn't know that you love her and appreciate her and think she is the greatest woman in the world. Never cease telling her how marvelous you think she is, and if you will do that she will be the happiest woman in the world and the most envied.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am very anxious to make nursing my career, but my family object to it. They insist on my taking a business course instead. Which stands higher as a profession, nursing or being a business woman? Will nursing prevent me from making a desirable match?
AGNES

ANSWER: Nursing is a vocation as well as an avocation, and when a girl feels a call to it no one should try to prevent her from doing the work that God intended her to do. The nurse must have not only intelligence and skill, she must have initiative and courage and patience and sympathy and a devotion to her work that makes her willing to perform all the unpleasant tasks that are a part of her routine. No women do more good in the world and are of greater service to humanity than trained nurses, and it seems almost ridiculous to ask in what esteem they are held,

And don't worry about nursing being a bar to your making a good match. A trained nurse once said to me that no other women in the world had such a chance to marry as a trained nurse did, because she could always marry either the doctor or the patient.

QUESTION: I made the frozen dessert you might have seen in magazine, it was lemond flavored but the crumb mixture in bottom was so strong with spice we could not eat it. Do you remember what I mean? Do you have a frozen lemon refrigerator dessert? Would you print it as soon as possible if you have.—Maudie.

ANSWER: This is not like the one you are referring to, but I can vouch for its goodness. It may be made as much as 2 or 3 days ahead of when served.

Frozen Lemon Dessert

Three egg yolks, 3 egg whites, ½ cup sugar, juice and grated rind 1 large lemon, 1 cup heavy cream, whipped, 2/3 cup finely rolled graham wafers, or vanilla wafers (for best results roll fine, then sift). Combine egg yolks, sugar, lemond juice and rind in top of a double boiler. Cook over hot, but not boiling, water until slightly thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and cool. Sprinkle half of the crumbs over bottom of freezing tray. Pour lemon mixture over them when it is cool. Sprinkle remaining crumbs on top. Freeze until firm. This amount will serve five.

QUESTION: Give me your best jellied salad using shrimps. I love them and want to make a beautiful mould for a 'bon voyage' party I am giving. We love your column.—Jan and Evelyn.

ANSWER: Delighted to oblige. This recipe looks as if it just stepped out of the Waldorf-Astoria—if moulded in fancy salad mould.

Shrimp Salad Mould

One and one-quarter tablespoons plain glatine, ¼ cup cold water, ¼ cup mayonnaise, two 3-oz. packages cream cheese, one 10-oz. can tomato soup, 2 cups trimmed and drained shrimps, 1 cup diced celery, 1 tablespoon chopped green pepper, 1 teaspoon minced onion, ½ cup sliced stuffed olives.

Soak the gelatine in the cold water, and soften the cream cheese by mashing it with a fork. Add the mayonnaise to the softened cheese. Dilute the tomato soup with an equal amount of hot water and heat to boiling. Add the soaked gelatine and stir until dissolved, then slowly stir this into the cheese mixture. Chill and when slightly thickened add the shrimps and vegetables. Pour into large fancy mould. A good fish shaped mould is appropriate. Chill until firm. Serve on lettuce or endive or cress and garnish with whole large shrimps and ripe olives.

Britain Producing New Smartness Maternity Styles

LONDON, July 15 (CP). — Britain is getting away from old ideas and producing colorful, fashionable clothes for the mother-to-be.

Many large stores have opened special departments for maternity styles and some houses undertake to refashion the clothes after the birth.

One Bayswater shop has its own designers turning out styles with a Parisian flair.

An example is a blue wool tunic of hip length, with shoulder-wide cape collar of white silk and big, elbow-length bell sleeves edged with white. The wide, straight tunic has a white belt and a back which falls in fashionable swing panels.

Some of the tunics are fantastic, but there are simple shirt-waisted blouse-jackets with open neck and bishop sleeves.

Many designs have medieval or renaissance interest. For instance, there is one with the huge sleeves of a renaissance dandy and wide, graceful regency cloaks with big collars and wide sleeves.

In cotton dresses, one style has the simplicity of a choir boy's surplice. A white cotton with broderie Anglaise collar costs less than £3 ($9.30.)

Chinese coolie jackets are another popular choice for maternity wear, as are the huge, white Quaker collars, wide swagger coats and buttoned skirts.

A store which specializes in hand-smocking has "kangaroo" skirts for wear beneath their smocks. These hang from braces and have a circular cut-out at the waist.

Maternity underwear is more expensive and hard to find. Many corset-makers ignore this line and some women complain they must have maternity corsets specially made.

Low-Calorie Dinner

Sweet Cherry and Grapefruit Fruit Cup (6 oz. 70 cal.), (4 oz. 170 cal.) Grilled Fresh-frozen Ocean Perch, Lemon, Cauliflower with Grated Skim Milk Cheese (1 cup 40 cal.), Lettuce and Tomatoes and Radishes (no mayonnaise (2 oz. ea. 30 cal.), Raspberry Sherbet (125 cal.), Clear Coffee (0 cal.) (from restaurant).

High Calorie Dinner

Cream of Spinach Soup (see notes), Sliced Cold Ham, New Potato and Celery Salad, Sliced Field Tomatoes, Warm Parkerhouse Rolls, Two Crust Cherry Pie (see elsewhere on page), Coffee.

One-Burner Dinner

Luncheon Devilled Eggs (see notes—this is very special), Tomato and Cottage Cheese on Lettuce, Raspberry Whip Cake (see notes), Coffee.

Directions

Cream of Spinach Soup: (You may notice that I suggest homemade soup fairly frequently. I think we should all know how to make soup to be good cooks of all kinds of food, and to utilize our supplies efficiently.) Put in top of double boiler ½ cup each milk and cream and 1 cup fresh raw spinach which has been washed well and chopped very finely—if desired put through food chopper. Add 2 slices onion and 2 bouilion cubes—either chicken or vegetable, dissolved in ½ cup boiling water or stock from cooking such a mild vegetable as peas, beans or carrots. Cook all over boiling water, covered, for about 10 minutes. If desired thicken with 1 tablespoon flour stirred to a smooth paste with ¼ cup cold water. Serve in soup bowls sprinkled generously with old grated cheese. If you do not use the bouilion cube, you must add salt and pepper to taste.

Luncheon Devilled Eggs

Two tablespoons butter, ¼ cup catsup, 2 tablespoons chopped mushrooms, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 4 hard cooked eggs cut into quarters, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 4 slices toast and some butter and anchovy paste for spreading on it. Melt the butter. Add tomato sauce or catsup, mushrooms, Worcestershire sauce and mustard. Add salt and pepper to eggs. Add to tomato mixture. Serve on buttered toast spread with anchovy paste. This amount makes 4 generous servings. This is a good dish for Sunday "Brunch".

Raspberry Whip Cake

1 Egg white beaten, ½ cup fresh crushed raspberries, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 2-3 cup sugar, shake of salt, 1 small cake, cut in halves. Shortly before serving combine all ingredients except the cake and beat, preferably with electric beater, until stiff enough to stand in peaks. Spread thickly over 1 layer of cake, put on top layer and spread thickly over top and sides of cake. Cut into wedge-shaped pieces to serve. Double this recipe if you have to serve 12 people, and use full recipe for layer cake, spreading nearly half the mixture on bottom layer, and covering it with top layer and proceeding as above. A delicious summer dessert.

Far Future Of "Ex" Doesn't Bemuse Now

Discussion of the future of Peterborough Exhibition should not becloud the preparations which the directors have made for this year's show next month, G. A. Gillespie, manager-secretary, remarked today.

"We have nearly everything ready, and the directors are meeting again Tuesday evening. I'm afraid the public might get some impression that we were moving out, as a result of the recent conference with the council and the Morrow Trust.

"I think it would take four or five years for a transfer of that extent even if we had new grounds bought. It is all right to be looking toward the future, but at the same time we hsould not be in any way distracted from the present.

The directors have everything in good shape for the 1950 Exhibition, and as this is Peterborough's Centennial we should all be thinking of making it the best in our history."

Police Probe 3 Accidents

Three accidents occurred over the week-end, oneof them caused by an auto whose driver is not known. Only slight damage was done to any cars involved.

In the mystery car accident Saturday night, Clarence Strain of Omemee was driving east on Highway 7 near Downer's Corners when a car pulled out from River Rd., forcing Strain to pull to the right.

Strain's auto went out of control and overturned several feet west of the CNR crossing, doing about $75 damage to the body and top of the car. Connor Morris, 124 Cameron St., a passenger in Strain's car, said he thought he saw the license number of the other auto.

Three cars were damaged Saturday afternoon in a collision at Aylmer and Perry Sts. James Brown, 214 Perry St., was driving south on Aylmer St., made a left turn onto Perry, and was struck on the front left fender by a north-bound auto driven by Everett Hie, Bailieboro, a cab-driver.

Driving west on King St. Saturday afternoon, A. G. Richardson, 406 Sheridan St., was halfway across the intersection of Reid St., when his car was in collision with an auto driven by Lynn J. Thain, 284 Roger St.

Thain, who was driving south on Reid St., said Richardson did not stop at Reid St. Richardson said he did stop. Damage was not extensive to either car.

Grable Gives Tips On How To Star

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, July 17 (AP).—When Betty Grable dishes out advice to show business hopefuls, it pays to listen.

In the first place, the beautiful blonde rarely waxes reflective about her career. Secondly, her advice should be worthy, since she is the most successful female star in Hollywood today. Still the leading woman in the box-office poll, she has been in the top 10 for eight years and was the only glamor-type star to rate No. 1 (in 1943).

Betty, who is starting "Call Me Mister," her 20th big musical in 10 years, cautions youngsters to start early.

Betty's Tips

"I started when I was five," she related. "By the time I was 14, I was singing with a band. Experience like that is invaluable. With few exceptions, it takes years of hard work to learn the business.

"I think the best way for a girl to prepare herself for a career in show business is to start at the bottom and work her way up. Join a circus line and learn that. As you learn, you will advance.

"I always wanted to be a dancer, so I went to dancing schools and danced whenever I could. I didn't bother with dramatic lessons because I never wanted to be an actress. That part just happened to me."

Movies At 14

At 14, she won a movie contract, lying to the studio about her age. She did a specialty number in one film and spent a year in the studio chorus. Then she was dropped.

Eventually she signed up as a torch singer with Ted Fio Rita's Band. Within eight months she was signed for films. But after one leading role her parts dwindled. She joined another band.

Again she was snapped up for pictures and this time Paramount gave her more important roles. After four years, she decided her career needed another shot in the arm. She went to Broadway and made a hit in "Dubarry Was a Lady." That did it. Betty was signed by 20th-Fox and started her string of box-office boffos.

2,500 Attend Concert Salvation Army Band

The trump et solo, "Jesus is Strong to Deliver" by Deputy Bandmaster A. Shadgett was one of the outstanding numbers of the band concert given by the Peterborough Temple Band at Nicholl's Oval on Sunday evening.

Other favorites on the program were the beautiful Chime Prelude "Onward Christian Soldiers" and the chime solo, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross" and the "Golden West" march.

More than 2,000 people attended this concert.

Kid From Wyoming Rides Rodeo On Canadian Circuit

By JACK SCOTT.

HIGH RIVER, Alta — On his first ride the kid was up on a bronc named Box Car and he looked like a gladiator. It was an exciting think to watch. A man in the stands behind me said: "The kid can ride anything."

The bronc was big, black and mean. He came out of the narrow chute in a spineless arc, and he leaped like that, jackknifed in the air, six times, before he fell.

I thought for a minute that the rider would be under him, but he was clear, landing in the dust as lightly and gracefully as a ballet dancer.

The bronc staggered to his feet and was off, lashing his hind hooves in the air, and the kid walked back to the corral in the stiff-legged, deliberate way of the professional cowpuncher.

I looked him up in the program. His name was Red Dowell, from Thermopolis, Wyoming. The program noted that he was the leading 1950 money winner in the Canadian circuit of small rodoes.

An hour later I strolled over behind the chutes and watched him as he prepared to go out on a steer.

They were having a tough time with the animal. He would leap up in an agony of fright and anger and twist about in the stall. The kid was poised above him, his high, pointed boots braced against the bars of the chute.

In the shadow of the dirty, sweat-stained Stetson the butt of a cigarette hung from his lips. He seemed unaware of 1400 pounds of explosive beef beneath him. The handlers were cussing and whacking the steer across the nose, but the kid looked almost bored.

Then a flat voice came from around the cigarette. "Let's get out of here."

The chute gate swung back and they were out in the arena. I could not see the ride, but the sound of the crowd was unmistakable. The kid had stayed on agaon.

Slowing Down.

Until then I'd thought I'd do a piece about High River's Rodeo and Annual Fair in general terms.

There was a real flavor to it, an authenticity that had been missing in bigger rodeos I had seen before. It was pleasant to sit in the open stands with families in from the ranches and farms and look across the rodeo grounds at the big grain elevators, maroon and silver, and the prairie beyond.

But I found myself wondering about the kid and so I made some enquiries, found that he was staying at an outo camp at the edge of town, and drove out there.

A dusty sedan with Wyoming plates and parked in front of one of the small bungalows. I rapped on the screen door and a voice said to come in.

I thought at first I had the wrong place.

The figure on the bad, lying limp with arms outstretched was like a boy's. The big hat lay on the bureau and the high boots had been kicked off. Only the kid's marmalade colored hair seemed to fit. He looked about 17, which is five years younger than he is. There was the smell of sweat and zinc ointment in the room.

He never lifted his head from the pillow. He looked at me with his watery green eyes when I introduced myself and said: "I'm so dammed tired. That black horse was a hard horse to ride. It was a dammed mean horse to ride and then the ride don't count, because it fell."

"The steer was no bed of roses, either," I said.

"Steers are most always the toughest," Red said. "No two steers are alike. You just get on there and wonder what it's gonna do to you."

He reached over and lifted a bottle of beer from under the bed and took a big swig. It was hard to think of him as the man who had given such a magnificent ride earlier in the day.

"It seems to take a lot out of you," I said.

"Tenseness," the kid said. "I get all tied up in knots waiting for the ride and .he nafterwards I get thi slet down. I oughta go and have a shower, but I think I'll rest a while. Gotta pull out tonight for the rodeo down to Medicine Hat."

Many Hot Towns.

We sat for awhile, talking, and Red told me how he got into his strange and dangerous profession. He was brought up on ranches in the hills of Wyoming and seemed to have a natural ability at breaking horses. When he was 17 he entered a rodeo, did well and decided to go on the circuit as a professional.

It is, he confessed, a bewildering and exhausting life and, of course, a lonely one, too. In the movement from town to dusty town, his acquaintanceship is pretty largely limited to a long line of outlaw horses with such names as Crazy Blaze, Hitler, Come Late, Meat Axe, Big Dick, Soon Down and Big Feet.

His season begins in the early spring in Denver, ends in November at San Francisco If he's had a good year he may earn as much as $8000. He travels light with only a small suitcase and the battered saddle that is his work bench, thrown in the back of the sedan.

When I asked him if there was any secret to his performance (he looks about as athletic as I do), he said: "I dunno. I just made up my mind I'm gonna stay up there whatever the ornery critter does. It's like a personal thing 'twixt me and the horse."

And the future?

"Well, sometimes the broncs decide that. Lots o' the boys don't hit it lucky and get crippled up. But if I keep goin' right I'd like to get me a little ranch in Wyomin' and grow me a long white beard."

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Ted Williams says he has been informed another operation may be necessary on his elbow and that the odds are against him playing again this season.

Williams is in hospital where he underwent surgery Thursday. His left elbow was fractured in the all-star game in Chicago.

The slugging outfielder said Sunday in an interview that Dr. Joseph Shortell, orthopedic surgeon, told him he would be as good as ever after a sufficient rest.

Manager Leo Durocher of New York Giants has been fined $100 and second baseman Eddie Stanky assessed $50 by National League president Ford C. Frick for their argument with umpire Dusty Boggess in Pittsburgh Saturday.

Durocher, however, appealed his case and has been granted a hearing, the date of which has not yet been set.

Denmark completed its conquest of Italy Sunday in the European zone Davis Cup semi-final tie and gained the right to meet Sweden for the continental title.

The Danes captured both singles matches for a surprising 4 to 1 edge over Italy, the 1949 European champion.

Sweden finished its sweep of Poland Saturday and the two Scandinavian forces will meet later this month with the winner going to the United States for a tussle with the North American zone winner.

S.r Strome Saturday won the 97th running in Montreal of the Quebec's King Plate for a purse of $4,000 plus the customary gift of 50 guineas from the King. Nephisto, the favorite, was second and Maplewood third.

Bernard Johnson, whose baritone voice is known to CBC listeners, was hitting the high ones Saturday as he captured the Western Ontario Public Golf Association championship at the Thames Valley Club with a 73.

Playing out of Hamilton Glendale, Johnson succeeded Tony Matlock of Kitchener Rockaway, who didn't defend his crown. Johnson had a clear four-stroke margin over Moe Norman of Kitchener, the runner up.

Toronto Mahers won the Ontario final of Dominion soccer competition in Windsor Saturday night, defeating Windsor Sterlings 3-0 in a sudden-death game. The victory ran the Toronto team's winning streak to 15 consecutive games.

Wilfred Daoust of Lachine, Que., driving his Canada Maid, romped home first in the second division of the 225-cubic inch class at the Brockville international power boat regatta Saturday.

Bob Bogie of Loon Lake, N. Y. in Blitz III, won the first division in the 225-class boats.

Lakefield Seeks New Dump Site

LAKEFIELD, July 17 (ENS)—Lakefield is looking for a new dump. At the village council's last meeting, Councillor Morris and Clerk Harvey Hill were appointed to organize a search for a site for a new dump.

Clint McColl, roads supervisor, asked the council what to do about the drain at Fraser's corner.

The council decided the drain should be claired if possible and also recommended that the drain to the river be cleaned out by digging holes at intervals and breaking through one of the tiles.

It was also resolved that each manhole be checked at least twice a year and a record of the location and the time checked be kept.

Other Business

Councillors Fraser and Morris moved that an application for a 25-year lease on his park lot be granted to A. Steele pending approved of the parks committee.

The sum of $75 was voted to Fire Chief Allan Clark for his trip to Vancouver. Chief Clark has just completed 25 years of service in the village.

Councillor Fraser suggested that the Red Cross be written and advised of liability at the pool should an accident occur. They also recommended the Red Cross spend $20 on liability insurance and property damage.

A bylaw is being drafted to clean up the car dumps in the village and Ken Reid is to be written to this effect.

UN Receives Shot In Arm As Korean War Still Rages

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Staff Corespondent.

LAKE SUCCESS, NY.—(NEA)—The cool, dust-free air is alive with the cadences and inflections of foreign speech. The voices are eager, cheerful, brightly tinged with hope; they are the voices of men who are toiling hard to preserve world peace.

This is the soft-toned delegates' lounge at United Nations headquarters, just before a UN Security Council meeting on the Korean War. Delegates, UN staf people and newsmen mill about. Some stand in small clumps near the bar. Others recline on cocoa-brown chairs, riling through oreign newspapers.

North Korea's aggression was a lightning bolt to a UN that languished half a year under a Russian boycott. The shock jolted the UN into vigorous new lie, and catapulted it back to the centre of the world stage.

Talking in this super-charged atosphere, the men in the lounge know all eyes are upon them once more. The knowledge is a tonic that will long outlast the briginal shock. It has affected everyone in this building. Each man's step is quicker, his thinking sharper and more incisive.

There's Sir Gladwyn Jebb, Britain's new representative on the Council thrust into the crisis from the moment of his arrival. A reporter has collared Yugoslavia's Dr. Ales Bebler, who is unhappily adrift between East and West. One by one the other Council members appear.

In comes Warren Austin, captain of the home team. Balding, big-chested, his handsome, healthy face set off by bankerish pince-nez, he moves around the room, greeting friends warmly. Soon, he grabs the arm of stocky Trygve Lie, UN Secretary-General, and the two talk quietly amid the buzz.

In a few moments discreet chimes sound and the delegates file across the hall into the Council chamber.

The broad setting of this place is oddly contradictory. The UN's headquarters are in a low-lying buff brick factory built during World War II and still partly used for manufacturing.

It's a tiny island of internationalism amid suburban Long Island's sprawling acres of new red and white brick bungalows, ward home, family, the backyard where most thoughts trend togarden and a day at the beach.

Inside the plant you're in a realm apart. Through naked factory corridors walled with ordinary cinder blocks walk people from the four corners of the globe. Exotic dress and unfamiliar tongues go unnoticed. Signs are in both English and French.

Only the lounge, the eating places, the lobbies, a few key offices and the working chambers show any effort to disguise the bare factory. The Security Council chamber looks like a modern radio studio.

The council members range themselves around a semi-circular table. They're here this time to act on a resolution that will stiffen the UN's stand against the North Koreans.

In the bright glow of television lamps, one after another the delegates from the various countries make their views known. There are ten in all; the 11th, Jacob Malik of Russia, is absent—by design.

A show of hands indicates the resolution is carried with the seven votes prescribed by UN rules. The performance seems rather cut and dried to the hundreds of spectators who came to watch this fight for peace.

But, like the work done in our own Congress, the real labors took place earlier. Representatives on the council, which as the peace-preserving agency is the UN's heart, have hammered out their differences in repeated comings and goings among their Manhattan offices. The smoothly-adopted resolution is the fruit of three or four days' hard negotiating.

Not always can the council proceeds so effortlessly. The UN is not a world government, not an entity in itself. It's a collection of independent countries searching for a common ground on which to build peace. It moves only at the will of its members; at any time one may break over the traces.

Malik's empty seat is mute proof of that. Relaxing at Glen Cove, Long Island, in a mansion that once was home to the arch-capitalist J. P. Morgan, the Soviet delegate is exercising his country's right to act independently.

But few are thinking of Malik as the council session ends with broad smiles all around. Again the UN has given what Jean Chauvel, the French member, calls a "lofty display of collective conscience."

Back in the lounge the excited give-and-take of hopeful talk resumes. Off to one side, a bespectacled little Korean stands sad-faced and silent, clinging to his brief case. An attack on his country accounts for all this stir but no one pays any attention to him.

Tomorrow: The UN takes its biggest stride forward.

Home Founded By Verdi Still Flourishes

By GILBERTO FORTI

MILAN, Italy, July 16—(AP)—The applause has died away but the music of yesterday's great concert halls still echoes in a quiet home here where famed musicians of the past still play and sing and teach.

There are 70 of them—40 men and 30 women pasing the twilight of their careers in Milan's "House of Rest for Aged Musicians". Most of them are in their 80s.

The home was founded by Giuseppe Verdi, composer of Rigoletto, La Traviata, and Aida. He is buried there. In his will he left his operas, his fortune and his body to the home for those who have loved music and given their lives for it.

Signora Giannina Russ, one of the greatest who ever sang Bellini's Norma, is teaching there now—at 76.

Riccardo Pettinella, 81, famed Italian conductor and teacher, still has pupils who come daily.

He listens to the songs of young hope—and smiles.

Can't Be Cured

"Music is an illness that has no cure; we old ones have the love of it still."

Since the original trust fund set up by Verdi for the home, it has received support of many musicians and music lovers in Italy and abroad. These include Toscanini, Beniamino Gigli, Giacomo Lauri Volpi, Giulio Gatti Gazsazza.

Before the war, funds were sent once a month by the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York.

Now times are harder. Lira devaluation has cut heavily into the trust funds in reserve.

Delay Taking Steel Orders

CLEVELAND, July 17—(AP)—Steel mills are becoming increasingly cautious about accepting orders in view of the Korean war, Steel magazine said today.

Fearing that military requirements may cut into civilian production, steel-makers generally are delaying the opening of fourth quarter books, the magazine said today.

Notable among products in heavy demand are carbon plates. Steel attributed this to a "flurry of war-inspired interest" in railroad car procurement.

Ingot output rose one point last week to 96 per cent of rated capacity production. Despite some interference from summer vacations. This is equal to about 1,830,000 tons.

Korean War May Call Halt To Any Change In Old-Age Pension Plan

Ottawa Officials Seen Cooling Noticeably On Committee Report Action; See No Sign Of Proposal For Conference

By DOUGLAS HOW

OTTAWA, July 18.—(CP)—The Korean war, in addition to its many other ramifications, may have tipped the scales against any further Canadian advance into the welfare state at this time. It is considered doubtful here that the Federal government, faced with the prospect of mounting defence costs and months of world tension, will seriously consider a sharp increase in old-age pensions costs as recommended by a joint parliamentary committee last month.

It is a point that will depend a lot on what happens now and the autumn Dominion-Provincial conference that will get the committee's report for consideration.

But, in Ottawa at least, it is apparent that Korea has notably altered a political climate that appeared to be quite favorable to step forward in pension legislation, with all major parties backing it.

The committee's recommendations——for a $40-a-month pension to all at 70, a means-test pension for the needy from 65 to 69—would cost the public more than $385,000,000 if fully implemented. The Federal budget now runs to roughly $2,400,000,000.

To Table Report

There is no sign that the Federal government is preparing any proposal on pensions to place before the conference or that it intends to do more than table the committee's report.

It is conceivable that one of the provinces will project pensions into the forefront of conference discussion. Several have already suggested that the question should be on the agenda.

However, if the situation arising from Korea and other Communist potentialities is as serious then as now, it is doubtful whether the discussion will do more than air opinions for action on some happier future date.

Whether Ottawa would have been prepared to expand the pensions setup if Korea hadn't come along is mainly a matter for conjecture. The fact is that Korea struck before any serious consideration could be given.

There has been for some time a tendency to rivalry between defence and health costs, each large, each tending to want to grow larger. Korea has entered that fray with a truculent emphasis.

Britain Halts Oil Shipments To Red China

LONDON, July 18 (AP) — A Foreign Office spokesman announced today Britain has stopped all oil shipments to Red China.

British services operating in the Far East decided to take over all stocks of oil there for their own use. Their needs have increased due to operations undertaken in carrying out the United Nations Security Council resolution for bringing back peace to Korea, the spokesman said.

Britain earlier this month turned down an American suggestion that oil shipments to Red China be limited. The foreign office spokesman at that time said only oil for civilian consumption was going to Red China.

The spokesman said only one British company has been selling oil to the Chinese Communists. In the first six months of this year, he said, total supplies amounted to 26,000 tons—less than a tenth of China's civilian requirements.

The spokesman added:

"The question of the future supply of oil products to China has, however, become academic, since the British service departments (army, navy, air force), acting in terms of the United Nations Security Council resolution on Korea, have decided to take over all stocks of oil held by that company in the theatre."

Koreans Shoot 30 In Litters

By WILLIAM R. MOORE

AN AMERICAN COMMAND POST IN KOREA, July 18 (AP)—Thirty wounded American soldiers were reported tonight to have been shot to death in their litters Sunday night by North Koreans who swarmed across the Kum river.

Two of those reported slain were mortar men who had held their mortar tubes in place by hand until their hands were burned and their arms broken.

This story was told tonight (Moore's dispatch was filed at 11:20 p.m. Tuesday—7:20 a.m. Tuesday, EDT) by some of the men of the regiment who were in the thickest of Sunday's battle.

Sgt. Arnold McKenny, of Newport, Vt., relating the slaying of the wounded, said he was told that those killed included a Roman Catholic chaplain "while he was giving the benediction."

Canadian Destroyers Thought Korea-Bound

PEARL HARBOR, July 18. — (AP).—A reliable United States source said today some ships of a new U.S. Pacific task force, possibly accompanied by three Canadian destroyers, may be steaming for the Korean battle zone.

The heavy U.S. cruisers Helena and Toledo and the destroyers Ghevalier, Wiltsie, Hamner and Chandler of this 12-ship combat force have been at sea at least five days.

At first it was assumed these ships left Pearl Harbor for training exercises in Hawaiian waters while waiting for the 27,000-ton aircraft carrier Philippine Sea and other ships of the force to load ammunition and supplies.

But a source close to Admiral Arthur W. Radford's Pacific fleet headquarters said this may not be so.

Aged Brothers Killed

Expect Truman To Demand Men And Money

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) President Truman will call for more men, money and authority to deal with the Korea crisis tomorrow but, one Congressional leader said, will not now seek a tax increase.

The President set aside much of today for work on final drafts of his two Wednesday messages—a report to Congress at noon EDT and a country-wide broadcast at 10:30 p.m.

As pieced together from a dozen sources Truman's requests to Congress are expected to include:

An additional $5,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000 in military spending authority.

Permission to increase by 220,000 men or more than the authorized strength of the United States armed forces—or, about 770,000 above today's actual strength.

Limited Priority

Limited powers of priority and allocation, to channel steel and other materials into arms production, by voluntary means if possible and compulsory means if necessary.

Anti-inflation measures including curbs on consumer credit but not including the price, wage or ration powers of the Second World War.

Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois, Democratic leader in the Senate, told a reporter he does not expect Truman will ask higher tax rates at this time.

Despite the trend toward emergency action, the prospect of harsh federal controls in the near future abated somewhat.

It was reported that only a few materials—steel and such other metals as copper, zinc and lead—will be brought under federal control, even if Congress gives Truman blanket allocation authority over all materials. Aluminum would not be touched.

Turn Tables On Steel Canada Supplies U.S.

OTTAWA, July 18 (CP) — An abnormal situation has cropped up in which the government has had to issue export permits to ship sheet steel to the United States, a trade official disclosed today.

This is a turn-about since Canada depends on the United States for her sheet metal requirements. However, the shortage of that commodity in the U.S has grown so acute that U.S. firms have appealed to Canadians to transfer supplies to the U.S.

The official said requests for export permits to ship steel out of Canada are "looked at very closely."

Doubt Canada Will Send Ground Troops To Korea

By DOUGLAS HOW

OTTAWA, July 18—(CP)—High-level opinion appears to be firmly against committing Canada's airborne infantry brigade to Korean action. Some informed quarters expressed doubt that the Cabinet, under present circumstances, will want to send ground troops at all.

Top military advisers met Monday and will meet again today to consider proposals to place before the Cabinet Wednesday as a result of the call for more aid.

Official circles said a series of alternative proposals are under consideration but these factors appeared to be shaping up:

1. It now appears unlikely the Cabinet would seriously consider sending the one regular army formation available, the three-battalion, airborne brigade that constitutes the country's main ground bulwark against attack.

2. People in key positions expressed doubt the Cabinet will agree to send any ground troops but the Army has suggested that it recruit a new brigade to be trained for some months and dispatched to Korea.

3. If the plan is jettisoned or postponed as far as Korea is concerned, the brigade may still be raised to be ready for action elsewhere if a long siege of world tension is planned by the Communists. This would mean a manpower increase for the army of 2,000 to 3,000.

4. The Government would probably not bar Canadian enlistments for an international legion for Korea, but no such formal proposition has reached here from UN headquarters.

5. It is possible that the Government will offer some further Korean aid, say transport aircraft, but that it will suggest to Washington it would be wise to keep Canadian troops at home in case of a Communist attack in the North.

Lines Hold As Enemy Attack Eases

Hint Enemy Feeling Shattering Results Of Heavy Bombing

TOKYO, July 19—(Wednesday)—(AP)— The Communist invasion of South Korea was at a standstill north and west of Taejon today, apparently jarred to a halt by the opposition of the outnumbered American defenders.

The situation on the whole Korean front was so quiet that Gen. MacArthur did not issue his usual early-morning communique. His public information officer said there was nothing new to report and there was "little enemy activity."

Not since late Monday had any major activity been recorded.

The Americans standing firm before Taejon sent out patrols in quest of information. American and Australian planes roamed the skies Tuesday and reported three enemy tanks and 28 trucks knocked out. They sighted two enemy planes which fled.

U.S. 24th Division troops battling against overwhelming odds still hold positions north of Taejon. That rail centre, once considered the key to South Korea's defence, remains in American hands, a U.S. Eighth Army spokesman reported.

Inflict Casualties

To the west, South Korean troops attacked on the central sector Tuesday night (Korea time) and then withdrew to defence positions after inflicting heavy casualties, the spokesman said.

The Reds were taking a battering from the air by Jet fighters, Mustangs and light bombers. Heavy bombers struck behind the lines in strategic attacks which sooner or later should show up in a slackening of Communist supplies at the front.

So heavy was the air beating that fighter pilots reported the Reds moving their armor and motor columns only by night and lying low in daylight.

U.S. Far East headquarters informed the defence department at Washington that the defenders were holding all along the line and that enemy pressure had eased. A Washington spokesman said there is more tactical support for the Americans from artillery and air.

There was little action at the front. Artillery and United Nations planes struck wherever the North Koreans appeared.

Taejon had been evacuated by advanced American field headquarters. The South Korean provisional government pulled out last week.

Maj.-Gen. William F. Dean, who led an infantry column against a Red roadblock in Saturday's heavy fighting at the Kum, said the Communists had not been

British Troops May Go To Korea

SINGAPORE, July 18 —(Reuters)—High military sources said today that eight British Infantry battalions in Singapore could embark for Korea within 48 hours if so ordered.

These sources expressed belief that British troops from Singapore and Hong Kong will be sent to Korea.

"It is obvious that a British contingent — probably a origade group—should be sent to Korea," a senior staff officer said.

According to rumors here, a British contingent to Korea might comprise a Scots battalion from Hong Kong: the first battalion of the Scots Guards, now chasing guerillas in the Johore jungles; and a Canadian Army battalion reported to be mobilizing at Vancouver.

Some observers said they consider it more likely that British troops will be sent from the Middle East where present commitments are less onerous. The Malayan government is known to oppose any reduction of military strength here on grounds it would step up Chinese Communist guerilla activity.

Kashmir Crash Takes Life Of BC Brigadier

NEW DELHI, India, July 18 — (CP). — Brig. H. H. Angle of Kelowna, BC, chief of the United Nations military observers in Kashmir, and 21 other persons were killed Monday in the crash of an Indian National Airways plane. The twin-engined aircraft fell in the Himalayan foothills near Kashmir during a heavy rainstorm.

Gen. Courtney Hodges of the United States—adviser to the UN Kashmir mediator, Sir Owen Dixon of Australia — was scheduled to make the flight, but cancelled his passage at the last minute.

Five other Americans, three attached to the Kashmir Mission died.

Cause of the accident has not been determined. The plane was missing for 12 hours before villagers found wreckage in a river bed near the town of Pathankot in the 12,000-foot high Banihal Pass. It was on a non-stop flight from New Delhi to Sringar, capital of Kashmir.

To Attend Meeting

Angle, former fruit farmer, magistrate and military man, was to return to New Delhi Thursday for a meeting on the thorny Kashmir dispute between India and Pakistan.

After serving as an observer for a year supervising the truce between India and Pakistan in Kashmir, Angle was appointed

Seek Asia Peace No Appeasement

WASHINGTON, July 18. — (AP). — State Secretary Dean Acheson was believed ready to tell Prime Minister Nehru today that the United States wants peace in Asia, but not at the price of bowing to Communist aggression in Korea.

A carefully worded no-appeasement reply to the Indian leader's peace approach to the United States and Russia was drafted for dispatch to New Delhi.

The State Department expected to make it public after a copy is handed also to Madame Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, Indian ambassador and Nehru's sister.

The United States and most of the non-Communist members of the United Nations were expected to insist on their previous condition: That negotiation for a Korean settlement be preceded by a return of North Korean forces to their own territory north of the 38th parallel.

British Navy Officials Comb Area For Saboteurs

PORTSMOUTH, England, July 18—Reuters) — Naval and military security officers today combined in a countrywide hunt for sabotage suspects in British naval dockyards. They were working on the theory that last week's explosions in Gosport harbor, Portsmouth—Britain's main naval base — and three fresh cases of attempted sabotage on board destroyers, were all part of a large-scale plot.

Incidents so far disclosed concerned only the navy, but the possibility of attempts in other services is being watched.

Aircraft factories are under special surveillance.

Investigating officers are screening all workers at nearby Gosport ammunition dump, the source of the thousand of shell, bombs and depth charges blown up when nine ammunition barges exploded last Friday.

Earlier an admiralty statement said "the possibility of sabotage cannot be ruled out."

Naval authorities would not comment but it is understood the investigation covers three recent cases of suspected sabotage in destroyers.

Two of the destroyers are said to have been damaged at Devonport naval base. The third was at sea when the effects of suspected sabotage became evident.

Four other incidents at Devonport have been investigated in the last two years. In December, 1948, six steel bolts were found in the gear box of the light carrier Sydney. In January, 1949, an oil pipe in the steering machinery of a submarine was found blocked with rag. Last May three signal flares were found in the boiler room of the carrier Illustrious. A handful of sand was found last month in the main propelling machinery of a submarine.

The Portsmouth explosion, if it was due to sabotage, must have been the work of trained and skilled men.

According to one report, much of the ammunition in the Portsmouth explosion was intended for warships on the Korean patrol.

Lynn Patrick To Coach Bruins

BOSTON, July 18 — (AP) — Lynn Patrick, former star and coach of New York Rangers in the National Hockey League today was named Boston Bruins coach.

Bruins' general manager Arthur H. Ross reported Patrick accepted a contract from his home in Victoria, B.C.

Patrick, 38, succeeds George Boucher who coached the Bruins last season.

The new coach is the sixth in the Bruins 26-year history. Among his predecessors was his uncle, Frank Patrick, who held the post from 1934 to 1936.

Patrick was a star left winger with the Rangers for 10 seasons through 1946. He took over as Rangers' coach in December, 1948.

His first full coaching season last year, he swept the Rangers almost to victory in the Stanley Cup play.

Soon after Patrick announced his resignation to take over the hockey interests of his father, Lester Patrick, in Victoria.

Ross declined comment on the terms of Patrick's contract.

Joint Commission Studies Red River Control Plans

OTTAWA, July 18 (CP)—The International Joint Commission met today to discuss long-range plans to control the Red River and prevent reoccurrence of the disastrous floods which caused millions of dollars damage recently in Winnipeg and other parts of Manitoba.

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, selected Monday to succeed the late Hon. J. A. Glen as chairman of the Canadian section, said that the commission will study the report of a joint Canada-United States engineering board established to study ways of preventing the floods.

"Plans for further engineering investigations required in the two countries will be discussed," he said.

The Red River valley flood problem was referred to the commission for study by the Canadian and United States governments in 1948. The commission recently was asked to speed up the work on its investigations.

Gen. McNaughton said there probably would be no announcements following the commission's meetings, expected to last for two days. They are held in private.

He said the commission reports to the governments of Canada and United States and it is up to them to make any announcements they see fit.

In a recent interview, Gen. McNaughton said:

"If we can work out plans to delay the cresting of the Red River for 10 days or so each spring we can go a long way towards meeting the problem. We are hitting on all six on these matters of Red and Assiniboine River control and I am quite happy about the way everything is working out."

CCL Accuses Argentine Of 'Torture'

Files Official Protest Over Treatment Given Union Workers

OTTAWA, July 18—(CP)—The 350,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor today accused the Argentine government of alleged mistreatment and "torture" of workers and padlocking of trade union offices in the Argentine.

It announced that it has filed an official protest with the Argentine embassy, as an endorsation of a resolution recently passed by the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions.

The embassy said it could make no immediate comment on the protest.

The Congress said a copy of the I.C.F.T.U. resolution has been sent to the embassy and to External Affairs Minister Pearson.

Stern Actions

It said the resolution complained of:

1. Closure by the Argentine government of the offices of several unions;

2. Arrest and torture of seven workers who had taken part in a trade union meeting in Tucuman;

3. Closing down of democratic newspapers, "or the adoption of measures which make it difficult or practically impossible for them to appear regularly."

4. Order of arrest against Candido Gregorio, delegate of the COASI to the London Congress of the ICFTU.

Sex Slayings Unite Berlin Police Forces

BERLIN, July 18.—(AP).—The rival police forces of divided Berlin put aside their political differences today and teamed up to fight crime.

Representatives of the West Berlin homicide squad and two inspectors of the Eastern "People's Police" agreed to work together on all murder cases.

The action was prompted by the sex slaying of two girls, one six and one 10 years of age, during the last month. There have also been a dozen armed robbery killings recently. Detectives complain east sector criminals hide in the west and vice versa.

Air Chief Slams RAF Deficiency

LONDON, July 18—(Reuters) —Air Chief Marshal Sir Guy Garrod, chairman of the Air League of the British Empire, today criticized the British Government for sending latest-type fighter aircraft to its western allies while the state of its own air defences was "worse than alarming."

"In a grave and deteriorating international situation our air defences are seriously deficient," he told a league luncheon in London. "The Royal Air Force and its auxiliaries must be strengthened at any cost and without delay."

"There must never be another 'Battle of Britain' like the last," he said.

Reuther Urges Spend Trillion Fight Reds

DETROIT, July 18— (AP). — President Truman today was asked to propose that the United States invest more than a trillion dolars in a 100-year fight against Communism.

Walter Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers Union (CIO), made the proposal to the President.

He advocated it as the country's part of a United Nations world-wide "total peace offensive" intended, Reuther said, to wipe Communism off the earth.

Reuther proposed a vast nine-point world-wide program under UN sponsorship.

American financial contribution would be at the rate of $13,000,000 000 a year.

U.S. Engineer Arrested As Atom Spy

Fourth Man Linked To Fuch's Ring As FBI Presses Hunt

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP).—The fourth American allegedly linked to the Klaus Fuchs atom spy ring was seized at his home here Monday night by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

He is 32-year-old Julius Rosenberg—a baldish, bespectacled engineer, married and father of two children.

The Department of Justice charged him with conspiracy to commit espionage, and said he had recruited for a cloak-and-dagger Soviet spy apparatus that penetrated United States atomic secrets.

He was arraigned and held in jail in lieu of $100,000 bail for a federal court hearing July 31.

"Rosenberg is another important link in the Soviet espionage apparatus," FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said in Washington, where the arrest was announced.

Tentacles Spread

In the last two months the United States government has arrested three other Americans it says were implicated in the spy ring headed by Dr Klaus Fuchs, the German-born Communist sympathizer who worked his way to the top of Britain's atomic program.

Fuchs confessed and now is serving a 14-year prison term in Britain.

The three Americans seized as a result of Fuchs' disclosures were Harry Gold, a Philadelphia biochemist; Alfred Dean Slack, a scientist, of Syracuse, N.Y., and David Greenglass, a New York machinist and former U.S. army sergeant.

All were charged with wartime espionage—a charge that can mean the death penalty.

The FBI announcement said the American-born Rosenberg's part in the ring was the recruiting of Greenglass—then stationed at the atomic bomb laboratories at Los Alamos, N.M.—to work with Gold.

At their first meeting in June, 1945, Hoover said, "Greenglass was paid $500 by Gold, who obtained it from his Soviet superior, Anatoli A. Yakolev, Soviet vice-consul in New York City."

able to put their tanks across the river in force.

At a command post after four days at the front, Dean, commander of the U.S. 24th Infantry Division, said the Communists had not dented the new American positions north and west of the city of 150,000.

Gen. MacArthur in Tokyo and an Eighth Army spokesman in Korea reported all U.S. lines intact in the area.

Only 4 Tanks

The Reds had been reported pouring reinforcements across the Kum River. They wrested a foothold there by sheer manpower from a thin line of Americans in the Kongju area, 20 miles northwest of Taejon. But the spokesman at Eighth Army headquarters in Korea said only four North Korean tanks had been reported south of the river.

Associated Press correspondent William R. Moore reported from the battle zone that air power appeared to be slowing the Red drive at Taejon.

American planes, he said, seemed to have kept North Korean armor from moving against the Americans around the city.

Far East air force headquarters said tank-hunting fighters were sweeping the battle area in good weather. In a special communique covering operations up to 2 p.m. (midnight EDT Monday) FEAF added three tanks and 28 trucks to Monday's bag of 21 tanks and 143 trucks.

Reorganize Positions

The South Korean first corps, holding the front of the eastern side of the Americans around Taejon, have reorganized their defensive positions, MacArthur said.

But it also reported the Reds were moving reinforcements to their fifth division, which was driving southward from Tanyang, 60 miles northeast of Taejon.

This Red force, striking for American supply lines, was reported stopped by counter-attacking South Koreans Sunday in the Yechon area about 20 miles southeast of Tanyang. U.S. supplies move to the northwest from the big port of Pusan in southeastern Korea.

Allied warships, MacArthur reported, shelled the east coast again. Their guns chewed off earth that plunged down across the coastal highway and blocked Communist transport.

MacArthur estimated Red casualties in the war at 11,000 but said accurate figures were impossible.

Order McAuliffe To Stand Trial

SIMCOE, July 18 — (CP). — Charged with a $22,500 bank robbery and the slaying of two men who tried to apprehend the robber, 32-year-old Joseph Herbert McAuliffe has been ordered to stand trial.

Three witnesses identified McAuliffe at Monday's preliminary hearing as the man who held up the Imperial Bank of Canada branch in Langton, 15 miles south-west of here, June 21. Police say the same man shot down Arthur Lierman 31, and William Goddyn 24, with a blast of sub-machine gun fire as they pursued him by car.

Three bank employees told Magistrate H. P. Innes of identifying McAuliffe in a police lineup on Sunday, June 25—the day before the first pictures of the suspect appeared in the press.

Inspector Frank Kelly of the Ontario Provincial Police said McAuliffe was one of 15 men, all wearing helmets and all of approximately the same build, who appeared in the lineup. Nine of 10 witnesses spotted McAuliffe in the lineup.

Market Leaders Reach Higher Ground Today

TORONTO, July 18 —(CP)— Steady buying pulled a broad list of market leaders into higher ground on the Toronto stock exchange today. Key stocks showed the strongest gains following a slow decline yesterday.

Most industrial changes were held to fractions. Papers, refining oils and liquors climbed and utilities and steels brightened quietly.

Base metals opened easier but quickly recovered to show an almost solid list of gains. East Sullian attracted considerable attention following news of an increased dividend and Anacon Lead and Ascot traded quickly on the upside.

Golds also adanced over a broad front. Seniors gained fractionally and junior producers showed advances ranging up to about 30 cents.

Says Canada Can Produce All Food Needed In UK

OTTAWA, July 18.—(CP).—An eminent United Kingdom agricultural scientist expressed belief Monday that Canada, with its vast agricultural resources, could be developed to the point where it could produce not only her own but all of the foodstuff needs of Britain's 50,000,000 people. Sir William Ogg, director of Britain's Rothhamsted experimental station, told a press conference he was convinced Canada was not getting out of her soil all that it could yield. If an emergency arose, Canada's agricultural resources could be developed to meet all of Britain's needs.

Sir William is head of the seven-man mission of U.K agricultural scientists making a two-month tour of the Canadian rural scene at the invitation of the Canadian government to foster closer working relations with Canadian scientists. It followed a U.K. tour completed last year by a Canadian mission.

With Sir William are Dr. D. P. Cuthbertson, a nutrition expert in charge of the Rowett Research Institute at Aberdeen; Prof. W. Ellison of the University College of Wales; J. H. Anderson of the National Agricultural Advisory Service at Cambridge; W. H. Senior of Scotland's agricultural department; Prof. Ewen M'Ewen of the University of Durham and Dr. W. F. Darke, agricultural adviser to the U.K. High Commissioner in Canada.

Approve Potatoes

The press conference extended over a wide range of farm subjects. The mission, which already has completed a tour of the Maritime and eastern Canadian provinces, expressed delight with Canada's development of seed potato growth, which Sir William said was far in advance of what Britain has been able to obtain.

Sir William said soil which some Canadians may consider poor, would be considered satisfactory in the U.K., and would be worked to produce far more than Canada is getting out of it.

The mission also told the conference that Britain is gradually turning away from grain crops towards livestock and this trend should mean greater wheat requirements from Canada.

Needs Dollars

Sir William emphasized that Britain still is not sufficiently supplied with dollars to buy all the food she would like to buy from Canada.

He realized, he said, that without Canada's help, Britain "would have starved" during the Second World War. The feeling in Britain

Say Explosion Carelessness

LEAMINGTON, July 18 (CP). —A coroner's jury Monday night found an "inexcusable" action to blame in a Lake Erie lighthouse fire off Point Pelee July 7 which took the lives of two men.

W. A. Moore 64, lighthouse keeper, and Dowsley Kingston 42, of Prescott a marine signals inspector, died of burns and shock following an explosion and fire which occurred while gasoline was being transferred from the lighthouse tender Grenville.

The jury's report said the presence of an electric motor near gasoline was "inexcusable." Witnesses said the two men were working on the motor in the lighthouse when gasoline exploded.

The jury also said that discipline and supervision of the Grenville's crew was "lax" and recommended stricter safety measures in the transfer of explosive commodities.

The fire, starting at the base of the 75-foot high tower, gutted the lighthouse, which stands on the south-east shoal off Point Pelee.

Boy Back From Class Finds Parents Shot

SCHUMACHER, July 18—(CP) —The father and mother of a figure-skating family were shot to death Monday in what police called a case of murder and suicide.

Dead are Fernand Belec, 42, and his 38-year-old wife, Therese. Police said they know of no motive for the killings. Neighbors described the Belecs as a model family.

The couple and their two children were keen figure skaters. All four had appeared in ice carnivals sponsored by a local skating club. Their son, Jack, 14, was Northern Ontario junior men's single champion in 1948 and 1949. Their daughter, Dorothy, 16, was runner-up for the Northern Ontario senior ladies championship.

Jack Belec found the bodies in his parents four-room apartment when he returned from a figure-skating class.

Britain Doing Best For UN

LONDON, July 18 (AP) — Prime Minister Attlee told the House of Commons today that Britain is "doing its best" to support the United Nations declaration on Korea.

Attlee made the statement when asked to give assurance that the government is doing everything possible to support Prime Minister Nehru of India in mediation attempts.

Cheers greeted the prime minister's statement.

When Labor member Emrys Hughes asked for details about Nehru's representations, Attlee replied that the information was confidential.

Britain has given full support to the U.N. declaration which named the Communists of North Korea as aggressors and called for all UN members to aid in bringing about a cease-fire.

Earlier today the cabinet, meeting for the second successive day, studied a report of the latest discussions between Sir David Kelly, ambassador to Moscow and Andrei Gromyko, Russia's deputy foreign minister, on a Korean peace.

Commonwealth Gov't Plan Not Popular

WELLINGTON, N.Z., July 18.—(Reuters). — Suggestions for a Commonwealth cabinet were deprecated today by Patrick Gordon-Walker, United Kingdom secretary for Commonwealth relations.

Recently arrived from Canada in the course of a Commonwealth tour, Gordon-Walker was asked at a press conference to comment on a London report that Prime Minister Robert Menzies of Australia was making the suggestion during his current British visit.

Gordon-Walker said in his opinion a supreme body within the Commonwealth with authority "to order individual Commonwealth countries about" would not work, although "existing facilities for the exchange of opinions and information might be still further improved."

Scientists Find Smoking Aids Lung Cancer

PARIS, July 18 (AP)—Three teams of scientists Monday blamed smoking, especially cigarettes, for apparently causing part of the increase in lung cancer, the fastest growing type of cancer in the United States.

Three reports, all by Americans, were made to the fifth International Cancer Research Congress. They constituted probably the most authoritative discussion yet held on whether many years of habitual smoking may cause cancer. By many years, the scientists meant at least 20.

About 20,000 Americans die each year now of lung cancer. The number of new cases in 1948 was nearly three times that of 1939, said Dr. Alton Ochsner, president of the American Cancer Society The death rate in Britain is higher than in the U.S.

Smoking has been suspected of contributing to the steady rise of lung cancer in many countries. So have other things, such as gasoline fumes and city dusts. No single cause of human cancer has yet been discovered.

"But it appears without doubt that inhalation of cigarette smoke exerts a carcinogenic (cancer causing) effect upon lung tissue" Dr Ochsner said. "And it can be predicted that if cigarette smok-

Canadian Judge Dissents Ruling

THE HAGUE, July 18 (Reuters)—The International Court of Justice today told the United Nations its secretary - general was not authorized to appoint a third member of a commission to deal with disputes arising from the peace treaties of the Western powers with Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania. Judge John Read of Canada dissented.

In its advisory opinion, given by 11 votes to 2, the court said the secretary-general's power to appoint a third member derived solely from the agreement of the parties.

Judge Read believed the secretary-general was authorized to appoint third members competent to give binding decisions.

He maintained that by giving a negative answer to the United Nations' questions, judicial interpretation gave an escape clause available to treaty violators.

This, he declared, would enable a defaulting party to destroy the effectiveness of the disputes article, to disregard with impunity most of its undertakings, and render largely nugatory the guarantees for securing human rights and fundamental freedoms.

Miss Coleen Smith Proclaimed Miss Campbellford For 1950

CAMPBELLFORD, July 18 — (ENS)—The Monday meeting of the Rotary Club was taken up with reports by the committee in charge of the street fair held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week.

Rotarian Bill Holmes, treasurer, reported that the receipts for the three day carnival would be approximately $2,500. Frank DeCarrol, chairman of the committee in charge said he had received excellent co-operation from members of the club, local merchants and residents. He was a little disappointed with the receipts.

The club took in $600 from the sale of tickets on the draw for the television set. This was won by Mr. K. Bennett, of Windsor.

Miss Colleen Smith, of Campbellford, is the new Miss Campbellford for 1950. She was chosen out of a field of 18 contestants, before a huge crowd on Front Street. President Arthur K. Loucks, of the Rotary Club, presented Miss Smith with a silver cup, a $125 diamond studded watch, a $35 cosmetic set and travelling case, and a beautiful corsage of red roses. Miss Roberta Wilson won second place and Miss Marg Flint third. Each of the runners-up received cosmetic sets.

The feature on Friday evening was a tug-of-war between Seymour East and Seymour West. Crowds lined the street on both sides to witness the husky residents from the two districts, as they set themselves for the big pull. East won.

The main street of the town was turned into a veritable midway, with games of chance, bingo, and other attractions.

A Toronto magician, Ron Leonard, on Thursday night had the large crowd bewildered with his feats of magic. Buddy Arden, well known Toronto puppeteer, entertained with his marionettes.

Tommy Recaldini's orchestra played for the street dance. The members of the orchestra were at Campbellford for a holiday and when they heard of the carnival, they offered their services free.

'Humanizing' Parks

Outrement, a municipality within Montreal, has decided to 'humanize' its parks. It has some very pleasant ones, with good grass, shade trees, flower beds and benches. The most pleasant have been governed by regulations forbidding the playing of games in them and the rules have been enforced. The Outrement City Council, after some urging, is now relaxing the rules so as to allow children to play ball and otherwise run around. That is called 'humanizing' the parks, by the approving Montreal Gazette. It is apparently not human to keep the park serene and gracious for mere sitters or strollers.

We can sympathize to a limited extent with the policy of allowing public parks to be used for playgrounds. Cities have all too little space for young children to romp and youth to knock balls about. But if the process of 'humanizing' parks is carried too far, the parks disappear; they become sports grounds. 'Humanizing' parks may also be called deflowering parks.

Peterborough, as a warning example of a trend, has only one of its dozens parks now reserved as a park—Confederation Square—and even that is being encroached on by football-booters and short-cutters tramping bare paths where once grass flourished. Part of Victoria Park is a school-pupils' playground. All other parks have become entirely or partly tot-lots, wading pools, ball fields, hockey rinks, ski grounds, and catch-alls for the amusement but not the enchantment and relaxation of the public. Only a large park such as Jackson Park can adequately serve a dozen purposes, and be both park and play-ground.

The Montreal Gazette hopes that "a program can shortly be evolved which will permit greater devotion of parks to their primary recreation purposes, especially children." People in other cities who have witnessed the 'programming' and 'humanizing' of parks to the extent that the parks have been obliterated, may question that their "primary recreation purposes" are sporting and gambolling. Recreation is not a synonym for sport. Recreation means a good deal more than games-playing, and, in fact, the majority of people take their recreation in other ways. If public parks in a democratic city are for the benefit of the majority of people, and most of the people do not play games, then it follows that the majority of parks should be kept as parks, and not converted into playing-fields.

A Warning To Fat Men

The Windsor Star warns fat men against getting into Fat Men's Races at summer picnics. Sudden exercise and strain on the heart may prove dangerous and even fatal, it warns.

Though sad, this is true. Fat men's races are organized, not so much to see which fat man can run fastest, as to see fat men running. Their trundlings, and lollopings, and comical gaspings and chokings are highly amusing to that section of the populace which delights in seeing people slip on banana skins and sit down on chairs which aren't there. And as fat men are, in many cases, good-nataured fellows who do not mind making spectacles of themselves in order to amuse others, fat men's races are usually well supplied with entrants. Fat men are plainly not framed for racing and therefore many people perversely like to see them run, just as many people like to see chickens swim and dogs with cans tied to their tails. We agree with the Star that fat men who run in races—particularly if they lead sedentary lives—are taking a risk, and should weigh that risk just as carefully as they weigh themselves.

The proper mode of progression for a fat man is a slow walk. He looks best when he is bowling quietly along a level path at a speed of about three miles an hour. In such circumstances a fat man has a certain massive dignity, and even beauty. In Imperial China, where fat was admired, mandarins trained themselves to walk in a curious, floating manner, and we are told in books of travel that they were impressive and graceful as they did so. A mandarin would have died rather than race. And because they did not race, fat mandarins usually lived to advanced ages. There is a lesson for Ontario fat men in the mandarins of old.

Good Riddance To Fifteen Tons Of Carp

A goldfish is a carp, but it is not the pretty little fellows in garden ponds which fishermen abhor and the Department of Lands and Forests is trying to exterminate from lakes. The carp they are after is a big ugly bronze brute of a thing, weighing an average of twenty pounds, no sport for fishermen and no exquisite dish for the table. Carp have a limited commercial value; in large centres like New York some sections of the people eat their flesh. But that market is surfeited.

Because the carp is ugly and unwanted, he does not suffer from fishermen's depredations; he grows fat and multiplies. Because he roots around like a pig, destroying the water vegetation on which other fish depend for food and shelter, the Department is making an effort to kill him off. This season, when biologists were making a check of the variety and numbers of fish in the Kawarthas, fifteen tons of carp were taken in the nets and destroyed.

The netting of carp by the Department has now become an annual part of the spring and early summer fish survey. The 30,000 pounds taken in the Sturgeon Lake area this season have been good riddance to bad rubbish. They make useful fertilizer, but farmers to whom they have been offered free are slow to pick them up. Since they putrefy rapidly, this year they have been deposited in lime pits, a good end to a poor fish which emigrated to this continent from China in the bilge of sailing ships before 1800. The more carp that can be taken out of the Kawarthas, the better and richer life will be for other and native fish, and for the fishermen.

Over The Falls With Hill

A hush fell over the group lolling in the Sunday sun in front of the Kawartha cottage as one person said, looking at his watch: "At this moment a man is going over Niagara Falls in a barrel."

Imaginations began to tick almost as audibly as a grandfather clock, and with no more purpose than the clocks—to pass the time quietly. What is the man Hill, locked in a bobbing barrel, feeling at this moment? Is the barrel crashing and bounding, can it be seen from the shore? Is it this very second that the barrel is taking its awful leap over the precipice, in a sickening, giddy, crazy fall? Now? Now? . . . But it is too nauseating to think of it in the quiet, lazy Sunday afternoon. Anyway, by now Hill is probably over the jump, and bobbing along the rapids, either dead or alive, battered or dizzy. Breathe easily again.

The news later in the day that Hill had not gone at the scheduled time, nor had he made the brink of the Falls, came as anticlimax. People somehow felt cheated, even people who were far away from Niagara and only doodling with fancies. But he or someone else will try again. Somebody is always up to crazy stunts at Niagara. And the pits of a hundred thousand stomachs will again sink, taking a sudden, queasy turn, as, at another exact minute, some other day, some other year, people walk with a man on a tight-rope over the cataract or crouch with claustrophobic fear beside a man in a barrel hurtling over the Falls.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Stupid Look on Babies Called Sign of Health," says a headline. A consolation to fond parents, but not after the baby has passed twenty-one.

Atomic radiation can now be used to detect sewage pollution. For keen students of sewage, whose noses are out of order, this will be the big news of the week.

The Russian insistence that the Americans started the war in Korea prompts the more reasonable among us to ask why the American would provoke a war without having sufficient troops on the spot to fight it?

Scientists have discovered that shrill sounds will coagulate the protein in a liquid. Specifically, they have found that a few minutes of loud noise will "boil" an egg. And if noise will do that to an egg, what do you suppose that unnecessary noise, day in and day out, does to your brains?

Commenting on a story in the news not long ago, a Detroit columnist hinted he would like to learn how to become forgetful enough to drive off and leave his wife in a filling station rest room. A fellow writer unkindly suggests he was comparatively safe in publishing the hint, since the chances of a columnist's wife reading his column are about three in ten thousand.

Danger Points For Allied Partnership

by Nora Beloff

WHEN things go wrong, as they are going tragically wrong for American forces in Korea today, there is an inescapable human urge to find an appropriate scapegoat. The odds, seen from Washington today, suggest that if the present military rout continues, the British, unless they furnish Tommies to serve with the American G.I.s, are the likeliest contender for that unenviable role.

American experts know that British resources in the cold war are strained to the utmost by the policing jobs required against potential Communist aggression in Malaya and Hong Kong. But the experts are only a pitful minority who exercise hardly any influence at all on the American Congress, newspapers and general public.

The potential danger has been displayed already over the oil dispute. The American Government banned the export of oil to Communist China in order to make sure that it did not find its way into the hands of the Korean aggressors. They requested Britain to do the same. British oil trade with Communist China is already insignificant, and in the view of British Embassy officials here could contribute nothing to anybody's military potential. In order to keep the lines of communication open with Communist China, which is not itself ostensibly engaged in flouting the United Nations, the British Government has decided to let the trade proceed just as long as it does not rise to militarily significant proportions. Americans, official and unofficial alike, have hurled contempt at the United Kingdom for this behaviour: "It's just stupid to waste ships blockading Korea if Britain is slipping supplies through Red China", one State Department official told me.

THERE are other danger points where the Korean crisis threatens Anglo-American partnership, essential alike to Pacific and Atlantic resistance to Communist aggression. A substantial group of heavy transport planes is now immobilized by a British decision in Hong Kong. These aircraft were formerly owned by Chiang Kai Shek, have been claimed by the Communist Government, and were purchased by a private American company under General Chennault. Today they are under a court injunction. Powerful American interests in Washington point to the value these planes could have in collective security against Communist aggression, were it not for the British decision to immobilize them in Hong Kong.

The unexpected hardships of the Korean campaign, the strength and skill of the enemy, the utterly inadequate American armour, have exposed the whole campaign to imminent disaster. Some military experts are even talking already of the possibility of a Korean Dunkirk; such a disaster might threaten the unity of the free world.

"If the present situation continues, the American people will get to feel that the United Nations is willing to fight to the last American". As the casualty lists and names and addresses of bereaved families mount up in the columns of the daily press, this prediction, made by American Senator Alexander Wiley, looks like a sounder estimate every day.

MORALLY, the United States has plenty of support: Secretary of State Dean Acheson has said that 53 of the 59 members of the United Nations have replied to the Security Council resolution of June 27 which recommended that members furnish "such assistance to the Republic of Korea as may be necessary to repeal armed attack". Only three—all of them Iron Curtain countries—rejected this resolution. Egypt remained neutral. All others gave what Acheson has called "at least some moral support to the resolution". Four members of the British Commonwealth, including the United Kingdom itself, and two other countries, (Nationalist) China and the Netherlands, have offered military assistance.

But so far Chiang Kai Shek's Chinese Nationalist Government, now exiled in Formosa, alone has offered soldiers ready to fight shoulder to shoulder with the beleaguered American G.I.s. The other five, whom France has indicated she will shortly join, have offered only air and naval support.

The Chinese offer creates more problems than it solves and so far, amid some embarrassment and lots of declarations of "profound appreciation", the Americans have been extremely careful not to accept it. As the American Government sees it, Chiang Kai Shek's entry into the Korean war would inevitably draw the Chinese Communists in on the other side.

CHIANG has offered 33,000 troops to General MacArthur, Supreme Commander of the United Nations joint forces in Korea and has suggested flying them to the battle front in his own transport planes at only five days' notice.

In the United States this proposal has evoked some very solid support. So far, the conscription re-introduced by President Truman to meet the current emergency affects 20,000 men: if 33,000 Chinese are ready to serve, it has been argued, that compulsory recruitment of young Americans could be eliminated.

General MacArthur himself, is known to have expressed the conviction that Chiang Kai Shek, as a solid and reliable anti-Communist, ought to be invaluable in the anti-Communist campaign: "We should have swallowed Chiang Kai Shek horns, cloven hoofs and all—if that was the way we felt about him. Personally, I have great respect for Chiang".

Nevertheless, the American Government remains unimpressed by the potential value of Chiang Kai Shek measured against the liability of intervention on the other side by the effective Government of four hundred million Chinese on the mainland.

Refusal of the American Government to take up the Chinese Nationalist offer has already provoked loud protests from politically-powerful right-wing politicians, currently known here as "the China lobby". The worse the situation gets, and the heavier American losses, the more violent this protest is likely to become.

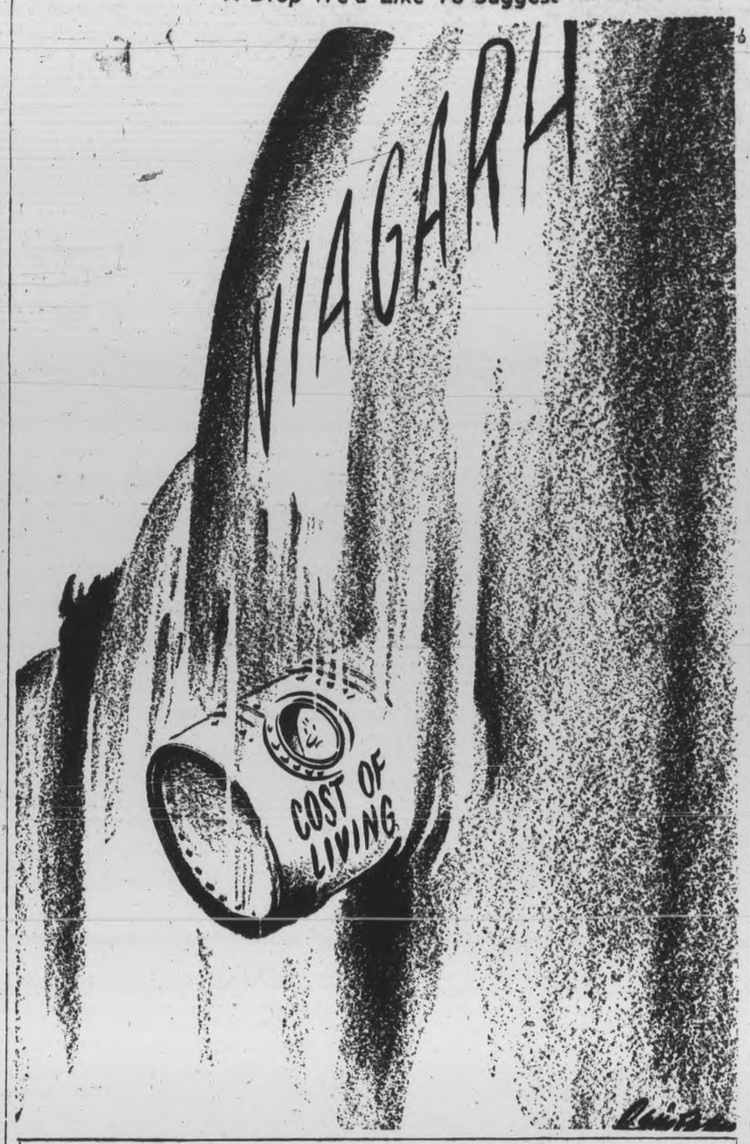
A Drop We'd Like To Suggest



Letter To The Editor

KAWARTHAS SHOULD BACK THEIR PROPAGANDA

Sir: More power to your pleas for a few public bathing spots among the Kawarthas! As a tourist through these lakes several years ago, I was overwhelmed by their scenic beauty, but searched in vain for an inviting picnic and bathing park, or convenient cabins. Having spent most of my years within easy access to the welcoming shores of Lakes Erie and Ontario, where everyone may enjoy a cool, deep plunge at almost any point, I found this most discouraging in such a highly advertised area.

I have now been a resident in your city for three years and I must say the situation is even worse than hitherto suspected. For instance, during our first summer we toured expectantly for two hours, backing in and out of private roads, going from one lake to another without benefit of guiding signposts, until finally we came upon a jetty that miraculously did not bear a "no trespassing" board. To all outward appearances the spot was ideal for the children. Out of the car we poured, jubilant with success, and jumped ankle deep in muck and submerged weeds. The whole so-called lake was only shoulder high for as far as we cared to wade—and tepid!

Continuing dispiritedly on our way we eventually located a fairly isolated, but precarious, rocky promontory overhanging an island-studded jewel of water. This would be ideal for our picnic table. The surrounding cool depths beckoned me for a dip. A luxurious plunge and about five clean strokes grounded me in undignified fashion on slippery rocky shallows, face to face with a decomposed fish rocking lazily in the scum, and giving me a one-eyed stare as much as to say, "You too, sister?"

I hastily extricated myself from such unpleasant surroundings and rounded the obstructing rock barrier to find myself in a pleasant cove, whose shores were bristling 3-deep with fishing poles, and I hastily retreated before the angry glare emanating from the flotilla of watercraft which dotted the water's surface thicker than lily pads. All I can say is, "The poor fish!!" (I am not necessarily referring to the 2-legged variety either.)

Unlike 'Stay-at-Home', we next made the rounds of Peterborough's bathing parks. After running the gauntlet of the ogling spectators, ruining our feet on the stones and glass, and feeling less clean and pure when emerging from the bathhouses, we too have decided in favour of the family bathtub—even though we miss the fun and exercise.

Little Lake we agree is beautiful, but far from being a pearl of great price, we think of it more as a diamond in the rough. Our advice to all would-be canoeists is to do your paddling after dark, hold your noses for the first few hundred yards, and never give in to the urge to dabble your fingertips in the oily, polluted surface.

One more spot I would like to point out in the municipal waterway, is the idyllic strip on the Otonabee at the foot of Monaghan Road. A tree-shaded paradise for the small fry, with a sandy inlet and natural weed barrier for the waders—and a nice, deep channel beyond for the more enthusiastic. This we enjoyed along with several dozen other uninformed newcomers and passers-by, until our noses, and the ensuing hubbub last summer re the sewage, warned us of the danger lurking there.

Why aren't there notices posted to that effect? With 50 per cent. of Peterborough's children already in the South End, some foresight should have been used to move the disposal plant much further away, and redeem all city waters for the pleasure of the unprivileged public.

In this section of the city where vacant lots are at a premium, yards are small, trees are scarce, and playgrounds are inadequate, what future provision is being made for suitable "parks" in the town planning scheme? Perhaps the City Fathers are hoping we will fold up our war-time bungalows and silently steal away.

At least when other districts issue tourist propaganda, they can back it up and ensure a well-guided, up-to-the-letter welcome for all. Peterborough may be the Gateway to the Kawarthas, and hand out the key in big-hearted fashion, but apparently it is only to the piscatorial artists. For the sake of the non-fishing public could the government not redeem right of way, and a few feet of frontage along the better bathing spots on our lakes, as is done in other places?

Sincerely yours,
"DISCOURAGED SWIMMER".

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God . . . .In him was life; and the life was the light of men. And the light shineth in darkness; and the darkness comprehended it not . . . .And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld His glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth. (John 1: 1, 4, 5, 14.)

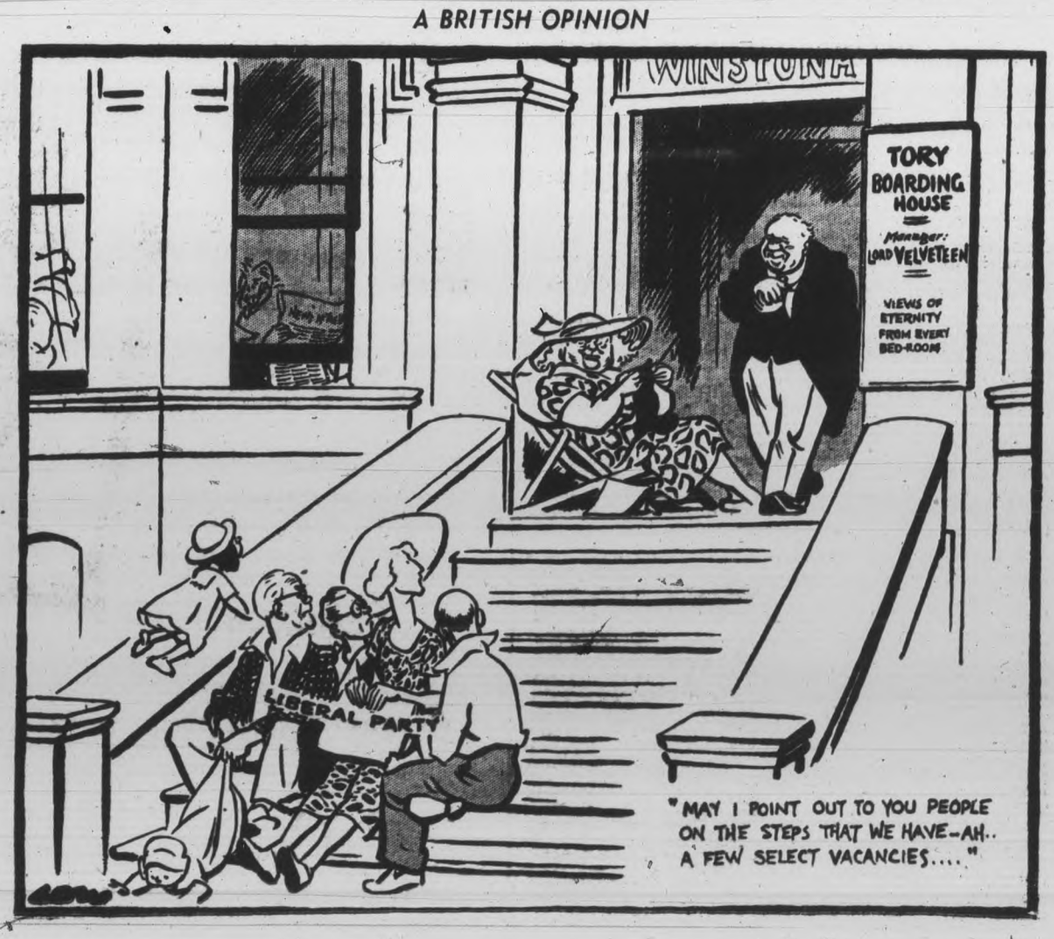
For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved. He that believeth on him is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God.

And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil. For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved.

But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest, that they rae wrough in God. (John 3: 17-21.)

A BRITISH OPINION



Charlie Alcock 42 Years At CGE Retires

A link with the early days of the Payroll Department of the CGE was severed Friday with the retirement of C. J. "Charlie" Alcock of the Cost Department. Although his official date of retirement on pension is August 8, he will take advantage of a three-week vacation period by virtue of his long record of service—forty-two and a half years.

Born in Rugby, England, Mr. Alcock attended grammar school in the same city and displayed a liking for figures when he took up his first employment with the Daimler Motor Car Company in Coventry as a pay clerk. This kept him occupied for about four or five years until he satisfied a desire to come to Canada.

It was in December, 1907, that he started on what was to be a long record of service with Peterborough Works. His first job was with the Payroll Department under paymaster of the day, Fred Shannon. At that time, he recalls, there was on adding machine in the plant; time clocks had not yet made their appearance, and all cheques were written by hand. He became assistant paymaster before his eventual transfer to the cost department of which the late S. S. Shaughnessy was then in charge.

Ready To Help Others

For the past 18 years, he has had charge of the finished stock records and has frequently been called upon by members of the production and other departments for assistance in straightening out their problems. At all times he has shown willingness to do his utmost to help others, a characteristic he has shown in all his dealings with members of his own department.

Probably one of the most notable features about Charlie is his quiet disposition. In his younger days he played cricket for CGE; for some years he took quite a liking for fishing when he owned a cottage on Rice Lake but he has always enjoyed reading and the quiet of home life with his family, all of whom worked for the company at one time or another.

Of five children in the family, Tom of structural steel is the only one employed at CGE at present. Bert, who was employed at CGE for 20 years, is in Hamilton; Frank is now in California and Joyce, now Mrs. Art Brown, is in the role of housewife. She was employed at the CGE for about 10 years. A fourth son, Leslie, was employed in the accounting department when he died in 1926.

May Visit California

And what are Charlie's plans for the future? Quite possibly Mr. and Mrs. Alcock will visit Frank in California later this year and after that they plan to enjoy home life together as they always have with the added feature of having more time together.

During the last armed conflict, Mr. and Mrs. Alcock had three sons serving overseas with the Canadian forces. Tom was in the navy while Bert and Frank were in the army.

Lands Big Muskie From Round Lake

HAVELOCK, July 18 (ENS). — Rae Williams, Havelock merchant, has again proved his skill as an expert fisherman with a 23½-pound muskie caught in the waters of Round Lake. The fish measured 44 inches in length, with a girth of 19 inches. He was using spook plug bait. Mr. Williams was assisted by his son Russell in landing his catch which put up a terrific fight.

Mr. Williams has two fine mounted specimens on display in his store which were caught in 1940 and 1941 and weighed 26½ pounds and 27 pounds. All the catches were made in Round Lake.

Have Bargain Sale

WINDSOR, July 18—(CP)—The Windsor Humane Society is having a bargain sale on bull mastiffs—28 of the large economy-size dogs to be given to whomever will pay for their board and lodging at the Humane Socity's kennels and give them a good home. The dogs aren't just strays. They are full-bred mastiffs whose owner had to give them up when he became sick. Most are six and eight months old.

Steel Car Explosion

MONTREAL, July 18—(CP)—Seven street car passengers were treated in hospital Monday for cuts and shock following a motor explosion in a mid-town St. Catherine Street tram. No fire followed the blast but the explosion prevented the motorman from opening the emergency door. Several frightened passengers fearing the car would catch fire, suffered cuts when they escaped by smashing a window.

En Route To Europe

QUEBEC, July 18 (CP)—All 850 passengers of the liner Franconia will be en route to Europe on other ships within a few days, Cunard Donaldson spokesman said Monday night. The passengers were stranded here last Wednesday night when the 20,000-ton liner ran aground in the St. Lawrence River shortly after leaving Quebec harbor for Liverpool, England.

Build New Capital

CANBERRA — (CP) — A new town is to be built at a cost of £5,000,000 ($12,000,000) to replace rabaul as the capital of Australian New Guinea. The decision to abandor the capital was made after a violent eruption of the nearby "mother" volcano, but the Second World War delayed action.

Frankford Pair Wed 50 Years

SELWYN, July 18. (ENS)—The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Donald of Frankford, celebrated on Sunday, is of interest to the people of this community because of the fact their daughter, Mrs. Albert Wease, and granddaughter, Mrs. Morley Nixon, are residents of Selwyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald (who before her marriage was Bessie Campbell) were married fifty years ago this month, at Coe Hill and farmed there for several years, later moving to Madoc and from there to Holloway. At present they reside with their son Colin at Frankford and are both in good health.

The celebration was held at the home of their daughter and son-in law, Mr. and Mrs. Grey Stickle of Frankford.

About 75 guests sat down to dinner which was served on the lawn, the head table centred with a wedding cake baked by their daughter, Mrs. Frank Vancliff.

The tables were attractively decorated with summer flowers. The family presented their parents with two upholstered chairs and several other gifts were received from neighbors and friends.

During the afternoon a short devotional service was held, led by Mr. Glenn Crapp of Lakefield.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald were blessed with nine children: Elizabeth (Mrs. Frank Vancliff); Maud (Mrs. Grey Stickle); Evelyn (Mrs. Albert Wease); Annie (Mrs. Dick Derry); Jessie (Mrs. Walter Abram); Olga (Mrs. Arthur Donald), and two sons, Colin and Andrew Donald. One daughter, May (Mrs. Lorne Wellman) is deceased. They have twenty-nine grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. Present that day were four generations, Mrs. Herbert Donald; her daughter, Mrs. Albert Wease; her granddaughter, Mrs. Morley Nixon, and her great granddaughter, Anne Nixon.

Thieves Fail In Try To Loot Bank Vault

PERTH, July 18 — (CP). — Thieves failed in a week-end attempt to break into the vault of the Bank of Nova Scotia here. Chief Constable E. C. Smith said Monday the thieves forced their way into the bank's washroom through the basement of the adjacent Robert Simpson agency. They attempted to cut through the wall adjoining the washroom to the vault, but gave up after cutting almost two feet through rock without reaching the stone wall of the vault.

Smith said the attempted robbery, discovered Sunday, may have been the work of a gang that has been operating in the Smiths Falls and Merrickville areas of Ontario.

Find Chemical Able To Shrink Some Cancers

PARIS, July 18 (AP)—A chemical made to prevent clothes from shrinking is able to shrink or halt some cancers for a time, experts from 50 countries were told Monday.

The chemical is called TEM It was described to the fifth International Cancer Research Congress by Dr. C. Chester Stock and Sonja M. Buckley of the Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research at New York's Memorial Hospital.

TEM hits at such cancers of the lymphatic tissue as Hodgkins Disease and at some cases of leukemia or cancer of the blood Dr Stock said. As with other treatments for these diseases, its effects are temporary.

Dr. Stock's team tested 3,000 chemicals for their anti-cancer value. Only nine were found to stop cancer growth or make cancers shrink in laboratory trials by using mice. Such a low average is typical of the myriad problems in cancer research.

Used For Textiles

TEM was developed originally as an anti-shrinkage chemical for textiles. As a drug it has been used at Memorial Hospital on some humans with Hodgkins Disease or leukemia. It is reported as effective against the two cancers as nitrogen mustards, the wartime poison gas chemicals. But TEM can be swallowed as a pill and does not nauseate humans. Nitrogen mustards are given by injection.

Neither TEM nor nitrogen mustards cure these diseases but patients feel better for a time.

Other anti-cancer chemicals, seven known as antivitamins are the kind that interfere with the use of vitamin "B" by cancer cells. In human tests some of these have been of temporary value in treating leukemia, Dr Stock said.

Junior Squad Gets Win Over Weston

By FRED MAYBEE

Gary Robinson and Rock Batley with seven points apiece sparked Lou Vitarelli's fighting junior lacrosse squad to a strong 19-11 victory over Weston last night at Miller Bowl. Threatening skies kept many fans from a sparkling display.

By virtue of this they take over undisputed possession of fifth spot. They have scored 35 goals against 17 in their last two starts and Goalie Nicholls has played a big part in this fine average

Roughened Up

Play was fast and fairly clean in the early stages last night but roughened up in the third as Goalie Head served a costly penalty with Russelle for fighting. The Vitarelli boys pumped six goals past Parker during his absence. On the play however, Petes fairly edged their rivals over the route and were always ahead after an even first quarter. It was 7-6 at the half and 14-7 as the finale began so the locals deserved victory.

Brian Robinson potted three and Whitnell two in a fine display, while Killingbeck, Morrissey, Heffernan, Shearer and Wyatt each scored one. But it was teamwork that enabled the locals to win as every man gave his best. Jago, Bedard, Parker and Gunn were easily the pick of the Weston crew.

The teams.

Weston—Goal, Head; defence, Bird, Mackie; centre, Ciupa; wings, Gunn, Jago; rover, Bedard; alternates, McPhail, Gauley, Shropshire, Hawert, Parker.

By The Canadian Press

Joe DiMaggio, on tse way to becoming one of the biggest names in baseball, cracked out a ninth-inning home run with the bases loaded off another rising star — Bobby Feller—to pace New York Yankees to a 5-1 victory over Cleveland Indians. That was 13 years ago today. Feller struck out seven and allowed seven hits, the Yankee Clipper getting three of them.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

It is within the realms of possibility, though just barely, that some of the Petes' ball players may be over in the neighborhood of Korea this year and in uniform. Baseball uniforms. You see the Petes might enter the Toronto district ball congress and, if they should happen to win out, get a crack at the Canadian sandlot title. Again if they should win out they'd be invited to the world's semi-pro and sandlot championships in Japan. Entries for the Toronto competition close on July 24, playing off near the end of this month. But who in the world wants to be anywhere near Korea now?

* * * * * * *

Some ball fans agreed with our recent all-star local team, while others didn't see eye to eye with us at all. Jim McCarthy of Keene, for instance, writes at considerable length. You may recall that we picked Heckman and Whitehouse for pitching, with Swanston catching. Infield had Harrison on first, Kingdon on second, Murphy at short and Dalton on third. With an outfield of Burton, Foley and Kearns. All in their prime, of course, and for a span of the past 30 years. But Jim McCarthy seems to prefer the old-timers, with only one player of the late 30s on his team.

* * * * * * *

Quite A Team, Too

He likes Whitehouse, Heckman and Lornie Rose for pitching with Swanston the catcher. At first he would put Harrison, with Abbie Rose at second, Roy Cherrett at shortand Mickey Murray on third. And an outfield of Herb Wolff in left, Jack McCarney at centre and Chuck Kearns in right. With Jake Solomon the manager. He thinks Cherrett, Heckman and Lornie Rose the best trio to ever sink a spike in Riverside, being all-around stars. He even has his batting order figured out and has done right well, too. Jim goes into detail and insists McCarey was better than Foley. And he feels that his team would run our choices out of the park with their speed, hitting power and baseball savvy. That's what he says

* * * * * * *

While we can't argue much with that grand team Jim has named, we certainly don't think the one we picked would be run out of any park without a terrific battle. We had several speed merchants on our squad, too, and a bunch of brainy ballsters. Also, we feel we had much more hitting power. We'll take Dalton at bat over Murray, Ed Murphy above Cherrett at the plate, and certainly Foley for his hitting over McCarney. And we believe Kingdon would out hit Ab Rose. Wolf was a great balster but we remember him best at centre, and McCarney best at second. But those guys we picked were consistent .350 or better hitters, and we'll take hitting over speed on the bases. However, that is just this writer's opinion. Let's have some more selections.

* * * * * * *

Petes Gain Another

The Petes uncorked a real clouting attack in New Toronto last twilight to take a 15-4 Viaduct Baseball League victory, their first one on that diamond this semester. Edger pitched steady ball and his mates hit with ducks on the pond, Brown belting out a homer with three aboard in the fifth. It keeps the Petes up in the thick of the race for a playoff spot. Haven't received a senior ball standing lately from the official league scorer in Toronto, who compiles these standings. Our correspondent in New Toronto was late in sending out the box score for last night's fray, so it didn't catch our deadline, and we'll have to run it again. The Petes have New Toronto here on Saturday aft.

* * * * * * *

Two tidy playoff tussles at the Bowl last night as the girl softballers teed off to open their three-of-five semi-final series. Both snappy and exciting games, the kind one expects in playoffs. Marines showed power in turning back Ashby's 10-4, while Westclox had to come through in the ninth to edge CGE 5-4 in a joust that lasted just an hour. It'll likely be a dogfight from here on in as two face playoff elimination—for a crack at PWSU competition—this week. Tomorrow, it's Westclox vs. CGE, and Ashby's vs. Marines, and they go again Friday ere taking a two-week layoff.

HOLD TRIALS

Trials to choose a senior Canadian team for competition against a United States squad at Brookline, Mass., will be held at the Mount Royal Tennis Club in Montreal Wednesday.

Any Canadian of 45 years of age or more is eligible for a berth on the team. Last year, the U.S. team defeated Canada 8-0 in four singles and four doubles matches at Seigniory Club, Que.

Toronto Argonauts released veteran lineman Steve Levantis Monday and cleared the way for him to join Hamilton Tiger-Cats as a playing coach.

Levantis, a member of four Dominion championship squads for the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union club and a fifth with Montreal Navy, was out for much of last season with a knee injury but served as assistant coach.

Shrimps won a 4-3 game and lost a 3-1 tilt to Hurricanes in recent tadople lacrosse frays, while Tigers took Petes 9-7 and then lost to Lions 10-8 in peewee tussles. DeNoble scored three for the Hurricanes, Reid and Billingsley having an assist each. Parry got a pair for Shrimps and Barrie and P. DeNoble one each, Reid aiding on two.

The 10-8 affair saw the Lions' snipers: Trudeau (2), Reid (2), Ellis, Freeman, Moffatt, Parry, Hendren, Danahy. The Tigers' scorers were: Jay (7)—in a great showing—and Ketcheson.

Sugar Robinson Won't Fight, To Be Suspended

SCRANTON, Pa., July 18 (AP) —Sugar Ray Robinson is likely to find himself suspended and fined in Pennsylvania today, but whether the National Boxing Association concurs is another question.

Robinson announced Monday after undergoing a physical check-up by a Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission doctor that he would not go through with a fight against Jose Basora here on Wednesday night. The 15-round fight was for the Pennsylvania version of the middleweight crown, held by Robinson along with his world welterweight title.

The slim Harlem negro said he had a backache. But Dr. Leonard M. Freda, commission physician, said he could find nothing wrong with Robinson after sending the boxer through an hour's workout and X-raying his back.

Plan Heavy Fine

Chairman George Jones, Jr. of the commission stated before the examination that if Robinson did not show up he would be given the heaviest fine ever assessed a fighter in Pennsylvania, suspended and sued for damages on behalf of the promoter and Basora.

Abe J. Greene of Paterson, NJ, commissioner of the NBA, said Robinson had told him last Saturday he would box Basora anytime after he defends his charity welterweight title against Charlie Fusari in Jersey City August 9 for the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund.

Robinson will not be allowed to fight "anywhere in NBA territory under any circumstances," until he fulfils his contract to fight Basora following his meeting with Fusari, Greene said.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

As far as our club is concerned this week could be easily named tournament week. Beginning today and running right through till Saturday there is one tournament and sometimes two each day.

Tuesday—some of the ladies playing a tourney at Belleville.

Wednesday—all day, mixed rink tournament at Port Hope.

Wednesday—7:30 p.m., mixed doubles at our own club.

Thursday—2:00 p.m., ladies' tournament here.

Thursday—some of the ladies playing in a tournament at Lindsay.

Friday—7:30 p.m., men's trebles at this club.

Saturday—7:30 p.m., Family Hour tournament.

So if that is not a week of real heavy bowling, we never heard of one.

Tonight we continue with men's schedule—rinks and doubles.

Front Office Work Hard On Baseball Men

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP). — A man who is 81 years old today and knows baseball league inside out thinks the game is getting tougher on the front offices.

The pressure there can be terrific," said John A. Heydler, former president of the National League.

He believes something should be done about it and, as a start, he proposed a special committee to handle the business of the annual World's Series.

Heydler was actively associated with professional baseball for 50 years and was president of the National League from 1918 until 1934 when he retired to preserve his health.

"Yes, it's a tough business," he said, "and getting tougher — but it's a good business." He recalled with pride that he had never known of any dishonesty by a front office employee.

He noted the furious pennant races, right down to the last game in some instances, and said this created an almost impossible world-series management problem.

Too Big a Burden

Front offices of clubs in the race, he observed, have to go ahead with seating, ticket and other series details without even knowing they will be there at the end.

"They shouldn't have to take that burden," he said. He declared the two major league should appoint a special committee and staff to handle the world series.

Heydler, who figured in installing Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis as baseball's first commissioner after the 1919 "Black Sox" scandal, said he believed A. B. Chandler, the present commissioner, was proving a worthy successor.

"He had to learn," said Heydler, "that it was no hand-shaking political job. It's a tough business and you have to be tough. I think he has learned that. They'd have a hard time replacing him with as good a man."

St. Kitts Trim Tigers

HAMILTON, July 18—(CP)—St. Catharines Athletics scored four goals in the overtime period here Monday night to defeat Hamilton Tigers 13-9 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game. Blain McDonald rattled home a counter at 12:34 of the fourth quarter to force extra play.

Sets Trotting Record

Crusane, owned and driven by Cecil Campion, of Winchester, set a trotting record at Thorncliffe Raceway in Toronto Monday when he won at a mile in 2.07 4-5. It was the fastest winning race of the gelding's career.

Crusano led every step of the way but was forced to the limit to hold off the closing rush of Dandy J., owned by Lawrence Powers of Clinton, N. Y. Crusano was second choice in the wagering and paid $5.25.

Apart from Crusano's record-shattering trip, the day's outstanding performance was provided by driver Harold Wellwood, from Merlin, Ont., who drove three winners. He won the first race narrowly with Fidelis Hanover, owned by P McNiven, of Ecorse, Michigan, the sixth with Mr. Oakley, owned by Wes Litt, of Stratford, Ont., and the eighth with Victor Henley, also owned by Mr. Litt.

Betters Record

MOSCOW, July 18 (AP) — Pravda, the official Communist party newspaper, reported today that Evdokia Vasilieva of Moscow has bettered the women's world record for the 800-metre run by negotiating the distance in 2:13.0. The recognized mark is 1:13.8 set by Anna Larsson of Sweden in 1945.

Marines and Westclox Get Girls' Semi-Final Verdicts

Marines defeated Ashby's 10-4, while Westclox edged CGE 5-4 at the Bowl last night to open their best-of-five girls' softball semi-final playoffs. They were two snappy struggles as the lasses settled down to play for keeps. Another playoff double-header will be staged there tomorrow, Westclox vs. CGE, and Ashby's vs. Marines, and another round Friday before a two-week layoff.

In the first fray, the Outboards played heads-up ball all the way and reached D. McFadden for 15 safeties, the latter fanning five. P. Williams pitched six-hit ball for the winners, fanning half a dozen and helping her cause with three hits for five, one a homer. M. Behan and L. Rowan shone in the field for Outboards, while B. Callan and M. Freeman were best for Ashby's in the game which lasted 1.15. L. Rowan had three hits in five, D. Callan led Ashby's with a double and two singles in four. Teams:

A Tight Fit

CGE really extended the undefeated Westclox girls in a nifty nightcap, making it a tight fit before the finish. M. Hodson allowed but seven hits and fanned seven but her support was not quite as good as that afforded M. Downer who gave only eight hits and whiffed six. With both sides playing hustling ball, it went just an hour and gave fans plenty to yell about. J. Vass knocked in the winning run in the ninth, after an error put the winner aboard. A. Anderson and M. Hawthorne looked good defensively for the victors as J. Vass hit a triple and single, and B Morrow two singles. T. DeCarlo and M Hodson shone afield for the losers and M. Batley led at the plate with two for five, R Boyce clouting a triple and double A neat double play was pulled off by D Jackson to B. McMahon. Teams

Girl 13 Plays With Boats Not Doll Buggy

By PHIL ADLER

VALLEYFIELD, Que.—(CP)—Speed boat racing, a sport whose thrills and spills many persons prefer just to watch, comes as easy as wheeling a doll carriage to little freckle-faced Kay Dempsey, of Henrietta, N.Y.

At 13, she is one of the youngest girls in Canada and the United States to enter speedboat competition. For the last five years playing with boats and motors has pretty well mixed with caring for dolls.

Although she has been driving a racing boat for a couple of years this is her first year in competition. American Power Boat Association rules put the minimum age at 13.

Father Old Hand

Kay's father, Ken, is an old hand at speedboats. He has been racing for 20 years. He drives a 225-cubic-inch inboard hydro, Division I, which hits 70 miles an hour.

But father Ken doesn't let his daughter drive any of the large craft. At present she has to be content driving in the midget class with her stock utility boat. And in that she can travel 40 miles an hour.

Regardless of her age, Kay drives and handles her boat like an expert.

With a crash helmet covering her blonde hair and her eyes that sparkle like blue water, she already has a second place to her credit.

Knows About Spills

Kay is a veteran, too, when it comes to flips—turning over. During a regatta held here recently she told how she was going about 40 in Alexandria Bay, N.Y., and was in second place when she tried to catch up with the lead man.

"I forgot about everything and just tried to gain speed," she said. "Then it happened. At first I did not know what was going on. I even held the throttle until I hit the water. I wasn't hurt."

That was her first dunking while racing and Kay hopes it was her last.

Works On Own Boat

As well as travelling to various speedboat regattas in Canada and the United States with her parents, Kay works on her own boat. She sandpapers, varnishes, waxes and shines it. She also tinkers with the motor when something minor goes wrong.

Kay lost out by one month for the honor of being the youngest racer here this year. That honor is held by Allyn Guerin, of Rochester, N.Y. He is also 13 but was born 30 days before Kay.

Like a growing girl, Kay doesn't want to stay racing in the midget class. Next year she hopes to have a 48-cubic-inch inboard craft.

Royals Trample Buffalo For 4-1 Victory

By The Associated Press.

Montreal Royals, an in-and-out club all season, finally seem to have shaken their early season troubles.

The Royals were a proud first-place team in May, a sad fifth in June. They are a driving third—challenging for Rochester's lead.

Walt Alston's crew has won three straight and seven of its last eight games. The pitching has been good, the hitting timely.

Monday night it was a sub—Jack Lindsey—who came through. The utility third baseman slammed two homers and a single, driving in three runs to lead the Royals to a 4-1 victory over Buffalo.

Lindsey's swatting enabled Jim Hughes to register his first pitching triumph. Sandy Silverstein suffered his sixth loss.

Rochester went 2½ games ahead of runner-up Baltimore with a 9-8, 10-inning verdict over Toronto. Don Bollweg scooted across with the winning run as catcher Vince Plumbo bobbled a throw from the shortstop.

Bollweg also cracked a three-run homer in the first to help Mike Schultz, fourth Rochester moundsman, to pick up victory No. 3. Steve Ridzik lost, evening his record at 6-6.

Kent Peterson hurled Syracuse to a 4-3 victory over Springfield. The former Cincinnati Red lefty scattered eight hits, issued only one walk.

Petes Triumph By 15-4 In New Toronto

NEW TORONTO, July 18—Unleashing a 14-hit attack at Goodyear Field here last night, Peterborough pounded three New Toronto hurlers for a 15-4 Viaduct Baseball League victory, their first one in this park this season. It was a rather loosely-played game called after seven innings due to darkness.

The home team had no excuses, fielding a full lineup of regulars but being unable to match the hard-hitting attack of the visiting squad. Joe Brown started on the losers' mound and was followed by Cabot and Gastrell, but they all looked alike to the Petes. Danny Brown had a grand slam homer in the fifth to account for four runs after a four-run outburst in the previous inning.

Scatter Hits

Bill Edger went the route for the visitors, keeping nine hits fairly well scattered and getting support in the pinches. The home crew left a lot of runners on base as Edger bore down in the right spots.

Freddy Garvey, Joe Lowery, Bill Dadson and Paul Estlick all picked up two safe blows for Peterborough, while Hastings had three for the losers, Brown, Valliers and Jeffers clouting safely twice each. A fair-sized crowd saw the struggle as the Petes made it interesting for New Toronto ballsters on previous Viaduct League appearances here.

Dodger Push Under Way Grab Twin Bill From Cards

By JACK HAND,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

What goes with Brooklyn? Is this the big push? Are Burt Shotton's boys ready to take charge?

Baseball fans ask these questions today because the sudden turnabout of Dodger pitching has jumbled the National League race. It's only one game from the Phillies in first to the Dodgers in fourth. Last Thursday night, the Brooks trailed by 5½.

A week ago president Branch Rickey of the Dodgers moaned about the "worst pitching staff collapse I've ever seen." Now his onrushing brooks have a budding five-game win streak.

In St. Louis they're convinced the Dodger push is on. So far the Brooks have whipped the Cardinals 11 out of 14, the last seven in a row, including a day-night doubleheader Monday.

It's Their Pitching

Oddly enough, the Dodgers have been doing it with pitching. Nine of 14 Brooklyn pitchers to face St. Louis have gone all the way—Preacher Roe four times and Don Newcombe three.

Roe did it again Monday night as the Dodgers crushed Howie Pollet, 7-1, after stumbling to a 6-3 afternoon decision for Dan Bankhead.

The Preacher man allowed only five hits for his 11th victory. From the moment Bobby Morgan led off with a first-inning homer, the Dodgers had the game in the bag.

Gil Hodges, who hit his 12th homer in the four-run first inning of the day game, was injured when he tripped over the infield covering in the sixth inning. He retired in the seventh and missed the night work, snapping his string of 328 consecutive games since 1948.

The double Cardinal loss let the idle Phillies, rained out at Chicago, sneak back into first place. Then come St. Louis and Boston tied for second.

Bill Pierro, a rookie from Indianapolis making his first big league appearance, was well on his way to success when Boston hung up a big five in the ninth and dumped Pittsburgh, 8-6.

Ralph Kiner hit his 26th homer tying Cleveland's Al Rosen for the major league lead.

Jim Hearn, making his first New York start since his purchase from St. Louis a week ago, held Cincinnati to four hits in an easy 10-3 romp. He retired 14 men in order and allowed no hits after the fourth.

Edges A's

Detroit boosted its American League lead to 4½ games by whipping Philadelphia A's in a twilight-night doubleheader. The runner-up New York Yankees played only one game, edging Chicago, 4-3.

Charley Keller's pinch triple, a pinch single by Freddie Hutchinson and Jerry Priddy's timely single, helped the Tigers rally with three in the eighth inning of the 8-6 opener. Hal Newhouser won his 10th over reliever Carl Scheib. Saul Rogovin, making his third start, went the route for the first time in the 3-1 night game.

Yogi Berra and Hank Bauer, a couple of Yankee cripples returning to action, took care of the White Sox. Although rookie Ed Ford didn't go all the way, he was around long enough to earn his first major league victory.

Break Even

Joe Dobson, an afternoon loser came back to win on relief at night as Boston broke even in a day-night doubleheader with Cleveland. Rosen hit his 26th homer and Joe Gordon smashed five hits, including homer No. 9, in the Indians' 11-6 daytime win.

Dobson came to the rescue of Maurice McDermott in the night game to win his 10th, 7-5.

Third baseman Eddie Yost made a sensational lunging catch of a foul ball to put down a ninth-inning St. Louis threat and save a 3-1 Washington victory.

Tomorrow's Games:
Montreal at Rochester; Toronto at Buffalo; Springfield at Syracuse; Baltimore at Jersey City.

Must Apply Principles Baptists Told

TORONTO, July 18 (CP)—The Rev. Dr. M F. McCutcheon told the Baptist Federation of Canada Monday that Christian churches must teach men how to interpret Christian principles in terms of political institutions, economic methods and intefnational relations.

Dr. McCutcheon, minister of the First Baptist Church, Montreal, is president of the federation and spoke at its second assembly.

He said that the church had christianized individual men but had not yet christianized their relations or reconciled industrial classes or brought peace among nations.

Wars and industrial strife had been caused because the church had failed to make men realize that the love of God implies and demands the love of man and that men cannot be in wrong relations with men and in right relations with God.

Urges French Taught

The Rev. Dr. S. J. Farmer, a retired Toronto minister, urged that more ministerial students be taught French instead of Greek and Latin.

The Rev. A. Wilkinson, superintendent of the Grand Ligne Mission Board, said there was great opposition to the mission work from the Roman Catholic church in Quebec but an increasing number of inquiries from French Canadians were being received.

The Rev. E. Checkland of the First Broadway Church, Winnipeg, asked the federation to "investigate and seriously consider the necessity of establishing a central office in Ottawa" as a means of contact with the federal government in assisting Baptists who want to come to Canada.

He said there are at least 10,000,000 refugees in Germany today and only the Russians are offering them anything. "The only thing we can offer is to take them out," he said.

ain was that the U.K. should continue to look to Canada for her food needs. Nevertheless it had to be understood that while the dollar shortage continued, Britain would have to keep her purchases down to what Canada purchased from Britain.

Questioned about Britain's purchases from Russia and other Communist countries, the mission denied that Russia was the main source of coarse grain supplies for the U.K.

"It is not true to say that Russia is the primary source," said Mr. Darke. It was true that the U.K. was buying eggs from Poland, but that was mostly because Poland was in debt to the U.K. because of Second World War commitments and taking Poland's eggs was one way Britain had of getting payment for those debts.

ing continues at the present rate, or if it increases as it has in the past, the future incidence of lung cancer will be many times that of other cancers of the body."

He cited studies showing that most men with lung cancer had smoked cigarettes at least 20 years with less lung cancer among men who never smoked. Women are far less susceptible to lung cancer, Dr. Ochsner said.

Dr. Ernest L. Wynder, Washington, reporting with Dr. Evarts A. Graham, St. Louis, told of a survey of more than 700 persons with lung cancer. In this group there were only nine-non-smokers among 650 men, he said.

"About 95 per cent of the men with cancers were at least moderately heavy smokers—a pack a day—for at least 20 years, with over 90 per cent being cigarette smokers," Dr. Wynder said.

There are non-smokers who get lung cancer, and "obviously not every one who is a heavy smoker develops lung cancer," he added.

Taejon Appears A Ghost Town

AN AMERICAN OUTPOST IN KOREA, July 18 (AP)—Advanced United States Field Headquarters completed its withdrawal from Taejon today. The once-bustling city has the appearance of a ghost town.

But north and west of Taejon, American troops are dug in, awaiting the next North Korean assault. The northerners made no major attack in force Tuesday.

Taejon now is just another Korean town close to the fighting front. Its population once was 150,000, but none knows how many remain.

Within the city, houses and shops are shuttered. Streets virtually are empty.

But on the outskirts, families continued to cook their meals over open fires and eat them while squatting on dusty streets.

Most South Koreans afraid of retaliation by invaders have fled. Presumably this includes most of the city officials.

Miss Stewart, a native of Gowganda, Ont., has been a Trans-Canada Air Lines stewardess for six years.

Trenton Veteran Appointed City Assessor

James Edward Davis of Trenton was appointed assessment commissioner by the council Monday night in succession to Norman A. Wilkes, who is returning to Hamilton at the end of this month as head of its municipal assessment department.

The recommendation of the executive committee read by Ald. Hugh Waddell applies a customary conditional term of satisfactory service in the nomination of Mr. Davis as "acting chief assessor for a probationary period of one year at a salary of $3,000, effective July 17, 1950."

Mr. Davis has been assessor at Trenton since 1948. He recently completed reassessment of all the property in the town. Previously he was employed there, after his return from war service, in a financial position with the Central Air Command of the treasury branch of the federal Department of Finance.

Captured At Caen

He was five years with the Canadian Army, was captured by the Germans in the fighting southwest of Caen in Normandy, twenty-six days after landing on D-Day with the 3rd Monmouthsire Regt. of the 11th armored division of the British Army. He had enlisted with the Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment, received his commission at Brockville, and volunteered from Camp Borden for service with the British.

Mr. Davis is married and has two children.

"I have no hesitation in recommending him," said Ald. Waddell. "He was the pick of the five applicants we interviewed, and is favorably regarded by the Assessors Association. He has been with Mr. Wilkes today, and will continue with him until Mr. Wilkes leaves for Hamilton. Mr. Davis then goes back to Trenton for two weeks to line up his successor there."

A motion by Alderman Braund and Young provides a month's salary to Mr. Wilkes at his departure. Hamilton council wished him to take charge of their assessment department at July 1, but agreed to his remaining here until the end of the month.

He also arranged for permission to return to Peterborough at any time when his help and advice might be desired.

LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON, could be applied to this fishing picture, although Nelson Davies of 395 Dublin St., in canoe, caught both of them. He is shown coming ashore at Deer Bay displaying a 26-pound muskie to his son, Paul, who waits on the bank with a mere 11-pounder which his dad took half an hour before. Nelson caught nine 'lunge altogether within two hours of casting; four were under-sized, three got away and the two (Above) were definite keepers.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

'Love Or Money' Best Play Of Season

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

The Summer Theatre pulled itself out of the Slough of Despond into which the production of "No Time For Comedy" had cast it by its performance, on Monday night of "For Love Or Money," a comedy by F. Hugh Herbert. This was an excellent show — lively, cheery and thoroughly good entertainment. It should bring the roses back into the Summer Theatre's cheeks; the reception given the play by the first-night audience was warm and happy.

The play itself, which was first seen in New York in November, 1947, is on the well-worn theme of the pretty girl who seeks shelter in the home of an attractive, unattached man of middle age. These are stock characters, as are the comic servants, the stuffy neighbours, and the inveigling actress who wants the middle-aged hero for herself. When the play was done in New York it was, according to George Jean Nathan, carried by a series of excellent performances; this may also be said of the local production. It is particularly rich in good "bits," which contribute heavily to the success and enjoyment of the evening.

Let us reverse the usual procedure, and mention the players of minor roles first. Distinguished among these was the manager of the theatre, Mr. Michael Sadlier himself, who contributes a delightful performance as the most grief-sodden funeral-attender we have ever seen. Pat Atkinson is very good as a New England housekeeper; she resists all temptation to build the part up into more than it is. This skillful restraint is also characteristic of Ron Poffenroth as a taciturn houseman; in scene after scene he steals the show with a remarkably neat and deft characterization. Richard Neilson is effective as a youthful contestant for the heroine's hand. Clarine Jackman plays well as his fearful and possessive mother. As the designing actress Anna Cameron is first-rate; she is certainly among Canada's ablest actresses of this sort of comedy. She contrives to give charm to even the most calculating and hard-bitten stage "other women," and we would greatly like to see her in a more sympathetic role.

Remaining are the leading players, Kate Reid and Donald Glenn, both of whom do a thoroughly satisfactory job. Miss Reid is a little over-emphatic in her big scenes, but this is a fault on the right side. A trifle more restraint, and she will be capable of fine things. Mr. Glenn is the Rock of Gibraltar—dependable, excellent, but a little lacking in variation.

This is the best thing the Summer Theatre has done this season, not excepting "Harvey." It is a good piece of ensemble work, which invariably gives satisfaction in the theatre.

Suggest Moving Market Opposite George St. Wharf

Peterborough's outdoor market will be moved to the city-owned property opposite George St. wharf if the recommendation of the property committee is endorsed by the board of works Monday night is eventually adopted in council. "That means the death knell of the outside market," Ald. J. A. Dewart remarked. "Is anybody crying about it?" was the query of Ald. E. C. Braund.

Sentiment of the council has been gradually veering toward metering motor space on the market, collecting a revenue from it six or maybe seven days in the week, instead of using it only one-half a day in seven.

"We think it is the only sensible thing to do," said Ald. E. C. Braund, property chairman.

To the suggestion that immediate action should be taken, that parley and consideration had gone far enough, Ald. Braund said: "We can have a meeting in a day or two, and get things going."

Inform Public

Ald. Doug Miller said the council should publish notice of its market plans in advance of action and for information of the public.

The present recommendation, which authorizes the property group to proceed with the preliminaries of removal of the market, depending on later sanction of the council, is another incident of protest against the continuance of the market in its century-old location.

The great majority of the farmers of this district are no longer interested in the market. They have developed their own means of selling, an activity which is still receiving their attention.

Since the Saturdays of sales of hot-house products, the display on the outdoor section has been largely a flower show of delphiniums, Canterbury Bells and so on.

Not Much Business

One of the customers estimated recently that there wasn't $100 worth of goods on the market that Saturday.

Successive councils have taken the position that the trend of business has been more definitely down George St. in the last ten years, and that at the George St. wharf site, the market is still a central location.

It is not the intention of the council, at least as reflected in committee discussions to make any change affecting the indoor market. The accommodation of the market hall will still be available for the sale of the products customarily displayed on its benches.

Bellowing Cattle Give Resident Sleepless Nights

CNR shunting around 4 a.m. on the siding southeast of Ware St. brought a protest to city council from a resident of Crescent St., who also complained that some nights cattle are left in cars on that siding. Their "bellowing" adds to the nuisance alleged against the railway.

The letter, which was considered by council Monday, is being forwarded to the CNR divisional superintendent at Belleville.

Other residents at the extreme north end of George St., opposite Civic Hospital, have reported to Ald. A. B. Burrows that loose tin on the old coal sheds in that vicinity, blown about by the wind, is another intruder on community sleep and rest.

The material is either on the roof or sides, and has become loose. The building is said to be owned by Sanitary Ice and Fuel. As requested by Ald. Burrows, the city's building inspector will investigate the objectionable cause of the nocturnal "banging."

Car Rolls Into Ditch Four Persons Escape

Four persons escaped without a scratch late Monday when their car went out of control on the Warsaw road and overturned in the ditch.

Clyde Finlay, Union City, Michigan, was driving three Toronto boys east on the Warsaw road, and when he reached a point about three miles north-east of Peterborough his car went out of control when he tried to round a curve.

The car slithered across the road which had been made slippery by rain and rolled over once in the left ditch. Damage is estimated at $400.

Provincial Constable B. Milligan is investigating.

LARGER ATTENDANCE

Enrolment in city public schools this June was more than 200 pupils over June 1949—3964 to 3762. But this was three below the May figure. There were 11 admissions and 14 withdrawals. The best attendance average was at Queen Alexander School with 97.99 per cent, closely followed by King George School.

Park St. Drain Contract Let At $82,679

The tenders of Curran & Briggs Ltd., Toronto, for the construction of a culvert on Caddy St. and the Park St. drain, south from Brioux Ave. to the Otonabee River, were accepted by the council in a special sitting Monday night.

Bids were received from six contracting companies. Curran and Briggs quoted $82,679.23 for the Park St. work and $2,447 for the Caddy St. culvert. Closest to them were R. A. Blyth Co. submitting $93,725 for the Park St. job and $2,160 for Caddy St.

Acceptance of the Curran & Briggs tender was recommended by the executive committee of the council as read by Ald. H. Waddell, chairman.

The resolution stipulates that the Caddy St. work is to be completed by Aug. 10, and the Park St. drain by Oct. 15.

Ald. Waddell reported a development in the bid of the George Hardy Company which was listed at $83,873 for the Park St. drain. He explained that the executive committee opened the tenders Monday (July 17) at a meeting which began at 10 a.m.

The bids were: Curran & Briggs $2,447 and $82,679.23; J. K. Sheehy Construction Co., Peterborough, $3,678, for Caddy St. only; Eastwood Construction Co., Peterborough, $4,500 for Caddy St. only; R. A. Blyth Co., $2,160 for Caddy St. and $93,725 for Park St.; Geo. Hardy Ltd. $83,873 for Park St. drain; A. Cops & Sons, Ltd., $107,565.25.

Bid On Both In One Price

Ald. Waddell informed the council he had received the following telegram at 2.10 p.m. Monday from Geo. Hardy Ltd.:

"It has come to my attention that a separate tender form for the skew culvert was requested by the city of Peterborough. This form was not available to us, and therefore our tendered price as sealed in our tender included the skew sewer as well as the Park St. drain, for sum stipulated on the first page of our tender. Confirmation following by mail."

The telegram was signed by A. D. McKee, general manager of Geo. Hardy Ltd., Toronto.

Mayor Swanston referred to the council's advertisement inviting tenders for the two jobs. It was in two sections. One, designated (a) was for Park St. drain, the other (b) was for the Caddy St. culvert. The advertisement set out that contractors might tender on either job or both. Closing time for receipt of tenders was extended from 12 noon July 7 to July 11.

"The executive committee assumed that Hardy Company was tendering only for the Park St job," Ald. Waddell said.

City Engineer Chalmers told the council that the Peterborough representative of Hardy Co. did not ask for plans of the "other job", (Caddy St.)

"We opened the tenders this morning, but it is now indicated in this letter which came this afternoon that their one price covered both jobs," Ald. Waddell said.

"When we read the tenders," said Mayor Swanston, "Hardy Co. mentioned only the Park St. drain."

Council's approval of the executive committee recommendation accepting the Curran and Briggs tenders was unanimous.

R. A. Blyth Company wrote in their bid that if they did not get the contract for the Park St. drain they were not interested in the Caddy St. job.

Robert Fowler Aged 86 Dies

Robert Tully Fowler, 308 Frederick Avenue, a member of a pioneer family of North Monaghan Township died in hospital on Monday after a very short illness. Mr. Fowler was 86 years old last December 13.

Son of John A. Fowler and Agnes Huggan he was born on the old family homestead five miles west of Peterborough on Highway 28. There he resided until he retired to Peterborough 25 years ago. He was the grandson of William Fowler, one of the pioneers who came into North Monaghan Township in 1818 walking overland from Port Hope where they picked their lots in the area of what is now Springville.

Members of the Fowler family ever since that time have been leaders in the community, taking a prominent part in all community efforts and have been staunch supporters of their church.

For many years Mr. Fowler was a member of the Springville Presbyterian Church where he was a most regular attendant. Since coming to Peterborough he has been a member of St. Paul's Church.

A quiet unassuming man, Mr. Fowler was held in high respect by everyone who knew him. He was the kind of citizen, who of pioneer stock had not forgotten the milk of human kindness which went with those families in the early days.

He was a member of a large family, two of whom survive, a sister Mrs. Harry Webber and one brother James Fowler of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held from the Comstock Funeral Home, 356 Rubidge St., on Thursday at 3 p.m. with interment in Little Lake Cemetery.

Pig Good Fish Bait

Ever try fishing with a pig?

A local fisherman, paddling in Little Pigeon lake just below Gannon's Narrows, Sunday saw the carcass of a young pig caught in weeds near the shore.

Around it, two muskies were boiling up the water making passes at it. The fisherman pulled the carcass from the water and took it to a weed bed known to be good muskie ground in Buckhorn Lake.

With his hunting knife, he slashed the hide of the pig and then put it in the weed bed. Monday he went back and fished the spot.

He caught five muskies. All keepers.

Mothers Neglect Children's Teeth Pre-School Age

The Board of Education is disappointed by the small number of pre-school children brought in by their parents for free dental examination.

While 394 children who will be starting kindergarten in the fall had the medical examination, only 112 had the dental inspection.

"Possibly mothers think the dental examination is not as important as the medical," said K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools. He added that school authorities had expected a much

Dr. Ralph Honey pointed out that it was important for the parent to talk over the child's dental health with the dentist.

School dentist Dr. S. J. Graham made this report:

"Approximately 67 per cent of the children examined had dental defects requiring correction. About seven per cent showed some pre-school dental treatment. Premature loss of teeth numbered 13 and 14 more are slated for extraction. There was an average of almost three dental cavities per child."

From this limited survey, Dr. Graham thinks that the dental health of this age group is not as good as it was three or four years ago. But the number in the survey was not large enough to reach any sure conclusions.

Mrs. Ann Rowell said she doubted if the dental survey would ever be as successful as the medical.

"The mothers just won't bring their children," she said.

17 CGE Welders Remain Out

The 17 welders in the structural steel department of CGE who went on strike Friday morning are still not back at work.

Six of them were suspended following their refusal to obey a company order and the other 11 walked out in sympathy.

As yet there has been no meeting between Local 524, United Electrical Workers, and the company. Nor will there be, a company official said today, until the welders are back on the job.

Management's position is that there is an established grievance procedure laid down to settle such disputes and the welders have violated it.

The welders claim the company is trying to make them repair a defective job without pay, even though the unsatisfactory welding was regularly inspected. This, say union officials, would be establishing the precedent that all repair work should be done without pay.

Council Can't Promise Sidewalks Until 1951

Petitions for concrete sidewalks on the south side of Douro St., south side of Wolsley St. and east side of Payne St. were received by the board of works Monday night. "From the amount of work already laid out I don't see how we can do these sidewalks this year," said Ald. H. Dodds, chairman.

"I don't think we can do them this year," said Mayor M. Swanston.

It was decided to have the authorizing bylaw prepared and the first person on each petition will be informed of the fact that so much other work has been listed for this year that the walks may have to be postponed until 1951.

City Paid $5,770 Premium By Bank Purchasing $440,500 Debenture Issue

The city receives a premium of $5,770 in the sale of the $440,500 debentures authorized by the city council Monday night in accepting the top price of $101.31 bid by the Bank of Montreal, bracketed with Mills, Spence & Co., Ltd., Toronto. "It shows our own bankers have faith in us," Mayor M. Swanston remarked in finance committee, to whom Ald. H. F. Waddell reported the "pleasant surprise" the executive committee received when they opened the tenders of the financial firms Monday morning. The prices in seven tenders quoted were all over par, and by the margin from the low of 34 cents to the high of $1.31.

Authority for City Treasurer A. S. Couper to print and sell the debentures was moved by Ald. A. B. Burrows and Ald. T. D. Miller.

The city is borrowing this money to cover four outlets of municipal expenditure.

Board of Education required $140,000 to pay for the new annex at Prince of Wales School; Peterborough Utilities Commission required the largest part of the loan, amounting to $275,000; and the city council's item was only $25,500 for the property it purchases for industrial sites west of Erskine Ave.

Utilities Commission needed $150,000 to pay for extensions and other improvements carried out in its electric department; and $125,000 for similar enlargements of its waterworks system.

Examiner Fifth Most Quoted Paper In Canada

During the three months April, May and June, The Peterborough Examiner was the fifth most-frequently quoted daily newspaper. This has been revealed by a survey made by an independent press-clipping service in Toronto.

The two papers heading the list for the quarterly survey were The Ottawa Journal with 1,033 quotations, and The Windsor Star with 992 quotations credited to it. Third in the list was The Financial Post of Toronto, a weekly paper, with 786 quotations. Next came The Hamilton Spectator, 593 quotations. The Peterborough Examiner, fifth among the 95 newspapers included in the listing, had 544 quotations credited to it.

The next dozen papers, and number of times quoted, are as follows: 6—St. Thomas Times-Journal (540); 7—Ottawa Citizen (496); 8—Kitchener Record (493); 9—St. Catharines Standard (445); 10—Kingston Whig - Standard (397); 11—Toronto Telegram (392); 12—Lethbridge Herald (372); 13—Montreal Gazette (371); 14—Edmonton Journal (370); 15—Montreal Star (368); 16—London Free Press (344); 17—Toronto Globe and Mail (328).

Loses Claims Against Hydro

TORONTO, July 18 (CP).—A Port Hope tourist camp operator, Harry Glober, Monday lost a $25,000 damage suit against the Ontario Hydro Commission for injuries suffered when he touched a high voltage line with a 20-foot iron pipe.

The accident occurred August 17, 1948, when Glober was cleaning a chimney. He was burned and hospitalized for several weeks after the accident.

Mr. Justice P. E. F. Smily ruled Glober was negligent "because a 20-foot pole should never have been used to clean the chimney."

High voltage hydro lines pass over the corner of Glober's property, which is just within the town limits of Port Hope.

The damage suit was heard at the spring assizes in Cobourg and Mr. Justice Smily reserved judgment at that time.

Tourists Cancel Reservations, Hint War Scare

A number of tourists from the United States have changed their minds during the past week about coming to the Kawartha Lakes district this summer. Several cancellations of reservations have been reported to the Peterborough Junior Chamber of Commerce by owners of summer lodges, cottages and cabins, according to operator Bill Duigham.

One American tourist was recalled to Washington, after spending two days in this district, because of the Korean situation and it is generally believed that this war scare may account for a majority of the other cancellations. No reports have been received of Canadian tourists making cancellations.

The war in Korea has not reduced the number of persons making inquiries at the Junior Chamber of Commerce booth on Charlotte St. Last week a total of 633 tourists stopped at the booth for information.

Operators at the booth expect their busiest time will be at the peak of the tourist season during the last week of July and the first week in August.

MAY SELL QUARRY

Bruce Bickell is enquiring about purchase of the city's quarry east of the Peterborough-Lakefield Road. City Engineer Chalmers said it had not been used since the years of the depression. Mr. Bickell's letter was referred to the property committee for a report, in a motion by Aldermen Dewart and Gillespie at Monday night's council meeting.

'NATURE UNSPOILED

YOURS TO PROTECT

The ROSE-BREASTED GROSBEAK is a very beautiful bird, black and white, with a soft rosy triangle high on his breast. He lives in leafy groves, nearly always near the water. He should be protected, as he eats great numbers of potato beetles.

With the circus the horse is still king and the show has the finest stables of performing and work horses with any circus on tour. This is the only circus that uses horses for the pulling of the huge red wagons and the clatter of the stately steeds awakens many a memory of the by-gone days.

Fall Into Bin 2 Boys Suffocate

WALKERTON, July 18 (CP)— Two boys were killed in a wheat bin at Knechtel's Mill Monday. Alvin Frook, 12, and Wayne Bushlow, 11, both of Walkerton, lost their lives when they stepped from the second floor of the mill into a 16-feet-deep wheat bin. They immediately disappeared.

Firemen found the boys wedged into the shute exit hole. Three legs were showing through the hale. Parts of the shute were ripped away, and wheat was taken out. But the boys were dead.

Firemen and hydro workers worked on the bodies for two hours without success.

Coroner Dr. Thomas Sinclair said suffocation was the cause of death. There will be no inquest.

Movie Column

Studios Leaning On Westerns To Woo Public

HOLLYWOOD, July 18 (AP).—There's an old saying in Hollywood: When you don't know what to make, make a Western. That's certainly true today.

The movie industry seems to be at the crossroads again, hunting for a direction to follow. The cycle of heavy drama won't peddle any more; audiences apparently are shunning anything that sniffs of the psychological. Comedies and musicals always sell when they're good, but it's too hard to find good ones.

A survey of present and future production reveals that between a third and a quarter of the pictures are horse operas, also known as sagebrushers or oaters. Top names which are destined for the wide open spaces include Clark Gable, Gregory Peck, Errol Flynn, John Wayne and Bing Crosby, who will co-star with William (Hopalong) Boyd.

Stars Deny Feud

Ginger Rogers and Joan Davis were reported feuding on the set of "Illegal Bride," but both deny it. Ginger told me she was also supposed to be fighting with Doris Day on another picture. "Doris is one of my best friends," said Ginger.

Joe Ferrer returns to the stage after his long-nosed role in "Cyrano de Bergerac." He'll star in "The Shrike," a new play which he'll produce himself.

Film Shorts

Jack Carson, native of Carman, Man., and Dennis Morgan were discussing a film re-teaming on the golf course. But that doesn't seem possible now that Carson has left Warners and Morgan remains there.

Judy Garland will have a picture ready for her whenever she's able to work again, says Producer Joe Pasternak. But he thinks the distraught actress should spend six months in a sanatorium.

$50,000 Fire Levels House

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N.Y., July 18 (AP)—Fire levelled one home at the Thousand Island Park on Wells Island Monday, and damaged three others. Police estimated the loss at $50,000.

Mrs. Herbert C. Fulmer of Interlaken, N.Y., whose home was destroyed, suffered minor burns about the face.

Wells Island lies in the middle of the St. Lawrence River. The scenic Thousand Islands bridge links the island to both the United States and Canada.

Alexander On Holiday

VANCOUVER, July 18—(CP)—The Governor-General, Viscount Alexander, arrived in British Columbia Monday on a week-long angling holiday. The Governor-General and Lady Alexander arrived at Port Coquitlam from Calgary and will be guests of Clarence Wallace, Vancouver shipbuilder, at his Silver Valley summer home in the Fraser Valley.

Earnings Decrease

OTTAWA, July 18 — (CP) — Earnings of Canadians working by the hour hit a new high at May 1. Students Armed With Shovels Working In Japanese Centres

TOKYO, July 18 (AP).—Armed with Christian ideals, picks and shovels, groups of Oriental and Western students are working among the Japanese again this summer.

A series of "service and action projects" launched last year is being continued by students from Japan, Korea, Canada, the United States, Okinawa, the Philippines, Thailand and China. The work is under auspices of the National Christian Council as part of a global program of the World Council of Churches.

The World Council maintains similar projects in Europe. The camps in Japan opened this month and will operate four weeks.

Hallam Shorrock, secretary of the National Christian Council in Japan, said the students were assigned to "eight areas of Japan to perform urgent tasks of reconstruction and rehabilitation."

The students help build homes for repatriates, drainage ditches, water reservoirs and children's playgrounds. They also organize summer church schools and assist in local churches.

Last year some put in four weeks aiding reconstruction in the atom-bombed city of Nagasaki.

The students pay their own expenses. A few who work in industry receive wages. The industrial workers also will meet with Japanese labor, management and community leaders for talks on wages, hours, unions and business operations.

A youth caravan will take students into Nagano Prefecture for "revitalizing the local Church Youth program, organizing vacation Bible study groups, leading recreation and holding evangelistic meetings."

Uses Pitchfork Drive Off Sows

SCHOMBERG, Ont., July 18 (CP) — A pitchfork - wielding grandmother, Mrs. John Rainie, 54, probably saved the lives of her daughter-in-law and grandson Saturday when she drove off two vicious 300-pound sows as they attacked the helpless pair.

Mrs. Reginald Rainie and her son, Jimmie, 3, are in hospital suffering multiple bites to their arms and legs. The mother threw herself across the prostrate form of her son after the enraged sows attacked him and his sister as they walked across the family farmyard.

The sister, Margaret, 6, made the safety of a fence when the pigs rushed them. But Jimmie was hurtled to the ground. His screams brought his mother running with a pitchfork.

She tried to drive the animals away but lost the pitchfork. In desperation she threw her body over the boy to protect him.

The mother's screams brought Mrs. John Rainie to the scene. Yelling at the top of her voice, she lunged at the animals and drove them off.

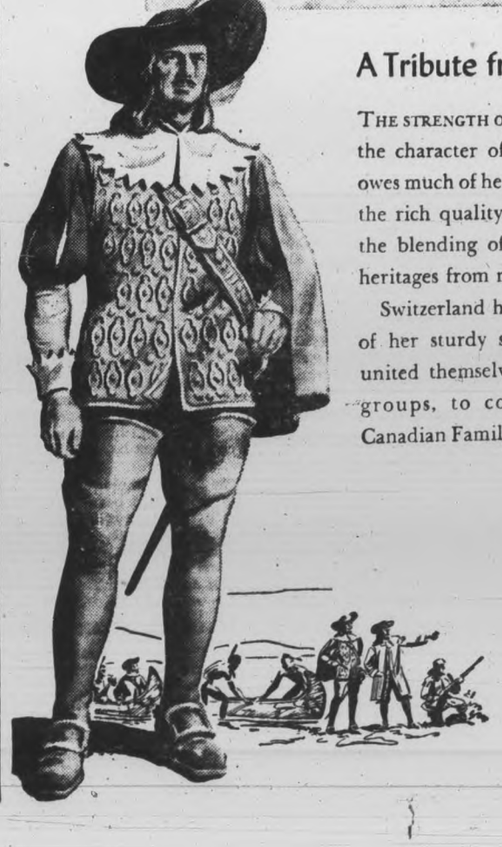
The Canadian Family owes much to . . . Switzerland



A Tribute from Calvert to Canadians of Swiss Descent

THE STRENGTH of a nation stems from the character of its people. Canada owes much of her growth, vitality and the rich quality of its democracy to the blending of racial and cultural heritages from many lands.

Switzerland has contributed many of her sturdy sons, and they have united themselves with other racial groups, to comprise the great Canadian Family.

Among the first Swiss to come to Canada were soldiers who helped Lord Selkirk defend his Red River Colony. These were quickly followed by skilled watch and clock makers and musicians.

Today the names of many Canadians of Swiss descent figure prominently among our artists, musicians, writers and poets, while the unmatched skill of Swiss watchmakers has contributed much to Canada's industry.

Calvert DISTILLERS (Canada) Limited AMHERSTBURG • ONTARIO

Calvert, founder of Canada's first colony at Newfoundland in 1622, was head of the famous Calvert family. Calvert's ideals of democracy, ideals which were perpetuated by his descendants, helped set the pattern for the freedom we now enjoy.

FALLS LEAP FAILS — An attempt by Major Lloyd Hill, 31-year-old Niagara Falls riverman, to go over the Horseshoe Falls in a barrel Sunday, ended in failure for him although the barrel completed the trip. This aerial photo shows the chain of events that led to failure. Hill and his barrel were launched above the falls. After going over a small dam, the barrel became caught in the undercurrent and for 15 minutes rolled until it came near a powerhouse sluice gate. Then Hill was removed from the barrel. It was pushed out into the river and continued its course over the cataract. Hill plans to try again "around Labor Day."

CLAIMS RECORD

LONDON (CP)—British railways claim a record. The 7,493 passenger trains run in the southern district May 31 averaged only 15 seconds late.

HAULED FROM BARREL — Major Lloyd Hill is hauled from the steel barrel. Hill was removed from the barrel and prevented from continuing over the cataract after it was trapped in the undercurrent of a small dam above the falls.

Business In The U.S. Awaits Message From President Truman

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

President Truman's message to Congress Wednesday is being awaited by business men for its indication of the shape of things to come.

It is not considered likely that a real wartime-controlled state will come at once, but nevertheless there is forecast of some controls. Two factors may bring them faster than would otherwise have been the case.

These are a considerable rush by Americans to stock up on things which might become scarce in wartime, and steep boosts in commodity prices.

Whatever develops Wednesday, controls once started can spread rapidly and can soon find their way across the border.

See Steel Curbs

Among things predicted in Washington are controls over steel, curbs on consumer credit, and possibly a tax increase.

In the meantime, if there should be a widespread war, American observers see United States industry in a much better position than when it faced the second world war.

Sawm Dawson, of the Associated Press, comments:

"Industry, from the largest to the smallest company, waits word expected soon from Washington as to when it is to be mobilized. The question is: If industrial mobilization is needed at this time, is it to come all at once or piecemeal?

"Industries are trying to guess: (1) which of their employees, from the unskilled to the executives, will be called into service, and how they are to be replaced; (2) whether their company's production is to be controlled, their raw materials rationed, the type of goods they make changed; and (3) whether price controls are to be clamped on the materials they buy, and whether their inventories are to be regulated or confiscated.

Ready To Co-operate

"But once the uncertainty is over, leaders in almost all industries feel they are ready this time to do a bigger war production job, and in many cases a quicker one.

"The Federal Reserve Board estimated its industrial production index reached 197 just before the Reds struck Korea. This topped the previous post-war peak of 195 in the fall of 1948. And it means that the country's industrial output is 197 per cent of its 1935-39 pre-war average."

What can be said of the production powers of the United States can certainly be said also of Canada, for per capita Canada has probably increased her production powers more thn her neighbor.

Gen. Booth 84, SA Leader, Dies

HARTDALE, N. Y., July 18 — (AP).—Gen. Evangeline Booth, 84, called the White Angel, who fololwed her father's footsteps in Salvation Army work as world commander of the organization he founded, died Monday at her home.

She had been ill for the last year. Death was caused by a heart ailment and hardening of the arteries.

Miss Booth was the daughter of Gen. William Booth, who founded the Salvation Army in 1865, the year she was born. Her career in the organization began as a child in London where her father preached in the slums.

A leader of the Army in the United States for 30 years, Miss Booth became international commander in 1934. She retired in 1939.

As Miss Booth got her first lessons in the salvation of souls in London's Limehouse and Whitechapel districts, the toughs taunted her at first but later formed a bodyguard for her and called her their White Angel.

She fought and won a legal battle through Britain's parliament when the Salvation Army was prosecuted for insisting on its right to preach in Torquay, exclusive English seaside resort.

In 1939, Hitler reversed an order limiting activities of the Army in Germany after she wrote the Nazi Fuehrer a letter saying she could not be sure whether he was a "dunce or a devil."

She filled the S.A. leadership in Canada for nine years, and organized and led a mission and nursing corps for the gold rush pioneers into the Far Northwest in 1898.

For her services in the First World War, U.S. President Woodrow Wilson awarded her the Distinguished Service Medal. Other countries and numerous institutions also honored her.

She was the first woman general in the Salvation Army's history.

"My only regret," she said on her 76th birthday, "is that I haven't two lives to give to God and humanity."

Britain Learns Paper Supply Low

LONDON, July 18 (Reuters)—The Newsprint Supply Company representing the entire British press said Monday supplies of newsprint during the next six months will be insufficient to maintain even six-page newspapers in Britain.

The government had allowed no dollars for newsprint from Canada during the first six months of 1950. Canadian mills had to seek other markets and enter long-term contracts with customers in other countries.

The effect was masked by the prospect of improved deliveries from Scandinavia and contracts were made with France to supply 30,000 tons of newsprint in 1950, the company said.

British mills had improved their production and were expected to provide 440,000 tons for British newspapers.

On this basis British papers were allowed to increase their size to seven pages during the general election campaign last February. This was later extended to July 2.

The government now requires an increase in exports from the British mills.

In March periodicals were freed from control and increased their consumption.

Production by home mills had been overestimated by the government and the figure of 71½ per cent of pre-war production was unattainable. The result was a loss to British papers equivalent to nearly 50,000 tons.

NEW TELEPHONE RATES

The Board of Transport Commissioners has ordered our first general rate increase in 23 years

EFFECTIVE JULY 22, 1950

In accordance with an interim order of The Board of Transport Commissioners, telephone rates will be increased on July 22nd. These rates will apply until the Board makes a final decision on the application for higher rates that we made last October.

No one, of course, wants to pay higher prices for anything. Though our costs have been going up faster than our revenues for some time, we delayed applying for increases until it was clearly evident we could not continue to operate satisfactorily without higher rates.

Most things you buy and the things we buy too, have gone up in price in recent years, and nearly all of them more than the revenue increase we asked for. The temporary rates now ordered by the Board give us only part of the revenue we require. If we are to continue towards our goal of providing service to all who want it, when and where they want it, we must receive the balance of the increase for which we applied.

Although the cost of telephone service has finally gone up, when you think about it, the value of telephone service has gone up even more. In terms of convenience, security and friendly contacts, a telephone is worth far more than it costs!

HOW TO FIND YOUR NEW RATE

Look up your exchange area in TABLE "A". Its rate group appears beside it. Below, under the corresponding rate group column in TABLE "B", you will find the rates for the most widely used classes of service. If you need any information about other rates, please call our business office.

Women of World Win Places In Education

OTTAWA, July 18 (CP)—The women of the world have won themselves important spots in education.

At least three of the largest teachers' organizations represented at the fourth assembly of the world organization of the teaching profession are headed by women.

President of the 55,000-member Canadian Teachers Federation is Dr. Bernice MacNaughton of Moncton, N.B., who heads the CTF delegation of 28.

Miss S. C. Bertie, president of 128,000-member National Union of Teachers of England and Wales, is one of the four United Kingdom delegates.

Corma Mowrey of Clarksburg, W.Va., president of the 457,000-member National Education Association, is a member of the American delegation, made up of some 50 educationists.

Teacher Shortage

A shortage of teachers, inadequate buildings and economic insecurity are the main problems confronting educationists in the U.S., Miss Mowrey said in an interview.

Elected NEA president barely three weeks ago, the attractive high school teacher said the 93-year-old organization elects a woman president every other year.

In order to recruit more teachers, she said NEA is sponsoring the work of the future teachers association in as many of the states as possible.

The FTA movement was active in high schools and colleges. It provides members with information about the profession.

DOROTHY DIX

Wife Gossips to Neighbors Tells Family Shortcomings

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: All of my married life, which has been a good many years, my wife has discussed all of our private family affairs with the neighbors or anyone who will listen. I have implored her not to do this, time and again, but it does no good. Every fault of the children and myself, every mistake we make, every wrong thing we do she broadcasts to the world. What can I do or what should I do with a wife who is so disloyal? H.E.B.

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER: I doubt if women who go about publicizing all of their private affairs and rattling the family skeleton for the diversion of the neighbors are mentally responsible and if they can help doing as they do. Certainly there is something wrong with the brain of one who has so little discretion as not to know what to tell and what not to tell about one's family, and so little taste as to be willing to make the faults and foibles of one's husband and children a subject for the criticism or the ridicule of all their acquaintances.

Can Harm Husband's Business

Certainly no normal woman would want to injure her husband financially, since her own prosperity depends upon his, yet it is a common thing to hear a wife complain to any one who will listen about how she has to economize because her husband is such a poor business man, or telling all and sundry that her husband is indolent, or that he gambles or drinks. Very often not a word of these charges is true, but the wife's irresponsible chatter as it passes from lip to lip hoodoos the man and effectually blocks his chances of getting a better job.

Worse still, if possible, these women who tell all of their secret sorrows to the neighbors blacken the characters of their own children. They confide in the woman who keeps the corner grocery that they don't know what in the world they are going to do with Sally, who did not get home until 4 o'clock and who is running with a wild crowd. And that Tom is drinking too much and Freddy won't stick at a job and Sammy is hanging around the poolrooms instead of trying to get work.

And they never seem to realize that they have done their children a deadlier injury than malice itself could invent, because they have established them in everybody's mind as a lot of young wastrels who are no good and not to be trusted.

What makes women talk too much, goodness only knows. Some just seem to be hypnotized by the sound of their own voices and when they once get started, can't stop. Others want to hold their audience spellbound and the only way they can do this is by telling their family secrets. People will always listen to them.

And still others have such a morbid desire to be sympathized with and pitied that they are willing to offer up their families to be "poor-deared" for having such mean husbands and such ungrateful children.

But there is no way to stop them, and that's the pity of it.

DEAR MISS DIX: My home has been broken up by a tyrannical and interfering mother-in-law and it is now necessary for me to support myself and a six-year-old son. Before marriage I was a secretary, but if I return to the business world I suppose I'll be lucky enough to get a stenographer's job. Since keeping house I have learned to be a fairly good cook and like cooking very much. My problem is this: Shall I brush up on secretarial work, or take a course in domestic science so as to be an excellent cook? Which is my best bet? MRS. SECRETARY-COOK.

ANSWER: It seems to me that domestic work offers a field that is especially their own to women and which they can till to greater advantage than almost any other. And it is a field that offers particular opportunities to women of intelligence and education because most of the workers in it have little skill and knowledge and no ambition to do fine work. The woman who keeps a boarding house and who is thereby enabled to house and feed and keep with her a brood of children or her parents, as so many do, could never have hoped to have earned a salary that would support them unless she had some very great talent.

You must, of course, decide your own problem, but if I were in your place I would make myself a crackerjack cook, and start some sort of eating place. People will always go anywhere where there is superlatively good food.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I want to marry. Where can I find a girl who is good and honest; who can take life on the chin and come up smiling; who has character and courage and would be a helpmate to a poor man; who would marry for keeps and be true to the end, somebody whom I can look up to; who is domestic and affectionate. RICHARD.

ANSWER: You can probably find her right around the corner, some girl you have never noticed because she has not run after you, some girl who does not go out much because the boys don't date her up.

VERY IMPORTANT in many warm climates is this short woollen coat with pleated back in a rich cream shade. It is teamed with a pleated skirt in gay, colorful plaid.

What's Right?

Your child does some damage to a neighbor's house or yard while the neighbor is away from home.

WRONG: Decide to say nothing about the matter, if the neighbor does not.

RIGHT: Take the child with you to explain to the neighbor what happened and to offer to do what you can to make amends.

Of Interest to Women

THIS DRESS OF IRIDESCENT CHAMBRAY has been embroidered with a lighter shade. Highlights, other than the embroidery are a wide, square collar (falling over the shoulders in lieu of sleeves), tiny self covered buttons down the front and unpressed pleats giving a wide effect to the skirt.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

"May I have your ruling," asks a New York reader, "on the following situation. I held three aces, three queens, three sixes, and two fives. The discard pile was quite large, and finally a five was discarded by the player at my right.

"This gave me the required count of 120 points for my first meld. However, it was necessary for me to use up my entire hand to make that meld. The opponents claimed that I could not take the pile since the meld left me with no cards in my hand. My partner and I claimed that taking the pack and melding were one and the same transaction; and that since I would have the pile left, I would have plenty of cards after my discard.

"Who is right?"

The meld is perfectly legal. It is quite all right to use every card in your hand for your initial meld when you take the discard pile. The only requirement is that you have at least one card in your hand after you have made your discard.

In this case, the player had the right to put down his entire hand, add the five from the top of the discard pile, and then pick up the rest of the pile. With the pile in his hand, he would then have the right to consider further melds, and so on, just as in the case of any legal meld.

Q—Suppose I freeze the pack with a wild card. The next player discards a king. Can my partner then pick up the pile if she has a pair of kings in her hand? In other words, is there any minimum length of time that a freeze must last before anybody can pick up the pile?

A—Your partner is entitled to take the pile in this situation. This is the minimum length of time that a freeze can last. The player who follows the freeze is not permitted to pick up the wild card; so he must draw from the stock. However, the freezer's partner may pick up the discard pile if she has a pair of natural cards that match the card that is discarded to her.

Q—The other night I held seven sevens, three nines and one deuce. I wanted to meld out, but the count of the hand was only 85, and I needed 120 points. Could I count the canasta bonus of 500 towards my initial meld?

A—You were entitled to meld out, but not because of the canasta bonus. When you can meld out your hand at one play, including a canasta, and provided that you have not melded before and that you do not use any of your partner's melds—you are allowed to do so even if you have less than the minimum count. This is known as melding out "concealed."

You are never entitled to count your canasta bonus as part of your initial meld. A canasta bonus is counted only after the hand has ended.

Q—Do you get a bonus of 100 points if your side makes a meld before the other side melds?

A—No. There is no bonus for melding first.

Q—Do you need two canastas to meld out in two-hand Canasta?

A—This is left up to the players. They should agree beforehand whether one or two canastas are needed to meld out.

"Aren't you interested in winning?" asked Optimistic Oliver's partner. "Just let me know what you're after. If you're looking for thrills, that's all right with me. I might be able to dream up a few for you to remember me by."

"I was trying to win a big score," Oliver defended himself. "If we had taken that pack we'd have made a fortune."

"True," admitted his partner. "If!" "If you had wheels you'd be a trolley car. And if I had any sense I'd know better than to play Canasta with you."

This was a bit strong, but the complaint was not unjustified. Oliver had lived up to his nickname, with disastrous results.

When the hand began, Oliver's side had 4500 points, while the opponents had only 2000. His side needed 120 points for the first meld, while the opponents needed only 90 points. Neither side melded, and the pack grew to quite a respectable size. Finally, Oliver discarded a deuce, freezing the pack.

Oliver then proceeded to discard five kings in a row. The rest of the story will need no telling to experienced Canasta players. Oliver found a few more safe discards but eventually decided to discard additional wild cards for lack of anything else that was surely safe. Having done so, he was no longer able to meld 120 points, no matter what was discarded to him. His hand was useless, and his partner was no better off. Their only hope was that the opponents also would never be able to meld.

Unfortunate for Oliver, the enemy eventually got the pack, which was really huge by that time. They scored well over four thousand points on the hand!

Now let's go back to Oliver's position when he decided to freeze the pack. Before he discarded the deuce, he held the following 12 cards:

Joker K-K-K-K-K J-9-8 2-2-2.

He could have put down the five kings with the joker and a deuce. This would give him his initial meld and a canasta at the same time. He could discard one of the three odd cards and wait for a chance to meld out. Even if his partner could not help very much, Oliver could expect to meld out fairly quickly. The hand would probably be neither a great victory nor a great loss. However, his side would win the game and thus get rid of the disadvantage of needing a meld of 120 points.

Instead of playing it safe in this way, Oliver decided to gamble on a freeze. He reasoned that he had five safe discards and that other safe discards would be available by the time he had finished with them. In the meantime, he or his partner might get the pack.

It was tpyical of Optimistic Oliver that he thought only of what he might gain and not of what he might lose. He had no way of knowing whether his partner could find safe discards. Even if Oliver thought that he had a fair chance to score a lot of points, the risk was far too great.

The point is that there are times when it pays to take a small but sure profit rather than risk a huge loss in the attempt to make a killing.

Q—My opponents had a canasta consisting of four fives and three jokers. The deck was frozen and I discarded a five. The opponent at my left had two more fives in his hand. He claimed he could pick up my five and take the discard pile. Is this true?

A—Yes. You are always permitted to pick up the previous discard (and the rest of the discard pile with it) if you have two natural cards that match the discard. The closed canasta has nothing to do with the matter.

Rough Surfaces Good For Feet

LONDON — (CP) — Pebbles, shingle, gravel, pine needles,—any rough surface—are good for babies' feet.

Dr. Margaret Elmslie, speaking at the opening of the National Foot Health Week Exhibition here, said uneven surfaces that are not sharp, stimulate the toddler's foot muscles.

The doctor experimented in nurseries with mattresses of pebbles and broken cork and found that children don't notice the difference. It improves their sense of balance.

"The more babies run about on rough surfaces without shoes from the time they begin to stand, the better for their feet afterwards," she said.

Mother 72 Years Tries Painting

VANCOUVER (CP). — Mary Clarke wanted to paint, and her years — 72 of them — prove no handicap for the white-haired mother of eight.

Mrs. Clarke learned the fundamentals of painting in a winter art course, taking one night a week to wield a brush. She said at first her attempts looked like the work of a four-year-old, but that it didn't matter because she go tremendous enjoyment out of it.

Still youthful-looking, Mrs. Clarke said she took up painting to keep her occupied. "With my children all either married or away on their own and my husband dead, I need a hobby to keep me busy," she explained.

REMOVE COATS

CHESTER, England (CP). — Some Cheshire county policemen were allowed to remove their coats to keep cool during a heat wave. Those who wore braces underneath had to leave their coats on and sweltered.

London's Low Summer Sales Blamed On The Weather

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON (CP). — London's summer sales opened to the worst bout of wet weather this summer.

Shopkeepers blamed the elements for the first day's small sales-crowds, but the crowds, like the weather, showed only slight improvement all through the first week.

Many shoppers looked, but not so many bought. Bargain-hunters had definite ideas — to find something they really needed, at low prices. If they couldn't find what they had in mind, they didn't buy.

"Crazy" bargain-buying was lower than usual, apparently because of slender purses.

Real eye-catching price-cuts in the cheaper ranges were few and far between. Any decently-styled coat, suit, dress or skirt was priced from £1 ($3.10) upwards—mostly upwards.

Best buys were found in the higher-price ranges where coats, suits and dresses costing 10 to 12 guineas sold at half-price and under.

Slash Prices

One Oxford Street sports outfitter cut the price tags on winter coats £1 an hour. By late afternoon £12 coats sold for £6 and there were still plenty on the racks.

For those seeking a winter outfit and willing to pay from £5 upwards, the search was more rewarding.

This writer found that one article missing the bargain rails was pencil-slim skirts — especially black. Good quality pencil skirts, without ornamentation of any kind, sold from £3 upwards, but all-round-pleated skirts ranged from £1 to £2.

Shoes offered some bargains. One Bond Street store had 2,000 pairs which ordinarily sell for about 9½ guineas, going for as low as three guineas. Many other shoe stores had good quality models selling for 20 to 30 shillings.

Woman War Reporter Ordered From Korea

Advanced American Field Headquarters, Korea, July 18 (AP)— Marguerite Higgins, New York Herald - Tribune correspondent, left last night for U.S. Eighth Army Headqarters under army instructions.

She said she had been ordered back to Tokyo and had been told she would be taken to Eighth Army Headquarters under army However, there was no escort.

Miss Higgins said last night she would ask a review of the order.

(In New York, Whitelaw Reid, editor of the Herald Tribune said "We believe the decision to force her to return to Tokyo is wrong and unfair in view of the outstanding job of reporting she has done.")

Bus-Streetcar Smash Injures Twenty-four

MONTREAL, July 18 —(CP)— Twenty-four passengers were injured, none seriously, when a Provincial Transport Company bus collided with a street car today during the morning rush hour in east-end Montreal.

Most of the injured were on the bus, bound for Granby, Que. Several were expected to be X-rayed later for possible fractures.

Dr. Eugene Lapointe, dentist near the corner of Papineau Avenue and Demontigny Street, gave first aid to the injured on the verandah of his home.

Both the street car and bus were heavily damaged.

It was the second transit accident in Montreal in 24 hours. Yesterday afternoon seven persons suffered cuts and shock when they tried to scramble through broken windows of a street car after a motor explosion.

Wilson Helps?

By The Canadian Press.

Harold Wilson figures there's a chance he may have helped Stanley Sayres set the world powerboat record that Wilson has been spending a long time trying to break.

The Ingersoll racer is in Gravenhurst with his temperamental Miss Canada IV for trials. If all goes well, he may make an official bid to break the record of 160.3 miles per hour Sayres set in his Slo-Mo-Shun.

Wilson said that several months ago he received a letter from Sayres asking for details of Miss Canada's gear box. He wrote back with the information.

"It never entered my mind," he said laughingly, "that he would turn out to be the fellow whose record I'm going to break."

Until Sayres set the record, Miss Canada was considered a cinch to break the record of 141.7 set by Sir Malcolm Campbell. Wilson had hit 155 in unofficial trials at Picton last year.

Mrs. A. Wease, Lasswade Centenarian Dies

LASSWADE, July 18 — Mrs. Annie Wease, who celebrated her 100th birthday on May 11, died on Friday at the homestead two miles east of Lasswade. She came to Chandos township with her husband more than 70 years ago and endured many hardships common to pioneers in the 19th century.

The Rev. G. Wheeler, of Grace United Church, conducted the funeral on Sunday and burial was in the United Church cemetery. Mrs. Wease was a member of that church.

Pall bearers were three sons and three grandsons: Arthur, George and William Wease, Albert, Clarence and Austin Wease. Many relatives and friends attended the funeral.

Mrs. Wease is survived by five sons: Charles and David, of Glen Alda, William and Arthur, of Lasswade, and George, who farms the old homestead. Two daughters are (Rosa) Mrs. D. Hendley, of Apsley, and (Margaret) Mrs James Hicks, of Kingsville, Ont.

Although she lost her sight five years ago, Mrs. Wease had good hearing and a keen memory. Her birthdays during the past five years have been important family occasions and there was a festive celebration by most of her nine great-great grandchildren, 46 great grandchildren, 27 grand children, five sons and two daughters on that occasion.

Married At 17

Mr. Wease died 25 years ago and a daughter, Charlotte, and five sons, Peter, Walter, John, Louis and Delbert have also died.

Born near Sydney Ont., the former Annie Parcels, Mrs. Wease was raised by relatives and at the mature age, in those days, of 17, married Austin Wease, of the same community. They moved to the settlement of Round Lake and farmed there for a few years where three of their 13 children were born.

From there the Wease's moved to the backwoods section of Chandos township, east of the Lasswade settlement, to 200 acres of bush and rocks and sandy soil. Mr. Wease put up a cabin and started breaking the stubborn land to farming. It was hard pioneering work. With axes and grubboes from dawn to dusk and teams of patient oxen to haul out timber and brush for burning, the bush gave way begrudgingly to small fields. And in the winters Mr. Wease left his wife and large young family to work in the shanties for small wages.

Winters Lonely

Mrs. Wease could recall the lonely winters she spent with her children while her man was away. She remembers that their wealth of livestock then amounted to two cows in a small log barn near the cabin, which attracted two different packs of wolves, night after night.

As the fields and pastures grew in size and the small sons were able to handle the oxen and the wolves were driven back, the Wease's were able to raise sheep and Granny, who never had a second to spare, added the spinning and carding of wool for numerous pairs of socks and sweaters.

In springs she did her stint at the sap boiling kettles and recalls with some alarm these days that she had to park her son David in a wooden sap trough as she worked around the fires. David, who is hale and hearty today, shows no ill effects and appears to be quite proud of the distinction.

One-Inch Rainfall Plugs Montreal Drains

MONTREAL, July 18 —(CP)— Sewers were blocked, cellars flooded and transport held up last night as a one-inch rainfall in a few hours flooded sections of greater Montreal. There was no estimate of damage available.

Children played hip-deep in water and cars and trucks were abandoned on St. James Street west when the rain exceeded the capacity of sewers to carry it off.

Blocks Fire

WINNIPEG—(CP)—S. Pitman, of Winnipeg, stopped a fire here by just standing still. He spotted a smouldering box in the window of a locked store set afire by sunlight focused through a glass jar. Mr. Pitman blocked the sun's rays and the fire was out before firemen arrived.

Broadway Show Fails To Get Support In City

The Broadway musical, "Up In Central Park" which was to be presented on Aug. 10, 11 and 12 under the sponsorship of the Peterborough Choral Society fell down without a single night's performance in this city.

The bubble burst when the representative of the Empire Production Co., Kansas City, who produce this show, was unable to persuade local businessmen to buy advertising space on the programs that were to be printed for the show.

This company approaches clubs and societies in various communities attempting to get sponsors for their shows. When they are successful in getting a sponsor, a contract is signed whereby they agree to provide the scenery, the director and the main star and the rest of the cast is selected from local talent. A representative is then sent to the community to sell advertising. In this way the company gauges the interest and support the show will be given.

The representative was successful in selling only one page of advertising space after making 61 calls. As a result, the company decided the show would not be a success, and pulled out.

Local businessmen were of the opinion that this type of show would fail to draw crowds at this time of year.

Other difficulties were also encountered. The company uses what is called "flying scenery" and it was found that there was no available hall or auditorium in the city that could accommodate this type of scenery.

Due to the decision of the Empire Production Co. not to put on this show in Peterborough, the next presentation of the Choral Society will be "Great Moments of Opera" in October, according to the director, Wm. Sims.

Exhausted By Test, Boy Drowns In River

GAMEBRIDGE, Ont., July 18—(CP)—Exhausted during a swimming test in the Talbot River, Ray Found, 14, of Cannington was drowned Monday.

The boy was attending a camp at Fairhaven Lodge, four miles from this Muskoka district village. A supervisor, Bassett Jones of Toronto saw the boy's plight but before he could reach him, Found disappeared.

Farm Workers Needed In Brazil

By R. P. HARDING.

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 18 — (Reuters)—Brazil is in dire need of agricultural immigrants, but all efforts to get them have bogged down in red tape and misunderstanding.

There is a general agreement that farmers should come to work the vast tracts of land available But who should pay their passage, who should look after them when they get here, and exactly where they should be told to settle cannot be agreed.

Immigration is at a standstill, but with signing of an agreement with Italy both countries are hoping the way will be opened for it.

Brazil is the world's fourth largest country, but has a population of Britain's. She is predominantly an agricultural country—yet only four per cent of her land is under cultivation.

Hope To Develop Land

It is hoped that at least part of the $10,000,000 Marshall Plan appropriation for experimental projects in Latin America may be used for developing some of the unused territory.

Postwar immigration has never run smoothly. While Europe was endeavoring to release its millions Brazil's immigration program slowed down.

Mass immigration has been suspended since last August because of Brazil's alleged inability to meet her financial commitments to the International Refuge Organization and other colonization agencies.

The main cause of failure in the last few years is bureaucratic. Brazil has no government department exclusively devoted to immigration. Problems are passed between nine departments spread between six Ministries, causing extensive routine and interdepartment wrangling.

This, and politics, has resulted in fewer immigrants than expected, and a violent press campaign. Some newspapers claim that displaced persons who arrived here were often "dancers, magicians, radio crooners and travelling salesmen instead of farmers and specialized laborers," even that some were subservient elements endangering national security.

Leave Censorship To Press MacArthur Says

TOKYO, July 18 (CP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander-in-chief of the United Nations forces in Korea, today repeated his opinion that the press alone could determine what news should be published of the Korean war.

He said he welcomed a cable from the managing director of the Chicago Sun-Times, advising the general that the paper had introduced self-censorship.

MacArthur said army personnel were not trained in journalism and must devote their entire energies to military operations. They could not effectivel yshare the responsibility of deciding which news to print.

"There is probably no more misused nor less understood term than press censorship," he declared.

"Contrary to what many believe, no precise rule can make it effective, nor were any two military censors ever in agreement on detail."

Up To Papers

"If its purpose is to be served censorship must be of the spirit and applied only by those who tehmselves print the news," he said.

"Its objective is not to mislead or misrepresent truth, as that is repugnant to basic concepts of free society, but rather to avoid printing information of direct military value to the enemy or such as may contribute psychologically to his cause by raising the morale of his forces while depressing that of ours.

"The formula is a simple one and one which all men of normal understanding may easily comprehend and apply.

"The contention of some that the military must take the responsibility of laying down fixed rules governing limitation upon news and pass upon each item before it is printed is as unrealistic as it is defective.

"In Korean operations it has been my purpose to leave this responibility where it rightfully belongs—in the hands of the correspondents, editors and publishers concerned."

Deaths Jump

LONDON, July 18—(Reuters)—Deaths and injuries on British roads last month—first full month of unrationed gasoline since the war—jumped by more than 3,000 above the total in the same month last year. Details issued here Monday night showed 19,125 people killed or injured in June, compared with 16,615 in June last year. Deaths increased to 425 from 419 in June, 1949.

Find No Race Superior If Opportunity Is Equal

PARIS, July 18 (Reuters). — No race is mentally superior to another given equality of opportunity, says a report issued Monday by the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization.

UNESCO described the report as the "most authoritative statement of modern scientific doctrine on the controversial subject of race that has ever been issued." It was drawn up by scientists from Britain, United States, New Zealand, Mexico, Brazil, India, France, Norway, and Sweden.

Main points of the report, entitled "A statement on race problems," are:

1—"Such differences as exist between different groups of mankind are due to factors such as isolation, the drift and random fixation of the particles which control heredity (genes) and natural selection.

2—"It would be better to drop the term 'race' altogether and speak of ethnic groups. People who live in Iceland or England or India are not races, nor are people who are culturally Turkish or Chinese thereby describable as races.

3—"There are three principal ethnic divisions: The Mongolbid, the Negroid, and the Caucasoid. Given similar degrees of opportunity to realize their potentialities the average achievement of the members of each group is about the same.

"Intelligence tests do not enable us to differentiate safely between what is due to innate capacity and what is the result of environmental influences, training and education.... There is no definite evidence that there exist inborn differences in temperament between human groups. Obviously indiivduals in all ethnic groups vary greatly among themselves in endowment.

5—"The myth of 'race' has created an enormous amount of human and social damage, it still prevents the normal development of millions of human beings and deprives civilization of the effective co-operation of productiv minds.

6—"A co-operative spirit is not only natural to man, but more deeply rooted than any self-seeking tendencies."

Building the home for Wear-Ever 1912

1950 is the fiftieth anniversary of the Wear-Ever line in Canada. These aluminum cooking utensils were introduced here at the beginning of the century. Their popularity grew so rapidly that, by 1912, a new factory was needed to supply the demand. This was built in Toronto. It was the first plant in Canada to make aluminum articles—and this was only a dozen years after the first Canadian smelter had started making aluminum ingots at Shawinigan Falls.

Today Alcan has twelve plants, all of them engaged in the aluminum industry, while more than 1000 independent companies across Canada shape the metal into all sorts of useful forms—from kettles to freight cars.

Muffing of Korean Issue Sufficient To Kill UN

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA STAFF CORRESPONDENT

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., (NEA) The United Nations, bent on quelling aggression in Korea, is gaining its soul at risk of losing one of its most powerful members—the stubborn Soviet Union.

That is the outstanding conviction of important delegates and members of the official UN family who have watched the organization work under the impact of the Korean war. It's the view especially of U. S. representatives.

Here's how these top figures see the UN as it grapples with the greatest world crisis since the end of World War II

1. Driven to the brink of death by Russia's half-year boycott, the UN would have tumbled into its grave had it faltered in this test.

2. When the reverse happened and the UN acted resolutely to rescue the peace, it bounced back to vibrant health almost overnight. In so doing, it took the longest stride forward any international organization has ever made, and fired the hopes of people all around the earth.

3. But this action, though warmly supported by 51 nations, is aimed indirectly at Russia, master of North Korea. If it should drive Russia and her friends out of the UN, it will put in peril the UN's prized "universality."

The UN might no longer be the gathering place of all nations regardless of political faith. The split between East and West might widen into an unbridgeable chasm. Influential fence-sitting nations like India might scurry off the UN reservation for fear of involvement in global war.

4. Yet the dominant feeling is that the gain is worth the risk. In the mind of one key delegate, the important thing at any given time is not to have all countries sitting around the council table. What good is served if one nation, like Russia, takes part only to obstruct, delay and subvert the UN's goals?

The vital point, says this delegate, is to serve the aims of the UN charter—to try to halt aggression and preserve peace. To have 51 nations laboring earnestly toward that end is better than to have 59 nations engaged in fruitless, self-deafeating talk. The UN is a peace organization, not a debating society.

5. Notwithstanding the fact Russia is the real culprit in this war, no one at UN—except perhaps the Chinese Nationalists—wants either to throw her out or bar the door against her return.

There is no measurable sentiment for making the UN an anti-Soviet bloc, a western alliance, or even an assembly of all freedom-loving peoples. The ideal of a universal peace agency is being kept alive.

In pursuit of this more distant objective, the UN and the member countries supporting military sanctions against North Korea are delicately sidestepping open charges that Russia is to blame. The U.S. representatives particularly are treading a careful course.

6. While Russia heaps abuse on the UN as a "stooge for imperialist America," hope nevertheless runs high in some quarters that the Soviet Union may suddenly reverse herself and reappear dramatically at UN council tables.

The Soviet Union says, of course, that she won't come back until Red China is admitted to the UN in place of Nationalist China.

But U.S. representatives Warren Austin and Ernest Gross recall that Russia snubbed the UN Trusteeship Council for two years, berating it as illegal and shouting she'd never show up. Then one day, without fuss or fanfare, a Russian representative appeared and quietly slipped into his seat.

Austin and Gross say it could happen again. Where Russia is concerned, logic and consistency are unimportant; no turn-about is impossible.

There's some belief in the U.S. mission that until the Korean war Moscow had been trying to kill the UN by a kind of creeping paralysis, so Russia could permanently abandon it without bearing the blame of disrupting a live peace agency.

Both the Americans and other delegates argue that if Russia quits now, she'll be forsaking an institution pulsing with new life and fortified by a new solidarity among its members. Many think the Soviet Union was surprised greatly by this reversal, and must surely reconsider any plan to desert UN.

But whether Russia returns or not, the UN people are agreed the way must always be held open for all comers, the principle of universality maintained. Meanwhile, they say, attention to the main order of business: stamping out the flames of war before they engulf the world.

Woman Reporter Ordered Out

TOKYO, July 18 (APP)—Marguerite Higgins, foreign correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune, said tonight she has been ordered out of Korea and told to return to Tokyo "under escort."

Miss Higgins said in a telephone interview from an advanced American base that she had been given no reason for her expulsion.

Two other correspondents barred from Korea Saturday were given General MacArthur's personal permission to return — Tom Lambert of The Associated Press and Peter Kalischer of The United Press.

Miss Higgins, only woman correspondent on the Korean war front, was among the first reporters to go there when the fighting started.

She said the message to leave Korea came from headquarters of Lt.-Gen. Walton H. Walker, commander of ground forces in Korea.

She said she believed Walker was preventing her from carrying out her assignment on the grounds she is a woman.

Soviet Price Cuts Lure West Berliners

BERLIN, July 18—(AP)—Price cuts instituted by Soviet sector ration free stores induced West Berliners today to cross the border and hunt bargains.

As a result, money exchanges did a thriving business swapping West marks for East marks. The activity strengthened the East mark to a point where it was quoted officially at 5½ to 1 West mark. It had been static at 7 to 1 for months. The West mark is worth about 25 cents U.S.

The eastern stores Sunday slashed prices on food and goods up to 65 per cent. Except for china goods and some lace work, however, the Russian sector stores displayed goods, observers said, of a quality inferior to West Berlin supplies. Even with the favorable currency exchange, food prices in the east still are higher than in the west.

WHEN IT COMES TO AIR LINE PILOTS, it is a case of a lot of work making Jack a top-notch flier. This, at least, seems to be the case with the aristocrats of the air — the pilots of Trans-Canada Air Lines who have more than 1,000,000 flying miles to their credit. These men are just the opposite to anything you might have read about the dare-devils of the air who crowd the pages of adventure fiction. These three happy looking pilots shown in these photos are representative of the aristocrats of the air. But there is no resting on their laurels—they train just like the rookies. Capt. D. J. Woodard (top left) gets ready for his regular check flight. Capt. B. J. Trerice (above) spends a number of hours each month in the Link Trainer and Capt. S. S. Albulet (bottom left) gets busy at his paper work. Even "millionaires" can't relax.

Marmora Citizens Gather Huckleberries

MARMORA, July 18—(ENS)—Many people of this district Sunday gathered huckleberries in bright sunshine. Cars and trucks were parked for a mile along Highway 7 west of Davidson's Garage.

Many Madoc residents journeyed east to the Kaladar district to return also with good pickings.

While the huckleberry crop is plentiful, news comes from various sources that the wild raspberry yield will be below average.

Democratic leaders met with President Truman Monday and discussed the message. None would say what Truman plans to say.

They told police there were three or four men in the gang.

Weather On Prairies Hot But Natives Call It Muggy

By JACK SCOTT.

MEDICINE HAT, Alta.—This is written at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The official temperature reading in Medicine Hat is 96 degrees and, says the radio with insane good cheer, still going up.

An hour ago I hooked up the hose to a convenient faucet and filled the aluminum bath tub with cold water, laid a breadboard across it, placed my typewriter on same and from this submerged position I propose to put down a few sour words on the weather.

Honest to God, I don't know why anybody lives on the prairies. Do people ever get used to this blast furnace? I can't believe it.

Man who came around this morning to sell us some religious literature said the heat wasn't bothering him. But the poor guy was glistening and wiping a soggy handkerchief across his brow. It wouldn't surprise me if he were crazy with the heat.

Our drive yesterday from High River was something I'd just rather forget.

About 30 miles of it was over a brand new road with a top of brand new oil that was just short of actually bubbling. The heat was shimmering up across the shadeless plains like fumes from a cauldron.

We stopped at a baked hamlet for gas and an old fellow who looked as if he'd been boiled looked after us. I made some hollow remark about the weather.

"It is a mite muggy today," the old fellow agreed, thus uttering the understatement of the year.

I said we found it hard to take because we're from Vancouver where most times you have a bit of breeze to take the sting out of the sun.

"Can't stand Vancouver," the old boy said in a dry croak, "get too much rain out there."

The weather has caused me to have a peculiar feeling, a quirk of memory that I experienced once before.

I was born in Winnipeg and was there until I was five or six when my father was able to escape, fairly well fried, but still in his right mind. I'd never been back until this spring when I covered the floods.

One day there Ross Munro and I took a drive out along the Assiniboine River to see how the stream was flooding. This took us through the suburb of St. James and I had the most peculiar feeling of having been there before. When I got home, I asked my mother where we'd lived in Winnipeg. She said we'd lived in St. James.

Well, I had something of that feeling yesterday. The weather stirred some forgotten meteorological memories in the back of my brain, something filed and forgotten for 30-odd years.

There wasn't a cloud in the sky as far as you could see, which seems about a million miles in every direction. The sky looked as it God had airbrushed it with baby blue paint. But something in me announced that there would be a real ripsnorting thunder storm before the night was over.

There was, too, and not more than a half hour after we'd got the trailer set up. Again I had the feeling of having experienced such a storm before.

There was, first, the wind, hot and heavy and then the whole western sky lit up with a lightning flash that was blinding. The thunder cracked with a ripping, tearing sound overhead and shook the trailer.

We were all scared to pieces.

Cool Night

I am finishing up this piece several hours after I began it and in a much better frame of mind.

As I'm sure any prairie dweller will tell you, there's always a fat bonus for the suffering you endure from the weather. It came again at dusk tonight in the form of another storm, short and spectacular and gone in time to give us a smell we never know on the coast.

When we went for a walk a short time ago there was another sight peculiar to these parts: Folks sitting ou on their front porches taking advantage of the cool of evening.

Sure Wild Man Isn't Imagination

THESSALON, July 18—(CP)—Residents of this district Monday disagreed with a statement by Reeve Edward McDougall, of Thessalon township, that the "bearded mystery man" alleged to have mutilated cattle is "just a myth, a product of the imagination."

Another mutilated cow was found Saturday on the farm of Edward Bigelow near the village of Ansonia, where the mysterious, red-haired stranger was first seen crawling "like a bear" in a vegetable garden. Mr. Bigelow found the animal lying in a pasture at milking time.

Despite a statement by Dr. William Brisbane, veterinary surgeon, that the animal had been mutilated by another cow, district farmers rushed to their homes to guard their stock Saturday night, leaving the usually crowded streets virtually empty.

Reeve McDougall said there had been only one case of mutilation that could be attributed to a human being.

He said police believe it was the work of a drunk since an empty wine bottle was found near the scene.

However, residents point out there is no evidence to connect a second mutilation with a drunken person.

1. The nourishing glass of milk from Grandma is the happy ending to this story. It started when Nature put aluminum in the earth itself. That is why this important mineral is right in the milk we drink.

2. And Nature gave aluminum qualities that make it ideal in contact with food. Many milk pails . . . many parts of modern milking machines are made of aluminum.

3. From farm to dairy . . . from country to city . . . rich, wholesome Canadian milk is being increasingly carried in aluminum containers to reach you fresh and pure.

4. And to cap it all, many bottles of milk are protection-sealed with shining aluminum foil tops. Aluminum assures cleanliness for this most sensitive of all foods.

Deloro Man John Laird Dragged To Death, Caught In Plant Rollers

Discovered By Fellow Worker 10 Minutes After Accident Occurred; Employed With Smelting Company 30 Years

MARMORA, July 19—(ENS)—John Laird, 65, employee of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Co., Ltd., more than 30 years, was dragged to his death, Tuesday, when his left arm became caught in the rollers of a machine producing steel strips. His left arm and chest badly mangled, Mr. Laird died 10 minutes after he was found by James Rice, a fellow worker who happened to go into the boiler room shortly after the incident.

Mr. Laird had been working alone in one section of the plant. He was discovered at approximately 4.40 p.m. and was apparently dead when found.

Dr. S. R. Beatty of Madoc pronounced him dead and an autopsy and inquest were ordered by the Crown.

Born In Ireland

Born in the County of Fermanagh, Ireland, Mr. Laird came to live at Campbellford when his parents moved to this country. He leaves his wife, Polly, in Marmora and a daughter, Mrs. Grace Thomas, 100 London St., Peterborough.

Four sisters are Mrs. G. Frederick and Mrs. Manley Blake, Campbellford; Mrs. George Bonter of Toronto and Reta of Detroit.

A veteran of the First World War, Mr. Laird served overseas with the 21st Btn. Canadian infantry. He had been a member of the Great War Veterans' Association and Marmora branch No. 237 Canadian Legion. He had been a member of several village bands.

JOHN LAIRD was dragged to his death on Tuesday while operating a machine at the Deloro Smelting and Refining Co. Ltd. Working alone at a machine in the boiler room, he was found by a fellow worker with his arm and chest crushed by the machine. Mr. Laird had been an employee of the company for more than 30 years.

RCAF Squadron Will Join Korean Airlift

OTTAWA, July 19 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent will announce this afternoon that a squadron of R.C.A.F. transport planes is being turned over to the United Nations for the trans-Pacific airlift supplying Korea, it was indicated today.

Cabinet is understood to have reached agreement on that point before adjourning at 1 p.m., EDT, until 3 for lunch.

Other steps arising from the Korean war are also under consideration and are expected to be touched on when Mr. St. Laurent makes an official statement after the ministers rise this afternoon. One is a strengthening of the Canadian forces.

They could go within 24 hours.

The squadron is No 426, based at Montreal's Dorval airport. Air Force officials have been working for days making preparations to fit it into the trans-Pacific airlift that is flying American men and supplies to Japan.

The squadron, well backgrounded in transport work after months of regular runs into the north and out west, is commanded by Wing Cmdr. C H. Mussells, DSO, DFC, of Montreal.

Each plane has a crew of five or six. Ground crew would also be provided by the RCAF.

Would Be Unarmed

They would be unarmed and would not go beyond Japan. Because they are a plane peculiar to Canada, the North Stars will have to establish their own supply lines — pools of spares — across the Pacific, a job that will take some time. Hub of political controversy in the 1949 general election, the North Star manufactured by the Canadair Corporation in Montreal. It uses the British Rolls Royce engine whereas its American counterpart, the C54, uses the American Pratt-Whitney

Britain Insists Reds Withdraw

LONDON, July 19 — (CP). — Britain will tell Russia and India that pre-condition of a Korean peace is for the North Koreans to pull back to their own territory.

Official sources reported that the British view, similar to that of the United States is to be conveyed formally to Moscow and New Delhi in notes today.

The Cabinet is expected to meet again tomorrow to frame its answer to the request by Secretary-General Trygve Lie to United Nations members for ground forces for the Korean fighting.

500 Reds Arrested As Berlin Agitators

BERLIN, July 19 (AP)—West Berlin police Tuesday night arrested about 500 Communists who came into West Berlin from the Russian sector to collect signatures for the so-called Stockholm Peace Resolution.

It was the Russians' biggest propaganda drive in Western Berlin thus far. Many of the agitators were students of the Communist-run East Berlin University.

They gathered at elevated railway stations and street corners and made speeches calling for outlawing of the atom bomb.

Fist fights broke out, but the police said they had the situation under control and no serious incidents had occurred.

New US Landing Clicks Smoothly Beats Typhoon

By LIONEL HUDSON.

WITH THE AMERICAN AMPHIBIOUS FORCE, Pohang, Korea, July 19 (Reuters)—Protected by American and British naval aircraft, advance units of a United States amphibious force today moved inland after establishing a bridgehead here.

The bridgehead had been consolidated by dawn and more troops were then landed, slipping into a calm bay. They came from ships which discharged hundreds of landing craft fresh from Far East bases.

Their arrival at the beachhead had been speeded to avoid threat of a typhoon—dubbed "Flossie" by the naval forces—which is spinning towards Korea.

Unloadings were rushed to let the larger vessels escape to sea before the typhoon hit the coast.

Veteran Jap Fighters

First troops landed at the beachhead were the First Cavalry Division, veterans of the Manila campaign against the Japanese.

The operations were carried out under a carrier-based fighter umbrella while United States and British warships stood by.

An American destroyer which shelled Communist positions 40 miles away fired the only shots in anger.

Five miles from the beachhead U.S. air force men are working doggedly to complete an airstrip.

This hitherto lonely and neglected harbor became Korea's busiest port overnight.

Residents of the town were confined to their homes by the South Korean army so that the Americans could move more freely.

There were tense moments during the voyage from Japan when destroyers escorting the convoys made contact with two unidentified submarines.

The main body of vessels were given the alarm on the second day out of Tokyo Bay while an Australian destroyer recorded another "solid ping" on the anti-submarine detector.

An officer said "it is obvious the submarines are not interested in attacking."

Red Leaders Have Vanished

NEW YORK, July 19 (CP) — Movements of European Communist leaders and Russia's Andrei Vishinski indicated today that a meeting of the Cominform may be under way.

Vishinsky, Soviet Foreign Minister, left Karlsbad, Czechoslovakia yesterday for an unknown destination. He had been on vacation at the Bohemian Spa for the last two months, informed sources said.

Observers in Paris and Rome speculated that a meeting of the International Communist organization might be going on when it was learned that Communist leaders in those countries apparently were away.

In Rome, informed sources said Communist leader Palmiro Togliatti left Italy for an unknown destination Sunday.

In Paris, it was noted that Communist leaders Maurice Thorez and Jacques Duclos were not present at today's session of the National Assembly. Party officials said they did not know whether Thorez and Duclos were attending a Cominform meeting.

Dispatches from Vienna to Rome newspapers reported that a meeting of top Communist leaders was believed to be in progress.

Menzies Conquers London With Foreign Policy Talk

LONDON, July 19 — (CP) — Prime Minister Robert Menzies of Australia came, saw and conquered London—all in one evening.

An audience of 700, including Prime Minister Clement Attlee and Conservative Leader Winston Churchill, cheered the Australian premier's call for an empire foreign policy.

"Our foreign policy, wherever it may be, must always be in complete harmony with our defence policy," Menzies said Tuesday night at an Australian Club dinner.

"It is all too true that from time to time we have a foreign policy of one kind and a defence policy of another, forgetting that a powerful foreign policy begets obligations and that a realistic defence policy makes you fit to perform them."

Menzies was received enthusiastically. The Conservative Yorkshire Post said his eloquence exceeded that of Churchill and Attlee, who also spoke.

The Daily Telegraph, also a Conservative paper, said "marked applause" followed the statement that foreign and defence policies must be harmonized.

The Telegraph concluded that the premier's "peroration was a piece of pure postprandial virtuosity."

Menzies mission here is believed to be one of persuading Britain that Australia deserves a greater share of the sterling area's dollar pool.

Has Proposal For Partial Mobilization

Will Boost Taxes President Says, Way Ahead Difficult

WASHINGTON, July 19 — (AP)—President Truman asked the United States Congress today for a $10,000,000,000 program to provide men and materials for Korean fighting and to guard against any armed aggression elsewhere.

He asked that all legal limits on the size of the armed forces be lifted.

The President laid down his program in a 5,500-word message to the Senate and House of Representatives reporting in detail on what has happened in Korea and why the United States is fighting thousands of miles from home.

"The attack upon the Republic of Korea," Truman said, "makes it plain beyond all doubt that the international Communist movement is prepared to use armed invasion to conquer independent nations. We must therefore recognize the possibility that armed aggression may take place in other areas."

No Easy Solution

The President said the course of fighting in Korea shows no easy solution can be expected. The United States was facing well-supplied, well-led forces which have been long trained for aggression.

The free world had made it clear, through the United Nations, that lawless aggression will be with force. This was the significance of Korea—and "it is a significance whose importance cannot be over-estimated."

The President said he would not try to predict the course of events, but he is sure that those who hold the power to unleash or withhold armed aggression must realize that more aggression in the world might strain peace to the breaking point.

It was clear that other free countries must step up their common security program. Some would require additional assistance from the U.S.

The President also reported he has empowered defence Secretary Johnson to call to active duty "as many National Guard units and as many units and individuals of the reserve forces of the army, navy, and air forces as may be required."

The armed services now are limited by law to 2,005,882 men: army 837,000, navy 666,882 and air force 502,000.

At latest report the actual number of men under arms was: army 593,000, navy 451,000 and air force 407,000.

Partial Mobilization

Along with new military measures, Truman proposed partial home front mobilization.

HAS PROPOSAL (Continued on Page 2)

Expect Canada Boost Strength Of Forces

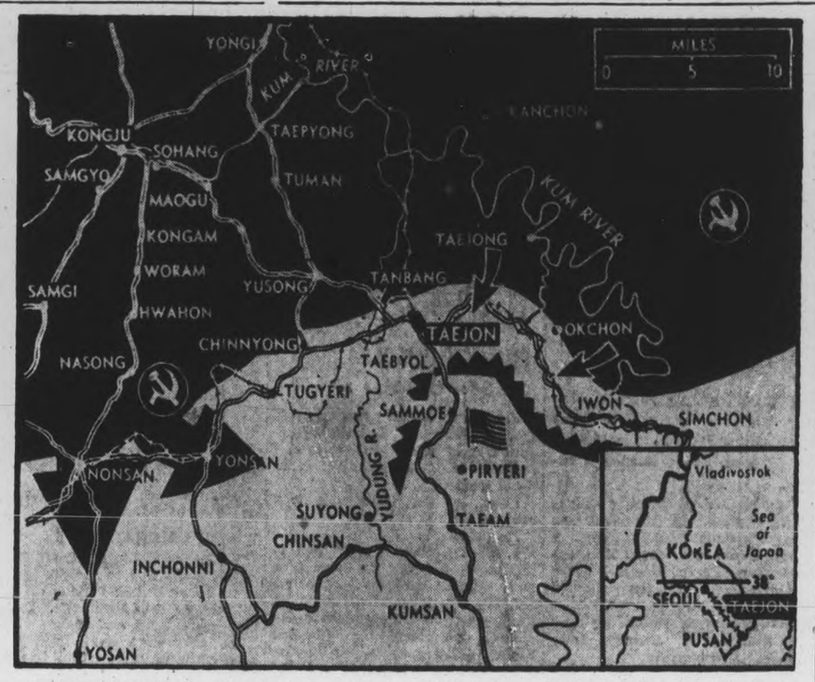
OTTAWA, July 19 (CP)—Canada is expected to follow the United States' lead in boosting the strengths of its three regular forces, officials said today.

Manpower ceilings may be raised to open the way for a recruiting drive for several thousand men. The over-all effect, however, on present strengths—a total of 48,000 for all three forces—is not expected to be spectacular.

W. Europe Anxious Trade With Canada

MONTREAL, July 19 (CP) — Western European nations are eager to develop long-term trade ties with Canada, C. B Powell of Montreal, chairman of the food imports section of the Canadian Dollar-Sterling Board, said here today.

Mr. Powell, back from an extended survey of the United Kingdom, France, Belgium and Holland, said only the lack of dollars stood in the way of purchases in Canada.



STILL BATTLING—The jagged symbod on the map shows where U.S. forces are fighting a rear guard action against the Reds following their retreat from the Kum river. For two days the new line has held a few miles from Taejon, the former temporary capital. Black arrows, showing Red advances, indicate a pincers movement, which was started against G.I.'s.

Fear Greece Target For New Attack

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—A United Nations committee warned today that the Russian-led Cominform may be planning an attack on Greece.

Secretary-General Trygve Lie advised member countries that the U.N. Balkan committee, with events in Korea as an example, had reported Communist propaganda attacks on the non-Communist Greek government might well be a cover-up for invasion plans.

The committee report contrasted with public displays of unconcern by officials of both Greece and Yugoslavia, both non-Cominform countries, toward reports of unusual movements of Communist troops in southeast Europe.

The Balkan committee, in a warning of an unusual formal nature, based its fears on recent charges by Nicholas Zachariades, Greek rebel leader.

Follows Pattern

Zachariades, in the June 13 issue of the Cominform Journal, said the United States and Britain were fomenting an attack by expanded Greek armed forces on Communist Bulgaria and Albania.

Committee members denied that the Greek army was being built up. They said:

"Since current history shows that aggression is frequently preceded by propaganda accusing the intended victim of aggressive intention, the special committee cannot disregard the possibility that such statements might constitute an attempt to justify in advance aggressive actions."

Greece's military strong man, Field Marshal Alexander Papagos, last Saturday said he was not worried by the reports of Red military movements in the Balkans. He termed them only part of a war of nerves.

Here at Lake Success there was some feeling that the committee wanted to get its fears on record so that if an invasion came, it could not be accused of failing to see the warlike signs.

Rescue 28 Miners Trapped By Blaze

GLASGOW, Scotland, July 19—(AP)—An engine room fire which burned off the cables of a mine elevator cage trapped 28 miners for three hours today in the Blantyreferme Mine, 10 miles southeast of Glasgow.

Rescuers dug through eight feet of rock from an adjoining pit and saved them.

The skeleton staff of 28 miners — carrying out routine safety checks in the pit during a strike for higher wages — had come down the shaft shortly before a spark from an acetylene torch set off an explosion in the engine room. Fire followed.

Striking miners helped in the rescue work.

Believe Truman Aid Plan Boost Canadian Industry

OTTAWA, July 19—(CP)—Government trade and economic experts today were of the opinion that President Truman's proposed $10,000,000,000 aid-to-Korea program will materially stimulate Canadian industry and lead to an expansion of the United States arms purchasing commitment in Canada. That commitment now calls for the purchasing by the U.S. of $25,000,000 worth of Canadian defence supplies. One official was confident this amount would be stepped up to meet Mr. Truman's call for an expansion of American armed forces.

The official said discussions now are going on between the two countries. It is hoped that these discussions will lead to the placing of the first orders under terms of the commitment. Type of goods involved were not disclosed, but it was indicated they may include aircraft, munitions and some specialized service clothing.

No Bottlenecks

The Americans already know what we can supply and it only remains for them to place firm orders," the official said. "There are no bottlenecks and no serious shortages."

Other officials, commenting on Mr. Truman's request to Congress for partial economic mobilization, said Canada could be assured there would be no reinstitution of wartime controls if Canadians are "sensible" and do not begin hoarding goods.

One government expert expected that some prices in Canada may go up as a result of the additional $10,000,000,000 war spending by Mr. Truman.

"It is very difficult to disentangle Canadian prices from American prices," he said, citing meat prices as an example.

The only major wartime control still remaining with the government is that on rents and this is due to expire in April, 1951.

Plan Boat Trial For Next Week

GRAVENHURST, Ont., July 19 (CP)—A full-dress trial for Miss Canada IV, Canada's hope for world's speedboat record, probably will not take place until next week, Charlie Volker, mechanic in charge of the boat, said today.

Earlier it had been expected that Harold Wilson of Ingersoll, owner and driver of Miss Canada, would make a test this week.

"We are still working on the propellor," Volker said, "and don't know yet whether it will stand up to the speeds required."

In addition to the steel propellor, the boat is being fitted with a new steel rudder.

4 Buildings Burned On Minto Main Street

MINTO, N. B., July 19 (CP)—A fire which destroyed four main buildings in this New Brunswick coal town early today gave firemen and volunteers a three-hour battle before it was controlled.

The fire broke out in a main street wooden building shortly after 1 a.m. ADT and spread rapidly to adjoining structures. Its cause was unknown There was no loss of life.

Authorize Aid Bill

WASHINGTON, July 19—(AP)—Responding swiftly to President Truman's call for action "without delay" the House of Representatives today authorized $1,222,500,000 of military aid to free nations to combat Communism abroad.

US Prepares New Rocket For Shot Across Atlantic

COCOA, Fla., July 19 (AP)—Workmen began before dawn today making ready a double-header rocket for a shot over the Atlantic that may be the longest flight of its kind.

The rocket was the two-stage "Bumper," a United States army ordnance project built around the German V-2 with a little "WAC corporal" on its nose, expected to fly up to 300 miles.

It was arranged as the first horizontal or low-angle firing of the V-2 in the U.S. as well as the first launching at the sprawling base operated by the air force as a missile proving ground. Against Britain the Germans fired the V-2 up to 220 miles.

The experiment in low-angle firing marks a new phase in the struggle for development of rockets into a long-range, accurate weapon.

The army project already has studied in six previous straight-up firings the problem of launching a small rocket from the nose of a spent or nearly spent larger rocket.

This new phase goes into the problem of air effects on high speed rockets—3,500 to 5,000 miles an hour—flying at relatively low altitudes.

Col. L. Turner, top army representative at the proving ground and a leading expert in the field, said the goal is to achieve "pin point" accuracy with rocket missiles compared with a German record of dropping them within 10 miles radius of the aiming point.

Fresh Troops Landed By US Ships

Hoping To Remove Some Pressure On Taejon Division

TOKYO, July 20— (Thursday)—(AP)— Fresh American troops, with one division established on a new beachhead in South Korea and another backing the line, took some of the pressure off the United States 24th Division in the central front today. The Reds nevertheless put a heavy squeeze on Taejon.

To complicate matters for the 24th, North Korean infiltrators got behind their lines, said Gen. MacArthur's communique issued at 12.55 a.m. Thursday ,10.55 a.m. Wednesday, EDT.

Taejon and an adjoining village were under heavy red artillery fire. The 24th still held the city.

MacArthur said fighting flared also on the central sector's Chungji-Hamchang-Sangju road where Reds are moving south and in the Yongju-Amdong corridor farther east. The South Koreans held stubbornly to their general defence line in this area but Yechon, on the road between Andong and Hamchang, is in Red hands.

From this area the Reds are trying to cut the American supply line from Pusan to the Taejon front.

No Opposition

The First Cavalry Division, actually a mechanized infantry, landed Tuesday at Pohang, a small port 66 miles north of Pusan, without opposition. It had an American-British carrier air umbrella. The unit moved swiftly inland.

But Reds are known to be near the area. MacArthur's communique said the North Koreans had

Thought Burglar Priest Is Shot

CHICAGO, July 19 (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest, mistaken for a burglar, was killed by a householder's bullets early today.

The clergyman, dressed in sport clothes, was escorting a woman home through a passageway between houses. He was struck three times in the left shoulder by slugs from a .22 calibre rifle.

The dead priest was identified as the Rev. Kevin Conway, 31. His companion was Margaret Walsh, 25.

John T. O'Malley, deputy chief of detectives, said the shots were fired by Charles Kasper, 30, a die maker, who said he had been worried about burglars since an attempt to enter his house was made nine months ago.

Cabinet Reconsiders Cuts In Newsprint

LONDON, July 19 — (Reuters) —The Cabinet will immediately reconsider recent cuts in newsprint supplies which threaten to reduce Britain's newspapers almost to wartime size, it was learned authoritatively today.

A new Cabinet decision may be announced before Parliament goes into recess next week, informed sources said.

Responsibility for the newsprint shortage was held last night by a Conservative member of Parliament to be due to the government's inability to work out successfully its priorities in raw materials.

Air Commodore A. V. Harvey, member for MacCiesfield, said freedom of the press in Britain was impaired by the newsprint shortage and that the situation was likely to worsen. He spoke during debate on the shortage in the House of Commons.

Complaining that Britain had broken newsprint contracts with Canada, Harvey said:

"We know we have been through a dollar crisis, but since the American loan a lot of money has been spent in the United States of unecessary items such as canned oysters, chewing gum and marbles."

Rain Retards Ontario Haying Work

OTTAWA, Juy 19 (CP)—Intermittent rains and poor curing weather have retarded haying operations in Ontario, the Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday in its periodic summary of crop conditions across Canada.

The Ontario hay yield is still considerably below average and a number of counties are expected to have insufficient hay for winter feed requirements, it added.

Harvesting of winter wheat has started in some counties and yields are expected to vary from above average to slightly below average.

Late-sown crops such as tobacco, sugar beets, beans, corn and tomatoes are growing well. Early potato digging has started and good yields are being obtained Crop prospects in Northern Ontario have been adversely affected by late seeding.

Crop prospects on the prairie provinces have shown "marked improvement" as a result of heavy rains over the last week, the bureau reported.

Haying operations are under way in the maritime provinces. Wet weather has retarded operations in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick while ideal weather conditions have prevailed over Prince Edward Island during the last two weeks.

Many Countries Hold Aid Talks With U.S.

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., July 19 (Reuters)—A number of countries are holding talks with the United States on the United Nations' appeal for "active aid" to support the defenders of South Korea.

A U.N. spokesman who disclosed this Tuesday night declined to name the countries but it believed they include several Commonwealth countries and some members of the Latin American bloc.

This was the first official intimation of positive reaction to Secretary-General Trygve Lie's call for ground troops to be sent to aid in the Korean conflict.

More than 20 countries have thus far replied to the U.N. appeal but the content of the replies has not been disclosed. However, a survey of various capitals shows a reluctance or inability to send troops.

Britain, considered by some observers to be in the best position to send land aid, is still considering her attitude.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

BABY IT'S COLD! 400 BELOW ZERO

Ears freeze, noses redden and folks are mighty glad their homes are insulated when the thermometer drops to zero. But what if it dropped to 400 degrees below zero?

Wherever industrial temperatures reach such depths, extraordinary insulating problems arise. That is one of the reasons the Johns-Manville Insulation Laboratory is constantly developing and testing new insulations. J-M Insulations today span the thermometer from 400 below zero to 3,000 above. Tomorrow's demands will probably exceed these extremes and J-M is keeping up-to-date by research.

If you have an insulation problem in your plant, contact Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto, or see your J-M distributor.

Industrials Advance For Second Session

TORONTO, July 19 (CP)—Industrials paced a steady advance for a second successive session on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

A wide list of leading industrials chalked up gains ranging from fractions to more than a point. Interlisted issues like International Paper, Hiram Walker and Brazilian Traction showed some of the strongest advances. Utilities, papers, steels, refining oils and liquors were in solid upward movements.

Mining issues jumped ahead early in the session but encountered mild downward pressure that held the leaders in check. Anacon Lead, East Sullivan, and Ascot Corp. were briskly traded in base metals. The big four on the board—Consolidated Smelters, International Nickel, Noranda and Hudson Bay—showed gains from fractions to a point. Junior and senior gold producers brightened quietly. Some penny prospects were more active and higher.

Every door in the building was mentioned, and the particulars of its locking were approved. Council was represented by Mayor M. Swanston, Aldermen H. Waddell, James Gillespie and J. A. Dewart.

Mr. H. Freek was present from the firm of architects. In regard to the lobby floor map which is being set in terrazza, it was explained that township and county boundaries are to be marked out in distinctive color lines.

Police Hold Suspect In Thessalon Case

THESSALON, July 19 (CP) — A man who allegedly attacked a woman here Tuesday is being held by Provincial Police as the suspected cattle-maiming mystery man who terrified the community for the last week.

Details of the assault are not available.

Police declined to disclose the man's name but said that his actions indicated he might be the mysterious "cave-man" who has been sought by armed posses.

The hunt arose out of a series of incidents in which cattle and horses in the district were maimed or killed when attacked at night. Chunks of flesh had been slashed from them while they were alive.

Ex-Chief Arrested

HULL, Que., July 19 — (CP) — Frederick Marengere, former Hull police chief, was arrested Tuesday and charged with dangerous driving following a three-car crash on the Hull-Maniwaki Highway Monday night.

Pilot Learns U.S. Still Has Airport

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA, July 19 — (Reuters). — Taejon airfield, three miles north of the besieged city of Taejon, is being peppered by Communist artillery but American troops are still holding it.

This word was brought from the battle area by Lieut. Michael Lynch of Green Bay, Wis., a US Army reconnaissance pilot who took off from the Taejon strip today under shellfire.

Lynch, who had orders to fly a major to the forward area, said he thought the Taejon strip looked peaceful enough when he flew over, so he put down and stopped the engine of his tiny plane.

American troops popped out of foxholes alongside the strip shouting: "Get out of here; it's hot."

But Lynch said, his engine would not start.

Urged on by the troops, Lynch and his mechanic finally got the propeller turning after five minutes of hectic work.

"As we took off, enemy artillery shells followed us down the strip," Lynch said.

Has Proposal

There will be no price controls or rationing now. But the President said he won't hesitate to call for them if sharp price rises make them necessary.

Later, he said, there will be a request for higher taxes.

He proposed:

1. That Congress pass legislation now authorizing priorities and allocations for materials needed for national security, to limit use of materials for non-essential purposes, to prevent hoarding, and to requisition or seize materials required for defence.

2. That all government agencies review their programs with an eye to lessening the demand for services and supplies vital to defence.

3. That taxes be boosted more sharply than he has recommended before in order to combat inflationary pressure.

Has Tax Program

He said that as soon as necessary studies are finished he will present Congress a tax program based on the principles that the United States must try to pay for the greatest amount of needed spending out of taxes, and that the tax system must be balanced to distribute its burden fairly.

Truman heretofore has urged mainly higher taxes on corporations and on upper bracket incomes.

Today he told Congress that heavier taxes will lessen the need for general economic controls and that a balanced tax program would help check profiteering.

4. That there be further restraints on credit expansion — along lines of curbs he directed yesterday for Federally assisted housing when he told the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans' Administration to demand higher down payments and to cut down on building programs generally in order to provide more building materials for defence purposes.

More Controls

Today he recommended that Congress authorize more controls to curb the expansion of privately-financed real estate credit.

5. That Congress authorize production loan guarantees and direct loans to boost production. The idea is to speed and increase the output of vital materials, products and services for defence.

Mr. Truman closed his message on a confident note:

"We will follow the course we have chosen with courage and with faith, because we carry in our hearts the flame of freedom. We are fighting for liberty and for peace—and with God's blessing we shall succeed."

Three Categories

Truman said increased strength is needed in three general categories:

1. To meet conditions in Korea, additional men, equipment and supplies must be sent "as rapidly as possible" to the forces of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

2. The world situation requires a substantial increase in the size and material support of American armed forces, beyond the increases required in Korea.

3. Extra help for allies of the U.S.

Reviewing the history of the Korean crisis, Truman said reports from the United Nations Commission on Korea "make it unmistakably clear that the attack was naked, deliberate, unprovoked aggression, without a shadow of justification."

"The attitude of the Soviet government toward the aggression against the Republic of Korea," the President said, "is in direct contradiction to its often expressed intention to work with other nations to achieve peace in the world."

The aim of the drive, which is expected to end this week, is to make the Association more representative of the businesses in Peterborough.

Climb High Peak Lose Fingers

PARIS, July 19 (AP) — Five French mountain climbers have returned from the Himalayas with claims to a record in mastering the Anapurna Peak, 26 496 feet high.

But the glacial cold almost got them.

Maurice Herzog, lean, 41-year-old leader of the expedition, was a stretcher patient on his arrival by plane here Monday. A frostbite victim, he lost all his toes and all his fingers to the first joints.

Louis Lachenal lost all his toes. The others were battered and physically exhausted from climbing Anapurna, in the Everest group.

Men have climbed higher before, close to 28,000 feet on Everest but had to turn back before achieving the crests.

"The difficulties encountered were terrible, especially between our camps two and three," Herzog said. "It was a glacial ascent all the way, often at more than a 70-degree angle, sometimes with a vertical wall."

Fresh Troops

been pushed north from Yongdok, which is only 25 miles north of Pohang, by South Korean troops.

An early report that 5,000 cavalry (First Cavalry Division) men were landed brought a reply from MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo that 5,000 "is not a realistic figure."

Official announcements spoke only of a division which normally numbers 12,000 to 15,000 men. The number put ashore was withheld for security reasons.

Kept Secret

The other fresh division, the 25th (Tropic Lightning), also landed in Korea some time before the First Cavalry Division made its beachhead First reports created the impression that two new beachheads had been established but later information indicated the 25th had gone in at Pusan as reinforcements. Its arrival had been kept secret for security reasons.

The First Cavalry Division moved into South Korea on 10 days notice, believed a record for mounting an amphibious operation.

The cavalry took full equipment artillery, engineering and signal units and plenty of supplies to Pohang, to support independent operations, if so required.

The amphibious landing of the first cavalry came as allied planes struck far and wide, heaping heavy damage on the North Korean supply lines. Pack animals were observed moving Red supplies, indicating air strikes have crippled the Communist gasoline supplies.

To Ease Burden

The new U.S. troops will lift some of the fighting burden from the American 24th Division. The 24th and South Korean troops have been fighting a holding action for days on the rice paddy fields of western Korea. Elements of the 24th stood today between North Korean invaders, crossing the Kum River, and Taejon, the recently-abandoned emergency capital of the south.

The troopers roared inland seven miles or more without meeting the Communists. The number of men landed was a military secret.

Guerrilla action had been reported in the area earlier. The Red North Korean radio boasted last week that a division of North Koreans had landed at Pohang.

Gen. MacArthur's communique announcing the arrival of the fresh divisions in Korea said elements of one "have already entered combat" and that the other would be "committed to action in the very near future."

May Bolster Koreans

The 25th could have gone into action at Yechon, 52 miles inland and on the right side of a line heretofore held solely by South Korean troops. Unexplained U.S. artillerly fire was reported at Yechon earlier this week.

In the Taejon area, the battered defence lines of the 24th division "have remained unchanged since Tuesday," said MacArthur.

At Taejon, the North Koreans have halted. One explanation was that the river crossing cost the Reds so many men they were still groggy. Another was that they could not get across many tanks to lead infantrymen.

MacArthur said the South Korean eighth division inflicted heavy casualties on the Reds in attacks along its front northeast of Taejon.

Other South Korean forces held their positions, MacArthur said.

American jet fighters downed three Russian-made Yak-9 fighters in dogfights near Taejon. The Yaks were caught strafing and bombing U.S. positions.

Jet Attack

A Far East air forces communique said Allied aircraft damaged six enemy tanks and 55 trucks in close-support attacks by jet fighters.

Fighters and bombers hit five key bridges behind the front.

Carrier-launched jet fighters and bombers spent Tuesday morning covering the American amphibious landing at Pohang. When the job was done, they sped north to strike at North Korean key targets.

These planes came from British and American aircraft carriers off the east coast of Korea.

A second navy carrier group blasted the North Korean key port of Wonsan.

Early Scouting

The Pohang area had been scouted by advance parties as much as a week before the landing by the first cavalry.

The little fishing port on the generally rocky coast was selected because of its comparative safety.

The division is under command of Maj.-Gen. Hobart Gay, 56, veteran of amphibious landings in North Africa and Sicily in the Second World War.

NO EASY JOB

Ready To Start On City Hall

Thursday is scheduled to be a significant day in the municipal life of the city. The work of destruction on the site of the new city building having been completed, the Eastwood Construction Company will start, thus being the first constructive operation towards the realization of the new building.

In past weeks the site has taken on many guises. First, when the houses were vacated, the place looked desolate and uncared for. Then came the demolition squads and plaster and dust began to fly. The site took on the appearance of the victim of a bombing raid. Then, as the rubble piled up, it looked like parts of Europe where bomb damage has been stacked up to give some semblance of order and now, it has been removed and the land has been cleared ready for work on the building itself.

Today, on the north end of the site, workmen were busy building a wall—the wall of a garage. At last, the tide has turned and those passing the site regularly on their way downtown will find the progress of construction more agreeable than the depressing job of demolition.

Uranium Discovery

KUM RIVER LINE HOLDS—American troops held doggedly to their Kum River line (jagged symbol) above Taejon despite constant weekend attacks by North Korean forces and the actual bridging of the river. On flanking fronts however, North Korean troops were sweeping south in the Nonsan area, 12 miles southwest of Taejon, and were infiltrating in the east sector to within about 10 miles of Taejon.

Court Suspends Sentence In Fraud Charge

COBOURG, July 19—Ernest Fulford of Toronto, appearing for sentence on a false pretenses charge, was allowed on suspended sentence. Fulford pleaded guilty to selling a car to Lyle Hartman of Trenton on which there was a lien held by a Belleville finance company.

The finance company picked up the car and Hartman was out the $175 which he had paid Fulford. Fulford told the court that he had intended to keep up the payments but had lost his job. He made an undertaking to pay $25 a month to Hartman until the $175 was cleared off, as one of the conditions of the bond for good behaviour for one year.

Youth Remanded

Victor Asseltine of Napanee, age 17, was remanded out of custody to Sept. 15 on his plea of guilty to theft of a bicycle from William Giddings of Cobourg.

Chief W. J. Carey said that the boy stole a bicycle frame where it had been left while the owner was in swimming, took it to Trenton and then attempted to ship it by express to his address in Napanee.

The Salvation Army at Napanee had secured a job for the boy and he was ccordingly remanded out of custody. Asseltine was one of 17 children, his father told the court.

"Out of 17 children he is the only one that has ever caused me any trouble," his father told the magistrate.

John McGrail of Toronto, proved to be an honest motorist. He was charged with careless driving after he had run into the back of a car during a traffic tie-up. Chief Carey said that a trailer had lost a wheel and it caused a traffic block. McGrail came along and ran into the rear car in the line.

"It was my fault. I was tailing him too close. When he stopped, I couldn't," said McGrail.

"I admire your honesty. They usually don't admit so readily to being in the wrong," said the magistrate in imposing the minimum fine of $10 and $1.00 costs.

500 Attend Picnic

COBOURG, July 19 (ENS)—Over 500 people took in the CNR picnic Tuesday of the Belleville division. They came here in 12 railway coaches and spent the day at Victoria Park where a programme of sports and entertainment was presented.

INSULATION

Laboratory tests have proven the insulation value of three inches of wood to be greater than 12 inches of common brick or 20 inches of concrete.

Queen's Good Enough

COBOURG, July 19 (ENS)—The question of which is the better university crept subtley into the evidence of a court case here. When Dr. D. Allocott of Napanee was asked the usual qualifying questions, he said he had attended Queen's medical school.

"That is good enough qualification for me," smilled Magistrate R. B. Baxter, on old Queen's man.

"I might feel inclined to argue that point," said Crown Attorney Harry Deyman, a Varsity man.

Campbellford Club Elects Tom Smith

CAMPBELLFORD, July 19 —(ENS)—At a meeting of the Campbellford Tennis Club early this week, the club was re-organized and the following officers elected President, Tom Smith; vice-president, John Pierce; secretary-treasurer, Anne Nicholls Grant (Barney) MacColl is chairman of the grounds committee and this committee intends to look into the matter of repairing the courts and extending the lighting facilities as soon as conditions permit.

There are 20 members in the club, but this number should be greatly increased once the courts get into operation.

Peterborough's Credit Is Good

It is good news indeed when a city which wants to borrow approximately half a million dollars can get it on such advantageous terms as those offered for Peterborough's latest debentures. The sum required is $440,500; the Board of Education needs $140,000; the Utilities Commission needs $275,000; the Council needs $25,000. The local agencies need this money as good businesses need money—to finance work which needs to be done and which can be done adequately only with a loan. To get the loan at the price of $101.31 for each $100 debenture gives the city a premium of $5,770, as well as the glow of satisfaction which comes to any business when bankers compete for its custom.

* * *

For thirty years Peterborough has had really first-rate, conservative financing. The city's credit is excellent, as this latest evidence of trust shows. Upon such a foundation it is possible to build with confidence.

French Politics And The July Monarchy

We are indebted to Mrs. Reginald Crawford for a fyle of The Illustrated London News of 1843, from the estate of her grandfather, Mr. John Creighton, who was mayor of Kingston in 1863-64-65. There is interesting and amusing reading in these journals of over a century ago, and we propose to select and publish a number of them. There is nothing novel, of course, about "100-Years-Ago" features, but from their prevalence they are apparently popular with many readers.

Turning but one page of the December issue of 1842—the first in the fyle—we learned that the state of French politics under the July Monarchy was somewhat similar to that under the Third Republic. The two governments of France which collapsed during the past three weeks have now been replaced by one headed by Rene Pleven, who appears to offer some hope of stability. In 1842, M. Guizot headed the Government under King Louis Philippe, but several other political leaders were actively working for his downfall. M. Guizot's Cabinet was the eighth since the July Days of the 1830 revolution, from which the monarchy took its name.

The dispatch from Paris in The Illustrated London News reported that talk of a new Ministry headed by M. Mole was very current, and that several possible coalitions were being discussed. M. Thiers, a former Prime Minister, hoped to form a Government, but was handicapped by "changing his mind every twenty-four hours." M. Odilon Barrott was also hopeful, but his party, of the Centre, was considered much too liberal for alliance with the Left Centre Party. The latter was regarded as being well to the Right, or conservative, side of French politics. To make it slightly more confusing, it was also known as the Dufaure-Passy party, although M. Thiers commanded its support as leader.

However, similarity ended there for the time being, for M. Guizot managed to cling to power for five more years. Another dissimilar point is the language used by the London paper in describing the French. Those must have been the days when England was invariably "perfidious Albion" as far as France was concerned, for references to 'Parisian pique and venom" being spat forth indicate the strong probability of name-calling on both sides over a comercial deal, whereas Mr. Strachey's alleged accusation of conspiracy elicited no more than pained protest from M. Schuman in our day.

We Get Tired Of Screams And Sobs

President Truman is pictured standing at prayer "at this moment of crisis." American troops are "on the brink of being caught in an encircling trap." President Truman allows a visiting evangelist to pray for him. Somebody is "rushing" troops, planes or bullets somewhere. The response of the poor parents of the first American to be killed in Korea are examined minutely, with appropriate gaps in the story for sobs and hushes. So we are being shouted at, urged to shed tears, expert word-teasers and maudlin columnists have a tug-of-war at readers' heart-strings. Radio commenters' voices rise and sink with artful wrath or sympathy.

The gullet can be so stuffed with that sort of thing that the gorge rises. Even U.N., big, impersonal U.N., is treated as a subject for psychological analysis, or pretty, intimate X-ray. Thus:

> The cool, dust-free air is alive with the cadences and inflections of foreign speech. The voices are eager, cheerful, brightly tinged with hope; they are the voices of men who are toiling hard to preserve world peace.
> This is the soft-toned delegates' lounge at United Nations headquarters, just before a UN Security Council meeting on the Korean War (etc.).

Eager, cheerful voices, brightly tinged with hope. Blah, blah, blah. It's more than we can bear on a hot, nervy day. Why cannot these gaudy pens, jangling typewriters, and raspy voices, call a halt to their atmospherics, give us the straight news, and be quiet?

Is It Snobbish?

Commenting recently on a "survey" which attempted to discover "the ten most boring books," we said that almost any book, however great, would be boring to people who did not understand it. Great books,, we said, demanded readers not too far below the intelligence of their authors. The Brantford Expositor considers our opinion, "a trifle snobbish."

Very probably that is true, but we are snobs in company with Coleridge, Lamb, and Holbrook Jackson—to name only a few who said the same thing before us. We cannot help it if books are snobbish, choosing some readers and rejecting others. Indeed, we cannot think of any place more snobbish in its atmosphere than a library of great books. In it some people feel utterly lonely and left out; others walk on tiptoe, looking for books which can tolerate them and which they can tolerate; a few are happy in such an atmosphere. If great writers bore some people, must we assume that the authors are at fault? If Bunyan, Richardson, Cervantes, Walter Scott and Boswell (to name a few on the "boring" list) do not open their arms to embrace every Tom, Dick and Harry, who is to blame? Certainly not The Examiner for stating this plain fact.

There are in the world a certain number of pinheads to whom any book is a bore unless it is filled with exciting incident and vaguely indecent suggestion. There are quite enough pinheads to supply answers to the sort of "survey" to which this paper and The Expositor referred. But we do not consider that in matters of literary taste it is necessary to take such surveys seriously; The Expositor is not quite sure. But we boldly assert that so long as Pilgrim's Progress continues to shake and ravish the soul of a single reader it is a classic, however, many thousands of people may be encouraged to avouch the contrary by silly surveys.

The Fabulous Hostess

News comes from Versailles that Lady Mendl is dead. She was well-known as an actress on Broadway, and as an interior decorator, before her marriage to Sir Charles Mendl in 1926; her stage name was Elsie de Wolfe. But it was after her marriage that she embarked upon her most successful career as one of the greatest hostesses of our time.

There are people who scorn society, and think that hospitality has gone too far if it extends beyond a couple of cookies and a glass of milk. They are usually, it may be said, people who have never been able to get into any sort of society and who are niggardly on principle. But at all periods of history there have been people like Lady Mendl, whose chief delight was in entertaining on an astonishing and elaborate scale, and who persistently sought the company of the great, and the near-great, and the notorious. The faults of such people are easily seen, for they are very much on display; their many kindnesses and acts of generosity are not so well known.

The world would be poorer without a few people like Lady Mendl. Perhaps they waste money, but somebody gets it. Perhaps they are a little too much concerned with eating and drinking and having a good time, but they eed many people who need feeding, and in entertaining themselves they entertain others, as well. They are a continual reminder that the world is not necessarily a serious place, and that life need not be approached with a tear in the eye and a platitude on the lips. Trimalchio is not the most admirable, nor is he by long odds the most despicable, character in fiction—or in life.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Over exposure to the sun may be conducive to anything from skin malignancies to mental disorders," says a doctor. Oho, my nut-brown maiden!

On The Road In India

by Rawle Knox

I HAD a feeling I should never make my lunch engagement. The distance from the cool heights of Mussoorie to Delhi in the burning plain is 170 miles. We were due to leave at six in the morning and I had ordered lunch for one-thirty. Even so, I had that feeling.

We were to travel in the large American car that belonged to Mr. B., a young Indian business man, and my two fellow passengers were both from the Italian Embassy in Delhi. We actually got started by half-past six.

At Dehra Dun, which sits enviously panting at the foot of the hills, we stopped for breakfast.

"Would you get us breakfast in a hurry, please?"

"Breakfast is ready, sahib."

With that the proprietor of the eating house turned and blandly ordered one of his underlings to go out and buy some eggs. We sat waiting for a long time.

"Is breakfast nearly ready?"

"It is coming a little slowly because we are not properly open."

"Why didn't you tell us that in the first place?"

"Breakfast is ready, sahib."

In a quarter of an hour, it was. It did not take us very long to eat it.

JUST as we set off again in the car, Mr. B. remembered that he had an old friend who was Principal of the Defence College in Dehra Dun; he wondered if there was time to pay a call on him. The Italians were quite sure there was; how could one drive through a town without calling on a friend one had not seen for several years? Mr. B. turned off into the cantonment area.

When Mr. B. asked the way from an ordinary soldier he spoke in Hindustani, but when he inquired of a non-commissioned officer he used, out of deference to the other's education, the English tongue. The ordinary soldiers were nearly all Gurkhas, and it was heart-rending to see the puzzlement struggling on their honest, blank faces.

"Where does the Principal Sahib live?"

"Han ji....?"

"THE PRINCIPAL SAHIB."

"Sahib....?"

They did not know. We must have asked twenty of them.

THE non-commissioned officers appeared to know very well, but Mr. B. did not understand their English and feared to insult them by talking in Hindustani. When, by chance, we did find the Principal's bungalow we found also that he had gone for a trek in the hills. There was some discussion as to whether we should drink the Principal's beer, but as it was still only eight-thirty in the morning the proposal was turned down.

There was still 150 miles to go. "We should make it easily," said one of the Italians, "by eleven-thirty." Before I had time to quarrel with his mathematics we had a puncture.

There was no difficulty in getting the wheel changed. Mr. B. stopped a bus and three passengers descended. Two got to work, while the other made congratulatory noises from behind.

"Don't give them any money yet," said Mr. B., as one of the Italians fingered his pocketbook. "But let them see it. It will encourage them."

THEY needed a lot of encouragement. The other passengers in the bus, which was waiting, derided our helpers for their hamhandedness. Even so, we got going again in three-quarters of an hour.

In Rourkee we stopped to have a new inner tube fitted to the spare wheel. The garage took over an hour to fit the tube, while we sat and drank iced ginger beer that made us cough violently and left our lips burning.

"I think," said the proprietor of the little shop, sinisterly, "that something got into the wrong bottle."

* * *

WHEN we started again, Mr. B. drove very fast indeed, but there was no longer any chance of reaching Delhi by one-thirty. There is no room for two cars to pass on the tarmac of an Indian road; one must always be forced off on to the dusty verge. The steely-nerved Mr. B. would approach monstrous oncoming lorries to within a few yards before admitting defeat and lurching off into the bumpy dust. The Italians applauded his verve. Quite objectively and without any reference to me, they all decided they would do well to reach Delhi by half-past two.

AT this moment I decided that Indians and Italians were brothers beneath the skin, and brothers of a particularly irritating family. I should add that it was very hot.

Then, "There ought to be a law," said one of the Italians, as we swerved once more on to the dust, "that bullock carts should not be allowed on the centre of the road."

Mr. B., still driving very fast and sounding his horn continuously, turned round in some indignation.

"There are several million bullock cart drivers in this country, and a few thousand motorists. How would we win the next election if we made such a law?"

I gave up worrying about my lunch engagement. I had heard the voice of democracy and felt brotherly towards India again.

(Special to The Examiner from the London Observer.)

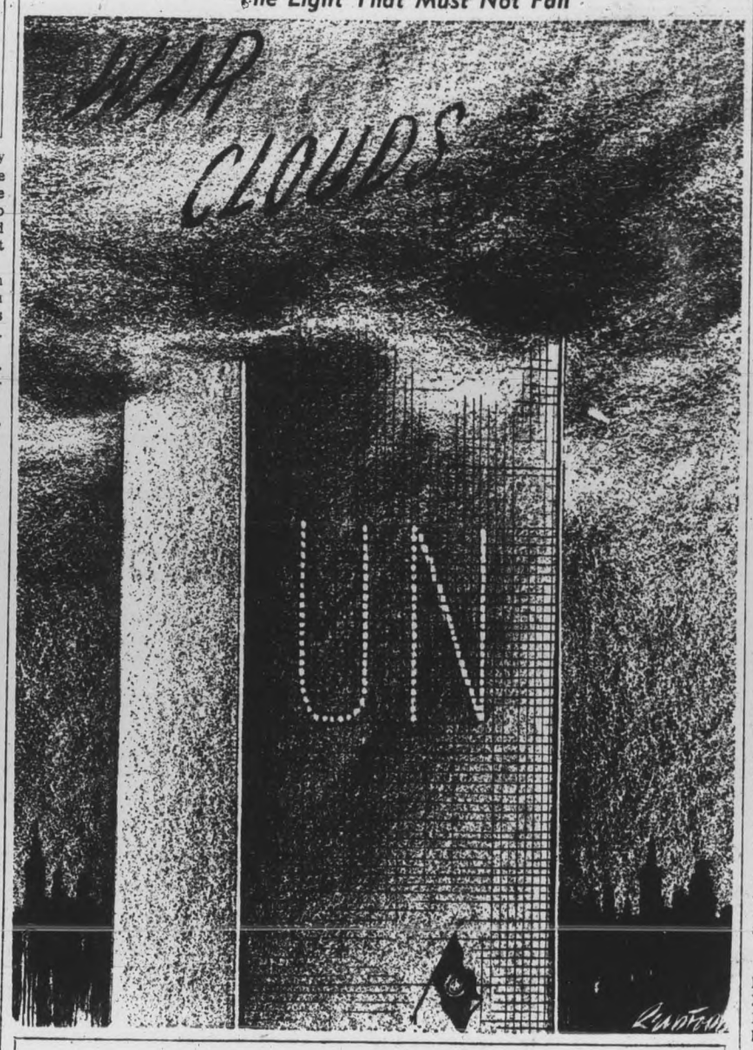
An Old, Old Tale!

(London Spectator)

At Torquay I heard some one tell a story of the man who was seen walking through Winchester with an oar on his shoulder. Asked why he was doing that, he answered that he was a seaman who was sick of the sea; he had just been paid off at Southampton and he was walking inland till he found someone who asked him what the thing on his shoulder was; on the spot where that happened he would settle down for life.

That was on Thursday. On Sunday in Surrey, reading Farnell's "Evolution of Religion", I came on this: "I myself have heard the immemorial story of Odysseus walking inland with his oar, which the rustic mistakes for a winnowing-fan, told about St. Peter, St. Paul and St. John on the coast of the Peloponnese".

The Light That Must Not Fail



Letters To The Editor

CRITTERS

Sir: Did you ever live in the country without a cat or a dog? Well, I do, and believe me there are all manner of critters, furred, and feathered who try to make up for this deficiency by crowding in. The ground hogs live under the porch, and the robins try to build nests on top of the window shutters. When chased from there, they settle for a choice site in the evergreen half way between the cherry tree and the strawberry patch. For of course, like the cat or the dog, they all expect free board. I would like to receive a visit from the man who says birds won't touch fruit if they are given a bird bath. Mine even carry the cherries to the bird bath and wash them then leave the pits in the bottom. Oh, well! I never was keen on more than one pie from a tree anyway.

It isn't that way with my strawberries. I want them, and so do most of my furred and feathered neighbours. When I start picking, the robins sit on the fence, and set up an unearthly clamour at my encroachment of their picnic grounds. But, not so the chipmunk. He stays right with it. The other day he came unconcernedly within a few feet of me, carrying a berry to a safe deposit place, and then came back to get acquainted. He calmly poked along to within a couple of feet of my boot toe. Such boldness is deserving of admiration, and I didn't have the heart to even kick at him. What's a few berries between friends anyway?

Of course the birds aren't all free boarders. The song sparrow and the phoebe just come and sit on the porch for friendly visits, and to help me out in the never ending battle with insects. It is kind of nice to hear their call in the early morning, and know that they are perched on the wire which runs along the porch, and already on the job.

Of all the critters, the ground hog seems the worst, and, that one who just sits down, and rolls over, and turns a few hand springs up and down my strawberry bed has just got to go. I set a trap last night, and Oh! what a beautiful morning! I looked, and I got the wrong hole. I got a glimpse of black and white fur, among the thick under-growth along the fence, where the dusky brown of a ground hog fur should have been. He is still there. What do I do now?

Man strives, but life is a mockery. It can be a pretty smelly one with a skunk in a trap.

Yours,
R. G. K.

HOW TO PADDLE A CANOE

Sir: What is the correct method for paddling a canoe while seated in the stern?

Years ago, the—then—young set, used to paddle down to Rice Lake on a Saturday and back on Sunday; thought nothing of it. Of course, had outboard motors been available, we likely wouldn't have used a canoe.

Then, the paddler, seated in the stern, brought his paddle back in stroke and the side—or edge—of the blade next to the gunwale (gunnel) was turned back and out; much the same as were one using his hand with the thumb next to the hull. The hand would be turned so the thumb would come back along the hull, and when the stroke was finished, the thumb would be pointing to the rear.

Now, at this day and age, a lot of stern paddlers reverse this. They usually turn the outside of the blade back. This writer has owned several canoes and thinks this latter method wrong. In a high wind, his stroke would be too slow using this method.

This writer has always found Peterborough or Canadian or any canoe quite safe and seaworthy, if properly handled; but would not care to ride with some paddler in the stern who didn't know his business.

Thanking you for your attention,
OLD TIMER.

SCHOOL TAXES IN SMITH

Sir: I would like to point out to "Ratepayer" of S.S. No. 6 Smith that we realize only too well that some arrangement must be made immediately in S.S. No. 6 for the accommodation of the public school pupils. This of course will greatly increase the public school rate of taxation. We must accept that.

But we don't have to accept the fact that we, and five other school sections in Smith will also be required to pay half the cost of new High Schools to be built in Apsley and Lakefield as well as half the maintenance of both schools in the future. This also includes half the cost of the buses used for transportation of children from all the townships in the area over and above the amount paid by the department in grants.

We have all the responsibility we can assume at present without adding to our burden by shouldering the cost of education of the northern townships also.

I still say let us withdraw from the High School area or at least demand equal taxation!

Farms are already being offered for sale due to the situation. This may reduce the Public School attendance but no one will buy when they read the tax bills!

Yours truly,
TAX POOR.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

When he was come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed him. And, behold, there came a leper and worshipped him, saying, Lord if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

And Jesus put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will; be thou clean. And immediately his leprosy was cleansed. And Jesus saith unto him, See thou tell no man; but go thy way, shew thyself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them....

When the even was come, they brought unto him many that were possessed with devils; and he cast out the spirits with his word, and healed all that were sick. (Matt. 8: 1-4, 16.)

Wherefore, holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly calling, consider the Apostle and High Priest of our profession, Christ Jesus .. For we are made partakers of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our confidence stedfast unto the end. (Heb. 3: 1, 14.)

Find PRO Gave Landing Beat

TOKYO, July 19.—(AP).—The U.S. Army's public information Office made a hurried investigation today to discover why the news of Tuesday's amphibious landing in South Korea was disclosed prematurely.

The leak, they found, was in its own office.

It gave Homer Bigart of the New York Herald Tribune, one of 22 news and radio correspondents on the operation, an unexpected beat.

All correspondents sent stories of the landing back to Tokyo by navy courier. They were held for a minimum of 48 hours, or until the landing had been announced officially.

As an apparent afterthought, Bigart gave a carbon copy of his story to a returning correspondent with instructions that it be turned over to the PIO for filing. This is done frequently by field correspondents who do not maintain Tokyo offices.

Bigart's duplicate and his original story, which was in an envelope, both reached Maj. Buel A. Williamson, PIO executive officer. The original was turned over to The Associated Press for relay to the Herald Tribune, pursuant to instructions, and was held for the embargo period.

Williamson said he assumed the carbon copy handed him did not cover the embargoed landing, so he sent it to the nearby telegraph office to be filed.

OLA Petes In Second Place With Win Against Weston

OLA senior standing:

Weston	2	15	4

Defeating Weston Lions in Weston last night 12-10, the Petes' senior "A" lacrosseers took over sole possession of second place in the group standing, dropping Weston down further towards the cellar.

Arn Dugan, classy young forward for the Creighton crew, bagged five goals for Peterborough to lead the snipers on both teams. It also put him in front of all the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior "A" snipers for the first time a Peterborough player has led the whole pack.

Wrapped It Up

Five goals in the second quarter of the game wrapped it up for the visiting squad, giving them a 9-5 lead at halftime. The homesters drove hard in the fourth to hold a 4-1 scoring edge, but the Petes withstood their determined drive with some fine defensive lacrosse to carry home the verdict by a two-goal margin.

Don Ashbee and Dootch Vitarelli were others effective on the attack for the Petes, each hitting the hemp twice, as Pete Chard led Weston with three goals, Venner and Downer each getting a pair in a good showing.

Play was fast and rather rugged over most of the route, and generally close, especially in the last half. The Petes played a sound game going both ways, the forwards breaking fast with a quick short-passing game to bore in close for hot shots on the net. They also came back fast to aid the solid defence in checking the hungry lions, and goalie Ralph Speck was tough to beat in the winners' cage. He rose to heights in the final quarter as Weston roared in time and again in a desperate try to tie it up, but the Petes had enough left at the last to stop them.

Nick Robinson For $6,000 Dropping Fight

SCRANTON, Pa., July 19 (AP) —It's going to cost Sugar Ray Robinson about $6,000 to get back into the good graces of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission.

Commission chairman George J. Jones, Jr., Tuesday slapped a fine of $1,000 on the slim Harlem Negro and ordered him to reimburse promoter Ernest Gennell for failing to go through with a 15-round defence of the Pennsylvania version of the middleweight title against Jose Basora tonight.

Gennell said he believes his expense is about $5,000 The fight figured to draw a $30,000 gate.

Robinson said he pulled out of the fight because of a lame back. Dr. Leonard M. Freda, commission physician, said he could find nothing wrong with Sugar Ray's back.

A few hours before Jones took his action, Robinson signed to defend his welterweight crown against Charley Fusari in Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 9, for the benefit of the Damon Runyon cancer fund. Robinson will donate all except $1 of his purse to the fund.

The Pennsylvania commission chairman also slapped a suspension on Robinson until he fulfils his engagement against Basora but said it will not become effective until after the Basora fight.

"The suspension puts Robinson in a bad spot," said Abe Greene, commissioner of the NBA. "He has a possible September fight with middleweight champion Jake Lamotta coming up and he'll have to fight Basora first. That could cause him a lot of trouble."

Bell Beats Busmen

Bell Telephone nosed out Bus Drivers 7-6 last night in a nifty Civic Softball League fixture. They played good ball behind five-hit hurling by Harrison, while the Drivers were loose in the field behind neat throwing by their twirler. Edmonson hit a homer. The winners' runs were five in the first and one each in the third and fifth, while the losers got four in the third and one each in the next two stanzas. Teams:

Bus Drivers: O'Dette, Bhown, Sage, Edmondson, Gray, Simmons, Gordon, Cochrane, Clark.

Bell: Greatrix, James, Smith, Ackford, Gillespie, Harrison, Conway, Gerry, Tushingham.

Let's Speak About Golf

Fifth annual Kawartha Lakes amateur golf tournament is at the Kawartha Club Aug. 5-6-7 for the Calvert Trophy. Entries to be sent to A. V. Sanderson, 129 Rubidge St., Peterborough, by Aug. 1. Some 200 topflight golfers expected in three classes for prizes totalling $1,000. Low gross prize daily for each flight as well as trophy and individual prizes for four golfers with lowest aggregate gross score and runners-up prizes for any club entering team competition. An evening dance Aug. 5. Starting time daily at eight a.m.

Though not an expert at golf, we do know a brassie from a caddy, and can assure you that this will be a whopping fine golf tournament. Speaking of caddies, they'll need a hundred or so and those interested in picking up some holiday mazuma should apply the Thursday before to the pro shop at Kawartha. We used to do some caddying but will be out of town that holiday week-end and will have to pass up this chance at a few honest bucks. Some chaps get working with more than one golfer. The Kawartha Lakes tourney attracts a lot of attention about the province and is certainly good summer advertising for the district, as well as keen competition and fun for those playing or viewing.

Orphans Take Another

Mutuals beat UEW 8-3 at the Bowl last night and Orphans set back East City 10-3 in men's softball frays. Which didn't change the standing any, and the schedule winds up this week with two more double-headers, on Thursday and Saturday. It'll be Mutuals in top spot for a bye in final playoffs, while UE and the East Citizens fight it out in semi-finals. Mutuals had a bit more power at the plate and better fielding in the first tussle, while Orphans looked good everywhere behind Arn Riches' four-hit hurling chore in the second to gain their second victory of the current semester. A lot of these boys will be going into junior OASA playdowns, with some additions to the team.

* * * * * *

In second spot all by themselves the senior "A" Petes' lacrossers are riding high, just three games back of the first-place Owen Sound Crescents. Though Brampton, St. Kitts and Hamilton are snapping at their heels in a third-spot tie. That 12-10 win last night in Weston put the Creighton crew up for the time being, and they hope to stay on that rung of the ladder Friday by beating the Mimico Mounties here. The Lions last e'en made a determined bid in the last quarter but couldn't quite catch the Petes, who had built up a fair margin till then, being outscored 4-1 in the final frame. Arn Dugan was hot again to score five goals for the winners, with Don Ashbee and Dootch Vitarelli each getting a pair. Whole team clicked well.

Mutuals Beat UE Squad In Fair Fray

Mutuals tacked another hide on the wall at the Bowl last night as they defeated UEW 8-3 before a slim crowd in a City Softball League fixture. They finished stronger after being held well in check till the sixth by Buck Legrow, who gave away next heat to Hall, who finished well. Bob Greenlaw went the route for the winners with but six hits gained off his delivery, but both pitchers were rather wild at times to issue a lot of walks. The UE fielding was poor.

Leether had two for four for Mutuals with Greenlaw and Hawkes also getting .500 with one for two each, and Foster getting two in five tries. Thomson led the losers with two in four and Taylor thumped out two in five attempts. Vic Griffin cuffing a two-bagger. Neat catches were roped in by Bob Crowe and Tony Giardino of the Russelle crew.

Indian River Atop

KEENE, July 19 (ENS)—Indian River finished the Keene and Community Softball League schedule in first place with 10 wins, Westwood and Villiers being next with nine each and Downer's Corners fourth. Other teams in were Keene, Lang and Assumption, after Mather's dropped out.

Westwood and Villiers meet Thursday night, the winner of that playing Downer's Corners Friday as the loser of the Westwood-Villiers series play Indian River Friday, in two out of three series. They resume Monday for Indian River and the loser, while the other series (Downer's and the winner) meet again Tuesday, third games if necessary on Friday. An all-star team will represent the league for the county in competition a week Thursday at Belleville.

East City Wins

East City juvenile baseballers downed the southenders 8-6 at Riverside last evening in a keen PMBA seven-inning fray. It evened their schedule at three wins each, the squads resuming action Thursday. Batchelor allowed but four hits for the winners and fanned eight, while Murphy reached for a dozen safe blows as he whiffed four. Sullivan and Wyatt hit triples, but McGrath sed his side at bat with three for four. None of the losers got more than one safety, their runs being gained mostly on walks and several errors. Teams:

Campbellford Wins

HASTINNGS, July 19—(ENS)—Campbellford tightened the T. V.L. race, defeating Hastings Legion 5-4 in a hard fought game in Campbellford park.

McComb was the winning pitcher, and although he faltered slightly in the 7th, stayed on top all the way. His support for the most part was good and O'Sullivan on first made the play of the game on a beautifully executed double play. West on the mound for Hastings gave up but seven hits, but the three in the fifth were the costly ones. Scott cleared the bases in the seventh on a drive to right field when Macoun made a wild throw trying to cut him off at the plate.

Paced By Dan Brown Petes Display Power

The Petes showed plenty of power in trimming New Toronto 15-4 in their Viaduct Major Baseball League fixture in New Toronto on Monday, the box score being late in arriving yesterday. Danny Brown had a great day at bat to belt out a four-run homer, a double and a single in five tries to knock in six runs. Peppy Freddy Garvey got two hits in three tries, one a double as Dick Golden, Paul Estlick, Bill Dadson and Joe Lowrey got two each.

Bill Edger pitched steady ball and while the Petes had five miscues, only one figured in a run, as all New Toronto errors proved costly. Howie Dalton had to work but Bud Harrison— well known local softballer—filled in well at third, showing a lot of promise, and driving in two runs. Joe Lowrey showed plenty of speed on the sacks, and the team made a good impression on the fans there.

Orphans Take 10-3 Tilt Over East City

Orphans upset East City 10-3 in a men's softball tussle at the Bowl last night with Arn Riches pitching four-hit ball. He had good support in the field and his mates got 10 safeties off Haddy Eakins, six of them two-baggers. It was the second win of the season for the tail-enders and left East City back in third place behind UEW. Both pitchers were wild to walk nine apiece, and Eakins had six wild pitches which figured in some of the scoring. But one error aside was committed in a good game.

Crowley, Stewart and Byers each had two safe blows in four tries for the Dormer team, with Don Griffin getting two in five, both doubles. Byers' two blows were doubles, also, and Riches and Stewart each hit for two bases. None of the losers got more than one safety, but Red Sullivan conked a long homer. Nifty catches were pulled by Byers and Grafstein of Orphans and by Sullivan of East City.

Spahn Leads Boston Braves To Paste Pirates 11-3

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Credit Billy Southworth with the comeback of 1950 whether his Boston Braves win, lose or tie in the National League race.

A year ago Billy was on the verge of a breakdown. In mid-August poor health forced him to leave the dissension-riddled Braves in charge of coach Johnny Cooney. Many thought he would never come back.

They whispered that his "temporary retirement" would be made permanent during the winter by action of the "three steam-shovels" who own the Braves. But they were wrong.

Back came Southworth to assume command at the winter meetings, with Billy calling the signals, the Braves pulled their big player swap with the New York Giants that brought Sid Gordon, Buddy Kerr, and Willard Marshall to Boston.

Flying High

Now his Braves are flying high in a triple tie with Philadelphia and St. Louis in the sizzling pennant race. It is the first time they have been on top since the opening week of the season.

With Warren Spahn, Johnny Sain, and Vern Bickford working in regular turn, Southworth's pitching is on a high plane. The three of them account for 33 of the Braves' 46 wins. In recent weeks Bob Chipman has looked like a dependable fourth starter.

Spahn did it again Tuesday, striking out nine Pirates as he mastered Pittsburgh for the first time this season 11-3. It was the 11th victory for the 29-year-old southpaw.

Murry Dickson, Vern Law and Jim Walsh yielded 14 hits, including Walker Cooper's 10th homer with two on in the second.

St. Louis turned Ford Frick's league into a triple tie by ending Brooklyn's surge with a 5-3 victory behind Al Brazle's steady seven-hit pitching. The Cards had lost seven in a row to Brooklyn since June 1 until they whipped Erv Palica last night. All five St. Louis runs came in the fourth inning.

Split Twin Bill

The Phillies got away with a split at Chicago, breaking a five game losing streak with an 8-3 romp in the second game of a double-header. The Cubs took the opener, 5-2, with the help of Bill Serena's two homers and Paul Minner's seven-hit pitching.

Cincinnati made it nine wins in its last 11 games with a 1-0 verdict over New York Giants on Virgil Stallcup's third-inning homer. Stallcup's homer and an infield single by Ted Kluszewski in the eighth were the only hits off loser Monte Kennedy.

Dttriit lost a full game of its American League lead at Boston where the Red Sox outlasted the Tigers, 12-9, in a slugfest marked by Vern Stephen's three-run homer in the first inning. The blow raised Stepheis' league-leading RBI total to 95.

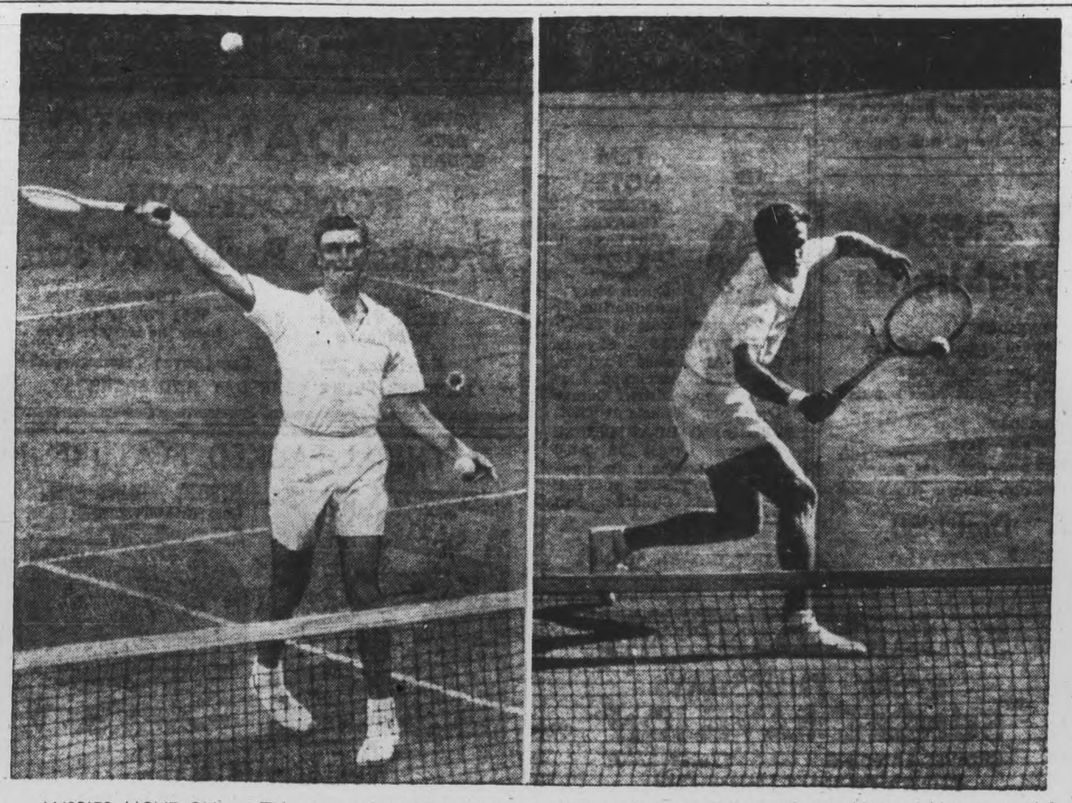
As a result of the night loss and New York's afternoon win, the Tigers' lead now measures 3½ games.

Big Jawn Mize hit two homers and added 45 points to his batting average with four hits in New York's 12-1 slaughter of St. Louis. Mize went into the game with a .258 average and came out hitting .303. Tommy Byrne, erratic in his last five starts, walked only two en route to his 10th win with a six-hitter.

Injures Hand

Bob Lemon became the first major leaguer to win 14 games, but suffered a hand injury in the process. The Cleveland ace was struck on his right hand by a line drive off Kermit Wahl's bat in the seventh inning of the Tribe's 10-2 rout of Philadelphia. It was not believed serious, and Lemon will be able to take his regular turn.

Washington jammed all of its six hits off Ray Scarborough, an ex-teammate into the first two innings of a 5-2 triumph over Chicago. Sandalio Consuegra scattered 10 hits for his fourth win and fourth complete game.



AUSSIES MOVE ON — The strong Australian tennis team swept over Canada Sunday in Montreal to gain the final round of American zone eliminations against Mexico in the Davis Cup competition. At left is Frank Sedgman of Australia, who defeated Lorne Main of Vancouver 6-1, 6-2, 6-3 in the fourth victory. At right is seen his teammate, Ken McGregor, who won the final battle over Bredan Macken of Montreal, 6-4, 6-4 and 6-4.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

It's happened sooner than probably anybody thought — or feared.

A boxing show for a television audience only was put on in Baltimore Tuesday night.

The eight bouts were staged in a studio with only a handful of technicians and invited guests watching them in person.

The show made money, too. It didn't cost anything for the fighters because they were amateurs. The sponsor, a brewtry, paid the station $1,000 for the hour's air time.

Ken Carter, sales manager of the station, said he plans to continue the amateur shows weekly for television fans only. They are sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union.

England's amazing 1-0 loss to the United States in the world soccer tournament was cited in Britain's parliament Tuesday as one reason for the need of a Ministry of Sports.

J. E. Haire, Labor, addressing his plea to Prime Minister Attlee, told the House of Commons the flop in soccer plus the setbacks in golf, tennis, boxing and cricket had put Britain in a blue funk.

Haire said the government, as "a form of social service," should subsidize the training of promising athletes so that Britain can hold up its head again in international competition.

The Prime Minister took a dim view of the plan.

Dick Metz and Vic Ghezzi, two veteran campaigners on the professional golf circuit, have entered the Canadian open to be played at Royal Montreal Aug. 24-27.

About 40 prospective candidates for the Sarnia Imperials senior ORFU football team turned out Tuesday for their initial practice of the 1950-51 season.

"We've got a pretty fair crew," coach Red Douglas said after watching the boys go through their paces. "Perhaps not as fast as last year's team due to the absence of Don Knowles and Eric McKeever, but they look pretty good."

The world's four-heat record for three-year-old pacers on a half-mile track was bettered at Saratoga Raceway Tuesday night.

Dudley Hanover, a rugged colt from the Hayes Fair Acres stable, Duquoin, Ill., won the $5,000 Sagamore after four gruelling miles.

Dudley Hanover captured the first dash in 2:03 1-5. Tassel Hanover won the second in 2:02 1-5, a world mark in itself. Hal Tryax took the third in 2:03 1-5 and Dudley came back to beat the other two heat winners in 2:04 in the finale.

The elapsed time of 8:12 3-5 far eclipsed the old mark of 8:18¾ established here in 1944, when Attorney outlasted Time Table and Eddie Havens.

Red Wings Clip Toronto 10-1,

By The Associated Press.

Young Tom Poholsky of Rochester Red Wings is well on his way to becoming top pitcher in the International League this season—if St. Louis Cardinals don't grab him.

The 20-year-old hurler, property of the Cards, has posted the most victories in the circuit—12. His steaming fast ball has accounted for 49 strikeouts and four shutouts, also a top mark.

Poholsky, a six-foot-three, 205-pound righthander, pitched his 13th complete game Tuesday night, checking Toronto Maple Leafs 10-1 on eight hits. He walked one and fanned four in winning No. 12 against only two losses.

Last season, he won 14 games for Rochester. He's two behind that now. Pretty good for a guy who joined the club in mid-May.

Del Wilber and Don Richmond helped Poholsky with a couple of three-run homers. The victory enabled the league-leaders to stay 2½ games up on Baltimore, which defeated Jersey City 6-3.

Buffalo Clicks

Buffalo jolted Jack Banta and Montreal, 10-4. The Bisons scored 10 runs in the first three innings to deal the former Brooklyn Dodger righty his second setback. Hank Biasatti banged a double and triple and Buster Adams two singles and a triple as rookie Ken Wood scattered seven hits to rack up his fourth triumph.

A five-run fourth inning was enough for Springfield's 8-4 edge over Syracuse. Biff Moisan pitched his sixth victory, scattering six hits. Big Jack Wallaesa's 17th homer—a two-run job in the fourth—helped him.

Breaks Own Record

Oro G. Herbert disdainfully tossed away one shoe at the start of the sixth race at Thorncliffe Raceway in Toronto Tuesday, and paced on to shatter his own track record for a mile while humiliating several rivals.

Once again Oro G. Herbert appeared to be such a sure-pop winner that Thorncliffe officials —with the approval of the Ontario Racing Commission—declined to permit wagering on the horse.

Oro G. Herbert threw a shoe just as starter Arthur Whitsell sent the field on its way. Despite the fact that he was pacing on one bare foot, Oro G. went the first quarter in 29 3-5 seconds and whizzed the first half in 1.01 4-5. After that he simply coasted home in 2.04 4-5 for the mile. The previous record of 2.06 2-5 was established by Sam Hy in beating Oro G. Herbert in a photo-finish 10 days ago.

Portuguez, Dauthuille Will Slug It Out

MONTREAL, July 19—(CP)—A chance at the world's middleweight boxing crown beckons Tuzo Portuguez, of Costa Rica, and Laurent Dauthuille, of France. Their battle at Montreal's baseball stadium tonight may draw $50,000 and 15,000 customers.

Portuguez, 22, suffered a sixth-round technical knockout when he met Dauthuille, 26, here less than a month ago. However, the Costa Rican has more experience than the Frenchman and is confident of winning tonight's 10-round main event. Dauthuille, who now lives in Montreal, has 40 wins in 44 professional fights. Portuguez has won 79 of 85.

50 Baseball Hopefuls At Phillies' School

BELLEVILLE, July 19. — Upwards of 50 young baseball hopefuls are attending the four-day baseball school here under the auspices of the Philadelphia Phillies of the National Baseball League. The training sessions were not held Tuesday because of the condition of the field, but will continue through this Thursday under the direction of Pat Colgan and Dale Jones.

Among those attending the clinic are players from Toronto, Cobourg, Campbellford, Port Hope, Trenton, Wellington Tamworth, Napanee, Bath, Little Britain, Peterborough, Kingston, and Belleville.

The coaches were particularly impressed by the showing of the delegation of juniors from Kingston.

Electric Trade Asks Ottawa Uphold Tariffs

OTTAWA, July 19—Canadian electrical manufacturers today appealed to the Canadian government to forget any ideas it might have cutting tariffs.

The reason it wants tariffs to remain at their present level said the Canadian Electrcial Manufacturers was to allow the industry to do long range planning and expansion and provide wider employment opportunities

The association's proposals were presented in a 36-page brief on tariffs and trade, details of which were announced by B Napier Simpson, general manager of the CEMA.

More tariff cuts, would, according to the brief, help the US more than most other countries who signed the Geneva trade agreement in 1947. This would merely aggravate the already lopsided trade picture with the United States, causing "serious repercussions" in the electrical industry and Canadian economy as a whole.

Past reductions in duties paid on goods crossing the border into Canada have not yet made their full impact on the industry The results have been cushioned by a still abnormal post-war demand, government import controls and devaluation of the Canadian dollar.

However, the industry feels these are merely temporary measures and, with the exception of devaluation, their influence was decreasing.

The association asserts that panic selling in the United States following a minor business recession last year resulted in some American electrical goods being offered for sale in Canada at prices below production costs

Any reduction in tariff duties would swell the amount of dumping on the Canadian market if another minor business set-back were to come along. Acting on the smaller economy of Canada, a US recession could have "grave effects" upon this country's business activity and employment.

Accept Responsibility

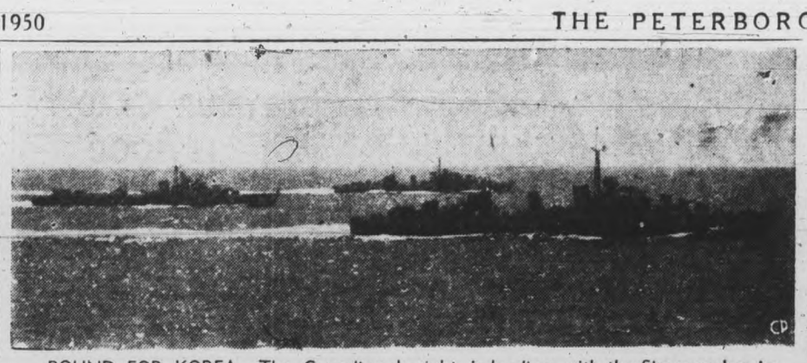
OTTAWA, July 19 (CP)—Canada is accepting full responsibility for any servicemen she sends to Korea, including care of any that may be wounded or widows of any that may be killed, officials said Tuesday. The question arose in the light of the fact that Canada has turned three destroyers and their 650-odd seamen over to the United Nations for service in Korea.

Second Jet Fighter

TORONTO, July 19 (CP) — Canada's second native jet fighter has taken to the air. With veteran test pilot Bill Waterton at the controls, Avro Canada's second ship of the CF-100 type—second of an initial order of 10 for the RCAF—took off last Saturday for a simple series of test manoeuvres.

Mrs. R. Motz Dies

KITCHENER, July 19 (CP) — Mrs. Rose Motz, 75, widow of W. J. Motz and president of the Kitchener-Waterloo Record, died in hospital Tuesday after three weeks' illness. Funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday at St. Mary's Church. Interment will be in Mount Hope Cemetery.



BOUND FOR KOREA—The Canadian destroyers Cayuga, Sioux and Athabaskan steam in line as they shape course to join the United Nations command for duty in the Korean war theatre. The Cayuga, right, is leading, with the Sioux on her immediate left. This RCN photo was taken from the training cruiser Ontario, which accompanied the destroyers during the first two days of the voyage.

Edinburgh Movie Actress Touring United States

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, July 19 (AP) —I have learned several things about Scotland from actress Anne Crawford, including why you shouldn't call them Scotchmen

Miss Crawford, a leading actress of English films, is here for a visit that is partly vacation and partly to promote goodwill for the home-rule campaign in Scotland.

And why do Scotsmen never refer to themselves as Scotchmen, the common term for them in the U.S.?

"It's very simple," she answered. "Scottish describes anything pertaining to Scotland. Scotch is the name of a whisky Thus a Scotchman is literally a whisky drinker. Which is not exactly true of every Scotsman."

Are Scotsmen Tight-Fisted?

"Scotsmen are the greatest publicists in the world," she smiled. "They know those jokes carry the name of Scotland around the world They know the value of publicity: why do you think the loch ness monster is reported during the tourist season?

"Are Scotsmen really parsimonious? All I can say is that I once did a benefit with will Fyffe at Aberdeen, where the people are supposed to be the meanest. In one night we raised £14,000 for much-needed infirmaries.

"On the contrary, I think Scotsmen are a very friendly and generous people. They are much friendlier than the English, who are inclined to be standoffish until you get to know them."

Wants Own Personality

The Edinburgh lass is one of the stars of "Trio" the English success to Somerset Maugham's "Quartet." She has rankling over reviews that called her a combination of Myrna Loy and Merle Oberon. "I want to have a personality of my own," she declared, but she compares favorably to those two glamor girls. She has a patrician face and a cultured voice, which she often raises in the cause of home rule for Scotland.

"That is one of the reasons I am here," she said "I am trying to stimulate interest among Scotsmen here for our drive to have our own parliament. So far I have found excellent support.

"We have collected 4,000,000 signatures at home for our petition. Funnily enough, a large amount of our support has come from people in England.

"We do not intend to go as far as the Irish. All we want is our own parliament to decide on matters strictly concerning Scotland. As it is, everything we want done has to be carried all the way to Whitehall."

TAR BABY—Les Sherwin, of Vancouver, was playing on the ground when a barrel of tar tilted, covering her to the waist and glueing her to the ground. Two constables cut her out with knives and took her to the hospital where a doctor and nurse, aided by a quart of ether, removed the tar. Here Lea ruefully looks in a mirror following the ordeal.

Long Parade Honors R: Owen

NEWTON, Wales (CP).—Five thousand Welshmen travelled to this marekt town for a rally in memory of Robert Owen, philanthropist and socialist reformer.

A mile-long procession, headed by Colonial Secretary James Griffiths, wound its way through the streets of the town where Owen was born in 1771 and came back to die in 1858.

Ten seconds of silence were observed for the ironmonger's son, described by Griffith in a brief speech as "incomparably the greatest Welshman ever born."

Owen left school at the age of nine, worked as a draper's assistant, and at 18 managed a cotton mill which became recognized as one of the best in Britain.

Throughout his life Owen labored for a new moral order based on recognition of two great principles — that man's evil is largely a product of external influences, and that early education is necessary to prevent those influences developing.

His gravestone in an old churchyard here is labelled with one word :"Philanthropist."

Don't Expect Steel Cut Says Official

OTTAWA, July 19 — (CP). — A Trade Department official expressed confidence Tuesday that the United States will continue to supply Canada with her steel requirements, despite the possibility that President Truman may call for priority and allocation controls on the strategic war commodity.

The official showed interest, but no alarm in a dispatch from Washington which predicted Mr. Truman would ask Congress today for greater power to meet the Korean crisis, including limited powers of priority and allocation to channel steel and other materials into arms production.

Normally American steel flows into Canada at the rate of about 1,000,000 tons a year, providing Canada with 25 per cent of her steel requirements. A slow-down in American shipments could cut into Canada's record-breaking $3,700,000,000 1950 capital construction program and in the production of homes and buildings.

"We don't believe the United States will cut down shipments to Canada," the official said. "Nor do we believe that there will be any immediate need for resumption of steel controls in Canada."

In Halifax after a 20-hour trip from Fredericton, he said his ambition was a coast-to-coast trip. He already has made two trips to Montreal and Toronto—one a 20-day jaunt.

Citizens Need Voice In Education

OTTAWA, July 19 — (CP) — Willard E. Givens, prominent United States educator, said today it is just as important that the people have a voice in education as in government.

"Government as a determining force in a democracy can be modified at the polls at intervals of a few years," said Mr. Givens, executive secretary of the U.S. National Education Association.

"If the school fails, we may suffer from our mistakes for a 'eneration."

Mr. Givens' speech was prepared for delivery before the fourth assembly of the World Organization of Teaching Profession.

He outlined for delegates repsesentnig some 2,000,000 teachers in 26 countries various methods used by NEA to secure public support for schools in the U.S.

"There is no function of a national professional organization of teachers of greater importance than its impact upon public opinion, its ability to arouse citizens to interest in and support for education, its skill in getting the citizenry of the nation to help teachers accomplish what they attempt to do for the welfare of American children."

George Croskery, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, told delegates that Canadian teachers hold high hopes for establishment of a program of federal support for education, which is under provincial jurisdiction.

The recent parliamentary session had two full-dress debates on education and federal aid, said Mr. Croskery. Three years ago "it was almost a miracle" to obtain a half-hour address on education in the Commons.

Appeal Dismissed

OTTAWA, July 19 (CP)—The income tax appeal board has ruled that expenditures incurred in seeking expert guidance in selection of securities in which to invest capital cannot be deducted for income tax purposes. In a judgment made public Tuesday the board dismissed the appeal of an unidentified man who had claimed a deduction of $955 on his 1947 income tax assessment. The appellant had paid that sum to a firm specializing in a capital investment service and of which he is a client.

VOL. CI. No. 15 WEDNESDAY, JULY 19, 1950

Municipal Debt Increased By $1,659,834

The gross municipal debt of Peterborough was increased in 1949 by $1,659,834.44, quoting from the financial statement received from City Auditor Edward Humpage by the council Monday night.

Debentures were issued in 1949 for $1,852,990.50, for the Civic Hospital, schools, waterworks, local improvements, etc.

Debentures maturing and paid in 1949 were $193,156. Thus the gross debt advanced to $4,984,847.99, by the margin of $1,659,834.44 mentioned above.

The net debt, after allowing for sinking fund reserve, is $3,808,342, as against $2,190,560.51 for the previous year of 1948; and it excludes any sinking fund surplus.

Copies of the auditor's report will not be off the press for another week or two.

The following excerpts from the preface of the auditor's review have been selected as indications of the city's financial affairs up to December 31, 1949.

At that time, outstanding taxes amounted to $83,923.39, an increase of $24,060 over the preceding year. Of the arrears, the amount for 1949 was $58,908 and for 1948 it was $18,350.

"The reserve for loss on taxes stands at $22,873.41," Mr. Humpage commented. "No reserve has been set aside for several years, as this amount is more than adequate for the present."

Inventories are shown at $22,242.83, mostly in board of works stores. Accounts receivable total $168,908.81. They are sums due from the province of Ontario, chiefly in grants, subsidies, etc., and from other sources.

Tax Lands For Sale

Tax lands for sale are shown at $4,643.07. Bank loans and overdraft at the end of the year $449,877.29. Ratepayers will understand that the city's account is fluid, changing from month to month. Overdraft at the end of the year has no doubt been liquidated by this time—and other liabilities have been incurred. That is the common experience of the city's treasury department.

Due from the capital account was $29,574.26, representing local improvements, etc., finished and in process, paid from current funds. "These will be repaid by 1950 when the works are completed."

Revenue Increased

Taxation revenue increased in 1949 by $245,746 over that of 1948. This was due to increased assessments and taxes on newly annexed properties; and revenue of $44,581.11 was received from Wartime Housing Limited in lieu of taxes.

On the side of expenditure, considerable increases are shown in various departments.

Total revenue for 1949 was $1,976,428.64 as against $1,732,349.08 in 1948.

Total expenditure last year was $1,966,566.88, as against $1,721,721.90 for 1948.

In the account of the City Trust Commission, the surplus decreased by $212,618.23 which is explained by such payments as $200,000 to the Civic Hospital and $14,250 for the purchase of some property for the city hall. These amounts, Mr. Humpage noted, are a charge to surplus.

Interest earnings over sinking fund required amounted to $9,354.57; premium on bonds was $1,966.23.

SET AWAY IN A QUIET VALLEY is this goldmine — the Sopha-Miller mine—which is located at the end of a twisting road about 20 miles north of Havelock. Left are the mine buildings and the beginning of the shaft.—(Examiner Staff Photos)

Local Coal Bins Truman Hinge: Order Fuel Now

Householders would do well to order their winter's supply of coal now, local coal dealers say.

Now that President Truman has the United States on a partial war footing the exact amount of future supplies is more uncertain. In the Peterborough district there is now no shortage but dealers say that buying is lagging behind last year.

E. R. Lockyear, director of the Toronto coal exchange, has stated that coal supplies there are only half what they were in 1949. And he urged home owners to get their coal immediately so their needs would be cleared in the event of even partial U. S. mobilization.

Stockpiles Down.

On the dark side of the picture: the U. S. National Coal Association reports that stockpiles in the U. S. are down and that 30,681,000 fewer tons of coal were mined in the first six months of 1950 than for the same period in 1949.

Certainly no pessimist, Frank Montgomery of Montgomery Bros., said Canada was assured of a fair quota of coal because it is the last big domestic market for coal.

'But it all depends on Truman how much we'll get," he said. "If he decides to get tough in his handling of international affairs and the United States mobilies, then we're going to have trouble getting our supplies. Things are not too bad at the moment."

Western Coal Delay.

He said there was a four-month delay in getting the lignite coal from Western Canada so that wouldn't be much help. (The western product retails for $17 a ton compared with about $25 for Pennsylvania anthracite.)

However, another dealer contradicted this saying there was ample Canadian coal to be had. The catch, apparently, is to get householders to buy it.

The consensus among the local dealers: there is certaintly no need for alarm but if you burn coal order your supply now — just in case.

PAYMENT OVERDUE

Eleven owners of business signs overhanging the street were reported delinquent in paying the two dollar annual fee at the council meeting Monday. It was understood that they were to be informed that if the money wasn't soon on the treasury counter, there might be some stress applied. And the council was apparently reluctant to take that kind of action, in the possibility that it was just a matter of oversight in most instances.

Sample Core Assays $603.40 a Ton At Mine On Peterborough County Border

If you want to see a gold mine, drive down to Havelock, then up to Cordova Mines, and north from there on a rattling, curving road that must have defied all the efforts of surveyors to keep it straight. At the end of the road, you're still in Peterborough County, but the mine is 400 yards to the east in Hastings. It's the Sopha-Miller Gold Mine Co., and according to the head man at the mine, Burt Sopha, it should be a money-maker.

The Sopha - Miller (pronounced Sofie-Miller) is one of the new mines that have given impetus to a minor gold rush in the Marmora-Havelock district.

One of the cores pulled at the mine assayed at $603.40 a ton, but that, says Burt Sopha, is probably a spot of high-grade, because other cores drilled on the property run a good deal lower, although they are worthwhile.

Clean, new pine shacks, housing a compressor, a hoist, carbide for miners' lamps, and blasting powder, dot the hilly and rocky country on which the mine is located.

45 Years a Miner

Burt Sopha, in the mining business for 45 years, stood near the center of operations in a small valley and pointed to the various spots where diamond drilling has been done.

"We pulled a core here, and then one over to the west by that tree," he said. "Then there's another test hole about 1,000 feet back of the compressor shed, one up on that hill to the left, and another about 300 feet east of the powder house."

The powder house is located for safety's sake on lower ground than the rest of the mine buildings, and is packed on the sides with dirt and gravel.

Pointing to a yellowish stain on an outcrop of rock, Mr. Sopha said he thought it was pitchblende, the ore from which radium and uranium is derived. "Had a fellow in here who told me if it wasn't pitchblende, he'd buy me the finest shirt I ever wore," he said.

"And if there's pitchblende here we couldn't care less about the gold."

Mr. Sopha is working with two younger men, both in their twenties, one of whom, Roddy Morin, is from Cobalt. The other, Allan Foote, is from Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania.

Started in 1898

Back in 1898, Mr. Sopha started his mining career in Deloro. He was born on a farm, but the booming hustle of the mining town captured his fancy and he went from the soil to the underground.

In 1906, he was off to Cobalt, to the big-time of Ontario mining. He worked in a number of mines there, and remembers one which produced about $24,000,000 over an 18-year period.

Not too many years ago, he decided he was a little too old for mining, and he retired fr three years. But the life was in his blood and he went back to work.

About the present mine, he won't predict anything. He says he thinks it will be good, and if things go well, whoever owns it will be rich. Mr. Sopha, of course, owns a part of the mine.

He figures work will start on the shaft within two weeks, and that the mine should be operating by next spring.

Other prospectors, some of them local men, have been caught up by the idea of gold at their doorsteps, and have staked claims around the Sopha-Miller. Some of them, said Mr. Sopha, sound as though they might be good.

Hopes Revived

Early in June of this year, it was reported that the Bethlehem Steel Corporation had started diamond drilling on property southeast of Marmora, and that an air survey had located a sizeable body of ore in the area.

This news revived hopes that the long-closed Blairton Iron Mine, five miles east of the village, may be re-opened. In the 60's and 70's, iron ore from this mine was hauled across Crowe Lake to the Marmora Iron Works, where it was smelted.

With interest in gold and iron mines in the district increasing, a revival of prosperity has been forecast for an area that was producing gold and iron in paying quantities before Cobalt and Kirkland Lake were dreamed of.

Board of Education is having to transfer from Confederation School to King Edward some of the children living south of Lansdowne St. The change is to take place in September, and would require the pupils to cross the Lansdowne highway at least four times a day. The council is to investigate the request from the Board.

Although only one of the three periods of instalment payment of taxes was included in the statement, the actual total of payments was only slightly less than half the total for the year, in each instance.

Imming was arrested at the Riches home on June 28, where he was showing movies of his travels in the United States and Canada.

Peacetime Recovery

KIRKENES, Norway—(CP)—Reconstructed and modernized iron mines in this northern Norway area are expected to produce at the rate of 500,000 tons of ore for export by the end of 1951. The mines were badly damaged during the second world war.

JAMES EDWARD DAVIS of Trenton, was appointed acting head of Peterborough's assessment department by the council Monday, succeeding Norman A. Wilkes, who is leaving at the end of the month to become Assessment Commissioner in Hamilton. Mr. Davis has been assessor in Trenton for the last three years. He is married and has two children. In his war service, five years with the Canadian Army, he was taken prisoner by the Germans near Caen 26 days after the Allied invasion of Normandy.

Local UE Deny Disloyalty Support Government Stand Political Creed Own Affair

By DAVE WHITE

Speaking for Local 524, United Electrical Workers, the executive and stewards' council have come out in full support of the Canadian government and the United Nations "in their efforts to maintain peace throughout the world." Presumably this is an endorsation of the stand of Canada and UN on the present Korean conflict. The union leadership has been under fire — and that includes heavy sniping from their own rank-and-file—for being a party to the "Ban the A-Bomb" petition and the present "peace drive." Many of the membership feel that this campaign is nothing more than a Communistic tactic.

Some union members have predicted the breakup of the UE if the present campaign is continued. Aid in union negotiations is wanted from the District 5 leadership, they say, not political direction.

Right To Own Opinion

While supporting the Canadian government and UN in helping defend South Korea, the executive and stewards maintain that both district and local officers have the right to their own opinions on the issue.

That, they point out, is in line with the UE constitution.

Following is a statement from a sub-committee of the executive and stewards, handed today to the Examiner. On the committee are T. P. Davies, president; George Wallace, vice-president; and Maurice Coderre, chairman of the stewards' council.

The statement:

"On July 14th, the Peterborough Examiner carried a story which attacked the Executive of Local 524 in a statement by the leadership of the raiding union, IUE. In so far as this attack on our Union is concerned, and in line with our Constitution, the members have clearly demonstrated that they do indeed control our Union.

"We wish to state at the outset that we have no intention of entering into a paper controversy with union raiders whose record has been thoroughly exposed to the people of Peterborough and other Canadian cities, where they attempted to carry out their destruction of our Union.

"In so far as the loyalty of our Executive members and Stewards' Council is concerned both to Canada and to bona fide trade unionism we feel it has been clearly demonstrated by all who were eligible in the last fight to defend democracy.

"We, the Executive and Stewards of Local 524, fully support the stand of our Government and the United Nations in their efforts to maintain peace throughout the world, and after listening to and analyzing the feelings of our local members in the plant we believe that this also reflects their opinions.

"However, this statement does not deprive any member of this Local, our District or Local officers of the right to express their personal opinions in line with the preamble to our Constitution, which states:

"'We, the Electrical Radio and Machine Workers form an organization which unites all workers in our industry on an industrial basis, and rank and file control, regardless of craft, age, sex, nationality, race, creed and political beliefs, and pursue at all times a policy of aggressive struggle to improve our conditions.'

"In line with the foregoing we are well aware of the very capable leadership given by District 5 in negotiations, which is second to none. We request the District 5 to continue to give us this type of leadership."

POTATO CROP

The CNR may not know it, but the Peterborough station has gone into the potato growing business. At least there is a large healthy potato plant flourishing beside a fire hydrant just north of the station building. Who is going to reap the crop?

$550,000 Bylaw For New School Goes To People

Board of Education's contemplated expenditure of $550,000 in the construction of a Collegiate Institute, Monaghan Road south, was given formal tentative approval by the council at its special sesion Monday night.

The motion by Aldermen Waddell and Dewart, after hearing Frank Jobbitt, chairman, G. W. Craw and K. S. Wightman, Superintendent of Schools, expressed the council's assent with the information that a bylaw would be presented authorizing the expenditure.

Mr. Jobbitt said this bylaw would be submitted to the ratepayers, that plans would be prepared in the meantime, and that it was hoped to have preliminaries completed before next spring.

Mr. Craw asked for an early definition of the bounds of the property which includes the Thomas Hughes house and car wrecking lot.

Property Held Up

City Solicitor W. F. Huycke reported that proceedings for the expropriation of the Hughes place had been held up by a particular ownership of the property but that a judicial sitting would be obtained as soon as possible.

This project of the Board of Education has been undertaken to relieve the overcrowding at the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School. A letter from the Board emphasized an anticipated increase in attendance of students on the basis of information obtained from primary school and other statistics.

Plans will provide for required gymnasium accommodation, but the Board intends to omit an auditorium in designing the building which will be of two storeys.

Mr. Craw explained that the grant of the Ontario government will be the equivalent of 25% of the annual debenture payments.

"We cannot call in an architect until we have received at least the tentative approval of the council," Mr. Craw said.

Unanimous Approval

The proposed Collegiate will provide in its designing for additional rooms as they may be required in the growth of the city. Assent of the council was unanimous.

The deputation from the Board of Education actually applied to the council for a bylaw authorizing the borrowing of $550,000. Mr. Craw said the debentures would probably be for a term of 20 years.

Army Pay Chest Said In Swamp

OSHAWA (CP).—Residents of Oshawa's lakeshore district are wondering if perhaps there is more than mud submerged in the marshes about their home.

Rumor has it that an old army pay chest containing £140,000 still is in the rotted hull of a British naval sloop destroyed near here more than a century ago.

The sloop, according to the story, was pursued by a United States cutter in the War of 1812, and put in at nearby Guy's Point. There the crew is said to have tossed the chest overboard before abandoning ship.

Although no trace of either the vessel or the chest has been discovered, Oshawans cling to their belief that it is there and that one day someone will find it.

Say Chicken Price Likely To Go Up

GUELPH, July 19—(CP)—An increase in the price of chickens may be in the offing unless a cure can be found for a new chest disease among fowl, the Ontario Veterinary Association was told Tuesday.

Dr. J. B. Leaming, of Lederle Laboratories, New York, said the disease—known as air sac—may be a form of bronchitis. It has depleted the flocks of many Canadian poultry breeders.

No satisfactory serum or virus has yet been developed to combat the disease, Dr. Leaming said. Minor success has been experienced with vaccination.

Jailed Seven Years

WIARTON, July 19 (CP) — Stanley Jones, 39-year-old resident of Cape Croker Indian Reservation, was sentenced Tuesday to seven years after he pleaded guilty to a charge of wounding with intent. The charge arose out of the near-fatal beating June 10 of a blind woman, Mrs. Susan Taylor, also a resident of the Indian reserve 30 miles north of Owen Sound.

GENEVA, July 19 (Reuters) — Canada Tuesday recommended to the United Nations Economic and Social Council a general exchange of information by governments through the UN secretariat-general. Annual reports should include information on domestic employment production and commerce, said Canadian delegate Alphonse Fournier, the Dominion's Minister of Public Works.

Orders Restrictions

House Buyers In Recent Years Lucky Expert Says

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

If you bought a house in recent years with the feeling that you were going to lose money on it, you may take some comfort now.

You may have bought it because you had to have a place to live, but with the fear the price of houses might drop. You may have feared the value of your house might fall so much that it would not be worth as much as the mortgage, let alone the total of your mortgage and down-payment.

If you feared this you were not alone. Mortgage companies feared it too and some observers envisioned thousands of homes being offered for sale and a collapse in the real estate market.

There was, of course, such a possibility and certainly a moderate drop would not have been suprising; but there were several factors which made a precipitate fall improbable.

Inflation Threat Still

One factor was that at no time have we been free of the threat of further inflation, of prices going still higher. Another was that with increased population houses was that even if there were a were still scarce. A further factor was that even if there were a further recession, building costs would go down very slowly. And the overpowering factor was that the cold war, with its high-price infuences, gave no promise of ending, except in a hot one.

Now, the cold war has warmed up and, in the United States at least, one of the first to be hit is the person who still hasn't a home but who may be thinking of building one. For President Truman Tuesday issued orders to save construction materials for the war effort. Part of the order makes it more difficult to get credit for house-building and degrees higher down-payments.

This hardening of conditions for house builders in the United States comes at a time when in Canada we still are in the midst of steps to make them easier. There is no such word here yet, such as made by President Truman, but it will come if the war pace quickens appreciably.

In these circumstances, those who have put their money into houses or real property of almost any kind may congratulate themselves.

If a war economy has to start out from the present high-price level, we have no idea what money may be worth in a few years.

Britain's MP's Demanding Divorce Law Inquiry

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, July 19—(CP)—Britain's first inquiry into marriage and divorce laws since the First World War is demanded by 104 Members of Parliament. Legislators of all parties, hoping to ease the hidden heartbreak implicit in 20,000 separation orders issued each year, are among those supporting a motion to appoint a Royal Commission.

The motion is in the name of Marcus Lipton, Labor member for the London constituency of Brixton. As wartime head of a government department, Lipton was called on to advise in more than 50,000 divorce applications.

Last May, he led a movement in the House of Commons against what he called "kiss-and-run" husbands who deserted their wives and skipped off to the Republic of Ireland to escape paying maintenance.

One of the evils which members would like to end is that whereby husbands and wives parted by separation and maintenance orders have no power to remarry. As a result, reformers contend, some 200,000 men and women in Britain are living together outside marriage.

Suggest Petition

One solution proposed by some members is that a petition for divorce should be permissible when parties have lived apart for two years and are unlikely to resume married life.

Although no date has been set for a parliamentary debate on Lipton's motion, the subject already has launched a long and complicated correspondence in the Times. This ended, as such correspondence often does, with a letter from George Bernard Shaw asking why a marriage licence should be regarded as more sacred than a driving licence.

The Irish playwright argued that sometimes neither party will petition for a divorce, condemning the respondent to celibacy or to an illicit union.

The reason for reluctance sometimes was that parties regarded an appearance in a divorce court as an "unbearable social disgrace." Therefore, Shaw wrote, "should not divorce of the separated be made both compulsory and secret so far as the name of the parties are concerned?"

Students Study Fort's History

LONDON, July 19 — (CP) — Students at the University of Western Ontario Museum of Indian Archaeology have enquired into the history of the martyrdom of the Jesuits of Forte Ste. Marie, near Midland.

The summer school of Indian Archaeology led by Wilfred Jury, curator, turned up another building at the mission, razed by the Jesuits themselves after five missionaries had been martyred. As part of their training in careful excavation, the class dug out the remains of a charred building, 50 feet by 20 feet. Many hours of brushing revealed the timbers of the south wall still intact after three centuries.

Togliatti Leaves

ROME, July 19 (AP)—Italian Communist leader Palmiro Togliatti left Italy for an unknown destination Sunday, informed sources said Tuesday night. Political circles speculated that Togliatti may be attending a meeting of the Cominform.

Closer Together

SASKATOON, July 19 (CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, Tuesday said a renewal of the bi-partisan foreign policy that prevails during wartime may emerge from the present crisis in Korea. In an interview here, he said he detected "a more noticeable effort on the part of the government to keep the opposition informed on important considerations affecting foreign policy."

FLEES RED CAMP — Latest member of Ottawa's Polish legation to break with the Communist-dominated homeland is Thadeusz Sadabin, 40-year-old chauffeur to the former Polish minister. During the war, Sadabin served with the French Maquis and has spent most of his life in the Polish diplomatic service.

Mental Illness Found Worse Says Dr. F. H. Baugh

GUELPH, July 19 — (CP) — Medical science, despite tremendous strides, has been unable to keep pace with a terrific increase in mental and nervous disorders, Dr. F. H. Baugh, superintendent of Homewood Sanatorium, said Tuesday.

Speaking to the Women's Auxiliary of the Ontario Veterinary Association, Dr. Baugh said there are more than 60,000 patients in Canadian mental hospitals, double the figure 20 years ago. The increase has occurred despite improvements in hospital equipment and knowledge.

"Instead of crying for more hospitals, we should be driving towards finding the causes," he said. "We are inclined to pay too much attention to symptoms instead of getting at the root of the trouble."

Dr. Baugh said a connection has been established between breast-feeding of infants and later mental attitudes.

Experiments have shown that breast-fed infants generally grow up with a clear, cheerful outlook on life. Those with little or no breast-feeding generally develop psycho-neurosis.

Make Fresher-tasting Jam this Easy, Short-boil Way

For sparkling jams with the delicious flavor and color of fresh fruit, try this short-boil method with CERTO.

CERTO is fruit pectin — the natural jelling substance in fruit — extracted and concentrated for better, surer jam and jelly making. These 5 points, typical of CERTO recipes, explain why CERTO is such a boon.

"CERTO" is a trade-mark owned by General Foods, Ltd.

Point 1 ONE-MINUTE BOIL
CERTO recipes need only a ONE-MINUTE full rolling boil. Right there you save ⅔ of the time needed for old-fashioned long-boiling . . . not to mention the hot, tiring work!

Point 2 2 lbs. FULLY RIPE FRUIT
You use RIPE fruit at the peak of luscious taste and color . . . NOT the under-ripe fruit called for in long-boil recipes. The boil is so short it does not dull the color or spoil the fresh-fruit taste. They stay right in your jam.

Point 3 3 lbs. OF SUGAR
A pound of jam made with CERTO contains no more sugar than a pound made the old, long-boil way.

Point 4 4 ozs. OF CERTO
Adding a half bottle (4 ozs.) of CERTO ensures the correct ratio of fruit pectin to fruit and sugar for a perfect set. CERTO removes the uncertain element from jam making . . . helps all fruits to jell perfectly.

Point 5 5 lbs. OF JAM
Yes! An average of 5 lbs. of jam instead of about 3 the long-boil way! In the short CERTO boil practically no juice wastes away in steam as it does in long boiling. You average 50% more jam from the same amount of fruit.

FOLLOW THE RECIPES EXACTLY—
With CERTO you get 78 kitchen-tested recipes because different fruits need different handling. Be sure to follow EXACTLY the simple instructions for the fruit you are using. You get CERTO at your grocer's.

MR. AND MRS. HAROLD T. WILLSHAW of Peterborough at the reception which followed their wedding Saturday. The bride is Bridget Agnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernard Barrett, College St., and the groom is son of Mr. and Mrs. James Willshaw, Sophia St.—(Duke Studio Photo)

Former City Teacher Weds Theology Student - Veteran

A wedding of wide interest was solemnized in Deseronto United Church Saturday, when Shirley June, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Howard Boyce, was united in marriage to William Brodie Wigmore, son of Mrs. Richard Curran Wigmore of Toronto, and the late Mr. Wigmore. The wedding took place on the 24th wedding anniversary of the bride's parents.

Tall standards of mauve, yellow and white gladioli with baskets of mauve larkspur and baby's breath formed a lovely floral setting for the ceremony which was performed by the Rev. F. F. Townsend, assisted by Rev. V D. Wigmore of Calvary Anglican Church, Toronto, brother of the groom.

Wedding music was played by Miss Helen Bruce of Kingston. The soloist was Mrs. Charles Leach, also of Kingston, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" and the dedication nymn, "Take Our Lives, Let Them Be Consecrated, Lord, to Thee" during the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" during signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was lovely in a Victorian styled gown of gardenia white bridal satin and French lace made with a fitted basque bodice buttoned to below the waist in the back. Silk net formed a yoke above the wide double bertha of satin and lace in which she wore a pearl and sapphire pin given by her father to her mother on her wedding day. The very full hooped skirt of her dress was made with alternate ruffles of satin and lace forming paniers at the side and it swept into a long circular train. Imported silk tulle illusion formed her full length bridal veil which was caught with a tiny bonnet of satin and lace. She carried a white satin-bound Bible from which fell a cascade of sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

The bride's four attendants wore identically styled gowns of nylon marquisette over taffeta made with corded ruching forming bands around the neckline and on the bouffant skirts Miss Dorothy Boyce of Belleville was her sister's maid of honor, wearing leaf green, and the bridesmaids in matching lilac dresses were Miss Violet Wilson of Peterborough, and Mrs. P. M. Hannah of Kingston. Little Marena Wigmore of Toronto, niece of the groom, was flower girl and wore a miniature copy of the bridesmaids' gowns in daffodil yellow. All attendants wore short ruffled mittens and carried colonial bouquets of mauve and white sweetpeas and yellow rosebuds. Their braided headbands were caught with tiny matching nosegays of fresh flowers.

The groomsman was Mr. Robert Wigmore of London and ushers were Ronald Boyce, Deseronto, and Douglas Palmer, Toronto.

Mrs. Boyce received the guests afterward at her home, wearing a dress of silver grey chantilly lace with navy picture hat. Her accessories were navy and she wore a corsage of briarcliffe roses and stephanotis. She was assisted by the groom's mother who wore rose embroidered faille with black accessories and corsage of Johanna Hill roses.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Wigmore left for a honeymoon in Northern Ontario. For travelling the bride wore a suit of mist blue gabardine with hat and blouse of dawn pink, and navy accessories. Her corsage was of pale pink roses and stephanotis. They will live at 599 King Street, London, Ontario.

The bride is a graduate of Peterborough Normal School and a former members of the teaching staff at King George School, Peterborough. The groom, who is a veteran of the RCAF, is at present a theology student at Huron Anglican College, University of Western Ontario.

Among the many guests were those from Peterborough, Kingston, Toronto, Guelph, Ottawa, Montreal, Campbellford, Stirling, Cobourg, Strathcona, Sydenham, Harrowsmith, Moscow and Perth Road.

W.M.S. Plans Tea, Bazaar

The Misses Ferguson, Bonacord St., were hostesses this week to the members of St. Andrew's WMS for the July meeting. In the absence of president, Mrs. F. W. K. Harris, Mrs. A. A Munro presided.

Arrangements were made to meet at the home of Mrs. E. Hawley, Charlotte St., for the August meeting.

Members were reminded of the tea and bazaar to be held September 22 and asked to try and make some articles during the summer for the bazaar tables.

Devotional exercises were taken by Mrs. E. F. Reid.

At close of the meeting a social hour was spent, when the members of Miss Dixon's group assisted the hostess to serve light refreshments.

PLUNGING NECKLINES in suits and dresses this season are filled in with softly folded or shirred contrasting material (at left). Frankly feminine (right) and designed to give the heart-shaped look is this fitted collar of deeper fur. Rose adds color.

Fashion Flashes

PRETTY and practical is the story of this season's beachwear. Nice as a beach coat, is a model cut like a man's shirt, in blue terry cloth, with collar, front panel and cuffs of white pique.

VARIETY rules the dance floor these late nights. Navy net makes a smart, crisply flared, ankle-length formal, with three finely pleated flounces of the fabric at the hem. A very wide corselet midriff is of red velvet, and above it the bodice is formed of two finely pleated ruffled tiers.

MUCH SMARTER, just now, than the printed silk or chiffon scarf is the scarf of solid color, often worn with a flower in matching tone.

EASY-TO-MAKE evening hats can be worked out with veiling and flowers. A cage of white veiling, nose length and crisply flared, is made pretty with scattered and massed red rosebuds clustered in back. A similar idea is worked out in pale pink veiling with violets.

A GOOD CHOICE for sheers, black or white, is the black velvet handbag. A round pin-cushion pouch has a compact-like lid top, lined with a mirror and revealing space for a small compact and lipstick. The top is rimmed with gold metal and has a turn-key lock. Wide velvet handle.

SAILING FANS will like a new shirt to wear with shorts or slacks. It is a "cabana" shirt of blue and white striped ticking, made with a hood and a drawstring waist.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

"Should a player always be required to discard?" asks a Canasta fan of McCrory, Ark.

"Several times in a game someone has come down to a one-card hand. He could then meld the card drawn from the stock pile. He melded this card, kept the one card that remained in his hand, but made no discard.

"My impression is that regardless of the situation a player must always discard, unless he is melding out. Would you be good enough to confirm or deny this?"

My correspondent is absolutely right. The laws very clearly state that a player must discard at each and every turn, except when he melds out legally. There is only one other exception to this rule. If you draw the last card of the stock, and it happens to be a red three, you may meld, but may not discard; and the hand ends at that point.

In any other situation at all (except when melding out) you must discard as part of your play. After you have discarded, you must still have one card left in your hand.

It is never permissible to say "Pass" or to knock on the table as a sign that you are not going to make a discard. The rules give you no such right.

In this situation, a player who is unwise enough to reduce down to one card before his side has made a canasta, is not permitted to meld what he draws from the stock. He must discard either his original card or the card he has just drawn.

Q—When you have only two black threes left in your hand and the discard pile consists only of one black three, can you pick it up and meld out?

A—No. You are never permitted to pick up the discard pile when the previous card is a black three. Such a card is always a "stop" card.

Q—Are you allowed to meld two black threes and a deuce when you meld out? What about three black threes and a deuce?

A—You are allowed to meld two black threes and a deuce when you meld out. The only other melds with black threes are three black threes (without a deuce); and four black threes (without a deuce). No other melds are possible with black threes.

Q—One side makes a canasta with four tens and three wild cards. Is it legal for that side to try for another canasta of four tens and three more wild cards?

A—That is perfectly legal. I cannot say as much for the advisability of making such a play. It is usually more sound to use your wild cards on some other meld. You may be able to get five or six natural cards in another meld, and thus you will need fewer wild cards to complete the canasta.

Q—We had a mixed canasta that consisted of four natural cards and three wild cards. Several rounds after this canasta had been made we wanted to add another wild card to that canasta. Was this permissible?

A—Yes. If the canasta is already made, you are always permitted to add extra wild cards to it.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Wife Advised Keep Home Intact for Children's Sake

DEAR MISS DIX: For ten years my husband has been the sun in my sky. Even my children have held second place. Then, without warning, I was pluriged into hell by finding out that he had been unfaithful to me with my dearest friend. He blames her—for which I despise him — and is frantic at the thought of zreaking up our home.

Dorothy Dix

I submit to his caresses because I neither hate nor love him and I have remained the same efficient housekeeper.

The question is, shall I stay or go? I could support myself easily, but there are the children. I have taught them that he is a knight, a pattern for them, so if I took them away they would lose not only his support but an idea, for he has been a wonderful father to them and he loves them sincerely. Would it be wiser to remain with him and forget my desire for happiness with a man I love or make myself content with what I have and assure the children of a normal home life? They know nothing of my tragedy.

TROUBLED.

ANSWER: In a case like yours I do not think there can be any question of its being the mother's duty to sacrifice herself to her children. I believe that the man and woman who take upon themselves the responsibility of foisting life upon a child are bound by every code of honor to put him before themselves and do everything possible for his welfare, even though it involves their giving up their happiness for him.

Consider Harmful Effects

Of the disastrous effects of a broken home upon children it is not necessary to speak here. It takes away their sense of security. It upsets all their values. It confuses all of their relationships. It blights their lives in every way.

So the proposition boils down to this: Your children have a right to grow up in the sunshine in which alone they can flower into beautiful man and womanhood. They have a right to live in a peaceful atmosphere. Have you the courage to make this sort of home for them under adverse conditions?

And, after all, I think you will be happier in keeping your home together than you will be in leaving it. For the most important thing in the world to you is not your own happiness but that of your children, and that will be best secured by your making no change in their lives.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: What's the matter with young men? They seem not to know even the elementary rules of good manners. After making a date with a girl they stand her up without even offering any excuse or letting her know that they are not coming. We often have boys call up a half hour before the dinner which was prepared for them, and have them say they are not coming. They don't bother even to make any excuse. My daughter very seldom has a letter answered. Boys go off to college and make her promise to write to them, which she does, but they don't take the time to answer. What's the matter with them? Why didn't their mothers teach them the decent things in life?

A GIRL'S MOTHER.

ANSWER: I don't know why mothers don't teach their boys good manners, nor do I know why girls' mothers don't teach their daughters to have enough self-respect to resent the boys' lack of manners.

For the thing that is the matter with the boys is that they are spoiled rotten by the girls, who are so anxious to have dates that they will permit the boys to put any sort of affront upon them. If the girls had enough spunk and backbone to stage a rebellion, they could make the boys treat them with the respect that men used to show to women.

I am not defending the manners of the young men of today. Heaven only know they have none to defend, but it is because girls make themselves so cheap that young men hold themselves so dear.

DEAR MISS DIX: What makes the world go round — money or love?

STAN.

ANSWER: The poets say that love makes the world go round. Cynics say that if money isn't everything it will buy the balance. I sdie with the poets, if you have to take your choice, but love and money make a grand combination and things go swiftest and smoothest when you have a little of both.

Has Unique Post In Publishing Firm

TORONTO — (CP) — After 15 years' service with the MacMillan Company of Canada, Gladys E. Neale has been appointed manager of the publishing firm's educational department. She is the only woman to hold such a position in Canada.

Miss Neale started as a record and sales order clerk with the company, later being promoted to librarian. She was made assistant manager of the educational department in 194. and acting manager a year later.

During the last seven years she has made 25 trans-Canada promotional trips and has visited Europe, Cuba, Mexico and the Bahamas.

Miss Neale was born and educated in Toronto.

Seeks Shangri-La How About Hubby

LONDON— (CP) - Mrs. Liza Monks, 31-year-old mother of five young children, believes another world war is inevitable and is determined she and her family will not be within rocket range when it comes.

"Escapism," she says, is the only way out.

So, backing up her creed, she is trying to interest a group of similarly-minded people to pull up stakes and strike off for some quiet spot far removed from the world's powder kegs. She would prefer to settle down where the climate is kind and the living agreeable.

"It is so stupid to allow another war to happen," Mrs. Monks said. "You know, if there was a real scare I am sure more people would fall in with my idea. And if enought people were to go away it might prevent war."

Asked what Mr. Monks thought about the plan, Mrs. Monks said: "I haven't discussed it with him. I don't quite know what he would think about all this."

What's Right?

Some friends of your family who live in a distant city have in the past said or written to you: "We would like to have you visit us sometime."

WRONG: Decide that you will write them that you are coming for a week's visit on a certain date.

RIGHT: Realize that an invitation should be much more definite before it is wise to start making plans to descend on friends for a week's visit.

A FEW HOMEY FACTS FOR THE HOMESEEKER

IF considering a Home, why build in the City at all when you can centrally locate in Omemee within commuting distance to "work markets" of both cities. If work fails in one, you find it perhaps in the other. One has to take a bus or car to get to work anyway these days. Omemee offers low taxes; better values in land and better community living, and less congestion.

BUT why build anyway? You know you can buy $10,000 in value in an old home for $5,000 or less, and get $3,000 in value in a new home for $8,000—and the lumber market has just gone up again.

SO why waste money? You know a house built 20 to 25 years ago will be here 100 years from now. Where will many of the newer homes be in 25 years. In the next few years, Omemee will be the Heart of Lindsay and Peterborough.

THEN—a word about Home Possibilities when you buy a home. If that home has as well, unusual possibilities for a Business besides just a home; if it has ample yard space—spacious grounds for expansion and business side lines, you have something to develop and enlarge as a Business for yourself or family — and certainly your property has a better resale value. These are, indeed, things to consider when buying a home.

SURE—we have something to sell. We have a selection of good homes in Omemee: Brick Veneered, well located Homes, each with definite Business Possibilities that can be developed. Homes that will develop into greater value. Again we predict — Omemee jammed in between two thriving cities is bound to be the better.

Swimmers Win First Ribbons

Approximately 25 per cent of the children attending the swimming classes at the Lions Community Pool will be awarded ribbons this week. These ribbons are presented when the children are able to swim 50 feet.

New Zealand Joins Britain In Compulsory Training

By J. C. GRAHAM

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP).—New Zealand is the only Commonwealth country except Britain to have peacetime conscription in force. The first drafts of 18-year-old recruits now are finishing 14 weeks' intensive training prior to being posted to the territorial force.

New Zealand approved peacetime conscription at a national referendum last year under the Labor Government. The new National Party Government fully approves the principle which it advocated long before it took office.

Since November all youths in New Zealand become liable for military service on reaching their 18th birthday. They are then obliged to register and are given a medical examination. Those classed as fit for training are given the option of training with the navy or air force if their qualifications are suitable, but the number required by these two services is comparatively small and the majority of the recruits are drafted for army service.

On completion of their 14-weeks' basic training the recruits are still liable for shorter periods in camp for the next three years and also for weekends and evening parades several times a year.

Get New Look

To achieve the maximum training possible in the short time available the syllabus has been given a "New Look." Formal drill has been reduced to a minimum. Recruits are given a pamphlet before entering camp setting out the aims of the course and a general outline of the training and what to expect of camp life. Training lasts all day and extends into the evening on several evening a week.

The syllabus has been drafted so that indoor training periods can be switched at short notice when weather makes outdoor training impossible. Cadres of offices and N.C.O.'s from the last war have undergone intensive training in how to give the maximum instruction possible in the time available.

Plan Mass Cremation For Crash Victims

NEW DELHI, India, July 19 — (AP)—The bodies of 17 victims of a crashed Kashmir-bound plane, charred beyond recognition, will be given a mass cremation today. Among them is Brig. H. H. Angle of Kelowna, B.C., who was chief United Nations military observer in Kashmir.

The Indian government said the cremation was ordered held at Pathankot, near the scene of the crash Monday, after consultation with Canadian, American and Belgian diplomats in New Delhi.

Of 22 persons aboard, the bodies of 20 were recovered. Only three—all Indians—were identified.

A plane carrying representatives of the government, army and diplomatic corps is attempting to reach Pathankot in time for the ceremony.

R.C.A.F. CHANGES — Group Captain J. C. Scott of Bobcaygeon (right), has been appointed assistant air attache to the Canadian embassy at Washington, replacing Group Captain Leonard J. Birchall (left), St. Catharines, who has been named station commander at Goose Bay, Labrador. Birchall became world famous as the "Saviour of Ceylon" when his radio message warned island defenders of the approach of a Japanese invasion fleet. Scott formerly commanded the RCAF station at Edmonton.

2 Pilots Get New Appointments

OTTAWA, July 19 (CP)—Two Canadian pilots who patrolled the shark-infested waters of the Indian Ocean with the Tusker Squadron—Canada's first squadron to operate in the Far East—have received new appointments.

RCAF headquarters announced Tuesday night that Group Capt. J. C. Scott, 37, of Bobcaygeon, who commanded the Ceylon-based 413 Tusker Flying-boat Squadron in 1942, will replace Group Capt. Leonard J. Birchall, 35, of St. Catharines, as Assistant Air Attache to the United States.

Group Capt. Birchall, who became world-famous as the "Savior of Ceylon" for his timely wireless warning of the Japanese invasion fleet, will command the RCAF station at Goose Bay, Labrador, on his return to Canada from Washington.

The Tusker Squadron operated with Catalina flying boats, escorting and hunting enemy submarines from the Bay of Bengal, off the shores of Burma, to the Maldive Islands below the equator.

Mixed Marriages Topic At Meet

TORONTO, July 19 — (CP).—Canadian baptist parents were advised Tuesday to discourage their children from marrying Roman Catholics by early education on the problems arising from such a union.

Discussion of the mixed marriage problem arose when the Rev. Dr. S. J. Farmer, retired Toronto minister, told the Baptist Federation of Canada that the Roman Catholic church was encouraging mixed marriages. He said many communities formerly Protestant were gradually being turned into Roman Catholic communities through mixed marriages.

Dr. Farmer described the commitment that a non-Roman Catholic partner must give—to bring up children in the Roman Catholic faith — as "the most one-sided contract conceived."

The Rev. E. M. Checkland of Winnipeg and the Rev. E. J. Greisinger of Toronto denied that the Roman Catholic policy was to encourage such marriages. Mr. Checkland said that "'in fairness to the Roman Catholic church, it must be said that it is as unhappy about mixed marriages as we are."

Mr. Greisinger said that "the Roman Catholic church loses almost as heavily as we do in such marriages."

The Federation decided to make literature on the mixed marriage problems availble to all its clergy in Canada and that ministrs should cevote two or three Sundays a year to sermons dealing with the problem "on a high level."

Say Influenza Virus Kills Three Children

PARRY SOUND, July 19 (CP)—Dr. Charles M. Appleby, medical officer of health in this Georgian Bay town said Tuesday that what is believed to be an "influenza virus" has caused the death of three children and sent three others to hospital in the last six weeks.

Dr. Appleby said the victims were all between one and three years old. No epidemic is anticipated.

"So far we haven't been able to isolate the culture," he said. "But in the opinion of most medical men here, it is a 'flu virus, carried over from widespread influenza throughout Northern Ontario last year."

Traffic Lights Approved On Tie Division

City council was unanimous Monday night for stop-and-go lights at Hunter and Aylmer Streets, but it was Mayor Swanston's vote in a tie division that places similar traffic control at Monaghan Road and Charlotte streets.

Action was prompted by a recommendation from the Police Commission and Chief Constable John Thompson.

Mayor Swanston mentioned several recent accidents at Hunter and Aylmer streets, and discussion broadened out to some dissatisfaction with a flasher type of warning at Monaghan Road and Charlotte Streets.

The whole question of control of traffic speed on the Charlotte St. entrance to the city was investigated several years ago by a committee of which Ralph Standish, then an alderman, was chairman. Lighting recommendations on the Cloncilla Ave. stretch of Charlotte St., were carried out but that was about the limit of action.

A motion by Ald. Herbert Young and Ald. A. B. Burrows instructing City Engineer Chalmers to order lights for both intersections was split into its components at the suggestion of Ald. T. D. Miller.

I'm in favor of Hunter and Aylmer, but I think I would be stupid to hold up traffic on Charlotte St., the main artery into the city," he said. "Ninety per cent of the traffic at that point flows on Charlotte St. Most of the Monaghan Road rush is at noon and 5 p.m."

Ald. Waddell commented that the recommendation came from "those who are charged with the responsibility of traffic control, and it has been through committees before."

Eight of the aldermen were present. Their division on the Monaghan Road lights was: For, Burrows, Young, Dewart and Waddell; against: Braund, Miller, Gillespie and Dodds.

Confronted with the tie, Mayor Swanston said he was voting "for" the motion.

Labor Board Reserves Ruling

TORONTO, July 19 — (CP).—The Ontario Labor Relations Board Tuesday reserved decision on an application by the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) for certification as bargaining agent for employees at the Port Colborne plant of the International Nickel Company.

The Steel Workers are seeking to supplant the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers as bargaining agent for the 1,333 workers at the plant.

The hearing climaxed a bitter jurisdictional dispute between the two unions which began almost two years ago when the Smelter Workers Union was suspended from the CCL for toeing the Communist line.

In a Labor Board vote held in June, 1949, neither union obtained a majority of votes.

ROSENEATH, July 19 (ENS)—The annual decoration service at Alderville cemetery was held on Sunday afternoon. The open-air service was held under a large oak tree near the gates of the cemetery.

The Rev. J. N. Lovelace, pastor of Alderville United Church, conducted the service assisted by Mr. H Lander, Cold Springs, a former pastor. The address was given by the Rev. Preston Brown, Camborne

The Alderville cemetery is situated on a small hill on the Roseneath-Harwood road about one-half mile west of the Alderville war memorial on Highway 45.

American Uses Paper Canoe For Enjoyable River Trips

MADISON, N.J., July 19 (AP)—Have you ever paddled down a river in a paper canoe?

This may sound crazy, but it is as safe as riding in a flat-bottomed rowboat of sturdy wood — and much faster, says John B. Ehrhardt.

He has cruised waters during the past year and a half in his paper canoe named "Shoshiman," which in the language of the Chippewa Indian means "slipping stick."

Ehrhardt built his slender canoe of paper, modelling it after a paper boat manufactured by Elisha Waters at Troy, N.Y., in the 1870s.

The paper canoe is not as fragile as it would seem. Many layers of ordinary brown wrapping paper and newsboard coated with phenolic resins form a waterproof and durable shell.

Ehrhardt says it is "the only type of seamless construction practicable for the private builder." It is inexpensive, and "an amateur can build it."

Easily Repaired

Here's the way he describes it: A paper boat is lightweight, seamless, durable and watertight. A paper boat won't corrode and is easy to repair, since punctures in the shell can be fixed by merely pushing out the dent and gluing two layers of paper over the damage at either side.

The first paper boats built by waters in the 1800s were made by molding paper over a form and then lifting the paper from the mold and assembling it on a frame which consisted of light spruce inwales and a pair of transverse bulkheads and stem pieces. In those days, the boats were waterproofed with varnish or shellac. They weighed slightly more than 30 pounds and presented a "smooth, seamless, almost friction-proof surface to the water."

Ehrhardt's paper boat is 14 feet long, 26 inches wide and 9 inches deep and weighs 56 pounds The boat will accommodate two adults and has a capacity of about 500 pounds.

Popular Picnic Spot

During the month of June, 27 group picnics were held at Nicholl's Oval with a total attendance of 17,578 persons, according to A. W. Butcher, Supt. of the City Parks Department.

Approximately 1,500 people held private picnics and a total of 6,000 attended the four band concerts held in the park during June.

Declares Church Being Judged

TORONTO, July 18 (CP)—Dr. E. T. Dahlberg of Syracuse, N.Y., said Tuesday the Christian church is "under ruthless judgment."

"We must subject ourselves to a rigid self-scrutiny to determine whether we are qualified to meet the tests of the hour," he told the second assembly of the Baptist Federation of Canada.

Dr. Dahlberg, president of the Northern Baptist Convention of the United States, said the "opportunity for a strong pulpit ministry" is greater than ever before.

Dr. Dahlberg stressed also the need for education of youth and for church activity on an international plane.

"We must move not simply as denominations but as a fellowship of denominations. The meeting of the world council of churches in Toronto last week was a significant illustration of the interchurch solidarity developing throughout the world. The world council might be said to be the spiritual United Nations."

King Leopold Voted Back Again

Belgium's Parliament Casts 198 Votes For Old Monarch

BRUSSELS, July 20—(CP)—King Leopold was voted back to his throne by the Belgian Parliament today. He has been in exile in Switzerland since the war. The question of bringing him back split Belgium badly for months, with the Socialists particularly being bitterly opposed to his return.

A joint session of both houses of parliament, cast 198 affirmative votes for Leopold's return, with opposition Socialists, Liberals and Communists abstaining in protest. There are 387 members in both houses.

The decision was on legislation to end the regency of Prince Charles, Leopold's brother.

The opposition to Leopold was based in the main on his early surrender to the Germans in 1940 and his marriage in 1945 to a Flemish commoner after the death of his Queen.

The abstainers marched from the chamber before the vote, leaving the pro-King Social Christians to vote Leopold's return. Paul Henri Spaak, Socialist Leader and former Premier, said the Social Christians in so doing had accomplished "one of the gravest and most disastrous acts of our history."

Outside the Chamber, the Opposition Parliament members paraded to the royal palace to pay one final tribute to Prince Charles.

Even with all members voting, the Social Christians would have had sufficient strength to carry the day. The final ballot came after eight stormy days of speech-making which climaxed a year of political manoeuvring, a plebiscite, an election, strikes and strife.

THESE NEW ROCKET GUNS now in use by U.S. troops in Korea are taking a heavy toll of enemy tanks. This infantry sergeant is shown with the 3.5 inch rocket gun, a king-size bazooka, which is hitting hard at the Russian-built equipment. The G.I.'s former anti-tank guns were ineffective against the heavy Red armor.

New Rocket Gun Takes On All Red Tanks Gives U.S. Soldiers Chance To Fight Back

TOKYO, July 20— (AP) — The United States Army's king-sized bazooka — the new 3.5-inch ground rocket-launcher—knocked out an official seven of seven Communist tanks today in its first battlefield test at Taejon, Korea. Front-line dispatches said an eighth tank later was knocked out.

The new recoil-less weapon was described as a modern version of the Second World War bazooka except that it is larger and is fired from the shoulder. The old bazooka fired a 2.36-inch rocket.

The new weapon is designed primarily for close fire. But it also can be used against "fortified positions." In covering a specific area its effect is similar to a round from an 81-millimetre mortar, a communique from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said.

The 3.5-inch rocket launcher is a two-piece, smooth-bore weapon of the open-tube type. It is electrically operated. Ammunition is approximately 23 inches long and weighs slightly more than eight pounds.

The gunner uses a reflecting sight which enables him to keep focused on targets moving up to 40 miles an hour.

Attlee Rejects Acceptance Of Chinese Reds For Peace

LONDON, July 20—(CP)—Prime Minister Attlee today told the House of Commons that ending of the war in Korea cannot be conditional to acceptance of Communist China into the United Nations. The statement, in effect, backed United States rejection of the move by Prime Minister Nehru of India to seek peace in Korea by bringing Red China into the U.N.

Attlee set forth the views of the British Government thus:

The immediate issue is to stop hostilities in Korea; Britain reaffirms support in the resolution of the United Nations Security Council calling for aid against North Korean Communist aggressors; and restoration of peace in Korea cannot be made conditional on settlement of other issues.

The Prime Minister said Britain will do what she can to match the "high purpose and resolve" which President Truman expressed Wednesday in a message to Congress.

Attlee summarized British efforts to swing Russian influence against the North Korean aggression.

He said that as the Soviet government is not repre-

Find Quebec Bridge Collapses During Night

VAL D'OR, Que., July 20 (CP)—Lac Des Cochons bridge on the Montreal-Val D'or highway, a few miles south of here, today was reported to have collapsed during the night.

The break was noticed early today when driver Lucien Goupil was forced to stop his Abitibi Coach Lines bus carrying about 30 passengers from Montreal a few feet from the bridge. None was injured.

Passengers crossed the narrow lake after planks had been placed over the break, they were taken to Val D'or and Rouyn by a special bus.

Reports said repairs to the bridge will not proceed before autumn and that a temporary Bailey bridge will be installed to allow traffic across the lake.

Doesn't Believe War Imminent

BATH, England, July 20 (CP)—Winston Churchill said today he does not think a great war is imminent.

The wartime Prime Minister expressed belief that American firmness will forestall a major conflict.

"But I am sure of this," he said in an address, "if there were any weakness or division in the English-speaking world, if it were not for the great and courageous championship of the cause of freedom by the mighty United States, if outside the iron curtain there were not strong and loyal supporters of the maintenance of peace, there could be no limit to the miseries which the whole world would have to undergo."

Tornadoes Strike 2 Ohio Communities

LIMA, O., July 20 (AP)—Tornadoes hit two Ohio communities and a tiny west Texas town Wednesday. Some 20 persons were injured and property damage was heavy.

A child was killed by lightning in a storm that hit near Quitaque, Tex., about 60 miles north of Lubbock.

Some 300 homes were damaged and a score of persons hurt in the tornado that swept across Lima, a city of about 50,000. Another twister struck at Van Wert, O., 27 miles west of Lima, damaging several farm buildings.

Boy Fractures Arms Trying Drive Tractor

BELLEVILLE, July 20—(CP)—John Kennedy, 12-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Kennedy of Belleville, fractured both arms Wednesday when a tractor he was attempting to drive from his father's farm crashed through the side and plunged 12 feet to the ground.

The boy in starting the motor of the tractor had it in low gear instead of reverse and it shot forward unexpectedly.

India Condemns US Refusal To Use Nehru Peace Plan

NEW DELHI, India, July 20 — (AP)—India's press today almost unanimously condemned the refusal of the United States to follow Prime Minister Nehru's recommendations for peace in Korea.

Nehru meanwhile turned his attention to India's two-year-long dispute with Pakistan over Kashmir. Pakistan's Prime Minister, Liaquat Ali Khan, was due here today for conferences with Nehru and the United Nations mediator, Sir Owen Dixon.

The local press concluded that publication of Nehru's correspondence with Generalissimo Stalin and State Secretary Dean Acheson of the U.S. means the Indian leader's Korean peace efforts have ended.

Stalin had agreed with Nehru that Communist China should be admitted to the U.N. Security rean peace. Acheson said the U.S. feels the Korean and Chinese questions should be settled separately.

The Indian News Chronicle termed Acheson's reply "another diplomatic triumph for Communism."

The U.S. note aroused only adverse criticism from Indian newspapers.

Acheson, said the Hindustan Times, took a "surprisingly narrow view."

The United States, commented the Lucknow Herald, "has taken over seriously the white man's burden from Britain and is constantly rattling her sword."

Eleven Tanks Knocked Off By New Guns

Heavy Air Attacks Hamper Enemy, Reds Lose 50 Planes

TOKYO, July 20 — (CP)—American and North Korean troops tonight were engaged in fierce fighting around Taejon and some field dispatches said the key rail and highway junction has been abandoned by its defenders.

Reuters said the last Americans were ordered out of the blazing city at dusk after a day of street fighting in which they took a heavy toll of invading tanks. A Communist drive farther west also was reported making progress.

A spokesman at United States military headquarters in Korea said the army had lost touch with Gen. William F. Dean, commander of the U.S. 24th division fighting at Taejon, but added: "That does not mean he is missing."

Knock Out 11 Tanks

U.S. troops were credited with knocking out at least 11 of the score or more of tanks which the North Koreans flung against Taejon, which had served as provisional capital of South Korea since the fall of Seoul.

Using a new 3.5 rocket gun capable of piercing the heavy North Korean armor, the Americans clung to the city stubbornly. An American fighter pilot back from a mission to the area described it as "burning like hell."

The Communist attack on Taejon began before dawn Thursday. Twenty tanks lumbered out of the darkness, many with infantry perched on their sides.

Bazookas checked the advance, but the ground troops came on. Many of them, dressed as civilians, sneaked into Taejon behind the Americans and began a grim game of hide-and-seek through the rough, unpaved alleys among tightly-shuttered shops and houses.

Still Holding

Official reports from U.S. Eighth Army headquarters in Korea said the 24th Division still held Taejon at the end of a bitter day of fighting.

A spokesman also said North Korean forces of unknown strength were reported in Chonju early Thursday in a drive south along the western side of the Korean Peninsula. American planes attacked Chongju and Kumje. This indicated that Kumje also was in the enemy hands.

The Chongju-Kumje area is about 40 air miles southwest of fallen Taejon.

43 Moved Safely In Hospital Fire

ST. CATHARINES, July 20 — (CP).—Forty-three elderly men and women were taken to safety when fire broke out Wednesday in Bellevue Lodge Convalescent Hospital.

Cause of the blaze was not immediately determined. The operator, William Hamilton, suggested, however, that it started from unauthorized burning of waste in a basement furnace.

Firemen brought the blaze under control within an hour. They said damage was confined to two rooms on the second floor of the two-storey stucco building.

The 43 patients, many bedridden, were not told of the fire; they simply were "going out on the lawn."

Attendants carried some out on stretchers and mattresses, others were able to walk.

Members of the Victorian Order of Nurses and the St. John Ambulance Corps helped make the patients comfortable on the lawn. Passing truck drivers stopped to help with bedding.

Twelve of the most seriously ill patients were taken to St. Catharines General Hospital Mayor Richard Robertson arranged with officials of Ridley College to house the rest temporarily in Ridley's old infirmary building.

"YOU SHOULD STAY CLOSER TO HOME," warned Desk Sgt. Gordon Puffer to weeping little Howard Mills, 3, and his dejected pal when they were picked up four blocks from home, 186 Edinburgh St., and brought to the Police Station for identification and return. Const. Reginald McMillan (rear), was detailed to console the pair and perform not a little tear wiping. They were returned home after "being held" for about one hour.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Recruiting Drive For Pilots Canada-Wide

OTTAWA, July 20 (CP)—The armed forces today launched a big new recruiting drive for 6,000 to 8,000 men who will, among other things, open the way for expansion of regular air fighter strength to at least four times its present level.

These factors shaped up as defence headquarters waded into a new phase based on the perils emerging from Korea:

1. The recruiting drive will still adhere to the present tough admission standards but consideration is being given to lowering them if they prevent enough men coming in. In some fields—fighter pilots, for instance—it would be pointless to lower the standards because men below them probably couldn't qualify.

2. Shortage of candidates qualified to be fighter pilots is one of the bars to a fighter expansion that should see the number of regular squadrons raised from two to five next year. Five squadrons, an authoritative source said, is not the limit. Eight would quadruple the present setup and this is considered likely.

Toss 15 Hours On Lake After Anchor Breaks

TURKEY POINT, Ont., July 20— (CP)—Three men reached shore today near this Simcoe district centre after 15 hours in a lashing Lake Erie storm which they described as "the most terrifying" experience they had ever had.

The men, Joseph Small, 52, of Brantford, and William Hickman, 45, and David Hilton, 43, both of Simcoe, drifted nine miles after the anchor broke loose as they attempted to start the outboard motor of their 15-foot boat.

All were suffering from exposure when they drifted ashore near a fisherman's cabin west of here.

Canada To Increase Forces Will Take 8,000 More Men

OTTAWA, July 20—(CP)—The Korean war has blown the lid off Canada's defence costs, already at an all-time peacetime high. Following a Cabinet meeting Wednesday, the Government authorized an immediate, wide program that will add millions to the defence budget. And there is no indication that the program of accelerated Canadian defence effort—adding possibly 8,000 men to the regular forces, doubling the production rate of fighter planes and providing additional aid to the United Nations in Korea—represents the end of Canadian military preparations.

However, one significant phrase in a statement issued Wednesday by Prime Minister St. Laurent was that "grave situations may lie ahead."

The statement, on the heels of the $10,000,000,000 United States mobilization program, said:

1. Canada will not send any ground troops to Korea "at this stage."

Submitted to Parliament

2. The government will immediately consider Canadian participation in any United Nations plan to recruit an international force for the Far East War. Such a step — the proposal is under study at Lake Success—would be submitted to Parliament for approval of any Canadian participation.

3. The RCAF's No. 426 Transport Squadron, based at Montreal and equipped with four-engined North Stars, will join in the US air lift for Korea but will not take part in the actual fighting.

4. All three forces are to ignore the present manpower ceilings and bring their regular units to fighting strength. Present strength is about 47,000 men.

No Estimate of Cost

No official estimate of the cost of the program has been given. Senior officials said Wednesday night that it may take weeks to determine it. However, some officials indicated it may lift Canada's record defence budget for this year from the $425,000,000 approved by Parliament to more than $500,000,000.

Italian Woman Has Quads Second Set In Two Years

CANTANZARO, Italy, July 20 (Reuters)—Marianna Liol, 32-year-old Italian peasant's wife, gave birth here Wednesday to her second set of quadruplets in two years.

All boys, the quads were born in the seventh month of pregnancy. The doctor in charge of Cantanzaro Hospital said mother and babies were "doing splendidly."

Mrs. Liol sighed resignedly when the hospital's obstetrician told her she was the mother of a second set of quads. She murmured, "more work for us."

She works beside her husband all day in the fields in the hard plains of Calabria, in the extreme south of Italy, as well as tending house, husband and children.

The father, Domenico Liol, a gnarled, prematurely-aged man of 40, declared: "Never again."

"How can we live? Can we afford to feed 10 mouths on the money I make?"

The Calabrian peasants, when they have work, earn about 500 lire a day. (At official rates there are 650 lire to the dollar.) Sometimes they work only a few months in the year.

Dr. Giovanni Romaniello, the hospital obstetrician, said he expected the four boys to live, despite their premature birth.

The first set of quads, two boys and two girls now aged two, greeted the announcement of the arrival of a crowd of small brothers with notable lack of enthusiasm.

They were reported to be as healthy as the children of poverty-stricken peasants can be—in other words, delicate when young but strengthening as they grow older.

Higher Taxes Likely For Canada

Say Present Surplus To Cover Cost Of Destroyers For UN

OTTAWA, July 20— (CP—Gradual developmetn of the Cainadian war potential and expansion of contributions of men and materials to the war in Korea will mean that Canadians can look forward to increased taxation in the next fiscal year as a "real possibility," a Government official said today.

A Cabinet source said no special, fall session of Parliament is planned to study the expanded defence program. He saiad the lid has been taken off defence spending and the international situation ahead will largely determien the amount of supplementary estimates to confront Parliament when it seassembles.

The forecast of raising funds to defray an expansion of defence costs through increased taxation rather than through the floating of a war loan is in line with the government's "pay - as-you-go" policy, the official said.

He estimated that the cost of sending the three destroyers and eight North Stars, Canada's contribution thus far to the Korean battle, will not be sufficiently high to plunge the Government's current fiscal budget into a deficit.

To Absorb Costs

Finance Minister Abbott had forecast a $20,000,000 surplus and the official said "this amount would be sufficient to absorb costs of sending the planes and ships to Korea."

But he believed it would not be sufficient to meet costs of additional recruiting among the three services, additional armaments production and the possibility of enlarged direct Korean contributions.

From other quarters, it was learned that discussions to expand Canada's arsenals production now are going on.

If and when Canada requires tanks in addition to those she already owns, it is expected they will be obtained from the United States.

Woman Cabbie Left Tied To Tree

HUNTSVILLE, July 20 (CP)—Bound to a tree after her passenger produced a gun on a lonely road, Mrs. Roy Phillips, driver of her husband's taxi, was robbed of $25 Wednesday night.

Mrs. Phillips, who freed herself and telephoned police, said a young man she had never seen before ordered a cab for a five-mile trip. In the country, he ordered her to drive along a side road and stop. A confederate appeared and the two bound and robbed her.

One of the men drove away in the taxi, the other in a car parked nearby. The Phillips car was later found intact on a main highway near here.

Britain To Import Additional Newsprint

LONDON, July 20 (Reuters)—Britain is to import an additional 37,500 tons of newsprint from Canada during the second half of 1951, Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, announced today in parliament.

This provided the Newsprint Supply Company, voluntary organization representing the newspapers, can place the necessary contrats for delivery before the end of that year, Wilson added.

Dollars would be made available for the amount.

The announcement followed by less than 48 hours a House of Commons debate in which the government was attacked by the opposition on the question of Britain's present critical newsprint shortage.

Begin Study Of Europe's Dollar Crisis

Top Economic Men Being Briefed By Canadian Envoy

OTTAWA, July 20—(CP)—Government officials who have been giving more and more attention to Korean crisis were called together suddenly Wednesday to plunge into a fresh study of the European dollar problems expected to develop when Marshall plan aid ends in 1952.

Almost every top flight economic and trade official in the government's service gathered late Wednesday on the heels of a cabinet meeting to be briefed on various plans offered by European nations to meet the problems.

At the meeting were J. E. Coyne, deputy governor of the Bank of Canada; J. G. Taggart, deputy minister of agriculture; David Sim, deputy minister of revenue; Kenneth Taylor, assistant deputy minister of finance; J. J. Deutsch, international economic director in the Finance Department; T. N. Beupre, assistant to Deputy Trade Minister Max Mackenzie, and a host of others.

Briefing the group was Sydney D. Pierce, Canada's roving economic ambassador, who represented this country for the first time at a recent council meeting of the Organization for European Economic Operations.

No Statement

Mr. Pierce, who also is assistant deputy trade minister and responsible for stockpiling of strategic defense materials, made he statement on his return from the Paris OEEC meeting. However, it was learned that he brought with him at least four major proposals for meeting the 1952 situation.

These proposals, it was understood, would be studied by working groups of Canadian economic and trade experts and it is hoped that out of these studies will emerge one composite scheme which Canada may recommend to the OEEC executive.

Details of the scheme were not disclosed, but it was understood that two of them had been submitted to OEEC by France, a third by Italy and a fourth by the Netherlands.

Prices Continue Rise For Third Session

TORONTO, July 20 — (CP) — Prices continued their steady upward swing for the third straight session at the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Key industrial stocks gained strongly from fractions to almost two points. Volume for the first three hours was 1,027,000.

Winnipeg Electric held the spotlight on the industrial board, suddenly jumping $6 to $37.50. Dominion Stores rose 1¼ at 40¼ on news of a proposed four-for-one stock split. Others ahead included CPR, Consolidated Paper, Hiram Walker's and Imperial Oil.

Base metals also forged ahead as steady buying boosted Noranda, Hudson Bay and International Smelters. Noranda added 1¼ at 66¾. East Sullivan, a feature of recent sessions, rose 20 cents to $6.70.

The Western Oil advance was slow and steady. Calgary and Edmonton gained 30 cents at $7.10 and Home Oil and Royalite gained fractions.

Leading Junior Gold Producers chalked up advances ranging to 20 cents in comparatively dull dealings.

Mr. Thomson announced his decision at a Liberal picnic at Prequ'ile Point, near here. Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver announced last year that he was resigning the position.

Eleven Tanks

A South Korean army spokesman said the enemy entered Yechon on the central front today but later was driven out with 400 casualties.

Yechon is between Hamchang and Andong.

Reuters said the withdrawal was completed when the 34th Regiment of the 24th Division left the city.

But the latest Red victory was costly.

Communist armor suffered heavily as the Americans, aided by a new anti-tank weapon, knocked out at least eight tanks. The Allied air force punished the North Koreans both on the ground and in the air. At least 50 Red planes were destroyed by Allied aircraft in the last two days.

Optimistic Note

A note of optimism was sounded by Gen. MacArthur, United Nations commander. He said the invaders already have lost their "one great chance" for victory by failing to knock out South Korea before U.S. forces blunted their drive.

"Our hold upon the southern part of Korea represents a secure base," MacArthur said. "We are there to stay."

The Red drive on Taejon, deserted former South Korean provisional capital, was the first attack in force from their dearly-won ground south of the Kum River.

Field dispatches said the first seven Red tanks rumbling toward Taejon were picked off one after another by new ground-fired rockets. The 3.5-inchers are a recoil-less weapon brought into action for the first time.

Later, an eighth enemy tank was reported knocked out.

There was no indication how many tanks the invaders had got across the Kum.

Planes Do Part

But at least four more rolled on Taejon. Four American jet planes wrecked two of these with rockets and drove the others to cover. American artillery and planes concentrated fire on them.

Pilots reported four big fires burning in Taejon shortly after noon. They apparently were caused by shells lobbed into the city. AP correspondent Leif Erickson said some Red artillery appeared to be southwest of Taejon. This would mean the Reds have cut deep on the west flank.

As the Reds lashed at Taejon, two reinforcing American divisions—the First Cavalry (mechanized) and the 25th Infantry—moved into position for expected new Red pushes toward the southeast tip of Korea.

But the first phase of the Korean campaign is over, MacArthur said in a special communique.

"We are now in Korea in force, and with God's help we are there to stay until the constitutional authority of the republic (of Korea) is fully restored," he said.

Bitter Fighting

An operational communique reported South Korean troops had attacked Reds in the vicinity of Yongdok on the east coast, about 25 miles north of Pohang. The First Cavalry Division landed at Pohang two days ago.

Front dispatches said Yongdok had fallen to the Communists after several days of bitter fighting.

The communique said South Korean marines were fighting near Kunsan, on the west coast 45 miles southwest of Taejon. An earlier communique said Red troops had seized Iri, 12 miles inland.

In the air war Allied planes caught the North Korean air force crawling back to airfields long vacant. In the last three days the Allies destroyed 47 Communist planes on the ground and three in the air. The toll may be higher.

(Washington reported an even higher Red loss. The U.S. defence department said 60 North Korean planes were destroyed Tuesday alone.)

All but three of the 50 Red planes that Far East air forces said were knocked out Tuesday and Wednesday were caught on the ground at fields that had been deserted for days. There was no explanation of the sudden reappearance of enemy planes.

Russia Insists On Red China

By EDDY GILMORE.

MOSCOW, July 20 (AP). — Russia said today that Anglo-American demands for withdrawal of North Korean forces to the 38th Parallel should be discussed by the United Nations Security Council, presumably with Communist China as a Council mmeber.

This position was outlined in a communique — published in all Moscow morning newspapers — summarizing recent talks between British Ambassador Sir David Kelly and Andrei Gromyko, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister.

The Moscow press made no immediate editorial comment on either the exchange with Britain or the previous exchange of notes between Generalissimo Stalin and India's Prime Minister Nehru.

The Russian position as outlined in the Kelly-Gromyko talks differed from that outlined in Stalin's note to Nehru only in the mention of the proposed North Korean withdrawal.

(In London, a Foreign Office spokesman accused Russia of giving an erroneous impression of the Anglo-Soviet peace talks.

(The spokesman said he could not give more details. He indicated that the Tass statement tended to give the impression that Britain was hamstrung by the UN resolution and therefore could do nothing constructive towards achieving a settlement.)

May Give More Planes To UN

OTTAWA, July 20 (CP) — A second group of Canadian transport planes soon may be switched to the trans-Atlantic airlift for Korea, government officials said today.

One RCAF transport squadron already has been assigned.

Agreement has been reached that it would be a logical move to turn Canadian Pacific Airlines planes now flying the Pacific over to the airlift that is ferrying men and materials to Japan.

This applies particularly to two four-engined planes which now fly a northerly route to the Far East. It also could apply to one that flies a southern route.

Grant McConachie, CPA president, has been here negotiating with government officials but, one source said, details still remain to be worked out. Among these is the question of who would pay for the planes, Canada or the United Nations.

Invoke Rationing If Necessary, Truman Warns

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP) —President Truman said Wednesday night he is ready to order price control and rationing in the United States "if prices should rise unduly because of excessive buying and speculation."

He spoke sharply of both practices, saying that scare buying is "foolish", and "selfish," and adding:

"Every business man who is trying to profiteer in time of national danger—every person who is selfishly trying to get more than his neighbor—is doing just exactly the thing that any enemy of this country would want him to do."

The President reported to the country on the Korean situation in a broadcast speech.

Raw Aggression

In acid language he referred to the attack on South Korea as 'an outright breach of the peace and a violation of the charter of the United Nations." It proves "beyond all doubt that the international Communist movement is willing to use armed invasion to conquer independent nations."

"It was an act of raw aggression, without a shadow of justification. I repeat—it was an act of raw aggression."

Besides making clear his belief that "international Communism" must bear responsibility for the Korean crisis, Truman had sharp words for Russia's attitude toward the affair.

Moscow has refused an American request that it use its influence with the North Koreans to halt the attack, the President said

"The Soviet government has said many times that it wants peace in the world, but its attitude toward this act of aggression against the republic of Korea is an indirect contradiction of its statements."

Attlee Rejects

sented at the United Nations Security Council on the Korean issue, Britain decided to establish direct contact with Russia in an effort to obtain her co-operation for a peaceful settlement.

Andrei Gromyko, Soviet deputy foreign minister, had told the British ambassador in Moscow, Sir David Kelly, that the Soviet government also wished for a peaceful settlement and asked if the ambassador had any proposition to make.

Kelly replied it was the British government's wish that Russia use her influence with the North Koreans to stop bloodshed.

Ask Withdrawal

Attlee said that a further meeting with Gromyko July 11 Kelly said the British government's preliminary suggestion was that the forces seeking peace should join together to bring about the cessation of hostilities and the withdrawal of the North Korean forces beyond the 38th parallel without concerning themselves for the moment with other disputes.

Kelly said hostilities were due to the North Koreans having crossed the 38th parallel. The best suggestion which the British government could make was to urge the Soviet government to add its efforts to those of other U.N. members by using their influence with the North Koreans.

The ambassador was again requested to call on Gromyko July 17.

Gromyko said that, in the opinion of the Soviet government the best means for a peaceful settlement of the Korean question was to convene the Security Council with the indispensable participation of the Chinese People's Government.

Kelly said that this question was separate from that of the actual situation, which was that forces representing 53 United Nations were being attacked in South Korea.

Power Steering For Automobiles Now Only About One Year Away

By DAVID WILKIE.

DETROIT — (AP). — Power steering for passenger automobiles may sound a bit fantastic, but it's on the way.

The nation's car makers are not ready to admit it, but experiments with a mechanical aid for steering passenger cars already are well advanced.

It will be expensive when it first appears. It probably will cost as much as an automatic transmission. For that reason it undoubtedly will be introduced first on higher priced vehicles where an "extra" or two are not so difficult to sell.

Power steering already is used on some earth-moving giants of the motor vehicle family that have huge tires and otherwise require great effort to handle. When the principle has been applied to the conventional type passenger automobile just about the last strictly human control in handling a car will have disappeared.

If you are disposed to ridicule the idea, think how the automobile itself, then the mechanical or "self" starter, hydraulic brakes automatic transmissions and mechanical window lifts were scoffed at when they first were proposed.

Intended to Help

The power steering devices, of course, are not designed to eliminate all effort by the driver; they are intended to help him. It has been suggested in some quarters that the device would be of immeasurable value in controlling the car in case of a tire blowout. Also it would help the little woman park the car with big, low pressure tires.

As has been the experience with many other mechanical advances in motor vehicles, an initial problem in development of the steering device reportedly has been elimination of the noise of operation. But this is being overcome.

So, too, is the problem of finding the right spot for it under the hood alongside rather wide engine blocks.

In Year or So

The newest of the mechanical aids to car operation may not be announced for adaptation to 1951 model cars, but informed sources say it isn't much farther away than that.

Some engineers attending the Society of Automotive Engineers' meeting at French Lick, Ind., this week informally expressed the conviction that the V-8 type of power plant eventually will replace all so-called "in line" engines. The argument for the V-8 type is that it functions more smoothly and requires less space under the hood. General Motors, Oldsmobile Division, is the most recent to swing to this type of power plant. Its "rocket" engine, introduced with the 1950 models has been described as one of the most efficient of the V-8 type.

Like Compactness

Also apparently not to be dismissed too definitely is the possibility of eventual adaptation of a gas turbine power plant to the standard-type passenger automobile. Boeing Aircraft Co., which has designed one of these engines for the Navy's Bureau of Ships, had one of them on display at French Lick. Car engineers were impressed with the compactness and light weight of the unit.

The model shown the auto engineers weighs only 202 pounds, is 38½ inches long, slightly over 22 inches high, and 22.2 inches wide. It develops 175 horsepower, using diesel oil, gasoline or kerosene.

The Rover Motor Co. of Birmingham, England, has built a test car powered with a gas turbine, and Boeing has tested a truck with its version of the same unit. It is understood the engine used in the two vehicles are virtually the same. American engineers, however, have said much remains to be done in refining the gas turbine before it successfully can be adapted to the everyday passenger automobile.

Windsor Hit By Bad Storm

WINDSOR, July 20—(CP)—The tag ends of two spent tornadoes hit this border area Wednesday night, bringing winds and heavy rain for a seven-hour period.

No heavy property damage was reported, but power lines were broken in many places when tree branches were blown against them. Power failures affected about one-fifth of the city, with seven primary high-tension lines down.

Grace Hospital was lighted for about two hours by its own generating system.

Most of the city's power was restored by this morning.

The winds and rain storms hit the Ohio towns of Lima and Van Wert late yesterday, injuring at least 38 persons.

The weather office in Windsor said 1½ inches of rain fell during a seven-hour period.

Defence Workers Screened, Some Switched

TORONTO, July 20 (CP) — A Toronto paper says today that several employees of a Toronto factory working on defence contracts have been taken off their jobs after security screenings.

In a newspage story, it says that suspected Communists and Communist sympathizers are being "weeded out of jobs involving military secrecy."

The newspaper said it has learned that the names of all employees working on secret defence orders are turned over to the Canadian Commercial Corporation, a government agency which places defence contracts. The CCC turned the names over to the RCMP for investigation.

The story did not say how many employees were released or which factory was involved.

It did say there have been screenings at the plant of A V. Roe Company of suburban Malton which is making jet fighters for the RCAF and is working on jet engines for the RAF.

The story said that the CCC preferred that employees classified as doubtful security risks should be transferred to other jobs rather than dismissed.

Screenings Not New

An Ottawa high RCMP official declined comment on the newspaper story except to say it was a "well known fact" the force has been carrying out security screenings in various government and associated departments

It has been known for some time that the RCMP has been conducting security screening of employees of private companies working on contracts for classified—secret—equipment. This fact has been brought out several times during the recent session of parliament.

St. Louis Has Stopped Negro Segregation

ST. LOUIS, July 20 — (AP) — St. Louis stopped segregating Negroes and whites in its public swimming pools Wednesday but instituted a new policy of sex segregation.

Negroes and whites now are permitted to use the pools together. Boys and girls, however, cannot swim at the same time

A small crowd of white persons objected noisily when several Negroes went swimming at the city's fairgrounds pool. Three white boys were arrested. Later about 50 whites chased a Negro woman and a small boy but were dispersed by police.

The pool was opened to Negroes under a federal court order.

U.S. Calm Preparedness

The United States is not mobilized for war. It is not on a war-footing. President Truman's message to Congress made that clear. It is on a much saner and better basis in the present Korean circumstances: it is in a state of preparedness. Mobilization is the last call before a large war. It would be unseemly of a giant like the U.S.A. to come to that final stage of total war when it is grappling in a theoretical police raid under U.N. sponsorship with a comparative pygmy. A sense of proportion has been maintained by the President and his advisors. To disrupt the whole American economy with vast conscription edicts, price controls and industrial priorities now, as things are and the immediate future appears, would have been foolish.

Did the U.S.S.R. wind itself up for a national wallop when it sent soldiers and airmen to Spain? Did Britain armourplate the entire ship of state in the various "police" actions it took in various parts of the world during the Victorian era when she was watch-dog of the world? It is foolish to send a boy on a man's errand; on the other hand, it is ridiculously wasteful to send a man on a boy's errand.

* * *

This is not to argue that Korea is an affair of little consequence. On the contrary, as President Truman said in his Message, Korea has "a significance which cannot be over-estimated." It is the meaning of the Red action, its significance as policy, which cannot be overestimated. The military facts and necessities can be. Thus far Korea is a minor military show, and, it would seem now, will continue so to be, even if it is followed by other minor but greatly significant Red assaults, for instance, in Greece.

The Spanish Civil War was not a world war, but it was of world significance. The U.S.A. is now doing what Russia did when it had troops in Spain: putting the home front and defence mechanisms in a state of active preparedness, a condition in which the U.S.S.R. has remained in this shocking post-war decade. U.S. preparedness is preparedness out of immense strength, which it will not, and should not, dissipate in one Asiatic peninsula.

* * *

President Truman's reasonable, calm assessment of the situation and its requirements, and the sense of proportion he has shown, should be an example to Canadians and some Canadian newspapers who have been crying havoc and would put Canada on a war basis and send Canadian troops to Korea.

Getting At The Cause

Dr. F. H. C. Baugh, the medical superintendent of Homewood Sanitarium, made some interesting remarks about mental illness in a speech which he delivered in Guelph on Tuesday. For one thing, he suggested that breast-fed infants grow up to be more mentally stable than those who are fed from other sources. And he said: "Instead of crying for more hospitals we should be driving toward finding the causes (of mental illness); we are too inclined to pay too much attention to symptoms instead of getting at the root of the trouble." We have no opinion to offer on the value of breast-feeding, but we are in complete agreement with Dr. Baugh in his insistence on the necessity for a clearer perception of what causes mental disease.

It is likely, of course, that there are more people in our hospitals for mental patients today than there were twenty years ago because we recognize mental disease more readily than used to be the case. Further, people are losing some of their false shame about this kind of illness, and instead of doing everything in their power to disguise the fact that a relative is unbalanced, they face the fact and seek proper treatment. It has not yet been proven that there is any more insanity today than there was in 1900; it is obvious, however, that we recognize insanity more readily and treat it more intelligently. But we still have a long way to go.

Preventive measures which would reduce the occurrence of insanity are not easily agreed upon. An objective consideration of our society with a view to preventing insanity is, at present, an impossibility. There are too many sacred cows in our society, too many cherished but unsound beliefs, too many vested interests which might be harmed. In our life today one man's religion is another man's superstition, and one man's superstition is another man's science; beliefs and practices relating to sex range from comparative enlightenment to the woolliest of bugaboos. And in our towns, cities and rural areas there are social groups living well-balanced lives side by side with pockets of the wildest and most dangerous kinds of psychosis. To attempt to investigate such a hornet's nest as modern civilized society to find out what brings about mental illness is work for generations of devoted, wise and highly-trained men and women.

Nevertheless, a beginning must be made some time. Every attack upon the causes of mental derangement will bring, we venture to say, a shriek of protest from some affected group or interest, for there is no nonsense so patent or so malign that a few people do not espouse it. But Dr. Baugh is right; a beginning must be made, and the sooner the better.

Evangeline Booth

General Evangeline Booth, retired head of the Salvation Army organization who died on Monday at the age of 84, was a frail but indomitable woman with much of the courage and fiery faith of her father "General" William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army.

Margot, Countess of Oxford and Asquith, tells in her autobiography of an encounter with General Booth when she was a young lady. Late for her train, she hurtled into the first available compartment. A "beautiful old man in a roomy blue overcoat" sat reading near the window. The gay young socialite apologized for intruding. The old gentleman asked if it would have been serious had she missed the train. What was she going to do? She was going to try out horses. He (very deliberately): "I am going to save souls." He then told her his name, lectured her on morality and Christianity, and had her down on her knees in the railway carriage before the journey had ended. Evangeline Booth wrote Hitler in 1939, when he had ordered the Salvation Army's activities in Germany to be limited, that he was a "dunce or a fool." The order was rescinded.

Evangeline Booth was born in 1866, one year after William Booth began to hold meetings for preaching in the streets of London. She was an evangelist and worker with the movement from its derided, maligned beginnings to its present respected status and world-wide scope. She was in Canada for nine years (from 1893) and carried on Army's work in the north-west, during the Klondike gold rush. She became head of the Salvation Army in the U.S.A. in 1904 and continued in the post for thirty years, until named to command the entire Army. She retired from that leadership upon the outbreak of the recent war.

With the death of General Evangeline Booth, the dynastic Booth influence over the Salvation Army passes. She was a remarkable woman, a skilful organizer, an eloquent speaker, and, remarkably, her life spanned the history of the Salvation Army to its present achievement.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Plunging necklines will reveal the spine this Fall, we read. That's not a plunge, but a backward dive.

We are sick of hearing that "easy come, easy go" nonsense about money. "Hard come, easy go" fits our experience.

President Truman says that the U.S.A. will have plenty to eat for a long time, war or no war. True, but wars have a dreadful effect on the appetite.

Of the two men who escaped from the hospital for the criminally insane at Penetanguishene, one was making his fifth get-away. Let's see, wasn't it Polonius who said—

Though this be madness, yet there is method in't.

Russia is not the only country to cover itself with glory by claiming "firsts" on a great invention. The latest bulletin of the Department of External Affairs of Eire informs us that the Renaissance began in Ireland "some seven hundred years before it began in Italy."

For the first six months of 1950 figures show a drop of 49 deaths in the record of traffic accidents, as against the figures for 1949. Nevertheless 275 people were killed during those months, and who can say how many of them might not be living now if a little more discretion had been shown, if there had been greater attention to mechanical details of cars, and if the human passion for pushing ahead of other people had been held in check.

Demand For Economy Must Come From The People

from the Kingston Whig-Standard

THE Canadian Chamber of Commerce has been a consistent leader in pleading for economy and efficiency in Federal Government service, and it has distributed a considerable amount of literature on the subject. Of genuine service to the public, we think, was its summary of main items culled from a comparative table of the Department of Finance. Most people lack either time, inclination or ability to do this for themselves, but when it is done and presented to them, many are able to appreciate it. By adding three zeros to each of the totals given below, the correct figures in round millions or hundreds of thousands are reached. These are given in the Chamber's summary as follows:

	1950-51 $	1949-50 $	1938-39 $
Civil Salaries and Wages	313,203	315,158	77,101

General Health Grants	25,000	33,200	....

THESE figures may, as the Chamber claims, support its contention that a Royal Commission should be established to make a thorough-going study of Federal expenditures. Royal Commissions have made valuable contributions to government in this country on many occasions. We contend, however, that the most effective method of reducing government spending, in a time of prosperity such as the present, is public demand. In this connection, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce also offers an illuminating report which deserves wide publicity.

THE Psychological Corporation of New York recently conducted a questionnaire among a large representative group of people, as follows:

Question 1: "There is a bill in Congress which would give every war veteran a pension of $90 a month at age 65. Do you approve or disapprove of this plan?"

51% of those questioned approved; the rest disapproved or didn't know.

Question 2: (Asked only of those approving or "Don't Know" in the first question). "It is estimated that these pensions would cost about six billion dollars a year. If so, would you approve?"

The number of those approving shrank to 43%.

Question 3: (Asked of those approving or "Don't Know" in question 2). "This six billion dollars would mean higher taxes for everyone. In view of this, would you approve?"

A further 5% came off, leaving only 38% approving.

Question 4: (Asked of those approving or "Don't Know" in Question 3). "It is estimated that these pensions would cost a family an average of $150 to $200 a year. In that case, would you approve?"

The approvals thereupon dropped to 28% —Quite a change from the original 51%.

IN that, we think, is a lesson for all who would let the taxpayer know the truth—and for the taxpayer. If every individual were told how much any new government project would cost him or her—in income tax, sales tax, or any form of tax—every individual would see the expenditure in a different light. Unless that is done, the findings of a Royal Commission would not help the Federal Government much. The Commission might recommend wisely—but it would not be faced with the difficult task of balancing public demand for services against possible revenue sources.

Could Isolate B.C.

(Vancouver News-Herald)

The possibility of war makes one wonder about the condition of communication and transport lines in British Columbia.

Greater Vancouver, the industrial and commercial heart of B.C., has only one highway connecting it with the rest of Canada and the United States. If bombs knocked out Patullo bridge and Mission bridge, where would our motor connection be with Seattle, the interior of B.C. or the other provinces?

But They Have To Eat!

(St. John's Telegram)

Despite the fact that Newfoundland is not advertising her charms, mainland Canadian and American tourists are beginning to pour in.

And although we haven't got a lot of roads or hotels to offer them at the moment, we can keep them coming until such time as the tourist development program gets under way.

How? It's simple really. We merely have to welcome the visitors with a smile, and make them feel we are glad to have them here, as indeed we are.

STRATEGY OF THE NORTH PACIFIC

By Bip Parés

Soviet post-war expansion, at the expense of China, Manchuria, and Japan, has changed the geopolitical and economic aspect of the whole Far East, including the strategic defence of nations bordering the Pacific Ocean.

The coast of Asia, from the Arctic to the Himalayas is now Communist-controlled, except for the Achilles heel of South Korea. The Soviet Far East war potential has been increased by air and submarine bases on Sakhalin and the Kurile Islands, naval installations at Port Arthur, and the development of ship-building and marine industries on the Amur River.

North American defence is based in the Pacific on a line that connects the Philippines, Ryukyu Islands, Japan, Aleutians, and Alaska. Other Pacific islands previously mandated to Japan are also under United States jurisdiction. A year ago American troops evacuated South Korea and this area is now the scene of civil war, directly threatened by Soviet-sponsored communism, which, unless checked, might become a threat to the Japanese Islands.

Should the conflict on parallel 38 develop into wider hostilities, United States air forces based in Japan could stem at source Soviet sea and air attack on the American continent. But loss to the United States of an Asiatic foothold would mean withdrawal to Alaska and the Aleutians, thus losing also the advantages of short-range tactics and a possible outflanking movement northwards from Japan.

The map shows the strategic importance, both to the United States and the U.S.S.R., of Japan and South Korea.

Fighting For Blueberry Pie Isn't Enough

(Cleveland Plain Dealer)

HANSON W. Baldwin's article in the Saturday Evening Post will have a sobering effect upon all Americans who read it. It will make a lot of people hopping mad. It is an article everyone should read because it deflates our national ego and puts us on the humble path which may lead to a correction of a national misconception before it is too late.

Baldwin states flatly that "we are not by any means the best soldiers in the world." He states flatly: "Russian tanks not only outrange our own but they are better armored."

The average American reaction will be: "Who in hell is Hanson Baldwin?" He happens to be a gentleman who has the reputation for knowing what he is talking about. He was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1924 and after considerable service became a newspaper writer. He has been military editor of the New York Times for many years.

The thought might occur that this is a poor time to be recording our deficiencies. We cannot view it in this light. Better to know the worst at once and start doing something about it, than to continue living in a fool's paradise.

CONSIDER some of Baldwin's statements: "In the past war it was our enemies who chiefly exhibited the steadfastness of the Greeks. The Japanese fought to the death no matter how hopeless the struggle....The Germans—and often the Russians—gave repeated demonstrations of the will to fight, even against great odds. Our own forces—with some outstanding exceptions — rarely showed such fanatical determination.

"Perhaps this deficiency in determination reflects the changing spirit of our nation—the substitution of easy living for a pioner psychology; the weakening virus of 'work less and make more'; the substitution of collective security for individual initiative."

Baldwin went on to point out that our tools of war have not always been the best. The best fighter plane in the Pacific at the start of the war was the Jap Zero, he said. The best fighter plane in the world at the end of the war was the German ME 262, the first jet fighter to see combat. The British developed the "pathfinder" technique of bombing, the first radar control system for fighter interception, and "a host of other firsts".

The Germans, Baldwin recounted, first used air-to-air rockets in combat and made significant aeronautical improvements.

"Throughout the war", he declared, "American armored forces in the European theatre fought against German tanks more powerful than ours. Constantly outgunned and outarmored and often outmanoeuvred, our 'tankers' won by superior numbers, not by superior quality. The German Panther and Tiger tanks were better than any armored vehicles we could bring against them... Russian World War II tanks, particularly the T-34 and the Josef Stalin, were a match for the German vehicles."

America, he said, lags today in tanks, self-propelled guns, tactical aircraft, armored personnel carriers for infantry, new aircraft carriers with improved equipment, field artillery rockets and anti-aircraft guns. His conclusion brings us all up short, as follows:

"Our past advantage in quantity, which has won two wars for us, is no longer a sure thing. Initially, at the start of any war, we are certain to be fighting against superior, not inferior numbers, against superior, not inferior, fire power.

"These facts must mean, therefore, a greater emphasis than ever before upon quality—quality of men—elite troops; quality of leaders—the finest generals; quality of weapons—the best tanks and guns and planes and ships. The America of tomorrow can no longer rely solely on mass production. Quantity without quality could be catastrophic."

NOTHING in the whole article is more to the point than Baldwin's suggestion that perhaps "this deficiency in determination... reflects the failure of our way of life to dramatize itself in terms of values worth fighting for—our boys fought for 'blueberry pie' and the right to go home. The Japs fought for a Shinto Valhalla—death in battle meant life in heaven. The Germans died the death of martyrdom — a Wagnerian end — to perpetuate 1,000 years of Hitlerian rule. The Russians fought for their motherland and died with some of the Oriental fatalism so peculiar to the eyes of the West.

"We followed no shining oriflamme. Most of our men fought because they were drafted and had to fight; they did no more than they had to do....They fought for no positive goal."

We should work on producing superior weapons at once, harder than we have ever worked on anything. And we should immediately give to the men who are carrying the load in Korea today a creed by which they can fight.

"Blueberry pie" isn't enough.

Bible Message

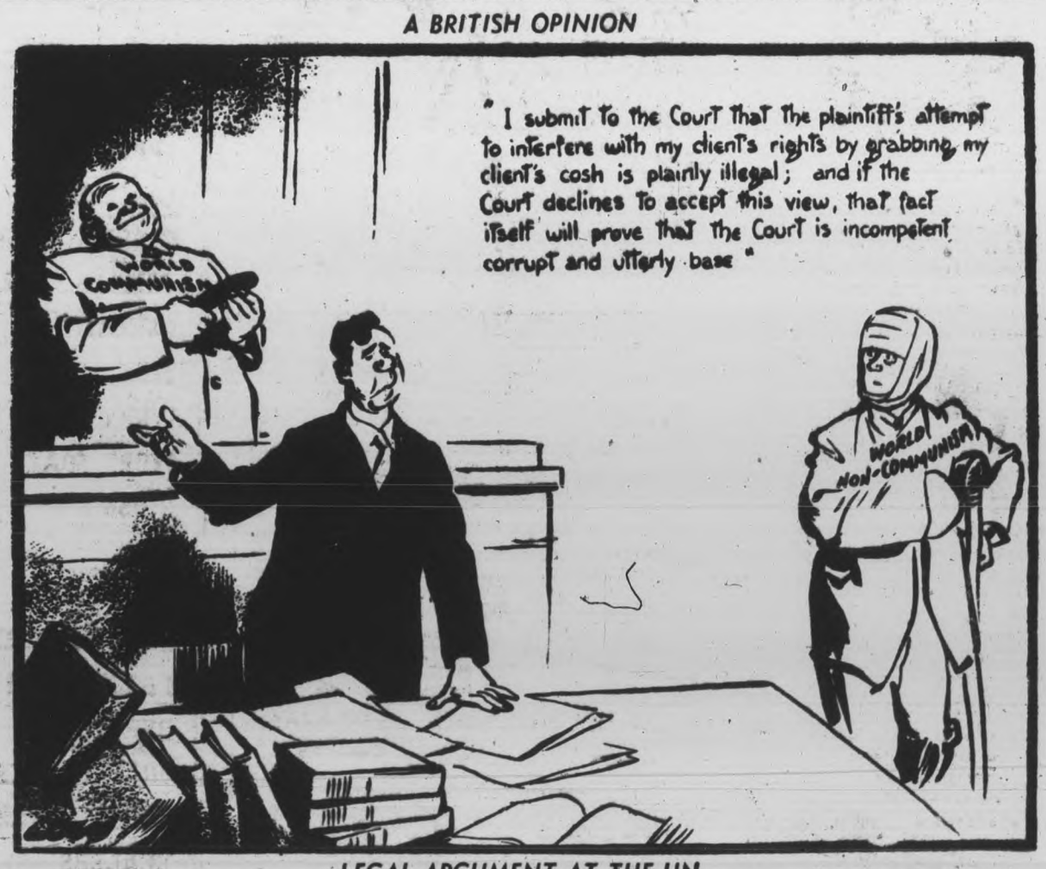
(From the Authorized Version)

Now a certain man was sick, named Lazarus, of Bethany, the town of Mary and her sister Martha....Therefore his sisters sent unto him, saying, Lord, behold, he whom thou lovest is sick....Then when Jesus came, he found that he had lain in the grave four days already....Then said Martha unto Jesus, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died. But I know, that even now, whatsoever thou wilt ask of God, God will give it thee.

Jesus saith unto her, Thy brother shall rise again...Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lifted up his eyes, and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me. And I knew that thou hearest me always: but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me. And when he thus had spoken, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth.

And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with grave clothes: and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, Loose him, and let him go. (John 11: 1, 3, 17, 21-23, 41, 44.)

A BRITISH OPINION



LEGAL ARGUMENT AT THE UN

Britons Lead Reading Of Newspapers

PARIS, July 20 (Reuters). — Britons lead the world in newspaper reading with 570 newspapers sold for every 1,000 inhabitants, says a United Nations report published here today.

The United States is second with 357 sold for every 1,000 inhabitants. The report, entitled World Communications, was compiled by the UN Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization at the request of the UN sub-commission on the freedom of information and of the press.

The report surveys facilities for providing the world by press, radio and film with information and ideas. It shows where action is needed to give better means of communication.

World daily circulation of newspapers is nearly 219,000,000, the report says. Twelve countries produce and consume more than 85 per cent of the world's newsprint with Canada the largest producer and the US the largest consumer.

In the radio field, the US leads the world with 566 radio sets to every 1,000 inhabitants. Britain is second with 227. The US also leads in television with 98 transmitters and 3,700,00 sets. Britain is second with two transmitters and 250,000 sets.

The assembly asked that the forthcoming dominion-provincial conference give its support to appointment of a royal commission to study manufacture, sale and distribution of liquor.

Other resolutions covered gambling, lotteries, and the decline in Sunday observance The assembly also said it will appeal to the justice department to proceed with preparation of a national bill of rights.

Westclox Girls Win Again Over Electrics

Westclox made it two straight over CGE in girls' softball semi-finals when they waltzed to a 12-2 victory last night at the Bowl. It was the second start of their three-out-of-five playoffs, the third one being Friday evening. The Clockers played heady ball, had good pitching and fielding, and they combed R. Boyce for 11 hits and eight runs in less than four frames. M. Selkirk gave up but five hits and fanned three. M. Owen finished in good style for CGE, this team being losers in the field.

I. Bullock topped Westclox at bat with four hits in six tries, and M. Batley led CGE with two for four. D. Jackson, E. Boyce, A. Portelance and B. Morrow were the best defensively on both sides, and the losers had a double play, M. Owen to B. McMahon to J. Hart, in the first inning. The game was just five minutes over an hour.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

It comes about that the local lacrossers are in second spot in the OLA senior "A" standing all by themselves. Now, this exalted position isn't too unusual for them as they've been in and out of the second slot recently, but it indicates the class of the Creighton crew in stiff competition. They can cement their grip for the week-end if they take the rugged Mimico Mounties here tomorrow night—and that'll be a battle—or they can slip to the third rung just as quickly. They're doing fine so far and Arn Dugan is pacing the league in scoring, the local young guy being deadly around the enemy net in recent weeks. The Friday fray should pack 'em in again.

Smarting under the shellacking they took at home Monday, the New Toronto ballsters will be seeking revenge o'er the Petes here Saturday aft. A Viaduct Major League baseball fixture with these two teams along with Toronto Aces and Oshawa in the thick of contention for playoff positions. Petes let Baumgardner—a lefthand hurler from Chicago—go recently but added Bud Harrison as a utility infielder. They have another southpaw flinger on hand, as well as Dick Golden at second, and the team is shaking down into a real contender now. Can't say who will hurl Saturday, but it promises to be a nifty diamond number.

Comes Football Already?

Gosh, is summer gone already? Manager Fred Dufton of the Cobourg Galloping Ghosts will start grid drills the second week of August, and meantime he has been checking all over the place to bolster his strong ORFU senior "B" squad, which is grouped once again with Orillia, Oshawa and Peterborough. Ed Haynes writes that Mike Meikle may return to the ghostly shrouds, though Ed doesn't put it just that way, being a Cobourg chap. Oshawa Red Raiders are working a hookup with Argos, which should bring them some good material. We hear the local executive hasn't been idle, so it looks like a keen football campaign comes autumn.

* * * * * *

Charlie Justice, classy colored pitcher for Tip Tops—the world's softball champs—writes that he and his catcher, Shelly Miley, will be here July 29. They're coming to play for Mutuals against Oshawa Pedlars, who will have Normie Bagnall on the mound. A grudge go betwixt Justice and Bagnall, who pitched for Levy's against Tip Tops a year ago in Toronto. Justice says Norm has been cracking wise that Charlie is afraid to pitch against him, and that's why he'll be on deck. Johnny Russelle may not be a Solomon, but neither is he nuts. Naturally, he jumped at the chance of getting Justice and Miley practically for free.

Clockers Are Clicking

Westclox femmes roll right merrily along. Defeated CGE 12-2 at the Bowl yester gloaming to make it two straight in semi-finals, a best-of-five series. They'll be hard to stop the rest of the way now, though upsets make sports interesting. Ashby's evened up their semi-finals at a game each by downing the Marines 16-9 in the other part of the twin bill, and that is an interesting sawoff scramble. So, the setup for Friday eve will be: Marines vs. Ashby's, and CGE vs. Westclox, the squads then laying off until Aug. 9, on account of so many folks here being on holidays the last week of July and the first week of August.

* * * * * *

Lot of young lacrosse players in action these days and nights around Peter's borough, and quite a few coaches busy under direction of Jerry Fitzgerald. A juvenile exhibition at 8.30 this e'en betwixt Huntsville and a local squad made up of: Hickson, Fitzgerald, O'Reilly, Daniels, Outwater, Farley, Brioux, Caravaggie, E. Crough, Seabrooke, Morrissey, LaPlante, B. Robinson, Fontaineand Galley. Such games are good practice for the boys who hope to be hitting into provincial playdowns next month. The other PMLA schedules go as listed the rest of the week. The juniors are slated for Fergus on Saturday night.

Springfield Trips Syracuse In 5-3 Blitz

By The Associated Press

Jim Prendergast, veteran lefthander, and his Syracuse Chiefs' teammates, are probably wondering today now a healthy Hank Edwards would perform.

Edwards was sent to Springfield Cubs recently by the parent Chicago Cubs on 24-hour option, although he was hitting .307, because he was plagued by injuries and illness.

Wednesday night Prendergast had beaten 3-1 on five hits going into the ninth when the roof caved in.

Prendergast issued his first walk of the game to Ransom Jackson and Edwards followed with a 360-foot home run to tie the score.

The Cubs proceeded to score two more runs on a walk, single and Dutch Mele's three-base error on Bob Talbot's long belt to right to win the game 5-3.

Turn Back Leaps

Meanwhile, the pace-setting Rochester Red Wings turned back Toronto Maple Leafs, 5-3, to protect their 2½-game lead over the runner-up Baltimore Orioles The Orioles swamped Jersey City Giants 8-1.

The Wings collected only five hits but one was a three-run homer by Ed Neitopski, back in the line-up after a three-week spell on the bench for not hitting.

Veteran Clyde King pitched Montreal Royals to an 8-2 triumph over Buffalo Bisons The Royals pounded the Buffalo pitchers for 15 hits with Rocky Bridges, Johnny Welaj and Toby Atwell leading the way with three each.

Woollens Victorious

Woollens walloped Canoe Co. 14-8 last night in a fastball fixture, ramming in six runs in the first inning, two each in the next two, three in the fourth and another in the eighth. The losers got five in the second, and one apiece in the third, fourth and seventh. Doris pitched steady ball, but for one loose inning in a rather interesting tussle. The teams:

Woollens—Weichorek cf, Jones rf, Schell 2b, Nokes c, Leonard 1b, Anderson ss, McMillan 3b, Clark lf, Doris p.

Canoe Co. — Robertson lf, Moore 3b, Brooks p, Ketcheson ss, G. Henry c, D. Henry rf, Bryan cf, Moffatt 1b, Robson 2b.

Southend Victors

Southenders came back strongly last night to beat East City peewees at the Ex. 18-3 in a PMBA tussle. They shoved over four runs in each of the first two heats, three in the fifth and seven in the sixth. They had 12 hits and one error while the losers had but four hits off Cairns (who fanned six) and one miscue, scoring their three in the fourth. Teams:

East City: Towns, Dorrington, McCarthy, Garvey, Harding, Kelly, Fitzgerald, Baptie, Hillier, Lafave, Driscoll.

Southend: Halcrow, Mahoney, Cairns, Dugan, Rowe, Masterson, Curtis, Orr, Beggs, Parnell.

—Remember When

By The Canadian Press

Winsome Barbara Ann Scott, Canadian figure-skating queen, won the Lou E. Marsh Memorial Trophy for the first time four years ago today. She was selected as Canada's outstanding sports competitor of 1945, and became the first of her sex to win the award which perpetuates the memory of a sports editor of the Toronto Star. Barbara Ann won the trophy again in 1947 and 1948.

CHRIS VAN CUYK, centre, made his major-league debut a winning one when he stopped the Cardinals with seven hits. The enthusiastic teammates are former Montreal Royals Duke Snider, left, and Jackie Robinson. They hit home runs in the game. Van Cuyk is a younger brother of Southpaw Johnny who pitched for the Royals for three seasons. Johnny failed to stay in the Big Show, but Chris evidently has the goods. Johnny is now with St. Paul.

Mt. Pleasant Wins

Mount Pleasant trounced Westclox fastballers 18-6 last night with a seven-run drive in the ninth adding it up. They had counter three each in the second and sixth and two apiece in the third and fourth. Westclox got one apiece in the fourth and the eighth, with four in the fifth. Mitchell and Evans each fanned four, the former also hitting a homer and triple. Other homers were banged out by Crawford, Parker (two), K. Bryans, and Casey. Teams:

Mount Pleasant — Hill c, Manbeck 1b, Parker ss, K. Bryans 2b, Mitchell p, C. Bryans 3b, Fair lf, Crawford cf, Fee rf.

Westclox — Casey ss, Heffernan 1b, Watson 3b, White cw, Gosselin rf, Miller c, Trennum lf, Evans p, Ellis lf, Donoghue 2b.

Marines Lose To Ashby's In Semi-Final

Ashby's trimmed Marines 16-9 at the Bowl last night to even up their best-of-five Girls' Softball League semi-final series at a game apiece, the teams resuming Friday. It was a free-hitting fray with Ashby's having more power at the plate, and Marines' miscues hurting their cause. R. Richards injured her ankle stealing home in the seventh, and it may prove to be a fracture.

D. Callan led the victors at bat with six in seven chances, L. Jordan hitting a homer and single, and M. Stewart a triple and two singles. P. Williams led the losers with two for three, one a double. R. Richards, M. Behan, M. Freeman and L. Jordan were the pick of the fielders in this struggle. There were few strikeouts on either side, it being a hitters' night.

Ashby's: E. McFadden, 3b; J. Reynolds, c; L. Jordan, ss; M. Stewart, p; M. Freeman, 1b; D. Callan, cf; G. Dracup, lf; B. Callan, 2b; I. Downer, rf.

Pirates Give $100,000 For Dillinger

PITTSBURGH, July 20 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates began a new era today by writing a cheque for approximately $100,000 to acquire third baseman Bob Dillinger from the American League's Philadelphia Athletics.

Dillinger's purchase came a few hours after banker Frank McKinney of Indianapolis sold his share of the last-place Pirates to two partners—John Galbreath a Columbus real estate man, and Tom Johnson, Pittsburgh attorney.

Galbraith, who not only became principle stockholder of the Bucs but president as well, left little doubt that he will try to bring a pennant winner to Pittsburgh. After Wednesday's transaction, Galbreath said:

"I'm interested in only one thing, a winning club in Pittsburgh. To that end, we will do whatever is necessary."

Wastes No Time

Although the Dillinger deal had been pending some time it didn't take long for Galbreath dispatch general manager Roy Hamey to Philadelphia where he concluded the transaction Wednesday night.

Manager Billy Meyer of the Pirates was elated at Dillinger's purchase. He said rookie third baseman Danny O'Connell, brought up only recently from Indianapolis of the American Association, might be tried at shortstop.

Dillinger has been hitting around the .310 mark this year, gained with 110 hits in 355 times at bat. He led the American League in triples with nine.

A Pirate spokesman declared "there may be other deals before the season is out."

Shrimps — Heffernan, Reid, P. DeNoble, Pace, Seabrooke, Sage, Scott, Steele, Chambo, Mountney, Giardino, Sutherland Parry, Walling.

The Petes lost a pair of peewee frays, dropping one 7-6 to the Lions. In this go, which went overtime, Reid scored the winner from Hendren. He had previously counted four, while Hendren and Coombs each scored for that club. Atkinson had two assists, Scharf two, Hendren two and Trudeau one. For the Petes, Davis got four goals, with Coombs and Bennedy each clicking for one. Assists went to Mountney (2) and Kent. Tigers won 8-5 over Petes on goals by Anthony (3), Jay (4) and Ketcheson, assists going to Jay (3)) and Ketcheson. The Petes' goals were by Davis (3) Hunt and Coombs from O'Neill, Kent also having one assist. Teams:

Mechanic Hurt In Boat Trial

DETROIT, July 20 (AP)—Off to a spectacular start and with one boat mechanic in a hospital, the Gold Cup speedboat trials rocked into their second day today.

Horace Dodge's twin-engined Delphine X flipped over on a test run on the Detroit River Wednesday, hurling out pilot Wild Bill Cantrell and two mechanics.

One mechanic, Walter Kabe, suffered a fractured leg and internal injuries. He remained under treatment in Jennings Memorial Hospital today.

Cantrell was discharged from the hospital after treatment for cuts and minor internal injuries. The second mechanic, Bob Petz, was unhurt.

Earlier Cantrell qualified My Sweetie for Saturday's race with a high average of 89.103 mph for three laps of the three-mile course.

My Sweetie is the defending Gold Cup champion and Cantrell is the defending driver. Barring complications, he intends to race Saturday.

Bethany Triumphs

BETHANY, July 20—(ENS)—Bethany took a 13-9 win over Bailieboro on Monday here. It was loose in spots with errors hurting. Bailieboro used three twirlers, Hie, Woods and Anderson, as Bethany scored three in the first, eight in the second and one each in the third and fourth. Teams:

Bailieboro—Anderson p, Woods p, Hie p, Lord c, Jewison 1b, Carruthers 2b, Johnston 3b, Hie ss, Eagleson rf, Thompson cf, Jackson lf.

Dauthuille Drops Portuguez; Lamotta Next

MONTREAL, July 20 — (CP) —Laurent Dauthuille appeared today to be headed for a crack at Jake Lamotta's middleweight crown.

The husky Frenchman flattened Tuzo Portuguez of Costa Rica at 1:08 of the third round in a 10-round main bout at Montreal's Baseball Stadium on Wednesday night before a disappointing crowd of 8,000 which contributed a gross gate of $29,842.

Dauthuille weighed 158½, Portuguez 162½. The 22-year-old Costa Rican was 2½ pounds over the 160 limit and Dauthuille's managers protested to the Montreal Boxing Commission before the fight.

The fight started at a slow pace in the first round as Portuguez adopted a low, crouching style which kept him out of range of Dauthuille's long-range artillery. But suddenly, after two rounds of inactivity, 26-year-old Dauthuille opened up and caught his cat-like opponent with a bruising right to the jaw. Portuguez went down on his knees, but got up at once. The Frenchman closed in and dropped the helpless Costa Rican with half a dozen powerful rights to the head.

Needs No Assistance

Portuguez, who has won 79 of 86 fights, jumped to his feet after being counted out. He requirtd no assistance on leaving the ring.

Maxie Waxman, Dauthuille's United States manager said after the fight that he will issue a challenge for a title bout with Lamotta. He said that if Lamotta refuses to meet Dauthuille he will seek Sugar Ray Robinson, world welterweight king, as next opponent for his fighter.

Chairman Eddie Egan of the New York Boxing Commission, said he thinks Dauthuille "has the qualifications to meet Lamotta" and that his commission would sanction such a match.

Welch Boys Win

Welch's peewee baseballers edged out the southend boys 15-14 in a keen PMBA tilt. Both sides were loose in the field with half a dozen or so errors apiece, while the pitching was fairly even. The winners got eight bingles to seven for the losers. Teams:

Southend: Parnell, Masterson, Mahoney, Beggs, Dugan, Orr, Cairns, Halcrow, Curtis, Wade.

Welch's: Towns, Dorrington, McCarthy, Garvey, Ayotte, Kelly, Fitzgerald, Harding, Hillier.

Cards On Scoring Spree Bounce Giants

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Stan Musial, on a 23-game hitting spree. Enos Slaughter in baseball's big six. No wonder the bounce-back St. Louis Cardinals today lead the National League.

Breaking out of a three-way tie for first place with a double rout of New York Giants, the Cards took charge of the race Wednesday.

The Giants, beaten 12 times in their last 15 games, were unable to provide even token resistance for the rebounding Cards. It was 18-4 in a day game and 10-3 in a combined 30-hit attack that routed Larry Hansen and Sheldon Jones in the early innings.

Beaten three in a row by Brooklyn earlier in the week, the Cards' cause looked dark. Now they're back in control with three consecutive pitching gems by the southpaw trio of Al Brazle, Max Lanier and Harry Brechen.

Lanier worked over the Giants in the day game. When the Cards piled up a 16-1 edge in seven innings, he returned to rest his sore toe. Brechen went all the way in the evening romp.

Stretches Hits

Musial stretched his hitting string with a double in the afternoon and two singles at night but the big guns were Slaughter and Del Rice. Enos had six hits, three in each, driving home four. Rice hoisted a homer, triple, double and single to drive in six. Rice, Slaughter, Red Schoendienst and Eddie Miller hit homers in the day game.

The Phillies, one of three tied for the lead Wednesday morning, dropped a peg by splitting two with Pittsburgh. Granny Hamner's 11th-inning homer with a man on won the opener 3-2 but the Pirates grabbed the second 4-2 on rookie Bill MacDonald's five-hit pitching.

Johnny Klippstein won his first big league game and hit his first homer for Chicago in its 11-3 romp over Boston Braves. The loss dropped the Braves out of a first-place tie. Roy Smalley hit his 15th homer, a double and single to back up Lippstein's 11-hit job.

Brooklyn's scheduled twilight-night doubleheader at Cincinnati was washed out until tonight.

Clip St. Louis

With Johnny Mize leading the parade, New York Yankees cut another half game off Detroit's American League lead. The Tigers, 9-5 winners over Boston, now sport a three-game margin over the Yankees who whipped St. Louis twice, 16-1 and 4-3.

The burly first baseman, ticketed for the Pacific Coast League two weeks ago continued his amazing batting surge with five hits in six trips, including a game-hitting homer off Ned Carver in the eighth inning of the second game.

Red Rolfe, saving his pitchers for the big series with New York, gave dizzy Trout his first start since June 22 and got away with a victory over the Red Sox.

Put On Pressure

Bobby Doerr chased Trout with a two-run homer in the eighth and Vic Wertz nicked rookie Willard Nixon, the Boston starter, for his 15th homer with nobody on in the fifth. Doerr's homer cut the Tigers' lead to 6-3 but they added three more in the ninth on four walks and Johnny Lipon's two-run single.

Bobby Feller made win No 201, a neat four-hit shutout of Philadelphia. Joe Gordon's 10th homer, off Dick Fowler, of Toronto, with a man on in the eighth, wrapped up the decision for Cleveland, now 3½ games behind Detroit in third place.

Washington whipped their old teammate, Ray Scarborough, for the second night in a row, 5-4, on Sam Dente's infield single with two out in the 10th inning. Dente's hit scored Irv Noren.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Jackie Stewart and Earl Valiquette, the two footballers who signed one contract too many, aren't out of the wood yet.

Stewart, a high-scoring backfielder with Hamilton Tigers of the Ontario Rugby Football Union last season, and Valiquette, ace lineman for Hamilton Wildcats of the Interprovincial Union, have committed themselves to play both for Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Canada League and Hamilton Tiger-Cats, the new Interprovincial entry.

Just when it appeared that Stewart and Valiquette would stay in Hamilton, manager Al Anderson of the Eskimos telephoned them Wednesday, threatening to bar them from Canadian football unless they reach Edmonton by Sunday.

Tiger-Cat officials insist with equal belligerence that the pair will be held to their Hamilton contracts.

Track men from Hamilton's Olympic Club Wednesday night set a Canadian junior record for the 440-yard relay.

The four-man team of Tom Little, Ross Coates, Dave Joyce and Don McFarlane cracked the old mark of 44.5 seconds with a sizzling 44.1 clocking at a Hamilton meet.

Silver Lee won the Supertest pacing stake at Tillsonburg Wednesday from one of the largest and best fields ever to contest the event. The grey filly, owned and trained by Bill Timlinson of Glencoe, captured the elimination heat and then came back with a second and first in the final event to take the major portion of the $4,900 purse and the Supertest trophy.

Tom Cooper, son of the late "Pops" Cooper, will head an entry list from the United States and southern Ontario into Hamilton's international speed boat regatta Aug. 5.

Canadian entries have been received from Toronto, Hamilton, Fort Erie, St. Catharines, Brockville, Chippawa and Niagara Falls.

Duke Volo, owned by Lucien Lachapelle, of Sorel, Que., and driven by Henri Larochelle, set a trotting record at Toronto's Thorncliffe Raceway Wednesday, negotiating a mile in 2.07 1-5.

TOM GARD'S NOTE BOOK

One of the most distressing scenes at this time of year is a lawn burned to a crisp. True, some home owners are able to keep their lawns green throughout the summer but they are in the minority. Soil fertility is as important in this struggle to keep grass green as the amount of water applied. People who make a lawn on a two-inch layer of good soil are only asking for trouble. Money spent to prepare a deep seed bed before the seed is sown will save heavy annual payments for fertilizers in the years to come. A friend of mine placed a two-inch layer of peat under six inches of rich top soil and has never had to worry about watering his lawn. In case you are struggling with a poor lawn, you will find the lawn spike illustrated a valuable asset.

Garden Tables

I visited a classmate of mine last week who had just moved out to the wide open spaces. I envy all the room he will have to employ his gardening skill. The thing that really caught my eye was a huge mill stone he plans to mount on a cement base for a garden table. This relic of the past will still be giving service generations hence. Much smaller stones can be procured and used equally well. Also illustrated is a wooden table built on a barrel; you will find it easy to make. One of the most effective garden tables I have ever seen was made from the marble top of an old-fashioned tea-room table placed on a 12 inch cement drainage tile, partially buried in the ground to make it solid. The whole thing had not cost a cent to assemble as the table top was rescued from a dump and, unbeknown to the proper authorities, the township contributed the tile.

Garden Fences

A fence can be a friendly thing as I have just found out. My neighbour and I have finally taken time to sit down and plan the building of a new one between us. Now that we have progressed past the nodding acquaintance stage, I'm certain we will be spending many hours together.

Startles Detroit With Samoyed Dog Team

A former Peterborough man and his dogs are causing somewhat of a sensation in Detroit. The man is Leonard Chouinard, who spent his youth in this city and moved to the United States some years ago.

Last Sunday, strollers in downtown Detroit gawked as a dog team trotted along the scorching pavement, hauling a toy wagon which held a stocky, 43-year-old man.

At his command of "gee," the dogs would swing single file to the right. A "haw" sent them swerving to the left.

When he yelled "whoa," the dogs stopped and sat down in unison.

His animals were snow-white Siberian Samoyeds who are at their best when dragging sledges across Arctic wastes.

Disposing Of Dogs

The team was making a farewell appearance.

Although he values them at $3,500, Chouinard is giving away most of his purebred pets—tor two reasons.

First, he has bought a confectionery store in Detroit. He says he must devote most of his time to it.

Second, he believes Samoyeds make the best pets in the world —and he wants to "sell" more people on them.

"They'll never bite a human," he said, "not even if you shove them around." They like to fight among themselves, however.

They are poor watchdogs, he admitted. "You can walk right up to them in the dark and pet them," he added.

"Up in Canada, a dog wasn't any good unless he could pull," Chouinard said.

When he came to Detroit 26 years ago, he started training dog teams. He used such unusual breeds as airedales and chows.

First A Pastime

An iron worker by trade, he was severely injured in a fall three years ago.

To fill his idle time, he purchased a pair of Samoyeds. From the first litter he chose three males to fill out his team.

Lead dog is Tim, the "daddy". Behind him in order are the pups, Timber, Trouper and Troubles. They are 13 months old.

Using a special harness, they can pull loads up to 1,200 pounds, Chouinard said.

Before he bought his new business, he often used the team for transportation. They are frightened in heavy traffic.

When unhitched, they never cross a street unless their master is with them.

"The secret of successful training is to make the dogs think it is play," he said.

The dogs are fed once a day, at night. Then they'll sleep nights instead of frisking about, he said. They weigh about 60 pounds each.

Chouinard said the four cost him about $1 a day to feed.

Although they prefer snow, the dogs can adjust themselves to Detroit's hot summers.

To keep them more comfortable, Chouinard combs out their double thick hair frequently. But he doesn't dare clip them.

"They have pink skin and would get sunburned badly," he explained.

"I want lots of folks to love Samoyeds like I do," he said.

Refuses To Give Assailant's Name

TORONTO, July 20 — Stabbed eight times in the chin and abdomen early Wednesday, 35-year-old Michael Trela of Millwood Rd. had still refused up to Wednesday night to give police the name of his assailant. He countered questions with, "I'll settle this trouble in my own way."

Trela was kept overnight at St. Michael's Hospital for observation, but allowed to go home Wednesday afternoon. It was just one month ago thieves broke into Trela's home and smashed his furniture. On that occasion, Trela told police he had no idea who it was that held a grudge against him.

His face and clothes covered with blood, the man was taken to hospital at 2:30 p.m. by Edgar Lawrie, who lives at Trela's home. He had been stabbed six times in the abdomen and twice in the chin, apparently with a penknife. Lawrie told police Trela was injured in an argument in a lane at the rear of O'Keefe's Brewery.

A young man and a woman are wanted for questioning in connection with the wounding.

Chose Wrong Station

BURNABY, B.C. — (CP) — Leo Williams, gas station attendant, was astonished when a motorist drove up for gas. "Where did you get that car," he asked the youth who was driving, "it looks like mine." Fellow employees held the youth until police arrived and Williams identified the car which had been stolen from him.

Canadian Given Special Audience

ROME, July 20 (Reuters) — Pope Pius granted a special audience Wednesday in his summer palace Castel Gandolfo, near Rome, to Alexander Gordon Sampson, for 18 years a director of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association.

The Pope, who showed great interest in Canada, gave Sampson a papal benediction "for Canada and the Canadian people."

Sampson, formerly general manager and national advertising manager of the Halifax Chronicle and Star, is president of one of Canada's main wine-producing companies. He was studying the European wine industry before returning to Canada to campaign for a reform in the Dominion's drinking habits, he said.

'Our trouble is not that we drink too much but that many of us drink the wrong quantities at the wrong time, in the wrong places," Sampson told reporters.

Heavy consumption of alcohol without food, for instance, has given Canadians a reputation for over-indulgence."

AMERICAN HEAVY: The 47½-ton Patton has a smaller gun and probably less armor protection than the Joseph Stalin III. Mass production of bigger US tanks is "several years" away.

U.S. "SHERMAN": A 35-ton tank, this was the most widely used American armor in World War II. Fast medium tanks like this may prove their worth when US starts chasing Korean Reds.

RUSSIAN HEAVY: The 57-ton Joseph Stalin III was first used in Poland in 1945. Experts claim US still can't match it and fear Russia may be trying out something even better in Korea.

RUSSIAN "KV": Less impressive than the Joseph Stalin III but still heavier than America's biggest, this Russian tank weighs 52 tons and mounts a 76-mm. gun like America's Sherman.

Feud Among Tank Experts Revived by Korean War

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA) —Reports of new types of very heavy Russian - made tanks in the Korea fighting have brought out into the open a long, bitter feud among armor experts over the relative merits of U.S. and Red tanks.

There are many tanks experts in the U.S. Army who have felt that America has always been on the wrong track in tank development and use. They claim, and most experts admit it, that Russia has always led everyone in the development of tanks, and that the U. S. today does not have a heavy tank to match the Red Joseph Stalin III which was first used in the battle of Poland in 1945 and which is now obsolete.

The great fear among the experts is that the Russians might be trying out a tank in Korea even better than the JS-III. That would leave the U S. almost hopelessly behind in this important field of armament development.

U. S. experts who have made the decisions on what kinds of tanks we needed have laid emphasis on maneuverability, speed and good mechanical workmanship in their construction. Russian emphasis has always been on heavy armor, heavy tanks, and a lot of them. Russian tanks have always been notorious for their deceptively crude outward appearance and the crowded, uncomfortable space provided for crews.

Intelligence reports give vivid proof of the Russian emphasis on great numbers of tanks. While American produced 900 last year, Russia turned out 45,000. This year Russia plans to make 40,000 while American plans call for 200 new ones and the remodeling of 250 old ones.

Last winter Army Chief of Staff Gen. Joe Collins let it slip at a press conference that the U.S. had several new tanks which would be better than anything a potential enemy might have. Unfortunately, the Army admits now, these new types tanks couldn't be available in any mass quantity" for several years."

A pentagon authority says that the first thing a tank man asks for is a good gun. The Russian JS-III has a 120 mm cannon. The U.S. Army's heaviest M-46 "Patton" tank has a smaller 90 mm gun.

Next most important quality in a tank is armor. The Russian JS-III has a front plate 3.9 inches thick, sides 3.5 inches thick with turret sides 3.9 inches thick. Thickness of armor on the Patton is a classified secret. But over-all weight of the two tanks gives the clue. The JS-III weighs up-wards of 57 tons; the Patton is classed as 47½ tons.

British, French and U.S. experts scoffed at the first big Russian tanks they saw during World War II. The thickness of the armor seemed to vary on each tank. It turned out that in order to get tank armor faster from the factories, the Russians had set a minimum thickness with a liberal tolerance above that minimum. It wasn't theneatest job in the world, but they got a lot of them. And they did the job.

Russian tanks were also laughed at for the amount of maintenance they required in the field. Some of them carried a spare differential lashed to the back. And it turned out that they were in the repair shop much more than U. S. tanks. But the Reds set up a highly efficient field maintenance system which helped to overcome this difficulty.

Those who have made the decisions on our tank policy, however, have some strong arguments on their side. They point out that the ultimate outcome of a war is the important thing. As the U.S. conceives warfare and has planned for it, the heavy tank alone is not likely to be a deciding factor. It is still to be proved in Korea whether or not the airplane and anti-tank weapons are a more effective weapon against a tank offensive than a lot of big opposing tanks.

In spite of reports that U.S rockets and bazooka missiles are bouncing off Russian - made tanks, daily bulletins from the front lines show many of them being knocked out and damaged. And when the expected tide of battle turns, and it becomes America's turn to start chasing the Commies, the superior, faster medium tanks which the U.S. forces have are expected to prove their worth.

Committee of Five Studies London's Dock Area Woes

Five men, meeting behind closed doors, have begun an investigation of London's port and the habits of its 27,000 dockers, stevedores ,and lightermen, a Reuters correspondent writes from the British capital.

The British government has asked them to find out why the port of London has been the most strike-troubled sector of British industry in the last five years.

Two Explanations

Several earlier, unofficial investigators have suggested possible explanations. The two most popular have been:

1. That Communists have infiltrated into the port, obtained key positions in the trade unions and brought the workers under their influence.

2. That the mammoth trade union which organizes a majority of the port workers has lost touch with the rank and file, does not adequately represent their interests and so drives them to unofficial action.

British Communists deny the first suggestions. The trade union denies the second

The five men who have to sift the evidence and try to reach an objective conclusion are: Sir Frederick Leggett, a former high official at the ministry of labor; A. M. Holbein, vice-president of the Federation of Civil Engineering Contractors; G. H. Bagnall, a former trade union official who now is an industrial administrator; Sir Robert Hyde founder of the Industrial Welfare Society, and Sir Wilfrid Garrett, a former inspector of factories.

Port employers, trade union officials and government-appointed administrators are expected to give evidence before the committee of inquiry.

Representatives of an unofficial port workers' committee which has led several strikes in the port in opposition to the official union have demanded the right to be heard. But it is not yet known whether they will be admitted.

Biggest dispute since the war occurred last summer, when the port was brought to a standstill by refusal of dockers to work Canadian ships which they regarded as "blaek"—that is, the subject of a trade union dispute.

Government and trade union spokesmen denied the ships were "black," said trouble on board was due to a domestic feud in Canada between the Communist-led Canadian Seamen's Union and the rival International Seafarer's Union sponsored by the American Federation of Labor.

Observers agree that one of the most interesting parts of the committee's report will be that concerned with the role of the Transport and General Workers' Union with 1,300,000 members, is one of the world's largest trade unions outside of Soviet Russia. About 20,000 of the 27,000 workers in the Port of London belong to it.

Ernest Bevin, now foreign secretary, built up the Transport and General Workers' Union almost from scratch and led it through most of its biggest struggles.

In 1940, when Winston Churchill formed a coalition government Mr. Bevin moved from the union to the ministry of labor.

Six Good Crops In 30 Years Southern Alberta Record

By JACK SCOTT.

MEDICINE HAT, Alta.—Rudyard Kipling is said to have called Medicine Hat "the town with all hell for a basement," a rather neat quip considering the fact that the burg squats over a sea of natural gas.

Kip would have been just as much on the ball if he'd called it "the town with its tongue hanging out," because for half a century folks in these parts have been looking up anxiously at the burning skies for rain, praying for it, trying to find substitutes for it, even hiring some modern voodoo men to pray God for it.

Driving from the west into the Hat, itself a green and pleasant town, you roll through tens of thousands of acres of dry desert with empty rotting barns and farmhouses, leaning and ash-grey with age, and each the story of some farmer who looked hungrily to the southern Alberta skies for a little moisture and got nothing.

From early spring until late fall the average rainfall is a slim three inches. In 30 years there were just six good crops. They say that the turnover in population in the farm areas has been complete since 1910, when the heaviest settling went on. Farmers, many of them up from the Dakotas, ploughed their usual foot-deep furrows. The hot wind and the bronze sun did their work. Many a farm simply blew away.

The natural gas kept Medicine Hat alive, a kind of lost industrial centre put down in the heart of flat country that has everything needed to grow grain but that elusive wetness.

The people remain on, with their tongues hanging out for water, knowing that this kind of economy is the first hit in hard times, but sure that the day is coming when the surrounding country will again come as green as dollar bills.

Seeded Clouds

The Hat's tongue now is out just about as far as it can go because the town can smell water across the prairie and there's a good chance that the years of yearning may be near an end.

Water may be flumed from the expanding Lethbridge irrigation system or from the waterway at Brooks and Bassano, about 65 miles to the northwest. But the best bet is a defunct enterprise south of Brooks known as the Canada Land Co. This irrigation system, fed by the Bow River, was built by British capital and lost money. Now the federal government is trying to wind up a deal to open the watered land to 3,000 "dried out" Saskatchewan farm families. They've appropriated two-and-a-quarter million dollars to develop the area and the theory is that it will bring that wet, wonderful stuff to Medicine Hat's parched doorstep.

The people here are counting on this with a sort of desperate optimism, since they've tried everything else.

The nearest they've come to ersatz rain was through experiments by the RCAF in 1948. Air force pilots, working for the National Research Council, tried "milking the clouds with dry ice." The fliers actually managed to "seed" a little rain, but reported two sad, hard facts; it was plenty risky for the pilots and there was simply no way to get the rainfall on a target.

It was that year, too, that Medicine Hat parched from two particularly tough years, imported a dreamy young man named Donald S. Johnston from Regina. Donald had a contraption he called a "Universcope" and explained airily that it consisted of twin magnets which would "induce moisture by drawing moonbeams into the orbit of drought attraction."

Everybody was remarkably tolerant with Donald. Before he retired to Regina he graciously reversed the magnets so that Medicine Hat's annual stampede wouldn't be flooded out. It wasn't.

The Rainmaker

The most colorful rainmaker of them all — one Charles Hatfield, of Kansas — operated here for one summer and it's a lovely story. I went back into the 1921 files of the Medicine Hat News today and got some of the story.

Hatfield became world famous overnight when San Diego hired him with a guarantee of -10,000 if he could fill the town's reservoir. It rained 10 inches in the month Hatfield was on the job, 110 bridges were washed out and 12 people were drowned when a dam collapsed.

This had a profound effect on the citizens of the Hat. They hired "The Rainmaker," farmers put in donations to a fund to guarantee him $8,000 for a four-inch rainfall and the great man built a huge thing that looked like a gigantic footstool a few miles out of town. A News reporter who went out wrote that he was most impressed to see that Hatfield had built eaves on the caravan he lived in "to catch the water for drinking."

The best part of the story is that it rained so hard in the first week that farmers couldn't plant their crops in the muddy fields. But then some of the more usual Medicine Hat weather, with temperatures at 100 degrees set in, Hatfield was set to alibing furiously about "conditions" (it was raining everywhere else in Alberta) and finally it did rain again.

Hatfield seems then to have bowed out hurriedly, at that opportune point, temporarily a hero again, and, though they boosted the ante to $12,000 if he returned, he never came back. In Medicine Hat the odds were just too big.

TWICE THIS WEEK, Rt. Hon. Norfolk Show Held For First On Royal Estate

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

SANDRINGHAM, England — (CP)—the Queen gave the King a prize at an agricultural show here.

She presented her husband, who has always been an ardent farmer, with a silver challenge cup as owner of the four best red poll cattle.

The occasion was the Royal Norfolk Agricultural Show, held for the first time in its 103 years on the Royal estate at Sandringham.

Several prizes went into the royal coffers, including the championship for red poll cows and three first prizes for a six-year-old cow, a four-year-old cow and a two-year-old bull.

The Royal exhibit of Essex pigs brought a reserve prize, and a display of blooms from Sandringham gardens won the gold medal.

Had Good Weather

The two-day show had good weather and attendance numbered about 70,000. The King, the Queen and Princess Margaret spent six hours each day touring the show.

The King showed much interest in the machinery exhibits and watched the farriers at work, while the Queen and Princess Margaret visited the goats, poultry, rabbits and pigeons.

No formality or fixed timetable attended the Royal visits, the King preferred to wander at leisure like any other farmer or country squire.

Like his father and grandfather before him, he is fond of farming, and talks crops and shooting with the best of them.

However short his Sandringham visits, he always makes the fullest tour of his farms and estate that time will permit. During his absence, monthly reports are sent him, giving full details of crops, stock and milk production.

Well Cultivated

Three Kings all farmers, have changed the face of Sandringham. Bought by Edward VII as a large sandy tract fit only for rabbits, it is now a well-wooded, well - cultivated agricultural estate run on sound commercial lines.

"I have walked and waded over these marshes for more than forty years, bleak and foggy and cold as they sometimes can be, but I derive real satisfaction when I see these rich lands producing fine crops for the nation's larder," said the King.

Cancer Of Stomach Increasing In U.S.

LOS ANGELES, July 20 (AP) —Cancer of the stomach is increasing in the United States because people are living longer, Dr. Claude E. Welch of Harvard University Medical School told a cancer symposium conducted by the University of California at Los Angeles.

"Radical surgery is saving more lives and, where operations are performed before the disease has involved other organs, more than half the victims of stomach cancer are alive at least five years after the surgery," Dr. Welch said Wednesday.

He said that as many middle aged persons are killed by cancer of the stomach as by traffic accidents.

"There is some reason to suspect that cancer of the stomach is sometimes caused by eating too hot and too irritating foods."

Mrs. Priscilla Corner

Whan of Park Street Baptist Church officiated and pall-bearers all of the Corner family were Russell, Ralph, Bruce, Bert, Harry and Craig. Burial was at Ray's cemetery, Lakefield.

Selection of an American actress to portray the great Victoria brought loud protests from some English circles.

Vandals Worry In Australia

SYDNEY, Australia — (CP) — Vandals cause thousands of dollars damage each year, destroying telephones, trees, train fittings and park equipment.

Some Australian social workers, attempting to explain the vandalism, believe it is a reflection of a deep-rooted antipathy which began with convicts transported to Australia in the late 18th and early 19th centuries.

The Sydney Public Telephone Company has been one of the worst sufferers from the vandal menace. Last year 11,000 telephones were put out of action, company officials said.

Vandals destroyed 1,500 directories, broke 495 dials, wrenched off 1,061 receivers, smashed 376 windows and blocked 5,100 chutes with bent coins or rubbish.

In one municipality vandals pulled several hundred newly planted ornamental trees out by the roots.

In parks they have smashed fountains and destroyed seats.

Special educational films have been made and shown to children's organizations in an attempt to create a new approach to the problem.

M.P. Fears British Census Betrays Women's Secrets

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, July 20—(CP)—Fears that next year's British census would betray women's secrets worried the House of Commons. John Hay, Conservative member for Henley, termed the forthcoming country-wide quiz a "grand snoop" and said the forthcoming country-wide quiz a "grand snoop" and said some of the questions women would be asked were 'downright impertinet". Other opposition members objected to census-takers asking women under 50, who had married more than once, on what date they were married the first time.

Hay drew a trutest from the government bench when he argued that people would object strongly if asked wether they were more fertile after their second marriage.

Had Intent

Arthur Blenkinsop, Parliamentary Secretary to the Health Ministry, challenged Hay to say what question asked such information. Hay replied that while there was none that asked that question in so many words, there was one which had that intent.

All the questions in the census, Glenkinsop said in closing debate, have been asked before either in Britain or in North America. A motion to approve the census was accepted without a division.

Smithereens

Sir Waldron Smithers, one of the real "characters" of the Commons, is being teased by a group of journalism students at a recent street institute.

Sir Waldron, a true-blue conservative, has asked more than 15,000 questions in his parliamentary career, almost all about things which he deems as danger of the existing order.

The students of journalism, worried that the Conservative member for Orpington may be running out of questions, have thought up some new ones for him. Some samples:

"In order to make foreign tourists in this country feel at home... would it not be a pleasant gesture to allow them to drive on the right-hand side of the road?"

"Is any plan in progress to provide two-tier platforms for double-decker trains?"

"Would the Minister state how many red-bearded road members have registered as vegetarians?"
